NOMINATION MEETING.

LARGE AND REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING ON MONDAY EVENING — HERMAN MENG ELECTED MAYOR FOR A SECOND TERM BY ACCLAMATION.

One of the largest gatherings of ratepayers of the Town of Napanee held in years was that of Monday evening last, when a full house listened attentively until 11.30 o'clock to what the Council of 1907 had to say of the finances, etc., and to the new blood aspiring for election for 1908.

At 8 o'clock precisely, Mr W. A. Grange, Town Clerk, declared nominations closed, with the following . . . of candidates:—

	PROPOSER.	SECONDER.
MAYOR—
Herman Meng	H. V. Fralick	Wm. H. Boyle

There being no other names before the meeting, Mr. Meng was declared re-elected for a second term by acclamation.

NEWBURGH.

The nomination proceedings on Monday passed off very quietly, rather too quietly for a live village with large interests in the hands of the municipal Council. Dr. M. I. Beeman was the only member of this year's Council present to discuss the affairs of the village. A considerable number of electors were present, but there was no illuminating discussion of public affairs to reward their interest. Reeve G. A. Aylesworth is absent in England. Nominations were received by Clerk Chas. Welbanks, and under the chairmanship there were a few speeches after the nominations. Mr. M. Ryan, the only member of the township, will not come's reeve for 1908. Not being present, however, he made no promises. Mr. Ryan, though a new comer in the municipal arena, is one of our keen business men, large interests in the village, and should make an excellent head of the Council. Candidates for Council were Dr. Beeman, J. Fullerton, W. W. Adams, W. Sutton, J. B. Aylesworth, M. Simkins, F. Tomkins, T. I. Waters and Z. Fitzmartin. Mr. J. B. Aylesworth, in the opening address was reminiscent of the early days of the municipality when he had been actively connected with the Council, and though not soliciting support, would act if elected. Dr. Beeman, speaking for this Council's record, improvements that had been made, notably the extensive building of cement walks. M. W. Simpkins at some length criticised the financial management of the year, and proposed an amendment in that regard if elected. The statement of the Treasurer, Mr. E. Gandier, shows receipts of the year up to Dec. 15th, of $3244.45, and expenditure of $2553.41, leaving a substantial balance on hand. The assets of the village are $2745.47, with liabilities of $2233.67. The three retiring members of the Board of Education, Messrs. Wm. Nugent, J. M. Thomson and Jas. Johnston were re-elected last Thursday by acclamation.

A number of our young people attended the tenmeeting at Enterprise on Christmas night, despite the bad state of the roads.

Holiday visitors this week and some not noted last week:—Jos. Gandier, Tamworth, visited his father's, Rev. J. Gandier; Mrs. J. Sharpe and daughter, Lanark, Ont., with her husband, at her mother's; Mrs. C. Moore; Harold Fairbairn, Montreal, at his father's, Mr. Fairbairn's; Mrs. J. Hutchinson, Mrs. J. Wood and family, at Mr. G. A. Aylesworth's; Gordon Clancy, of Toronto, at his nephew's, and Frank Clancy, of Toronto, at their father's, Mr. C. Clancy; Fred. Bird, Napanee, at Mr. Mathews'; Miss Bird, at Mr. Jas. Davy's; Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Benson, Perth, and Miss A. Baker, Toronto, at Rev. J. W. Country's; Miss Jessie Benson and Mr. Geo. Peal, Tamworth, at Miss Ada Berriew's; Mr. Neal Brown, Bathurst, Ont., at Mr. F. D. Moore's; Mr. Herrington and Mr. Rhodes, Napanee, at Mr. D. Herrington's; Mr. Jas. Davy, Toronto, at his father's, Mr. Jas. Davy; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Shower, Carleton, at Mrs. John Shorey's.

A note by Mrs. J. Sharpe, and a donation by Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Moore, of their special musical numbers at the Christmas tree entertainment on Monday night which were much appreciated.

Miss Lizzie Knapp, Kingston, spent a few days last week with Miss Ada Berriew, who left on Tuesday to spend the holidays with friends in Tamworth.

Mr. D. Herrington and Miss Rhodes are to have a position with the McLaughlin Manufacturing Company of that city.

Mr. F. D. Shorey and family motored up on New Year's from Napanee and spent a pleasant day at Centreville with Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Shorey.

A NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTION.

I, Bamford, that whereas I have not done so, I ought to have, now as I have done, I will not have to be picked up by passers-by, and as I am going to start to-day to get up, I will have a good breakfast and be down to the office at 8 o'clock sharp.

ENTERPRISE.

Christmas passed off quietly here, although the weather was rather disagreeable in the afternoon.—The dinner in the church on Monday in the evening, was a grand success, both socially and financially. The addresses given by Rev. W. H. Emsley, of Napanee, and Mr. J. M. Denyes, of Newburgh, were excellent in every way, and the musical entertainment was all to be the best in years. The recitations given by Miss Johnston, of Mountain Grove, and was claimed by one and now, and Miss Hattie Wagar were each of the highest order and most efficiently rendered. Quite a number came up from Newburgh with Mr. Denyes.—Pleasant visitors: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fenwick, of Myrtle, at W. S. Fenwick's; Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Vanantwerp and Miss Ella Mr. and Mrs. J. Lockwood, Mrs. Amanda Jackson and Alfred Jackson, of Lake Ontario, at O. C. Jackson's; Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Clancy at P. J. Murphy's; Mr. and Mrs. D. Wagar, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wagar, Misses Hattie and Flossie Wagar, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Raymond, of Selby, at Mr. Jethro Card's.—Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Card and family and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. G. Wagar at Hugh Wagar's.—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harkness and little sleve Jean, of Tweed, and Mr. George Wartman, of Camden East, at Mr. E. Hamilton's.—Mr. Will. Mellow, of Desercato, and Miss Katie Gardiner and Mr. Leonard Gardiner, of Kingston, at W. J. Mellow's.—Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wagar and family spent Xmas at Moscow.—Mr. and Mrs. John A. Reid, at Hinch.—Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fenwick at Thomas Wilson's.—Rockwell Lockwood spent Xmas at Robbin.—Rev. W. H. Emsley was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Wagar, while in town.—Mr. and Mrs. Fitzmartin and family, of Newburgh, spent Xmas at the Wheler home.—Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire, of Strathcona, at P. Kennedy's.—Mr. E. J. Reid, of Kingston, spent a few days the guest of Mr. T. Kenny.—Dr. A. A. Staley spent Christmas with friends at Kingston.—Miss Bessie Dowling has retired from teaching school, and is going to remain with her parents.—Miss Ada Berriew Christmas at the Presbytery at Chippewa.—Michael McKeown has returned from Detroit, Michigan, and is visiting at his brother's.—Miss Edith Whalen, of the firm of Steacy & Steacy, Kingston, spent a few days the guest of Mrs

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" seems sure-defiant for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure any cold in one day, but they are guaranteed to cure the most obstinate cold, or the worst early cold. That's surely better, and that's the way they are called Preventics.

Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine in them, nothing sickening. Nice for the children and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, take a Preventic. Promptness may also save hours of work and days of illness. Preventics break up feverishness, quicken dry, Hoarse noises. The Preventics greatest efficiency. Sold by druggists or by mail. 25c. a box, 5 for $1.00. Insist on your druggists giving you

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.

The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was especially bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the enemies of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long, and in six weeks he had a normal set of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

"I don't think," said Joe—"I don't think that you need be afraid I'll do that, Goodby."

"Be sure to shut the door, please. It's rather noisy with it open. Goodby." Eugene waved his hand and sank back upon the divan.

Joe went across the street to the National House. The eagle fell as silent as if he had been Martin Pike. He had begun to write his name in the register. "My trunk is still at the station," he said. "I'll give you my check to send down for it."

"Excuse me," said the clerk. "We have no rooms."

"What?" cried Joe innocently. He looked up into the condensed eyes of Mr. Brown. "Oh," he said, "yes."

Deathly silence followed him to the door, but as it closed behind him he heard the outbreak of the sagus like a fire when striking a damp heap of tin cans.

Two hours later he descended from an evil orb of a cab at the carnal attached to Beaver Beach and followed the path through the marsh to the crumbling pier. A red bearded man was seated on a plank by the water edge fishing.

"Mike," said Joe, "have you got room for me? Can you take me in for a few days, until I find a place in town where they'll let me stay?"

The red bearded man rose slowly, pushed back his hat and stared hard at the wanderer; then he uttered a howl of joy and seized the other's hands in his and shook them wildly.

"Glory be on high!" he shouted. "It's Joe Louden come back! We never knew how we missed ye till ye'd gone! Place for ye! Can I find it? There ain't a inp o' perdition in town, including myself, that wouldn't kill me if I couldn't! Ye'll have old Maggie's room, my own aunt's. Ye remember how she used to dance? Ha, ha! She's been burnin' below these four years! And we'll have the celebration of yer return this night. There'll be many of 'em will come when they hear ye're back in Canaan! We'll all hope ye're goin' to stay awhile!"

"Excuse me," said the clerk. "We have no rooms."

CHAPTER IX.

If any echo of doubt concerning his undesirable conspicuousness sounded faintly in Joe's mind, it was silenced effectively. Canaan had not forgotten him. Far from it, so far that it began pointing him out to strangers on the street the very day of his return. His course of action, likewise that of his friends, permitted him little obscurity, and when the rumors of his finally obtaining lodging at Beaver Beach and of the celebration of per re-union there were presently confirmed he stood in the lime light indeed, on a footlights upspring through the trap door.

The welcoming festivities had not been so disorderly conducted as to accord with the general policy of Beaver Beach. An unfortunate incident caused the arrest of one of the celebrators and the ambulancing to the hospital of another on the homeward way, the ensuing proceedings in court lodging to the whole affair a publicity devoutly unsought for. Mr. Happy Fear (such was the habitual name of the imprisoned gentleman) had to bear a great amount of harsh criticism for injuring a companion within the city limits after daylight and for failing to observe that three policemen were not too distant from the scene of operations to engage therein.

"Happy, if he had it in mind to harm him," said the red bearded man to Mr. Fear upon the latter's return to society, "why didn't ye do it out here at the beach?"

"Because," returned the indicreet, "he didn't say what he was goin' to say till we got in town."

Extraordinary probing on the part of the prosecuting had developed at the trial that the obnoxious speech had referred to the guest of the evening. The assembly party, one Thomas Cory, was not of Canaan, but a bit of driftwood haply touching shore for the moment at Beaver Beach. Nevertheless in this world—he had been introduced to the coterie of Mike's Place by Happy Fear before had come a closer acquaintance with him on a day when both and chanced to travel together by the paring road. Cory by Happy had felt responsible for the proper behavior of his protégé after in fact, bound to enforce it; additionally. Happy had once been saved from a term of imprisonment (at a time when it would have been more than ordinarily inconvenient) by help and advice from Joe, and he was not one to forget. Therefore he was grieved to observe that his own guest seemed to be somewhat jealous of the hero of the occasion, and disposed to look coldly upon him. The stranger, however, contented himself with innuendo (more reprehensible of the two and other manner of things for which one could not squarely lay hands upon him) until such time as he and his sponsor had come to Main street in the clear dawn on their way to Happy's apartment over the saloon. It may be that the stranger perceived what Happy did not—the three buxom counts in the perspective. At the events, he now put into words of simple strength the unfavorable conception he had formed of Joe,

Robinson's is Good in all lines—Best in many.

One Hundred Tweed Skirts

On Sale School Opening Day, Jan. 6th. Sale Price, $2.50 each.

Monday, Jan. 6th, is school opening day. Hundreds of girls will be particularly interested in new wearing apparel. On the same day the parents of a great many will be in town. Now you know why we have selected January 6th as the day for a BIG SALE of Skirts. These skirts were sold in regular way they would bring $3.50 to $5.00. They will be in window for display the Saturday previous. DATE, MONDAY, JANUARY 6th. TIME, 10 O'CLOCK.

Sale of Penman's Unshrinkable Natural Wool Underwear for Women, Thursday, January 9th--98c each.

Most people know what Penman's Natural Wool Underwear is like. Every garment has the pen angle trademark sewn on. The medium and large sizes sell regularly at $1.25, $1.35 and $1.50. It is positively unshrinkable. For one day, Thursday, Jan. 9th, we will sell all sizes Vest and Drawers, 98 CENTS EACH. See Window. Better buy for future needs. Time, 10 o'clock.

Every Fur Coat and Fur-Lined Coat Reduced in Price.

All Furs are going at reduced prices same as remnants. If you do any drifting don't fool yourself by trying to do without Furs. That bit of money you have hid away in a stocking or drawing 3 per cent. interest may now save you $5.00 to $20.00 in buying a fur coat. The coat will pay you big, big dividends of comfort and health every day you wear it. The reduced prices make it very easy to buy. For instance, these low prices are for reliable qualities.

Men's Coon Coats, $40.00 to $67.50.
Men's Bulgarian Lamb Coats, $22.50.
Men's Wombat Coats, $22.50 to $27.50.

Fur Lined Coats, $45.00 to $67.50.

Assortment of sizes is fairly complete. The garments are here for you to see, feel and try on.

If we blunder in selling or you in buying—your money back.

Boys' Clothing Bargains--Odd Lots Reduced for Stock Adjustment.

Every Boy's Suit in the store is reduced in price now—all at least 20 per cent.—and many reductions are considerably greater than that. We have not space to tell you of them all, but we will tell you of one.

23 Boys' Three-Piece Suits—Sizes 29 to 34—Regular $4.50 to $5.00 Suits. Your choice for $3.50.

These are all good serviceable suits that were good values at the regular prices. Robinson Co.'s regular prices on Clothing are lower than other stores, because our buying power is greater. At the price we are selling them at $3.50 they will not last long. If the manufacturers could see the prices we are selling these Suits at, they would simply say we were fools. But we know our business, and we do not want any odd suits left over.

Better one sale and a friend than two sales and merely money.

Men's Overcoats, Ulsters, Odd Trousers. Boys' Overcoats and Ulsters. Children's Overcoats. All Reduced to Clear at Once.

Men's Hat Sale

$3.00, $2.50 and $2.00

Soft and Stiff Hats at $1.50

Commencing Saturday, January 4th, and continuing one week, we will sell any hat in stock at $1.50. You can make your selections from all the latest styles, and save from 50c to $1.50 on your hat. This has been a great stiff hat year, and they still have the call. We have placed large orders for Spring with the best hat manufacturers in England and United States. These hats usually commence arriving in February, therefore we prefer to lose money on the hats we have on hand, as the sizes are broken more or less, and they are undesirable to us for this reason. Nothing like starting the season with a full range of sizes in all lines.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING.

The W.M.S. of the Methodist church, Selby, held a very successful Thanksgiving social in the basement of the church on Thursday, 26th inst. The program consisted of readings, solos, duets and a short sketch of her life. Admission, 25 cts.

Grand Concert.

The second annual concert of the Ladies' Aid will be held in the Selby Opera House, on Thursday evening next, 8th January.

MADAME LE GRAND REED,
Canada's Greatest Soprano,

MR. ARTHUR BLIGHT, who has delighted Napanee audiences on previous occasions, and

De FRED. NICOLAI,
the celebrated violin virtuoso, are the artists. As the Club has been at great expense in procuring this high-priced talent, they hope for a hearty response from the public. Reserved seat sale on, 50 cents; general admission, 25 cents. Plan open at Hawley's music store, Saturday morning, 9th January, at 8.30.

PARISH OF SELBY.

The annual business meetings at the various appointments in this parish will be held on the following dates: Pleasant, Jan. 26; Kingsford, 27th; Selby, 28th; all at 2 p.m. A good attendance at these meetings is requested. The assessors for the purpose of making out the list of electors for the municipal elections in January next are particularly desired to meet the many accounts to be rendered. The Rev. Mr. Kingsford is invested in the church warden at Kingsford for bringing that good load of grain, while magnificent and on the last day of the year. That God will bless you all is the earnest prayer of your thankful clergyman.

Services next Sunday will be as follows: Kingsford, 10.30 a.m.; Selby, 2.30 p.m.; Pleasant, 7 p.m. The young people of St. John's, S.S. gave a splendid entertainment in the town hall on Friday evening last. Santa Claus came and distributed presents to all from the handsome tree.

DEATH OF A WORTHY WOMAN.

Margaret O'Sullivan, widow of the late D. J. Hogan, died on Thursday of last week, after about 2 years illness, aged seventy-eight years. Mrs. Hogan was born in County Limerick, Ireland, and came to Canada with her parents when quite young. She was married to her late husband in 1849, came with him to Napanee in 1865, and resided here continuously until her death. Mr. Hogan died in 1893. She leaves one son, D. J. Hogan, Napanee, and a brother, Mr. O'Sullivan, Kingston. Mrs. Hogan was a devoted member of the Roman Catholic Church a kind and indulgent wife and mother, and won the respect and esteem of all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, by her genial disposition and many kindly virtues. Service was held at St. Patrick's Church on Saturday morning, and the remains were placed in the vault of the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

HISTORICAL.

The regular December meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society was held in the historical hall on Friday evening, Dec. 27th. There was a good attendance and all present enjoyed a splendid lecture given by Prof. Adam Shortt. Regret was expressed that Rev. Canon Jarvis was indisposed and therefore unable to give the paper which he had prepared on the history of the Anglican church in this county. Prof. Shortt took as a subject "The first visits of Europeans to the Vicinity of Kingston and the Bay of Quinte." He ably described Champlain's trip up the Ottawa and around through the valley of the Trent, into the bay and out to Lake Ontario, giving data in which made that memorable trip in the beginning of the seventeenth century more real. He finished his talk when he had carried the settlers down to the time of Frontenac's arrival at old Fort Cataraqui. Short talked a little over an hour and a half. At the conclusion of his address W. S. Herrington, Esq., K.C., moved that a vote of thanks be tendered Prof. Shortt for his kindness in coming to Napanee and giving such an instructive evening. This motion was seconded by the Rev. Alex. Macdonald and carried unanimously. Prof. Shortt expressed his pleasure in having the opportunity of coming to Napanee, and said how pleased he was to find that such an excellent start had been made by the society. At 10 p.m. the meeting adjourned.

STRATHCONA.

Mr. Roy Lett has returned to Owen Sound, after spending the holidays with his mother and sister.—Miss Jackson and Miss Robinson spent Friday last with Mrs. R. Rome.—Mr. Elias Fitzsmith's horses ran away on Tuesday night. In their run they collided with a livery rig from Napanee, driven by Mr. Moore. Both rigs were badly damaged, but the occupants escaped serious injury.—Rev. Duke and Mr. Ira B. Allison, Esq., of Adolphustown, spent Sunday in Methodist church last Sunday morning in favor of local option.—Miss Blue is spending her holidays with her brother in Madoc.—Mrs. Geo. J. S. CHATTERSON

A MAPLE AVENUE WEDDING.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Wilton, Dec., 25th, when Miss Myrtle Snider and Ross Park were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. D. Williams, of Wilton. The bride was assisted by her friend Hazel Morrison, and the groomsman was Allen Parks, brother of the groom. The bride looked charming in a suit of grey and white silk blouse. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous tea was awaiting them. The bride received many costly and pretty presents. Mr. and Mrs. Parks are highly respected by their numerous friends, and all join in wishing them every happiness in their future home at Brockville.

WEDDING AT HAWLEY.

Pleasant View Farm, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Abernbrack, at Hawley, was bright with lights and flowers on the Feast of Stephen." "If King Wenceslas had looked out, and asked what this was all about," his good foot page would have informed him that Mr. Ernest Charles Dumbleton and Miss Kate Gardner, both of Monteagle, and lately of Danbery, England, were being joined together in holy matrimony, by Rev. Rural Dean Hibb. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Thomas Gardner, and looked very charming in a cream silk voile, with tulle veil and wreath of orange blossoms. The groom, as earnest of his promise to endow him bride with all his worldly goods, gave her a handsome diamond, and gold watch. The wedding party then witnessed the christening of a little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Gardner. After this a sumptuous supper was partaken of. The wedding cake was brought out from England, and the guests declared that it was well worth paying duty on. A very pleasing evening followed, which was brought to an end all too soon by the departure of Mr. and Mrs. Dumbleton, amid showers of rice and good wishes to take the midnight flyer for the east.

HAWLEY ENTERTAINMENT.

The Hawley Methodist Sunday School entertainment was held last Friday evening, Dec. 27th, and a most enjoyable time was spent by all present. Despite the fact that the night was very disagreeable and the scholars given free tickets, the proceeds amounted to $23.00. The scholars were creditably trained, and gave a good programme, consisting of dialogues, recitations, drills and songs. Great credit should be given Mrs. M. Parks, Miss I. Haight, Mrs. H. Crosby and Miss Lillian Fretts. A pleasing feature in connection with the programme was the presentation of a beautiful Morris oak chair, which was given to our beloved Superintendent, Mr. J. O. Fretts, who faithfully had labored for the welfare of the Sunday School for nearly twenty years. Mr. Fretts, though greatly taken by surprise, made a very effective and suitable reply. The following address was read by the Assistant Superintendent, Mr. J. C. Creighton.

Mr. J. O. Fretts,—

Dear Friend and Brother,—You no doubt will be surprised at being called upon to-night, but, we, friends and members of the Sunday School, could not let another opportunity pass without contributing to some idea of the gratitude we feel towards you, as you have faithfully and earnestly been the superintendent and Bible teacher of the Sunday School for many years. We feel that we should in some manner express to you our sincere gratitude for your self-denying efforts. However, we do appreciate your kindness and unselfishness, for which we heartily thank you, and we beg you to accept from us this address, accompanied with the chair, as a small token of our regard and esteem. May you be long spared to enjoy the comforts and that you and yours may have many long years of happiness, and may the love of God which passeth all understanding be shed abroad in your heart, so that at last, when the mortal eye closes, it shall open again to see the joys you have instructed in ways of truth, around the great White Throne.

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School

CHARLES T. HAIGHT.

Winnipeg, Dec. 27th, 1907.

Editor of Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir,—I beg to send you a clipping from the Free Press of Winnipeg announcing the death here in the General Hospital on Christmas day of my old friend and schoolmate at Adolphustown, Charles Frederick Haight, eldest son of Charles F. Haight, aged 45, died Wednesday at the general hospital. Deceased was a resident of Oak River, Manitoba, and had been brought to the hospital suffering from paralysis. The body was taken back to Oak River on yesterday's train for interment accompanied by his son-in-law, J. W. Craig and his daughter."

I visited him on his farm in Manitoba a few years ago, shortly after the death of his wife, and met his several children, the eldest of whom apparently has since died. Mrs. Craig, of Winnipeg Fred. was the eldest of three children, the others being Minnie, who became Mrs. A. Tobey, and died some years ago and Gregg, who has a family and lives in Prince Edward County. Fred. remained in Manitoba some twenty-five years ago and had a hard struggle for many years, but was comfortable and prosperous when I visited him. His many old friends in the Bay of Quinte district will be sorry to learn of his decease in the hospital of this city.

Yours very truly,

A. R. DAVIS.

A CRAZY MAN.

FOUND EATING AN EGG, SHELL AND ALL — PEOPLE ARE AMAZED.

A crazy man was recently found eating an egg-shell and all and it was declared additional proof that Shell's Egg Food is every one realizes that the shell of an egg contains no food value, and is both indigestible and injurious. It is just as crazy for a sane person to swallow a lot of coal liver oil. Because the benefit of the medicinal elements contained therein, as for the crazy man to eat the egg, shell and all.

Scientists agree that the oil or greasy part of cod liver oil has no medicinal value whatever, and only upsets the stomach and retards recovery, but it is the medicinal elements enveloped in the cods' livers and their oil which represent all the tonic and curative power of that famous old remedy.

Vinol contains all the medicinal, curative elements of cod liver oil, but is entirely free from oil, and is therefore, the best strength creator and tonic reconstructor possible to obtain.

The reason Vinol is so far superior to the old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it is made by scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

Vinol is unexcelled to restore health and create strength for run-down, debilitated, tired, nervous people, old people, weak women, nursing mothers, sickly children, delicate persons, for people suffering with hard colds, hacking coughs, incipient consumption and bronchitis. Try it. If it fails we will return your money.

GOING TO TOWN TO LIVE.

The old, worn-out farmers—the farmers who have outlived their "places," the farmers who have sold out to their children—have come to go to town to live.

There is a large variety of insanity in the first place, but at any time could be diagnosed as "going to town to live." They are out in town. The sidewalks tire them so. They "Hoodoo" the stairs as they pass, and unnoticed creep by a curious stare. There are so many things. Shopping, for one, is pigs to chase out of the orchard, and their very presence is a pain to the ears. There is no soothing soaking time, no throwing down, no lying around, no long-talking, no old-time neighboring.

They have to wear unaccustomed clothes, and their hats are very tight indeed, and smell, the big rooms loom and the great skin cry of town hits them. They begin to waste and fade because they don't get fresh air. They are dead in a year.

They lived like lords out on the farm—never their food, practically cost them nothing. A smoke-house full of hams, bushels and bushels of potatoes, barrels of apples, eggs could be had for the going to the barn, cream—a drink—from the floor, and butter only cost a few cents per week for the churning.

But now, when they have out to buy most everything, it is startling different. The constant threatenings on butter at 25 cents a pound—that's too ridiculous a price to bother over.

They never see a fresh egg, for it would be a sin and a shame to pay 40 cents per dozen for them. And as for cream—what is that. All the nice dishes on the farm, in which fresh milk could be brought to the table, are to be more. For it takes eggs to make the delicious, rich, melting-in-the-mouth custards and the like—real nice things, indeed, that don't make fat without eggs.

The aged and misguided farmer be-a-thinking every day of cream and eggs—can a week and nibbles at it warily like a starved rat with poison thrown in its hole. He is sad. And to pay it costs for a small portion of miserable milk—ten cents! when

John T. Grange, Esq., was elected chairman of the meeting, which position he has filled on many occasions. In opening the chairman gave some reminiscences of by-gone days, when Napanee was a small village, no plank walks, etc., he called on Mr. Madole, a member of the Board of Education.

Mr. Madole, not being Chairman of the School Board, had not come prepared to go into details and would leave that to go into the matter.

Mr. W. F. Hall, Secretary of the Board, would not go into details, as the full report of receipts, etc., would be published as usual, in the course of a few weeks. Mr. Madole, however, stated he was pleased to hear more from the School Board, as the Chairman's report was brief. The expenditure had been almost $10,000 more than the receipts, which would be made up by additional taxation. The taxation—and took it as a fair criterion—had been put down as the expenditure would be, and was satisfied. Of all the meetings he had only missed one since 1887. He was pleased that the debenture debt of the town looked as though it was $107,288.20, whereas it was only $65,194.76. Napanee's debenture debt is not large, and nearly all the interest on the long time loans are indebted to an amount of $10,000 or $12,000 per annum. This sum is practically referred to the electric light plant, which for the past year has cost the town $7,000. He was satisfied that our electric light was arrested to some extent by the town of this size in Ontario, or perhaps in Canada.

Dr. T. W. Simpson, Chairman of Finance Committee for 1907, said the town was raising by taxes this year 15 mills on the dollar and so far $17,000.00 had been paid in. The Finance Committee had tried to keep the taxes from repeatedly going deeper into the hole rents which, however, were unavoidable. The only way is to keep the taxation down to the approximate receipts. He would call the attention of Mayor Meng to a clause in the Public Health Act which he thought would help the Mayor. He also dealt briefly with the Local Improvement Act, and the benefit which has already been given in the colonies by the Act. Dr. Simpson's remarks were loudly applauded.

Mr. Jas. Simpson said his Committee had been very little in the field and asked for their support.

Mr. Wm. Hall, Jr., addressed the audience, and Mr. W. F. Hall came forward to the front. Mr. Hall spoke at length, saying that the rate was not higher this year than it was last year, which was encouraging.

A. S. Kimmerly, Chairman of the Fire, Light and Water Committee, said that it was little to see the financial statement prepared by Mr. Hall, which was very clear. He would like to see the Council do their part to go over the accounts of the Fire, Light and Water Committee. A man was expected in the first place, and was only paid $1.50 per day for extra services, such as extra meters, pull-overs, etc., up to the end of the year. He thought that the Council should be asked and was willing to give his services if they wished to do so. There was a question of water rates, pro. and con. There are so many people who have cisterns and use the water for washing, etc., that they begin to waste and fade because they don't get fresh air. They are dead in a year.

Mr. F. F. Miller, Electric Light Commissioner, referred briefly to the cost and management of the plant, and said the financial statement was correct in every detail, and was of the opinion that if the Finance Committee had been asked to assist the Commissioners should not have been different. Mr. Miller spoke at length regarding the electric light

AS OTHERS THINK.

EVERYONE IN NAPANEE HAS A RIGHT TO HIS OWN OPINION.

While everyone has a right to his own opinion, yet it is wise to always consider what others think and profit by their experience.

Nothing makes life so miserable, or interferes so widely with the usefulness of the average American, as indigestion, and it is well for us to give fair consideration to what others think about this remarkable affliction.

T. B. Wallace is positive that in Mi-o-na stomach tablets, he has an absolute cure for indigestion and the many disagreeable symptoms that follow this disease, such as distress after eating, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness, flatulence, nervousness and debility.

Their action in selling Mi-o-na on a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures, shows plainly their belief in the value of this remedy. He takes all the risk, and there will be no charge whatever for Mi-o-na unless you are satisfied that it has relieved you of indigestion.

RURAL SCHOOL GRANTS INCREASED ARE SHOWN

Provincial Government Distributing Nearly Three Times as Much Now as in 1904.

According to an official statement, in its treatment of the rural schools of the province, the Whitney government has more than redeemed its promises to the people. The last instalment of the grants for 1907 have just been paid over to the county treasurers to be distributed among the rural municipalities. The grants this year were paid under the new system, which is designed to ensure a better assessment as well as to help the poorer districts. The total amount of money distributed among the rural schools of the older counties in 1907 was $358,175, as against $123,750 in 1904, the last year of the old government.

The details by counties are:

The Senior League game to have been played at Belleville, on Tuesday, was cancelled.

STRATHCONA.

Election passed off quietly on Monday last. Local option was defeated by a large majority in this township.—Miss Phoebe Dunlop spent the holidays with her parents here.—Mr. E. Hance lost a horse. It was going for drink at Lesher's spring, when it slipped on the ice and sustained injuries that caused death in a few hours. The horse had been bad, and it is a wonder there have not been more fatal accidents with it here.—Mrs. Rosch has returned to her home near Fort Hope, after visiting with her son-in-law, Rev. Mr. Hunt.—On New Year's day, Miss Ella Lapum was married to Mr. Wm. Lasher.—Mr. McClaughrty, Bath, was the happy man.—Mr. Wm. Hambly and Mr. James McKitterick has succeeded in renting one of the corners of the village of Forest Mills, drawing it with sleighs. It was a big undertaking.—Mrs. George Herrington entertained a party of friends Tuesday last.

Mr. Daniel Mallaud died at his home in Strathcona on Thursday last, after a long illness. Deceased was a very patient man. He had resided here many years. Besides a large circle of friends he leaves a widow and everyone had a kind word for him. He leaves a wife and four children.

WEDDING BELLS.

On Dec. 31st, 1907, William Allen Stewart Hyland, Reidville, to Cathalen Alfreda Lundberg, Croyden, by the Rev. J. K. Henry, Tamworth. After the ceremony the bridal pair drove to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. J. Garbutt, Croyden, where they spent the night and New Years day. On New Years evening Mr. and Mrs. Hyland drove to the home of the groom's parents, where a supper was served and many friends gathered to welcome the bride and groom the home-coming of the newly wedded couple and showered them with congratulations upon them. Supper was served at 8 p.m., at which time Mr. Henry made a very touching prayer to the Good Father, who had so ordained that the lives of those two should be joined together through life. After the supper Mr. Henry gave the customary toast and the people dispersed to enjoy the amusements that were furnished for the evening. Music and singing were indulged in, and also games. The bride was dressed in pink striped silk and look red very pretty. The bride's sister was dressed in grey and presided at the organ during the evening. Miss Ella Wilson, of Willetsholme, Pittsburg, was dressed in blue with white lace waist and blue braces. She made a pretty lively time for the young people of the party. Miss Alma Sherbino, of Kingston, was dressed in red with lace waist, and also helped along with the enjoyment of the evening. And a very pleasant time was had. The bride received many useful and beautiful presents, and the reception broke up at an early hour in the morning, all expressing themselves as delighted with the evening's entertainment, and voting Mrs. Wm. Hyland a very pleasant person.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak Inner Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is bitter. It is a waste of time, and of no use to you, to take it.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Bright's or other disturbing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Start with Tablets or Liquid—and see what it will do for you. Druggist sells both. And sell

APPEARING OLD

Acts as a Bar to Predictable Slaughter-ment.

You cannot afford to grow old.
In these days of strenuous competition it is necessary to maintain, as long as possible ones youthful appearance.
It is impossible to do this without retaining a luxurious growth of hair.
The presence of Dandruff indicates the presence of a burrowing germ which lives and thrives on the roots of the hair until it causes total baldness.
Newbro's Herpicide is the only known destroyer of this pest, and it is as effective as it is delightful to use.
Herpicide makes an elegant hair dressing as well as Dandruff cure.
Accept no substitute—there is none. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

This time he did not start. "All right," he answered, wiping his forehead. "If you'll let me alone, I'll be there."

At a dingy saloon corner near the river a shabby little man greeted him heartily and petted the mongrel. "I'm mighty glad you didn't go, Ichter Ali, Jos," he added, with a brightening face.

"Go where, Happy?"

Mr. Fear looked grave. "Don't you rec'lect meetin' me last night?"

Looden shook his head. "No. Did I?"

The other's jaw fell, and his brow corrugated with self reproach. "Well, if that don't show what a thick head I am! I thought ye was all right or I'd gone on with ye. Nobody else'd 've walked straighter nor talked straighter. Said ye was goin' to leave Canaan for good and didn't want nobody to know it. Said ye was goin' to take the 'leven o'clock through train for the west and told me I couldn't go with the dawgs with ye. Said ye'd had enough o' Canaan and of everything. I followed ye part way to the depot, but ye turned and made a motion for me to go back, and I done it because ye seemed to be kind of in trouble, and I thought ye'd rather be by yerself. Well, sir, it's one on me."

"Not at all," said Joe. "I was all right."

"When ye?" returned the other. "Do remember, do ye?"

"Almost," Joe smiled faintly.

"Almost," echoed Happy, shaking his head seriously. "I tell ye, Joe, ef I was you"— he began slowly, then paused and shook his head again. He seemed on the point of delivering some advice, but evidently perceiving the snobbishness of such a proceeding, or else convinced by his own experience of the futility of it, he swerved to cheerfulness:

"I hear the boys is all goin' to work hard fer the primaries. Mike says ye got some chances ye don't know about. He swears ye'll be the next mayor of Canaan."

"Nonsense! Folly and nonsense, Happy! That's the kind of thing I used to think when I was a boy. But now—pshaw!" Joe broke off with a tired laugh. "Tell them not to waste their time! Are you going out to the Beach this afternoon?"

The little man lowered his eyes moodily. "I'll be near there," he said, scraping his patched shoe up and down the curbstone. "That feller's in town ag'in."

"What fellow?"

"'Nashville' they call him. Ed's the name he give the hospital. Cory—him that 'stanked the night you came back to Canaan. He's after Clandine to git his evens with me. He's made a raise among them 'n and the speculator. And Ice—well, I reckon she's tired waitin' table at the National House, tired o' me, too. I got a hint that she're goin' out to the Beach together this afternoon."

Joe passed his hand wearily over his aching forehead. "I understand," he said, "and you'd better try to. Cory's laying for you, of course. You may be's after your wife? He must have set about it pretty openly if they're going to the Beach today, for there is always a crowd there on Sundays. Is it hard for you to see why he's doing it? It's because he wants to make you jealous. What for? So that you'll tackle him again. And why does he want that? Because he's ready for you!"

The other's eyes suddenly became bloodshot, his nostrils expanding incredibly. "Ready, is he? He better be ready, I"—

"That's enough!" Joe interrupted swiftly. "We'll have no talk like that. I'll settle this for you myself. You send word to Claudine that I want to see her at my office tomorrow morning, and you—you stay away from the Beach today. Give me your word."

Mr. Fear's expression softened. "All right, Joe," he said. "I'll do whatever you tell me to. Any ot us 'll be that; we sure know who's our friend."

"Keep out of trouble, Happy." Joe turned to go and they shook hands. "Good day, and—keep out of trouble!"

When he had gone Mr. Fear's countenance again glowed confidence and, shaking his head, he ruminatively entered an adjacent bar through the alley door.

The Main street bridge was an old fashioned wooden covered one, dust colored and very narrow, squarely framing the fair open country beyond, for the town had never crossed the river. Joe found the cool shadow in the bridge gracious to his hot brow, and through the slender chinks of the sun worn boards he caught bright glimpses of running water. When he came out of the other end he felt refreshed in spirit.

"Well, here I am," he said, "across Main street bridge, and it must be getting on toward noon!" He spoke almost with the aspect of daring and immediately stood still listening. "Remember," he ventured to repeat, again daring—"remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!" And again he listened. Then he chuckled faintly with relief, for the voice did not return. "Thank God, I've got rid of that!" he whispered. "And of the circus band too!"

A dusty road turned to the right, following the river and shaded by big sycamores on the bank. The mongrel, intensely preoccupied with the heat, scampered away. He rose to the ground. "Good enough," said his master. "Lead on and I'll come after you."

But he had not far to follow. The chase led him to a half hollow log which lay on a low grass grown levee above the stream where the dog's interest in the pursuit became wistfully temporarily, however, for after a few minutes of agitated investigation he was seized with indifference to the whole world, panted briefly, slept. Joe sat upon the log, which was in the shade, and smoked.

For the first time it struck Joe that it was a beautiful day, and it came to him that a beautiful day was a thing which nothing except death, sickness or imprisonment could take from him, not even the ban of Canaan. Unforeseen ideal music sounded in his ears again, but he did not shrink from it now. This was not the circus band he had heard as he left the square, but a melody like a faraway serenade at night, as of the horns of elf land faintly blowing," and he closed his eyes with the sweetness of it.

"Go ahead," he whispered. "Do that all you want to. If you'll keep it up like this awhile, I'll follow with 'Little Brown Jug, How I Love Thee!' It seems to pay after all!"

The welcome strains, however, were but the prelude to a harsher sound which interrupted and annihilated them—the courthouse bell clanging out 12. "All right," said Joe. "It's noon, and I'm across Main street bridge."

He opened his eyes and looked about him whimsically. Then he shook his head again.

A lady had just emerged from the bridge and was coming toward him.

It would be hard to get at Joe's first impressions of her. We can find conveyance for only the broadest and heaviest. Ancient and modern instances multiply the case of the sleeper who dreams out a long story in accurate color and fine detail, a tale of years, in the opening and shutting of a door. So with Joseph in the brief space of the lady's approach. And with him, as with the sleeper, it must have been in fact it was—in his recollections later a blur of emotion.

He had little knowledge of the millinery arts, and he needed none to see the harmony—harmony like that of the day he had discovered a little while ago. Her dress and hat and gloves and parasol showed a pale lavender overtint like that which he had seen over spreading the western slope. (Afterward he discovered that the dress and hat of the day were gray and that her hat was for the most part white.) The charm of fabric and tint belonged to what she wore was no shame to her, not being of primal importance beyond herself. It was but the expression of her daintiness and the adjunct of it. She was tall, but if Joe could have spoken or thought of her as "slender" he would have been capable of calling her lips "red," in which case he would not have been Joe and would have been as far from the truth as her lips were from red or as her supreme delicateness was from mere slenderness.

She was to pass him—so he thought—and as she drew nearer his breath came faster.

"Remember! Across Main street bridge at noon!"

Was this the fay of whom the voice had warned him? With that, there befell him the mystery of last night. He did not remember, but it was as if he lived again dimly the highest hour of happiness in a life a thousand years ago; perfume and music, roses, nightingales and plucked harpstrings. Yes, something wonderful was happening to him.

She had stopped directly in front of him—stopped and stood looking at him with her clear eyes. He did not lift his own to hers. He had long experience of the averted gaze of women, but it was not only that. A great shyness beset him. He had risen and removed his hat, trying (ineffectually) not to clear his throat, his every day sense urging upon him that she was a stranger in Canaan who had lost her way—the preposterousness of any one's losing the way in Canaan not just now appealing to his every day sense.

"Can I—can I"— he stammered.

The Tonic You Need

Just now—with Cold, Grippe, Influenza, Pneumonia and Bronchitis all around you—you need a tonic. If the stomach is upset, bowels disordered and system run down, you need

Mira

Blood Tonic. This Tonic builds up the system. And when you have a cold, it helps to throw off the poisons that cause it. Mira Tonic is a true blood purifier and general tonic. You can find out all about it by writing The Mira Medicine Co., Limited, Hamilton, Ontario.

"You said me where you lived," she answered.

She drew back briefly. He was frightened with the fear that she would laugh he had ever heard, and by some magic which is not always successful, he was able to keep his face straight.

"Ah, I'm glad you're the same, Joe," she said. "I've never world or could pretend very well. I'm glad you're the same, and I'm glad I've changed, though that isn't why you have forgotten me. You've forgotten me because you never thought of me. Perhaps I should not have known you if you had changed a great deal, as I have."

He started, leaning back from her.

"Ah," she laughed, "that's it! That funny little twist of the head puts all ways had, like a—like a—well, you knew I must have told you a thousand times that it was like a nice friendly puppy. So why shouldn't I say so now? And your eyebrows! When you look like that nobody could ever forget you, Joe."

He rose from the log, and she mongrel leaped upon him uproariously, thinking they were to go home, bellies to food.

The lady laughed again. "Don't let him spoil my perusal. And I must warn you now: Never, never tread on my skirt! I'm very irritable about such things!"

He had taken three or four uncertain backward steps from her. She set before him, radiant with laughter, the loveliest creature he had ever seen, but between him and the charming vision there swept, through the warm, scented June air, a veil of snow like a driven fog, and shut obscured in the heart of it a young girl stood knee deep in a drift piled against an old picket gate; her black waterproof and shabby hat flapping in the blizzard like torn sails, one of her hands outstretched toward him, her startled eyes fixed on his.

"And, oh, how like you," said the lady; "how like you and nobody else in the world, Joe, to have a yellow dog!"

"Ariel Tabor!"

He lips formed the words without sound.

VALUE OF RIGHT BREATHING.

HEALTH COMES FROM KNOWING HOW AND WHAT TO BREATHE.

Dust laden with the germs of consumption or other diseases is inhaled by all who use the streets, but disease is not developed unless the germs find conditions suitable for their development and growth.

With people having catarrh there is an added condition for their growth, as the irritated membrane and weakened tissue is in a favorable state for germ life and multiply until they are numerous and active.

If you have catarrh, you should use the Dixon Method of Breathing. It is a new method of treatment, and in dealing with the disease it is unique in that it does not attempt all germs that have been inhaled, but it does attack the germs that have started and are breeding and causing the disease. It is a method of breathing that destroys the germs and heals the membrane.

It is a method by which Hyomei is inhaled instead of eaten, as is the case with other catarrh remedies. It is a method that gives the germ no chance to live, but destroys them as fast as they appear. It is a method by which the irritated membrane is healed and the tissue is strengthened.

"Queen Victoria's Sovereignty," by George W. E. Russell, which THE LIVING AGE for January 11th reprints from The Atlantic Monthly, draws from the Queen's letters to her uncle Leopold and to her daughter the Princess Royal a variety of the sentiments which the exercised in relation of their high office.

WELL KNOWN LAW FIRM ADDS A NEW MEMBER.

Preston Star Journal, Jan. 1st.

Announcement has been made that the well known law firm of Devlin & Dubbs will hereafter be known as Devlin, Dubbs and Preston, the change being due to the taking of J. W. Preston as a full member of the firm. The change became effective to-day and hereafter the firm will be known by its new designation.

Mr. Preston, the new member of the firm, is a well known young lawyer of conceded ability and has been connected with the firm of Devlin & Dubbs ever since its organization, nearly three years ago. He has handled many important cases in the courts of this and is now employed by them and so well did he care for the interests of his clients, and so ably did he litigate, that he was recognized by both courts and counsel as a valuable addition to the Preston county bar.

The firm of Devlin & Dubbs has long been regarded as one of the strongest in the state, and because of that fact it has been called upon to represent some of the most important interests in Colorado. Through the admittance of Mr. Preston to full membership in the firm, it will become more strong in strength and power.

Mr. Preston is the eldest son of Mr. D. H. Preston, K.C., Napanee.

—It is gratifying to note that, while the Canadian Northern is a living reality, and has for some time been holding its own with the high-class passenger trains, it is now showing a marked advance artistically. The Christmas number of the Canadian is a fine institution, and again the January number contains a number of excellent illustrations. The descriptive matter is equally excellent. Especially interesting, illustrating an article on old Acadia forts, are the two heads of Champlain's Habitation and Miss Ross Dinner tumbled in. Their composition is well balanced and the duties and did not notice the accident. After struggling for some time, Mr. Mark Hustaand heard their cries, and came to their assistance with a boat. They were nearly perished when taken out, and had a narrow escape from drowning. The accident happened some distance below the falls.

—A drowning accident very nearly occurred on the river on Monday afternoon about five o'clock. A party of young boys and girls from Napanee were skating down from above the falls on the river, near Hudson's Park. Without warning the ice broke and Miss Ross Dinnen and Miss Rena Dinnen tumbled in. Their companions did not notice the accident. After struggling for some time, Mr. Mark Hustaand heard their cries, and came to their assistance with a boat. They were nearly perished when taken out, and had a narrow escape from drowning. SUNNYSIDE STOCK FARM.

Hawley, Ont., Jany. 6th, 1908.

The sale of pure bred Holsteins was very good the past year. I sold to Mr. Irvine Hambly the well bred heifer, Maggie De Kol. Her dam is one of Mr. J. M. Joyce's best cows. Her sire was Brookbank Butter Barron, owned by Mr. Geo. Rice. Mr. Rose Paul, Bath, secured the fine bull calf Sir Colantha heifer, and its sire is Count Calamity Mayer King, a grandson of Calamity Jane, with a record of over 25 lbs. of butter in 7 days, and Lady Wayne Norine, with a record of over 28 lbs. of butter in 7 days and 90 lbs. of milk in one day. The farmers' Institute of Amherst Island, bought this bull to improve the stock over there.

Mr. Edward Phippen, Conway, bought the fine yearling bull, Sir Colantha, a grandson of Shadybrook Gerben, the first prize and championship cow at the St. Louis World's Fair, and a grandson of De Kol 2d, Butter Boy 3d.

Mr. Morley Hullman, Moscow, bought the well bred bull calf, Sir Johanna Quidee De Kol whose dam is Quidee De Kol 2d, a granddaughter of Johanna, the first cow of the world's champion cow, Colantha 4th Johanna. She has 31 lbs. of butter in 7 days and 166 lbs. of milk in one day. The sire of this calf is Count De Kol Pietertje Paul. This calf's dam having traces eight times to De Kol 2d, with a record of over 26 lbs. of butter in 7 days.

Mr. H. Brethen, Switzerville, secured the well bred calf, Calamity Jane-Sir Posch, a grandson of Jantje Jewel Mechthild, with a record of 28.37 lbs. of butter in 7 days, and Calamity Jane 3d, with a record of 19 lbs. at three years old.

I have 7 bulls for sale yet. One two years old, a good one, of De Kol breeding nicely marked, about half black and white, and very quiet, and one calf from the first of Lady Wayne Norine, a little more white than black; well grown. His sire is Rhea Fairmount 2d, finely bred. She gave 39 lbs. of milk a day at 3 years old. Rhea's dam

DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS CURE ANAEMIA

Pale Faces, Dizzy Spells, Palpitating Heart, Headaches and Shortness of Breath are Symptoms of Anaemia.

Watery blood is an open invitation to disease to take possession of your system. Consumption, fever, pneumonia, scarcely an ailment that afflicts mankind. Watery blood is responsible for the dull eyes, sallow cheeks and the listless, dragged out feeling that is noticed in so many girls. Make the blood rich and red and good health, and good blood will follow. That is the work of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Weak, ailing, anaemic people who use these pills soon find that they are gaining in flesh and strength. Mrs. Wm. Hall, Bloomfield, Ont., says: "I am pleased to say that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a great deal of good. I was troubled for a long time with anaemia and would often have dizzy spells. I was under the doctor's care at a time, and we feared she was going into a decline. I was induced to try a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I got a half dozen more. I took in all seven boxes and found a marked improvement, and feel that I owe my present health to the use of these pills. I am recommending them to others as a great tonic and would not think that any home was complete without them. I am also kindly feeling for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BANKS AMALGAMATE.

Winnipeg, January 5th.—An agreement has been entered into between the directors of the Northern Bank of Winnipeg and the Crown Bank of Toronto, under which the Northern Bank will purchase the assets and business of the Crown Bank, under the Canadian Banking Act, as provided in section 99, and following sections.

The Northern Bank agrees to apply for permission to change the name to the Northern Crown Bank, with head offices in Winnipeg. The president of the united institutions will be Daniel McMillan, present president of the Northern, and the general manager is to be J. W. De C. O'Grady, at present general manager of the Crown Bank.

The stockholders will be allowed shares equal to their present holdings, and the directors of each institution have agreed to continue in the same capacity for one year if required.

It is the intention to increase the paid-up capital stock to $3,000,000.

The Northern Bank has 47 branches in the West, and the Crown has 24 branches in Ontario, neither competing with the other.

Mr. O'Grady said, on Saturday, that the object of the amalgamation was principally for the purpose of strengthening both institutions.

PRINTED BY REQUEST.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Extract Cascara, one ounce; Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is authority for the statement that these ingredients can be obtained at small cost from any druggist.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the whole system, acting directly upon the liver, stomach and kidneys, overcoming biliousness, sick headache, dizziness, nervousness, and all troubles arising from a disordered liver, stomach or kidneys.

Those who have tried this say it positively cures indigestion and dyspepsia in the worst forms of sediment and regularizes urination. Some of the above ingredients are said to be a specific for habitual constipation.

Any person knowing here who feels that the tobacco habit is not strong or serious enough to warrant the trouble and expenditure at home and give it a trial, may find that it is stronger than they imagined.

The Senator (Pa.) Times was first to publish the remarkable discovery, on December 1st, 1906, since when it has been copied by hundreds of papers throughout the United States, Canada, Great Britain and other countries, many of which have printed it in their readers.

Special Announcement
RE CREDIT SYSTEM

Having long felt that the present system of allowing goods on approbation and selling on credit was expensive to both ourselves and customers, and too far out-of-date for this progressive 20th century, we have decided to adopt the STRICTLY CASH SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER FEB. 1st, 1908, NO GOODS WILL BE ALLOWED ON APPROBATION UNLESS ONE PAIR IS PAID FOR.

In case goods do not suit we will cheerfully refund purchase money. Among our regular credit customers were many who paid promptly whenever the account was rendered, and with whom it was a pleasure to do business. But these will readily understand that to make the Cash System a success, all must be treated alike, and no one family or person can be excepted from this rule.

We were more than surprised to see the number of young people who have taken such an interest in rhyme-making about our store this past week, and our judges have awarded first prize to Miss Nellie Gordon, and second prize to Miss Hattie G. Magee.

As there are three weeks left yet in which our young people have equal chances of getting a beautiful box of Bon-Bons, we hope that every person, not only will take an interest, but will tell their friends.

Conditions are the same as last week, only we would ask each person to send their name on a separate piece of paper to ensure each competitor that no partiality is shown.

WEDDING AT ENTERPRISE.

A quiet and pretty wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Enterprise, when Miss Ethel Chaney and George Hannah were happily united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Jno. F. Mears. The bride was assisted by Miss Myrtle Hall, of Toronto, and the groomsman was Edward Hannah, brother of the groom. The bride was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of blue broadcloth, with hat to match. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the depot, where they took the 2.28 train for Bancroft, and other places. All join in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous life.

WORTH SAVING.

Lady, indeed, is the man and woman who is free of constipation and stomach trouble. Anything which helps to cure dyspeptic people to feel "Good Enough" will be worth saving! The following combination has been found invaluable in relieving these troubles and certainly deserves a trial by all sufferers: Compound extract of rhubarb, 4 drams; fluid extract of manchalac, 2 drams; bepariden, 1 ounce, and enough peppermint water to fill a 4 ounce bottle. Shake well and take a teaspoonful before each meal and at bedtime followed by a glass of water. The ingredients are of vegetable origin, are harmless, and may be obtained at any drug store for not more than 50 cents for the full recipe.

A NEW YEARS WEDDING.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Methodist church, Enterprise, by the Rev. Mr. Allin, the contracting parties being Mr. Ernest Pearl, youngest daughter of Geo. Dewey, Enterprise, and Albert Edward Macdonald, eldest son of Mrs. Macdonald, of Camden East. The bride was assisted by Miss Ida Macdonald, sister of the groom, and the groom was attended by Mr. Wellington Dewey, brother of the bride. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, and was met at the altar by the groom and his attendant. The bride looked very pretty in a travelling suit of navy blue broadcloth, with hat to match, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white flowers and ribbon. The ceremony was read by the officiating clergyman in his usual impressive manner, and the happy couple were made one. The bridesmaid wore a navy blue costume, with hat to match, which was beautifully decorated with white flowers and ribbon. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the residence of the bride's parents, where a bountiful wedding dinner was served. The bride received many handsome presents, which testified to the high esteem in which she is held by her friends. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a gold bracelet, and to the groomsman a gold scarf pin. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for Toronto, and other points, and on their return will reside in Napanee. The bride's going away gown was of blue broadcloth, with hat to match. The numerous presents received by the bride and groom testify to the high esteem in which they are held by their friends, and the best wishes of a large circle of friends go with them for a long and happy life.

THE NORTHERN CROWN BANK.

The merging of the two young healthy banking institutions, one with its head office in the east, and the other in the west, has been favorably commented upon by bankers throughout the Dominion. The following extract from The Mail and Empire, of January 6th, 1908, gives the history of the two banks and the advantages to be derived from their amalgamation:

Notice of what is in legal verbiage a purchase, but is in fact an amalgamation, of two banks, appeared in The Ontario Gazette last week, by which the Crown Bank of Canada and the Northern Bank of Winnipeg are to become one institution, under the name of the Northern Crown Bank.

The terms of the agreement will be placed in the hands of the shareholders of the Crown Bank on Wednesday, and the latter will vote on the proposition at the annual meeting on Feb. 7th. Two days earlier the shareholders of the Northern will meet at Winnipeg for the same purpose.

It is understood that the stockholders of the constituent banks will exchange their stock at par for stock in the North ern Crown Bank.

The Crown Bank was incorporated in 1904 with an authorized capital of $2,000,000, of which $937,200 is paid up. The general manager is Mr. G. de C. O'Grady and the inspector is Mr. Edward Gurney, of Toronto.

The Northern Bank was incorporated in 1905 with an authorized capital of $4,000,000, of which $1,350,000 approximately is paid up. The president is Sir Daniel McMillan, Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, and Mr. J. W. de C. O'Grady, of Winnipeg, is also brother of the general manager of the Crown Bank.

"The Banking Act makes no mention of amalgamation," "but there is a clause providing for the purchase of one bank by another. The Crown Bank, having an authorized capital of but two millions could not make the purchase without special legislation. The authorized capital of the Northern Bank being six millions, the consolidation could be affected without delay.

"As the stock of both banks happened to be quoted on the market at the same figure, 1.10, the arrangement whereby the purchase is effected by exchanging bank for bank in the Northern Crown Bank for present holdings is simply facilitated. Any differences will be small and easily adjusted. The only legislation applied for will be for the change of name to the Northern Crown.

"It is understood that Sir Daniel McMillan will be presiding and that the head office will be at Winnipeg, with Mr. J. W. de C. O'Grady as general manager. The agreements call for Mr. Gurney as vice-president resident at Toronto, who will be assisted by the present inspector of the Crown Bank. The Northern Bank has 46 agencies in the West, and the Crown Bank 23 agencies in Ontario, exclusive of the city branches. The present paid up capital, which is approximately $3,250,000, will be extended to three millions in the near future."

MARLBANK.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shangraw left on Monday morning to spend a few days in Toronto. Mr. Shangraw attended Grand Lodge, spent Saturday and Sunday with Deputy Supt. Mr. and Mrs. Hanford Long, of Tamworth, were calling on friends here on Sunday last.—Mrs. Catherine Nugent, is spending the winter with her parents here.—Mrs. Thos. Hall, of Tamworth, spent a few days last week with her parents on Station street.—Mrs. Wm. Nugent, Henry O'Connor and Jas. Sutton were appointed house-viewers, and Jas. Parks is again pound-keeper.—Mr. Carscallen, of Enterprise, was appointed Medical Health officer for the township.—Mr. Hanford Long is on the sick list.—Mr. Ryan, chairman; Chas. Welbanks, secretary and Messrs. Fullerton, Sutton and Adams.

The debate at Epworth League on Monday night, "Resolved that a cranky, indecisive wife is better than an henpecked good natured one," resulted in a most interesting discussion. The affirmative were upheld by Messrs. Rowland Dulmage and Ed. Perry, and the negative by Messrs. A. Easterly and P. Shewell and Miss Gertrude Nesbitt. A strong array of talent was given on the negative side, Miss Armstrong, and the judges, Messrs. T. A. Armstrong and J. A. Cranston. Mr. J. W. Yeomans, found the adjudication a puzzle, but awarded the debate to the affirmative as a reward to the resourcefulness of that side for presenting their thoughts without manuscript. D. A. Ketcheson, B.A., occupied the chair, and in a short address, commended the Literary Department of the League as a means of intellectual culture if rightly used. There was a short musical programme, and a reading action by Miss Lambert and Mr. Nesbitt, and a duett by Misses Scrimger and Humphrey, and also a recitation by Miss Connie Nesbit.

This correspondent has an error last week in stating that Mr. Ryan had purchased Geo. Walker's lot, south of the fruit store. This lot has been bought by Mr. Harvey Wood.

Court Newburgh I. O. F. held their annual election of officers Tuesday night of this week, the following being the elected officers for the year: C.R., Jas. Wood; P.C.R., W. D. Shorey; V.C.R., S. Keziar; Orator, F. D. Moore; Rec. Sec., Tarbutt; Fin. Sec., Mitchell; Chap., Hill; Court Deputy, P. D. Shorey; Physician, Dr. Bell; Trustees, Jas. Wood, Chas. Sheets; J.W., Geo. Spinks; S.B., Jas. Boyce; J.B., Lorne Fox; Auditors, A. A. Nesbit, B.A., and P. D. Shorey. Trustees, Wm. Smith, and Jas. Wood. The election was followed by a banquet provided by Mrs. Stone, who fully sustained her splendid reputation as a caterer in an excellent spread. With Mr. D. J. Nesbit as toastmaster, a lengthy toast list was honored, which gave opportunity for many enthusiastic expressions of loyalty to the Order promising well for the year's success. Under the year, a most able event of the opening was the payment of $100 to Mrs. Smith, sr., of her husband's insurance in the Order, which Mr. Smith is the first member of the local court to participate in this way.

TRAINED NURSE.

WRITES A LETTER TO THE PEOPLE.

"To Whom It May Concern: I am a trained nurse of nine years' experience in hospitals and private cases, and for the benefit of my people and others I wish you would publish my experience with the cod liver preparation, Vinol.

"I was completely prostrated from overwork I had no appetite, could not sleep, my kidneys, liver and bowels were inactive, and as I grew weaker I could not digest either medicine or food on my stomach, and rained blood. The doctors said my condition was critical and I would probably die.

"As I had seen Vinol prescribed for my patients with such remarkable results, I decided to try it. After the first dose I began to improve. I continued its use, and every organ in my body was strengthened, and I became natural, until at the present time I am well and was restored to perfect health and strength."

HOW TO SECURE FARM HELP.

During the past four years, the Salvation Army has succeeded in bringing to Canada over 4,000 farm laborers and domestic Servants.

Notwithstanding the protest made in some sections of the country, that there is a scarcity of labor, the farmers' officials find there is still a great demand for agricultural immigrants, and they have found it necessary to charter several Ocean Liners to supply the demand. The Allan Line Steamship Company have been requested by the Government to announce that the Ontario Government has decided not to assist immigration before July 1st, and it is likely that immigration to Canada will not commence until late in April, as the demand for settlers coming out under the Government auspices will be very great. The first chartered ship will be the "Kensington," sailing from Liverpool, February 7th, for British Columbia points, followed by the "Southwark" on March 15th, for Ontario points; the "Ionian," from Glasgow, and the "Dominion," from Liverpool, on March 30th.

Farmers who have not made application for help for the coming season, are advised to write for application forms and further information to Lieut.-Colonel Hewitt, 27 Albert St., Toronto, Ont. The class of immigrant now supplied by The Army gives very good satisfaction throughout the country, and farmers may rest assured that during the past year in this direction, will evidently be a guide for selecting suitable farm help this season.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 20th.—An unusually interesting and pretty Christmas wedding occurred Wednesday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Conner, when their daughters, Norma R. and Nora M., were married, the former to Harry Wilson Parker, and the latter to Mr. Hall, both of Saskatchewan. The drawing rooms were prettily decorated for the occasion. At the head of the room was an arch of evergreens, and under this the bride and bridegroom stood, while the ring service was performed, the two brides, each in turn acting as bridesmaid to the other. The Rev. J. C. Westman was the officiating clergyman. The couples afterward left on a honeymoon trip to Puget Sound, and on their return will spend two months in the city before removing to their intended home at Govan, Sask.

LEARN DRESSMAKING AT NAPANEE.

We teach everything from the plainest shirt waist to the most elaborate toilette, with all the latest ideas in cutting, basting and fitting. Lessons consist of skirts, jackets, sleeves, skirts, surplices, dressing gowns, dresses, collars, etc. All this we teach you in a week. So why go to a city and then after having served months there, what do you know about cutting? Absolutely nothing, for you will know no more how to cut out a dress at the end of the time than you did the first day you went there.

We have taught over 150 ladies in this way within the past six years, and not one has yet told us they were not satisfied. You can come any day for a week or two, and if you have not learned what you came for, you have private lessons until then. There is no pay in advance. So you lose nothing by coming.

Charge for full course is only $10.00, to be paid when lessons are finished. The latest Imported Tailor System is given free with this course.

Hours for day class, 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Evening class, for those who cannot come during day, 7 to 9. We will teach at Napanee, from March 1st to 7th, Oct. All working, to begin or for full particulars, we can be seen at the Grand Union Hotel, on the above dates, or address Miss Ellison, Belleville, between 12 and 2 o'clock, on WEDNESDAY, JAN. 18th, and THURSDAY, JAN. 19th, NAPANEE. THE BLEATING SHEEP AND LOWING KINE.

Editor Beaver:—

In the consensus of opinion as of this date of the "Young Farmer" and "Farmer's Son," is a true and humorous picture of the "Bleating Sheep" and "Lowing Kine." The "Young Farmer" who is evidently very much in love with Mr. C. Wheeler's daughter, let alone a small matter of a couple of miles, and who, I suppose, is desirous of all the help he can get in the field and elsewhere, in order to secure the favor of the fair damsel, is of interest and commendable. But the "Farmer's Son" who lives close to Odessa Hill, and has become unconsciously perhaps, a victim and a true lover of the pastoral beauties, constantly unfolding in the changing seasons.

"The bleating sheep, the lowing kine, the sweeter jubilating thrill," is ever present in his ears, nor can he forget their absence when supposed to be in their proper places, nay to Napanee, a sad and heartrending journey to sell his stock, with nothing to relieve the monotony of the journey, save perhaps a glass or two of water (not a beer) after depositing the bleating reptiles at their journey end.

The farm is sold, and then comes the auction of his stock. His splendid herd of cattle, he has to regret are hard and so long to select and breed to perfection, are sold at a price, which is very low indeed. He has regret has already seized his heart, and perhaps a tear trickles down his cheek, perhaps a tear trickles down his furrowed cheek, as his favorite old mare, he so often has driven to market for her many years of service, is knocked down to the highest bidder. But hide not, the latter is sold.

Perhaps he gets $28,000. The money is deposited in the town bank at 3 per cent. for it is hard to place money on farm mort; gages just now, even if he did he would get his income very low.

Now he has nothing like as comfortable and capacious as the one he has left behind, and he is in debt. The rheumatism, he has suffered so much from, is still with him, and must worse had at first existed. He has been a victim of Hall's Catarrh Cure. FRANK J. CHENEY & CO.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

On Tuesday, Jan. 10th, a number of relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bristow, Belleville, the occasion being the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day. A pleasant time was spent, the evening over old times were recalled were beautiful and useful. They were: Mrs. Hamilton, a sister of Mrs. Bristow, a handsome china tea dishes; Mrs. Fred. Bristow, an elegant silver cake basket; Mrs. G. Hurd, a china cake plate; Mrs. and Miss Anderson, a set of three crystal dishes; Mr. and Mrs. Branton, a cut fruit dish; Mr. and Mrs. Bristow, a silver cake dish. Music was furnished by Master Percy Bristow, Master Bruce Bristow, Fred Bristow and Mrs. Walter Bristow, and Miss Bessie Bristow. Miss Bessie also presented recitations. A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. Bristow, Bath, who were married forty years ago on the 10th of January, of an address. After spending an enjoyable day the visitors departed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Bristow in the evening, wishing the merry host and hostess many years more of a pleasant and useful life.

GOING TO TOWN TO LIVE.

January 12th, 1905

Dear Editor,—May I be allowed to use a small space in your paper?

As regards the issue in your paper two weeks ago, headed "Going to town to live," I, for one, cannot understand why farmers have such a down on the town folk. Many townspeople know they can not get along without farmers, and if they do come to town to spend their remaining days in peace.

I have in their own business how they spend their money, and concerning the twenty-four rag of stuff referred to he said that they stint themselves to make an outward appearance.

And of all the mean, degrading and unjustifiable insults, that was the most shameful ever printed.

I had intended sending in $1.00 for this year's subscription, to your paper, but after reading that letter, I changed my mind, for I am a farmer and hope to remain one for life.

Thanking you for a spare in your paper, I would be subscriber.

J. S. F.

TO THE WRITER OF "GOING TO TOWN TO LIVE."

I am neither a farmer nor a farmer's son, but I support the cause of the farmers. They are the backbone of the land the farmers are stingy; there are just as many stingy people in town as there are country people. You say all that is to be done in the country is to go to bed and carry in eggs and milk and such things, but there are a few things more than that to be undertaken. You also say all there have to expenses on the farm. If farm life is what you represent, I would not be willing to go cities or towns. If it were not for people would do, and it isn't always only the farmers that have to work hard in order to live, for sometimes their sons and daughters have to work in town and go into business. Also some of your best teachers were born and brought up on the farm.

If I had been the writer of "Going to Town to Live," I would not have advertised my ignorance. With these few remarks, I will close.

FELL DOWN STAIRS WITH CHILD

"The following testimonial proves once again the superiority of Minard's Liniment Balm."—Zam-Buk. Mrs L. Spalding of 305 Fee St., Stratford, Ont., says: "Some time back I met with a peculiar accident while descending the stairs with a child in my arms. I slipped, falling heavily on my left arm and elbow, receiving a flesh wound. My arm was inflamed, swollen and very painful. I tried different preparations, but the wound kept discharging and refused to heal. About this time my brother suggested using Zam-Buk. I acted upon his advice. Zam-Buk thoroughly cleansed the wound, stopped all discharging and soothed the pain and in four weeks the wound was entirely healed. I have had perfect use of both elbow and arm ever since and owe this good luck to the wonderful healing balm Zam-Buk and would advise others to use nothing else." A NEW YEARS WEDDING.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Methodist parsonage, Enterprise, by Rev. R. Allin, on Monday, January 2nd, 1905, when Miss Ida May, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Lapum, was married to Mr. George W. Hannah, eldest son of Mr. Henry Hannah, township of Ameliasburgh, assisted by her cousin, Miss Myrtle Ashley, Toronto, and groom by his brother, Mr. Ed. Hannah. The bride was prettily attired in a suit of blue broadcloth, white silk blouse trimmed with silk applique and pearl buttons, hat to match and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bridesmaid looked lovely in a dress of white silk muslin, over a pale blue silk, on the 2.56 train for the west amid showers of rice and cheers from a number of friends and relatives were present. The evening was spent in music and games. The company adjourned at 12 o'clock p.m., wishing the young couple a long and happy life. Mrs. Hannah will be at home to her friends after February 1st.

A GREAT TREAT.

The second annual concert under the auspices of the Ladies' Musical Club of Napanee, held in the Brisco Opera House, on Thursday evening last, was a most pronounced success. The hall was filled with an enthusiastic and appreciative audience, and every number listened to with marked attention. The artists were Madame Le Grand Reed, soprano; Arthur Blight, baritone, and Mr. Daniel Lemon, violinist, all of Toronto. This was Madame Reed's first appearance in Napanee, and her sweet voice and charming personality won for her the hearts and esteem of her audience, and she received hearty encores during the evening, to which she most graciously responded. Special recognition ought be made to the artistic rendering of the "Jewel Song" (Faust), upon the violin, capable of which she received a bouquet of beautiful crimson roses. It is to be hoped that Madame Reed will again be heard here at some future time. Mr. Blight has been heard here before, when he won the appreciation of his audience, but his artistic singing on this occasion has given him a high place in the estimation of the musical people of Napanee. Dr. Nicholls presided at the piano, and performed the duties with artistic finish and to the satisfaction of all. The concert was presented during the evening with a large spray of violets.

The Ingredients of Zutoo

One ingredient is soda—just old-fashioned soda, that your grandmothers used to settle the stomach, and there is nothing better.

Among the other ingredients there is not one that did not come from old Mother Earth herself.

There is not one that is not approved by both the British and American Pharmacopeias,—the highest medical authorities in the world.

There is not one that your family physician, even if a personal friend, would not approve of and prescribe.

If you are using some other headache remedy, why do you not change and use Zutoo instead?

It will cure your headaches and colds just as quickly and safeguard you against the bad after effects which many cures may come from using the ordinary headache. Zutoo tablets

Are Harmless as Soda.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will strengthen the disorded limbs of climatic effects, but down beyond the back to flesh again. That is impossible but I can and will kill the pains and the cause of this deplorable disease.

In conjunction with a Chemist in the City of [illegible] found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable preparation. Without that last ingredient, I successfully tested many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now I can safely, fearlessly recommend Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy with the guarantee, which it makes to Rheumatic Blood, soon to dissolve and drive away under the action of this remedy as frost before sugar when added to pure water and then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes pass from the system, and the cause of rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer with rheumatism.

HEALTHY PLANTS

Require the Most Careful Attention as Well as Good Soil.

Did you ever see a rosebush which—despite the most beneficent environment of water, sunshine—and of atmosphere—seemed never to achieve a healthy growth.

A ton of manure will not help a plant that has a canker eating out its heart.

You must destroy the cause before you can remove the effect.

You cannot cure Dandruff and Baldness by rubbing on hair lotions, and nothing is vaseline, etc.

You must look to the cause of the trouble. It's a germ at the roots of your hair which causes it to fall out.

Newbro's Herpicide destroys the germ, and healthy hair is the sure result.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

"Isn't it about time?" she said. "Are strange ladies in the habit of descending from trains to take you home?"

Once, upon a white morning long ago, the sensational progress of a certain youth up Main street had stirred Canaan. But that day was as nothing to this. Mr. Bantry had left temporary paralysis in his wake, but in the case of the two young people who moved slowly along the street today it was petrification, which seemingly threatened in several instances (most notably that of Mr. Arp) to become permanent.

The lower portion of the street, lined with three and four story buildings of brick and stone, rather grim and flat facades under the midday sun, afforded little shade to the church corners, who were working homeward in processional little groups and clumps, none walking fast, though none with the appearance of great leisure. Even neither rate of progress would have been esteemed befitting the day. The growth of Canaan, steady, though never startling, had left almost all of the churches downtown, and Main street the principal avenue of communication between them and the "residence section." So today the intermittent procession stretched along the new cement sidewalks from a little below the square to upper Main street, on the maples lined the thoroughfare and the mansions of the affluent stood among pleasant lawns and shrubberies.

It was late, for this had been a communion Sunday, and those far in advance, who had already reached the pretty and shady part of the street, were members of the churches where services had been shortest, though few in the long parade looked as if they had been attending anything very short, and many heads of families were crisp in their replies to the theological inquiries of their offspring. The men imparted largely a gloom to the tolerant concourse, most of them wearing hot, long black coats and having wilted their collars, the ladies relieving this gloom somewhat by the lighter tints of their garments, the spick and span little girls relieving it greatly by their white dresses and their faces, the latter bright with the hope of Sunday ice cream, while the boys, experiencing some solace in that they were finally out where a person could at least scratch, himself if he had to, yet oppressed by the decorous necessities of the day, marched along, furtively planning behind unusually secretive countenances various means for the later dispersal of an odious monotony.

Usually the conversation of this long string of the homeward bound was not too frivolous or worldly. Nay; it properly inclined to discussion of the sermon.

It was a serious and seemly Sunday parade, the propriety of whose behavior was today almost disintegrated when the lady of the bridge arrived up the street in the shadow of a lacy lavender parasol carried by Joseph Lowden. The congregation of the church across the square—that to which Joe's stepaunt had been late—was just debouching, almost in mass, upon Main street when these two went by. It is not quite the truth to say that all except the children came to a dead halt, but it is not very far from it. The air was thick with subdued exclamations and whisperings.

Here is no mystery. Joe was probably the only person of respectable derivation in Canaan who had not known for weeks that Ariel Tabor was on her way home. And the news that she had arrived the night before had been widely disseminated on the way to church, entering church, to church interior, and church exterior. Also, An account of her house in the Avenue Henri Martin and of her portrait in the Salon—a picture unnecessary to many and not lacking in grandeur for that—had occupied two columns in the Sunday issue of the paper which preceding further. Ariel's name had been in the mouth of Canaan for a long time—unfortunately for Joe, however, not in the mouth of that Canaan which held converse with him.

Joe had not known her. The women recognized her lufallibly, at first glance, even those who had quite forgotten her. And the women told their men; hence the un-Sunday-like demeanor of the procession, for few towns hold it more unseemly to stand and stare at passersby, especially on the Sabbath. But Ariel Tabor returned—and walking with—with Joe Lowden!

Ariel flushed a little when she perceived the start of their conspicuousness, but it was not the blush that Joe remembered had reddened the tanned skin of old, for her remembrance had gone long ago, though it had not left her merely pink and white. This was a delicate rosiness rising from her cheeks to her temples, as the earliest dawn rises. If there had been many words left to Joe he would have called it a divine blush. It fascinated him, and if anything could have deepened the glamour about her it would have been this blushing. She did not understand it, but when he saw it he stumbled.

Those who gaped and stared were for him only blurs in the background. Truly, he saw "men as trees walking," and when he hesitatingly began to step out to the curb in passing some clump of people it was to him as if Ariel and he, unchastely unseen, were working their way through underbrush in the woods.

"Am I?" she answered, looking at him. "Is he the name of your dog, Mr. Lowden? You haven't told me."

"Oh, he's just a yellow dog," he evaded unskillfully.

"Young man!" she said sharply.

"Yes?" he replied submissively, "I call him Spook for short."

"And what for long? I want to know his whole name."

"It's mighty inappropriate, because we're fond of each other," said Joe, "but when I picked him up he was so yellow and so thin and so creeping and so scared that I christened him 'Respectability.'"

They were now opposite the Pike mansion, and, to his surprise, she turned, indicating the way by a touch upon his sleeve, and crossed the street toward the gate, which Mamie and Eugene had entered. Mamie, after exchanging a word with Eugene upon the steps, was already hurrying into the house.

Ariel paused at the gate as if waiting for Joe to open it.

"Don't you know?" she cried. "I'm staying here. Judge Pike has charge of all my property. He was the administrator or something." Then, seeing him chopfallen and aghast, she went on: "Of course you don't know. You don't know anything about me. You haven't even asked."

"You're going to live here?" he gasped.

"Will you come to see me?" she laughed. "Will you come this afternoon?"

He grew white. "You know I can't," he said.

"You came here once. You risked a good deal then just to see Mamie dance by a window. Don't you dare a little for an old friend?"

"All right," he gulped. "I'll try."

Mr. Bantry had come down to the gate and was holding it open, his eyes fixed upon Ariel, within them a rising glow. An impression came to Joe afterward that his stepbrother had looked very handsome.

"Possibly you remember me, Miss Tabor?" said Eugene in a deep and impressive voice, lifting his hat. "We were neighbors, I believe, in the old days."

She gave him her hand in a fashion somewhat mannerly, favoring him with a bright, negligent smile. "Oh, quite," she answered, turning again to Joe as he entered the gate. "Then I shall expect you?"

"I'll try," said Joe. "I'll try."

He stumbled away. Respectability and he together interfering alarmingly with the comfort of Mr. Flitcroft, who had stopped in the middle of the pavement to stare glassily at Ariel. Eugene accompanied the latter into the house, and Joe, looking back, understood. Mamie had sent his stepbrother to bring Ariel in—and to keep him from following.

"This afternoon!" The thought took away his breath, and he became paler.

CHAPTER XII.

MAMIE, waiting just inside the door as Ariel and Eugene entered, gave the visitor a cold greeting and a moment later, bearing the wheels of the brougham crunch the gravel of the carriage drive, hurried away down the broad hall and disappeared. Ariel dropped her parasol upon a marble topped table near the door and, removing her gloves, drifted into a room at the left, where a grand piano found shelter beneath crimson plush. After a moment of contemplation she pushed back the cover'et and, seating herself upon the stool, struck a few chords. She adjusted her fingers run up and down the keyboard once and fell listlessly in her lap as she gazed with deep interest at three life sized colored photographs in carved gilt frames upon the wall she was facing—Judge Pike, Mamie and Mrs. Pike, with her rubies.

"Please don't stop playing. Miss Tabor," said a voice behind her. She had not observed that Eugene had followed her into the room.

"Very well, if you like," she answered, looking up to smile absently at him, and she began to play a rakish little air which, composed by some rattlebrain at a cafe table, had lately skipped out of the Moulin Rouge to disport itself over Paris. She played it slowly in the minor, with eflish pathos, while he leaned upon the piano, his eyes fixed upon her fingers, which bore few rings—none, he observed with an unreasonable pleasure, upon the third finger of the left hand.

"It's one of those simpler Grieg things, isn't it?" he said, sighing gently. "I care for Grieg."

"Would you mind its being Chamiade?" she returned, dropping her eyes to clook the sin.

"Ah, no; I recognize it now," replied Eugene. "He appeals to me even more than Grieg."

At this she glanced quickly up at him, but more quickly down again, and hastened the time emphatically, swinging the little air into the major.

"Do you play 'The Pilgrim's Chorus'?"

She shook her head.

"Vous name pas Wagner?" inquired Eugene, leaning toward her.

"Oh, yes," she answered, bending her head far over, so that her face was concealed from him, except the chin, which, he saw with a thrill of inexplicable emotion, was trembling slightly. There were some small white flowers on the bosom of her dress, also.

When she turned to him he was surprised to see that she looked astonishingly happy, almost as if she had been struggling with joy instead of pain.

"This chair," she said, shaking into it, "makes me feel at home."

Naturally he could not understand.

"Because," she explained, "I once thought I was going to live in it. It has been reupholstered, but I should know it if I met it anywhere in the world."

"How very odd!" exclaimed Eugene, staring.

"I settled here in pioneer days," she went on, tapping the arms lightly with her finger tips. "It was the last dance I went to in Canaan."

"I fear the town was very provincial at that time," he returned, having composed his features to a polite gravity. "I should, therefore wishing to shirt the subject. I hope you may still find it so."

There was a touch more than usual of sympathy with intellectually—few people really of the world."

"Few people, I suppose you mean," she said softly, with a look that went deep into his eyes—"few people who really understand one."

Eugene had seated himself on the sill of an open window close by. "There has been," he answered, with the ghost of a sigh, "no one."

Mamie appeared in the doorway, and Eugene rose swiftly. "I have been trying to persuade Miss Tabor," he explained, with something too much of laughter, "to play again. You heard that little thing of Chaminade's—"

She exclaimed, "I don't want you to think I'm a tale bearer!—

"Oh, my dear!" Ariel said, with a gesture of deprecation.

"Ko," Miss Pike went on, all in one breath, "but I am afraid you will think it, because papa knows, and he wants to see you."

"What is it that he knows?"

"That you were walking with Joseph Lowden!" (This was as if she had said, "That you poisoned your mother.") "I didn't tell him, but when he saw you with him I was troubled and asked Eugene what I'd better do, because he always knows what is best."

(Mr. Bantry's expression, despite this tribute, was not happy.) "And he advised me to tell mamma about it and leave it in her hands. But she always tells papa everything—"

"Certainly; that is understood," said Ariel slowly, turning to smile at Eugene.

The daughter of the house exhibited signs of consternation. "He wants to see you," she repeated falteringly. "He's in the library."

Having thus discharged her errand, she hastened to the front door, which had been left open, and out to the steps, evidently with the intention of removing herself as soon and as far as possible from the vicinity of the library.

VALUE OF RIGHT BREATHING.

HEALTH COMES FROM KNOWING HOW AND WHAT TO BREATHE.

Dust laden with the germs of consumption or other disease is inhaled by all who use the streets, but disease is not developed unless the germs find conditions suitable for their development.

With people having catarrh there is an ideal soil for these germs. The moist, irritated membrane and weakened tissue is a hot-bed where germs meet decay and multiply fast. Then the disease is active.

If you have catarrh, you should use the germicidal vapor of Catarrhozone, which destroys the germs. Then they cannot develop. The inflammation is allayed, the tissue is healed, and healthy conditions are restored. Catarrhozone is the only treatment that kills the germs. They must have it. Nothing else will do. Catarrhozone is the only treatment which is recommended and used by physicians. It is the only treatment which is guaranteed to cure or money back. It is prescribed in your home or city in Canada.

MARMALADE

Now is the time to make your home-made Marmalade; make to suit your own taste.

I have all the different kinds of Oranges in stock—Bitter Oranges, nice and bright; Valencia Oranges; good size; fresh Lemons and the California Navel Oranges. These goods are nice and sweet just now.

I have a few cases of Corn and Tomatoes to sell three tins for 25c. This is a very low price this year for these goods.

Everything in the grocery line, all of the very best quality—Coffee, of course, that goes without me saying much about it, for it is well known that I have the very best Coffee in town.

JOHN PAISLEY

You cannot possibly have a better Cocoa than

EPPS'S

A delicious drink and a sustaining food. Fragrant, nutritious and economical. This excellent Cocoa maintains the system in robust health, and enables it to resist winter's extreme cold.

COCOA

Sold by Grocers and Storekeepers, in ½-lb. and ¼-lb Tins.

The Best Flour.

Dafoe's Konsench, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and see that you get it. Dafoe's Konsench Flour and Strong Bakers' Flour are always cheaper than the product of the Western mills, while they can be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the merchant sends in Tuesday or in certain points for an article he can get at the house next door just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, simply on the price that is quoted. Insist upon your getting your purchases in the Dafoe packages, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Charles Cornwall and Dodgeball Flour always on hand. Feed, grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal always in the market for the purchase of all sizes.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your flour, feed or coal.

THINK IT OVER

I am prepared to supply you with Flour, Feed, Coal, Wood, Posts, Lumber and Shingles, etc. Once you try, you'll always deal here.

Do YOU know how good they are?

MOONEY'S PERFECTION

He kept trying to realise that this lady of wonder was Ariel Tabor, but he could not. He could not connect the shabby girl, whom he had treated as one boy treats another, with this young woman of the world. He had always been embarrassed himself and ashamed of her when anything she did made him remember that, after all, she was a girl, as on the day he ran away when she kissed a lock of his hair escaping from the bandage. With that recollection even his ears grew red. It did not seem probable that it would ever happen again. The next instant he heard himself calling her "Miss Tabor."

At this she seemed amused. "You ought to have called me that years ago," she said, "all you knew me."

"I did know her—you, I mean," he answered. "I used to know nearly everything you were going to say before you said it. It seems strange now"—

"Yes," she interrupted, "it does seem strange now."

"Somehow," he went on, "I doubt if you think so."

"Somehow," she echoed, with fine gravity, "I doubt it too."

Although he had no dim a perception of the staring and whispering which greeted and followed them, Ariel, of course, was thoroughly aware of it, though the only sign she gave was the slight blush, which very soon disappeared. That people turned to look at her may have been not altogether a novelty. A girl who had learned to appear unconscious of the continental stare, the following gaze of the boulevards, the frank glasses of the contadine in Rome, was not ill equipped to face Main street, Canaan, even as it was today.

Under the sycamores before they started they had not talked a great deal. There had been long silences, almost all her questions concerning the period of his runaway absence. She appeared to know and to understand everything which had happened since his return to the town. He had not, in his turn, reached the point where he would begin to question her. He was too breathless in his consciousness of the present hour to care. She had told him of the death of Roger Tabor, the year before. "Poor man!" she said, "he lived to see 'how the other fellows did it' at last, and everybody liked him. He was very happy over there."

After a little while she had said that it was growing close upon lunch time; she must be going back.

"Then—then—goodby," he replied ruefully.

"Why?"

"I'm afraid you don't understand. It wouldn't do for you to be seen with me. Perhaps, though, you do understand. Wasn't that why you asked me to meet you out here beyond the bridge?"

In answer she looked at him full and straight for three seconds, then threw back her head and closed her eyes tight with laughter. Without a word she took the parasol from him, opened it herself, placed the smooth white coral handle of it in his hand and lightly took his arm. There was no further demur on the part of the young man. He did not know where she was going. He did not ask.

Once Ariel smiled politely, not at Mr. Louden, and inclined her head twice, with the result that the latter, after thinking for a time of how gracefully she did it and how pretty the top of her hat was, became gradually conscious of a meaning in her action—that she had bowed to some one across the street. He lifted his hat, about four inches, and discovered Mamie Pike and Eugene upon the opposite pavement walking home from church together. Joe changed color.

The sound of Ariel's voice brought him to himself.

"Is he taller than ever, isn't she?" "Yes, indeed," he answered blankly.

"Would you still ride?"—she began, smiling, but, apparently thinking better of it, went on: "Shall we walk?"

"Oh, yes," he said, "I'd like to."

"Then," she said, "we will."

ANITA JENNIE ALLISON

Born Feb. 5th, 1895, died Jan. 11th, 1908.

Flowers have their time to bloom,
And fadeth there time to fall;
But for thy seasons, oh death,
Thou hast them all.

Rarely has the news of a death brought expression of such universal and sincere sympathy and regret as that of Miss Anita Jennie Allison, whose young life came to a close on Saturday morning, at six o'clock. Life for her held much of popular time and for her home and friends she was blessed with the tenderest affection. She was the young est daughter of the late Roderick and Mrs. Margaret Allison, of Parma, and her life had been spent there until a few months ago, when she went to Adolphustown to live. She had only been ill a few days with appendicitis, which demanded an operation and her strength failed to carry her through the ordeal. The last and obsequies were held from her late home on Monday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. W. J. Hoover, of Adolphustown, officiating. Mr. Hoover spoke with the deepest emotion of the fair young life, of her many graces of person and character, and of the sweetness of the example that she had passed from an earthly home to one immortal and unperishable, where she awaits the coming of those whose hearts ache now for the loss they experience. The floral tributes were beautiful. Interment was made in the Allison mausoleum. Messrs. John A. Duffett, Harold W. Duffett, John Allison and George Chalmers, Arthur Chalmers and Parker Allen officiating as bearers.

DIED ON WAY HOME.

Mrs. Morrison Succumbed to Throat Trouble on the Train.

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 11th.—When the Iron Mountain special left the Kinmundy railway arrived at 12.30 this afternoon the body of Mrs. Etta B. Morrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miller, of Ernestown, Ont., was removed from the train and taken to the morgue.

Mrs. Morrison died of throat trouble in the Pullman car "Pisheo," two hours earlier, near Dexter, Mo. Besides she and her husband, Frank Morrison, and their eleven-year-old daughter, Ethel, were on the train. Mr. and Mrs. Morrison, Mr. Morrison said, is the little girl will continue the trip to Ernestown, Ont., to visit with them.

THE POPE'S WATCH.

(New York 'Sun.')

An interesting anecdote about the Pope's watch is told. It is just now. It happened in an audience His Holiness gave not long ago to certain members of the black nobility. A church clock was striking the hour, and the Pope, to compare the time, took from his girdle an antiquated nickel cased watch with the white metal worn off in patches. It was secured by a common leather guard.

An Italian prince who was present produced a splendid richly chased gold chronometer, set with jewels, a masterpiece of the goldsmith's art, and begged for the Pope's acceptance of it in exchange for his old nickel watch, which, the nobleman added, would always be regarded by him as a most precious possession. The Holy Father gently declined.

"It was a present from my dear mother," he said, with a smile, fondling the faded old timepiece, "I was quite a small boy when she gave it to me with this very leather guard I am wearing now. I promised to keep it until it was worn out beyond repair. It must be good watch," the Pope added, for it has never disappointed me yet.

Happy Week

We Announce the Merriest, Jolliest, Most Enjoyable Occasion of the Year.

If there is anyone within a hundred miles of this store who feels blue—they should come here to be made happy.

We're going to hold a "Happy Week"—a sale that is pleasantly unlike any sale event you've ever known. You smile at the name and the idea—already.

You'll smile for a very different reason within thirty seconds from the time you enter our doors.

How will we do this? How do we expect to send hundreds and thousands of people away smiling?

Very simply and effectually—by selling to each visitor during "Happy Week" one of the more needed articles for prices that will insure so much real and unusual savings that the merriest kind of a smile will be the natural and sure result.

All broken lines—all short lots—all surplus stocks—will be gathered together—every garment, every yard of goods, every bit of merchandise thus assembled will be worth every penny it was the day before "Happy Week" struck this store—but all the rough corners will be cut off the price tags—and the whole store will turn into the biggest kind of a bargain bazaar.

This will continue for one week—as the bargain lines become shorter, new "specials" will be added, that the jollity of the sale may continue until the last moment of the sale has passed away, and "Happy Week" is only a memory to be recalled, talked about and smiled at for a year to come.

Come and have a good time. We promise that you will smile as broadly and enjoyably as will every friend you meet here, and even every single member of our salesforce who will wait upon you.

"Happy Week" begins at 9 o'clock on the morning of Saturday, January 18th.

FRESHLY PREPARED AT THE MEDICAL HALL.

THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAISE.

The committee have recently published their fourth draft of a very handsomely bound volume, containing 758 accepted tunes and many which are to be further considered. At the end of each hymn is the name of the writer, with its date. Also there are the names of the accepted tune or tunes for each hymn, their names, keys and dates, and the names of the composers. The musical staff has not been published yet. We find that four hymns by Dr. Fred. H. Burt, Brockville, Ont., are included. At the end of the volume we find an index of subjects, one of hymn writers, one of translators, one of composers, one of first lines, and a very full alphabetical index of the tunes, giving the names of the tunes, the composer and date of first publication, name and address of copyright owners, and date of expiry of copyright.

Upwards of 500 hymns with the selected tunes have so far been sent to Rev. Canon Roberts, for his judgment, criticism, etc., and returned to Toronto—Matters in forward state—Next session of Committee, September, 1908. Principals, in St. Luke's church, Toronto Expect to present the book of hymn-and tunes to the General Synod, held in Montreal, in September, 1908.

It will occur to many as rather strange that such important work, perhaps the most important work in connection with the final preparation of this collection should be delegated to a quiet country parson.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES.

It is not often an opportunity occurs at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods, yet such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, will be in Napanee, at the Hotel, for the inspection of these goods. All private apartments reserved at the Hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and ornament the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and, consequently tone up an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at The Paisley House, Napanee, on January 29.

A SURE CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

There is no such thing. Scott's Emulsion stands the nearest to it, but even that will not cure advanced cases, but taken in time it will cure this disease. 25

HAYBURN.

Our anniversary services this year were a splendid success. On Sunday, Rev. Mr. Paten, Bath, preached ably, and on Tuesday night a most enjoyable time was spent at the tea meeting. Mr. Uriah Wilson occupied the chair, to the satisfaction of all present. The programme was the finest given here for years. Our local talent was assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Hawley, and the Slocum young people, consisting of a quartette by Miss Perry, W. Scherf and Messrs. S. and M. Horton, trios by the Messrs. Horton and Scherf, which received great applause, solos by Miss Horton, who was in excellent voice and was heartily encored at her every appearance, and a solo by Mr. M. Horton. Misses J. Phippen, F. Gall and N. Loyst, the Hayburn choir, and Mr. Parks were also well received by an appreciative audience.

BICKNELL'S CORNERS.

Simmons and Mr. Vanalstine are spending a couple of days with friends at Arden. —Nelson Amey has opened a large stock of straw which was soon disposed of at $1.50 load. —J. Macdonald was elected trustee for the next three years.—A grand concert was held in the school house Thursday evening, which was fairly well attended.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Dunn and Mr. and Mrs. W. Simmons and daughter Marion, visited Mr. Sweeney's on Thursday evening.—Mrs. Kearns and daughter Florabelle visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Sewell.—Carl Hawley and Purcell Amey have not secured schools yet.—E. Glover and Miss Laura Holman, Camden East, were here on Thursday selling tickets for the concert to be given there on Friday, Jan. 17th.

IF YOU'RE AN ATHLETE

Your College Standing isn't apt to be as High as if YOU Aren't.

The influence of athletic sports on scholarship has always been discussed fiercely in the colleges, some persons contending that the athlete is a better student because of his sports, and others arguing the other way. Dr. Paul C. Phillips, of Amherst, has been keeping tabs on just this sort of thing, and recently at a meeting of an educational society he spread out figures collected between 1886 and 1903.

A result of his observations was that the average grade of the non-athletes he observed in that period was 74.1 per cent. The athletes averaged 70.4 per cent. He considered in making his figures only the men who played football and baseball and took part in track athletics. His conclusion was that football was most injurious to good standing in studies and that track athletics interfered least with college work. He took no account of rowing, and as crews require as much time as football, that may be a bad.—New York 'Sun.'

EXPLANATION

—BY—

Newman, Livingston & Co.

To the public and merchants who think our prices, advertisements and headings, have been too hard on our competitors.

The tendency of the times gives the Dyspepsia Branch, the Great Department Store, or the large manufacturer a great advantage over the much smaller concern.

We have not made a price or discount we cannot profitably maintain perpetually. We are following some prices started by others, such as 7 Comfort soap for 25c. and will continue till all others quit. PERHAPS longer.

Napanee grocerymen have by anonymous letters and otherwise, planned to get us in a fight and sell sugar away below cost, so all grocerymen might purchase from us.

Nearly every manufacturer of cereals, soaps and package groceries has been approached through their agents, the Mail or both by several Napanee Grocerymen and urged to "by refusing to sell us goods", force us either in the combine or out of business.

Some manufacturers, realizing the illegal, unfair action of our competitors in thus unlawfully combining to restrict trade, and prevent us getting goods, have urged that we lay a complaint before the Crown Attorney, and let the ring-leaders be fined not less than $200 each.

Not only stopping such methods to keep prices up, but also let the public compare our modest advertisements and headings, with Napanee facts under the criminal code on combines. The evidence placed here we were forced to publish the Coal Oil scandal. Our statements have been mere hints of the real facts, which we could publish with grocers' names.

We have sent to our competitors and purchased 25c. packages of sugar, and found it would take 3 such to fill them, the they were advertising for $1.00.

These plots, plans, schemes, and combines against us, only serve for advertisement.

Probably 19 out of every 20 people, whether from habit or otherwise, desire more or less credit, and should for such privilege, pay the mercantile classes in connection with charging, collecting, rendering and settling accounts, besides some fossil undesirables.

The people who always pay cash are entitled to a cash price and a dollar's worth for each $1.00.

We may as well supply the need, as let them trade orders to the Department tal stores. There is sufficient of such to support our system, and not seriously affect either the Departmental store, local, suburb or country grocer.

Our regular prices and discounts as advertised change only with manufacturers' cost.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Stains on blankets and other woollen goods can be removed by using a mixture of equal parts of glycerine and yolk of an egg. Spread it on the stain leave it for half an hour, and then wash.

When anything boils over on the stove, sprinkle a little salt over the place as quickly as possible. This will prevent the fumes from rising, and so the smell at burning will not spread over the house.

New walking shoes often blister the heels of their wearers by allowing a little with the movement of the foot. To prevent this, rub the inside of the shoes at the heel with soap just before putting them on.

Never throw away your celery tops except those that have turned yellow or are decaying. Keep all the leaves to put in the soup or dry them and use as flavoring. A little soup stock and a left-over steak bone, together with the leaves of a head of celery, make excellent soup when boiled down.

When serving hot chocolate place several marshmallows on the saucer. These are delicious when dipped in the chocolate and allowed to melt. The chocolate must be prepared very strong and one can let the marshmallows take the place of cream if preferred.

Fresh cut flowers with chimneys filling up with soot may be avoided by washing the potash water. The chemical action is such that the soot is entirely cleaned out, so there is no danger of its becoming filled up, even when soft coal is used in the stove. Tear out in small pieces and put into the stove or furnace when the fire is burning brightly. also will have the same effect, and a handful used in this way once or twice a week will keep the chimney clean and the draught good, no matter what fuel you may use. Recently my kitchen range did not draw well, and the oven would not heat properly; so I placed a large handful of zinc scraps in the fire, and went outside to watch the results. The smoke came out in clouds, and was very black, and in a short time the draught of the stove was perfect, and the oven soon became hot.

THE BARNARDO HOMES.

(New York 'Evening Post.')

The death of Dr. Barnardo has not been permitted, thus far, to interrupt the benevolent and reformatory work accomplished by the system of "Homes" which he established. At a meeting held in London the other day Lord Shaftesbury said that he was pretty well acquainted with the work done in outlying parts of the empire, more especially in Canada. During the past year there were received into the institutions 2,801 children, and of that number 1,174 emigrated to Canada. For several years past from 1,000 to 1,200 children had annually been sent from the homes to Canada, and, although they were drawn from that class of the population in which there was a great deal of crime, practically the entire number had done well. Many of them had been adopted by respectable Canadian families. Of 16,000 sent out since 1882 it might be said that from 90 per cent to 95 per cent had done fairly well, and at least 60 per cent had done really well; many of them being among the most respectable citizens throughout the Dominion. He trusted that Indian would be forthcoming to continue the good work without diminution. Mrs. Barnardo said that the homes now contained about 8,000 inmates, and, in addition to a large number of babies, who, in many cases, had been rescued from drunken and dishonest parents, there were 1,000 crippled and afflicted children in special homes and hospitals. Mr. Rider Haggard described visits which he had recently paid to some of the homes where, he said, a wonderful work was being carried on. Of the total number of children sent to Canada 85 per cent. had become land owners, and only two per cent. had failed.

INK FROM BANANA TREE.

(Philadelphia 'Bulletin.')

The banana brushes with ink, with handkerchiefs, with wax, with blacking, with crenoline, with soap, flour, with window cord, with brushes.' The specialty, a banana planter from Jamaica, paused and smiled.

'You don't believe me, do you?' he said. 'Yet truly the banana tree is a wonderful thing. Every part of it serves some good use. Then, the long leaves make a fine crenoline. The juice, being rich in tannin, furnishes a good indelible ink and a good shoe polish. The stems yield a fine quality of hemp, and from this hemp there are made handkerchiefs, cords and ropes of all kinds, mats and brushes. The oil is used in gilding. Of banana flour, the flour ground from the dried fruit, there is no use speaking—you are too familiar with it."

Special Announcement

I wish to announce to all my old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with their patronage, that I have moved my Bicycle business from the old stand in the Miller Block to the WEBSTER & BOYES CARRIAGE FACTORY, just across the street.

The Factory is being fitted up with all the latest improvements, machinery and tools for the MANUFACTURING and REPAIRING of BICYCLES, BUGGIES and all CARRIAGE WORK in general. I have also added a new and special machine for mounting the rubber tires on buggy wheels. My long experience in the rubber tire business enables me to warrant satisfaction in this line.

Bring along your buggy wheels and have new tires put on for Spring. I will guarantee every sett and my prices are right. Now is the time to get your Bicycle fitted up for Spring. I have all the repairs and parts in stock.

CONCERT AT CAMDEN EAST.

A concert will be given in Hinch's Hall, Camden East, on Friday, 17th Inst., under the auspices of the Sunday School of the Methodist church. A splendid programme of recitations, vocal and instrumental music, etc., has been prepared, to be furnished by the following talent, Misses Alfie, Muriel and Marion Paul, Myrtle Bell, Florence Wagar, Mabel Gordanier, Johnston and Scriver, Etta Lewis, Limbert, and young ladies from Wilton. Admission, 25 cts. 2b

ANDERSON CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

Anderson church anniversary was duly observed on Sunday, Dec. 29th, and Jan. 1st. On Sunday at 10.30 and 7, Rev. Enos Farnsworth preached to large and attentive congregations. In the evening every available seat was filled. The day's services were an inspiration to all. On Wednesday, Jan. 1st, the annual tea was held and was a splendid success. Despite poor roads the church was crowded. All enjoyed the good supper and excellent programme. The returns were $50.00.

ORANGE DISTRICT MEETING.

The Loyal Orange District Lodge of Addington met at Centreville Jan. 14th. The day being the attendance was large. After the usual routine of business the following officers were duly elected and installed by Bro. Chas. Riley, Past Co. Master:

D. Dis. Worshipful Master—D. H. Smith.
" Deputy ——John A. Brown.
" Chaplain—John Patterson.
" Rec.-Sec'y. Walter E. Higgs.
" Fin.-Sec'y. F. C. Gross.
" Treasurer—Isreeh Tate.
" D. of C.—Thomas Gerrow.
" Lecturer—Stanley H. Rutan.

WORTH SAVING.

Lucky, indeed, is the man and woman who is free of constipation and stomach trouble. Any one of which helps Pineo, dyspeptic people to feel "the joy of living" will be welcome, indeed. The following combination has been found invaluable in relieving these troubles and certainly deserves a trial by all sufferers: Compound tincture of rhubarb, 4 drams; fluid extract of mandrake or stillingia, 1 dram; fluid extract of eighth peppermint water to fill a 4 ounce bottle. Shake well and take a teaspoonful before each meal and at bedtime followed by a glass of water. The ingredients are of vegetable origin, are harmless, and may be obtained at any drug store for not more than 60 cents for the full recipe.

GRETNA TEAMEETING.

Gretna church teameeting was held on Tuesday, Jan. 14th. We have not say on Tuesday evening for shortly after four people began to arrive and by six o'clock the church was filled. At seven o'clock it was crowded and at eight it was overflowing. Programme were abundant and is one left unsatisfied. The programme was a good one. M. C. Bogart, Esq., acted as chairman. Trinity church orchestra provided the instrumental music, while the Morven quartette, Miss Horton and Mrs. T. Anscombe sang. Miss Sulsey, Miss Madden and Miss Mills recited, and addresses were delivered by Rev. Enos Farnsworth and A. C. Parks, Esq. The proceeds were beyond the expectations of all, being an even $16.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The Bay of Quinte Fir. Employers Mutual Aid Association held their annual meeting in the Superintendent's office, Napanee, on Monday, Jan. 13th. The reports show this Society to be in a flourishing condition having a balance to their credit of $468.00. This Association started in 1897 with $150.00 and a monthly due of 25c for each member, augmented by a yearly exaction. They have paid over $2100.00 in sick benefits in this time and have above based some balance left. Officers elected for 1908: J. R. Sherwood—Honorary President.
E. H. Harkness—President.
M. C. Dunn—Vice President.
C. A. Milliner—Treasurer.

A FUNNY FARCE COMEDY.

"Jerry From Kerry," which comes to the Opera House on Friday, 24th Inst., is a burnh farce comedy, up-to-date and clean. Clever specialties are the featured. The company consists of bright lively fun makers. Good earnest work and no evident desire to please makes for this company a favorable impression. There is a continual round of merriment throughout the performance, new songs, pretty music, charming girls, funny comedians, and all the pleasing features one expects to see in a show of this kind. The company includes many well known and clever artists. The Patten now with the Jerry from Kerry Company have no superiors in farce comedy. There are three of them. All are skilful musicians and their comedy is of the classiest and highest type. The single, double and triple solos and duets on fifes and euphonium deserves special mention. Friday, Jany. 24th.

NAPANEE LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB.

The regular meeting of the Club will be held in the Town Hall, Friday afternoon, Jany. 24th, at 4 o'clock. This will be "Scotch day," under the management of Mrs. Durrett and Miss Herchmer, and will be open only to club members and non-residents. Secretary.

A CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Faler, Hawley, wish through the columns of The Beaver to thank their many friends and neighbors, especially Mr. and Mrs. Norman Garrison and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cranston, for their kindness during the illness and death of their little baby.

TWENTY THOUSAND ADDED.

Just think what an army of twenty thousand men would mean. Yet that is the number of new subscribers added to the mailing lists of that great paper, the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal, during the month of December. The publishers have no enormous staff day and night and must keep right up to the mark or the enormous volume of new subscriptions would overwhelm them. All subscribers are being constantly warned to cover early, as the wonderful value of the Family Herald and Weekly Star is becoming known all over the world. Few Canadian homes will be found without it. It certainly is the best dollar's worth to be had to-day.

DEATH OF JOHN FALEN.

On Saturday night, Jan. 5th, John, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Falen, Bridge of Hawley, was put to bed in the usual way. During the night it seems probable that he got out of bed and in some way got a cold which developed into pneumonia, and was not discovered until morning. As soon as possible Dr. Yeomans, of Napanee, was called for, but owing to his illness, Dr. Slingerland, of Napanee, was sent, and did all that could for the little sufferer. Being such a short little illness, the shock was very much for him, and at three o'clock on Monday morning he passed away, at the last being surrounded by weeping parents and many neighbors, the little spirit winging its way to the God who gave it. Rev. W. J. Bates, of Bath, conducted a very impressive service in the church on Wednesday. The body lies in a lovely white casket in Morven vault, to await burial in the spring.—Com.

DUNCAN—BRYSON.

The many friends of Miss Maggie Duncan, at Bridgville, will be pleased to learn of her marriage, which took place at Kemptville, on the 18th of November, and at the hour of 7.30 p.m., to Mr. John Bryson, of Scotland. Miss Carrie Huffman gracefully filled her duty at the organ and played the wedding march. After the ceremony was performed the wedding couple sat down with a few other friends and did justice to a sumptuous repast, which was given at the home of T. K. Allen, lawyer, of that place, the house being decorated with lillies of the valley for the special occasion. The happy couple left on the morning train amid showers of rice and best wishes of a happy and pleasant journey through life, for Montreal and Rhode Island, to visit the groom's uncle and aunt, and at present are sight seeing in the city of New York.

SAD DEATH AT ADOLPHUSTOWN.

The whole circuit of Adolphustown and many persons beyond were shocked and saddened by the knowledge of the death of J. Anita Allison, youngest daughter of the late Hiram Allison. The best medical assistance that could be procured was called to see her and did all that they had done their best to relieve the trouble. The death messenger entered the room and Anita "was not for he took" her. She died at 8 a.m. on Saturday, Jany. 11th, 1908, at the age of 12 years and 11 months, and was laid to rest in the Mausoleum adjoining Allison's wharf, escorted by the late David W. Allison, to await the resurrection day. The funeral was a very large one; friends of all denominations, in the neighborhood and far beyond, were present to manifest their sorrow for the departed and their sympathy with the mother, sister, and other near relatives. The service was conducted by Rev. W. S. Boyce, who preached from Exodus 15, 7. "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." By her innocent ways of spirit and entertaining ways, Anita had won for herself a wide circle of friends, and with her death much sunshine has gone from her school-mates, and the home. Our heartfelt sympathy and prayers go out on behalf of Mrs. Margaret Allison, the mother; Amy Allison, the sister, and Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Allison, and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Loyst, the grandfathers and grandmothers, for they, which is more precious than all earthly theirs, and that the dear Master in his own good time may take us to that home where parting is no more.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Horticultural Society will be held in the Historical Society's Hall, in the Public Library building, on Tuesday evening next, at 7.30 p.m.

Mrs. Wilkison, the first President of the Society, has forwarded a very interesting paper upon her travels in Europe. As Mrs. Wilkison is a keen observer, and knows how to describe what she has seen, this address will be well worth hearing.

The Election Drawer will be another feature of the meeting. No admission will be charged and all are welcome.

THE ST. LAWRENCE LEAGUE.

Kingston, Jan. 13th.—The St. Lawrence River Hockey League has elected these officers:—President, T. N. Bowling, Kingston; First Vice-President, Rev. F. W. Armstrong, Trenton; Second Vice-President, James J. Bryan, Gananoque; Secretary-Treasurer, J. J. McDermott, Kingston. The league is to be in the senior series, and all players are eligible to play who do not play in any other recognized league. The series is divided into four groups. Four teams in Kingston will be group 1, four teams in Belleville, group 2, four teams in Gananoque and Brockville group 3, and Trenton, Deseronto and Napanee will make group 4. All group games are to be finished by February 15th, when the winners will play off.

A PLUCKY LAD.

Picton, Jan. 14.—Reginald Wilson, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Wilson, of Glenora, is the hero of a very brilliant rescue from drowning that have been a double drowning. Young Wilson and Bill Bradley, the young son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Wilsonn, were skating together. Bradley's attention, on the bay near Glenora. The ice gave way and plunged him into the icy water. The boy grabbed him by the companion and gallantly kept a firm hold, while he endeavored to pull himself upon the ice. But the ice broke under his weight, and Reginald was left to battle with the waves. Cries for help were in vain, as they were too far away to come from shore, and the evening shadows were falling. Young Wilson, however, kept up a determined fight, and his strong, athletic powers, coupled with his excellent swimming ability and being unencumbered with any heavy coat, enabled him to keep Miss Wilsonn and himself above the water until a firm place of ice was reached, when the two succeeded in getting out of the water and resting land.

MOST ENGRATEFUL.

The hero of my humble song was once a mighty man,
A shining light in Napanee and chief of all his clan;
But he found in course of time the tricks he friends did play
And he lost his place at the Council Board in a most ungrateful way.

He served the people of Napanee in a way he thought was right;
He gave them what they often asked, a good electric light,
But he was too free and cheaply too, at first he made a fee
And now his friends have turned him down in a most ungrateful way.

He won the people's pride and praise, and he deserved it too.
He had to fight the old plant gang, 'tis true, before he could carry the new.
He beat the old plant gang so bad, they found it did not pay,
And now the people have turned him down in a most ungrateful way.

The world still moves and time rolls on, and the light has come to stay.
May take his place the light [illegible] Board and be welcomed back again
At the end of the year the light [illegible] we will see what the people say.
They may be sorry they turned him d wn in a most ungrateful way.

Though he lost his seat at the Council Board, the loss may be his gain,
He can take some comfort in his home and rest his weary brain.
When the people see the electric li ht, we'll see the solid man to turn him down to the ungrateful way.

NAPANEE DISTRICT E. L. EXECUTIVE.

A meeting of this Executive Committee was held at the Western Methodist Church, on the afternoon of Saturday last, the President, Rev. E. Farncomb, Tweed, presiding, and with four other members present. A request from Rev. Mr. Sharpe, of Moscow, that an E. L. rally should be held at that place was referred to the President, who with Rev. S. F. Dixon, of Tamworth, will arrange for such a gathering in due time. Arrangements were also made by which a general campaign of the district will be made in behalf of the Forward Movement for Missions. The Secretary was instructed to notify each League of the appointment made by the Executive in its case, with a request that a meeting be arranged as soon as possible. The following is a copy of a letter written by the Missionary Vice President to the Leagues of the District in regard to this movement. There ought to be a loyal response from all quarters.

Dear Fellow Epworth Leaguers and Friends of the Leagues on the Napanee District:

As an officer of our District Epworth League I feel a deep interest in the work and welfare of each League on the District, but particularly in my own, the Missionary Department. I would be a great pleasure to me to meet you in your local League devotional meetings and help you along in the interests of our God-given work, but as that is impossible in most cases, let me address a word to you through this little circular letter.

As you know, our Forward Movement contributions have for the last few years been devoted to the support of Rev. Robert Hyperson, missionary to the Japanese in Shibdoka, Japan. We have lately had a most welcome visit from Bro. Emberson, and those of us who were privileged to know something of the importance of the work now being carried on the foreign missionaries in this period of Japanese development. Now that the three largest Methodist bodies repres nt in Japan have united their forces and native control over the church obtains more or less, it is exceedingly important that the foreign pastors should wield an influence that will enable the two bodies to realize the highest Christian ideals. Our mission has a will of formerly be looked up to as a teacher and by our graduates in the Japanese Empire. Therefore we feel that we are deeply interested in his service. Does it not seem to you too, in this day of elevated missionary vision, that it is hardly to the credit of our intelligent conception of missionary duty and responsibility that it should require four district Epworth Leagues to support Mr. Hyperson, as it now does? These are days of advance all along the missionary line and it seems to me that this united District ought to set itself to the task of doubling our missionary givings with the view of making the General Board to permit us to undertake the support of a missionary of our own. Is that too high an aim? Some of the strongest Leagues have a membership of 101 or 150. Why not a Missionary Band of one hundred members in the District, and an average per member of barely 25 cents, or starting with a less number, and with the delight of Gospel privileges and considering the wonderful liberality of God's gifts, it seem too large an offering to give our Lord and Master, as a work towards the support of His Kingdom in our particular sphere of missionary effort? One member can give a week in all it amounts to. Many of us are giving more than one week's wages to help along these causes, and the needs of this cause? And will not you into whose hands this message may come do something to help forward the cause of Christ, mindful that His call is to all who have received knowledge of Him? I am convinced that we can raise $1,000 on this District this year if we will put our hearts into the effort. Is it not worth trying?

Our church is this year asking $90,000 for missions, an increase of 40 per cent. The Leaguers must not be behind. Let us set our face for this year TWO CENTS PER WEEK PER MEMBER, and then a missionary for Napanee District.

In conclusion let me commend to you the study of the great missionary problems of the day, the history of our own Forward work has done, as found in our text-book, "The Call of the Hour," and the reading of the missionary periodicals, and the bringing of the quarterly letters from our missionaries to the League meetings. Nothing will help to the best piece of missionary literature in information as to literature write to Dr. F. Chown, Secretary of Forward Movement, Methodist Mission Rooms, Toronto. Or, if you prefer, write to me for any information or help in my power.

Let us pray much for the Lord for the support of our League Forward Movement, and for the blessing of God on the labors of each of the Leaguers Pastor, and pledge that our Leagues may in every respect have the prosperity of Israel of old. I am, yours sincerely,

J. M. DENYES,
Missionary Vice Pres., Napanee District E.L.

GOING TO TORN TO LIVE

To the Editor of The Beaver:—

It is with great pleasure that I have perused the letters of "the Khan" and those in reply. I have always had the principle of living on the "fat of the land," and find that "the khan" must certainly be a most sensible, unpresuming stamp of fellow, and a gentleman that knows what does it mean? to live. Long live the beautiful country.

His letter from start to finish is most wonderfully true, and especially that it is "the old, worn-out farmers" that retire and go to the town. It is always the old men that die, and farmers who retire are comparatively speaking those who have made their small fortune by good, hard, honest work, and after spending the remainder of their days in ease and luxury.

The "Khan" must be afflicted with nervous prostration, that he tures the hearty greeting of the farmer into such an obnoxious expression as "Hello, Hoddy do." There are no farmers in this part of the country as reticent as that, anyway.

When the farmer moves to town he knows that there will be no work for him to do. Had he wished for more work he would have continued the farm life, but in the town the lack of employment must be felt keenly by him. He has not been used to work, he has nothing to do but go to the village of the hall, or down the street for a few groceries.

His thoughts must revert sometimes to his home on the farm, and how he must long to see the cattle and sheep once more, and the herds of hay and oats, but refuse moving to town.

A number of "Dr. Slocum" realities how the merchants and other business men are mistaken? Thank ye they would enjoy prosperity were it not for the farmers. There would be no merchants of Napanee prosper if they had no farmers in the townspeople.

Is it not the farmer who purchase the best in the stores? Who obtain the best of groceries, and in a similar manner purchase fine suits of clothes, furniture, and in fact everything.

Mr. Editor, how often have you ever seen a retired farmer pass your window in a suit of "comfortable overalls," with his best boots and hat on?

When a farmer moves to town he goes with the firm determination to always dress respectably, and not to appear in the costume, which some of the rougher class of farm denominate.

Because the farmer has always been accustomed to live well, and has had abundance, is the very reason why he should continue to live well when he moves to town. They are the most generous people to the grocers, butchers and dry goods merchants.

Suppose that it would be the case that has all his life been accustomed to eat home cured hams, shoulders and side meat that would be replaced by the "teeny-weeny rag of clear meat once a week and added to it a couple of eggs, all starved, rat who dreads that the bait is poisoned.

No indeed! the retired farmer buys the choicest bits of beef and pork he can eats them up as rapidly as he pleases, and goes back for more.

Many are the retired farmers who take their driving horse to town with them. I am sure this shows that the farmer does not begrudge the feed he gives the animal, and that he appreciates the frequent drives, and looks scornfully as the lazy autos of the city dude. Now, what is one of these compared to a lively, city-bred horse?

If there is one other bright spot in a retired farmer's life, we have yet to know, it is the quiet half hour he may spend in the grass in the park, for it brings back pleasant memories of his vernacular somewhere on the farm.

I am sure, Mr. Editor, that this discussion is causing greater interest to be taken in your paper; and I think your subscriptions should increase not decrease. I expect that the letters of "the Khan" have been read by all those who have The Beaver, and some of us, like myself, have determined to stand up for the farmers.

ANNUAL MEETING ODESSA PUBLIC LIBRARY.

On Monday, Jany. 13th, the annual meeting of the Odessa Public Library was held in the reading room of the new library building. The usual routine of business was transacted, with the result that last year's board was re-elected. One or two changes were made in the Executive. Mr. J. H. Gardiner being elected President.

Vice President, and Mrs. H. E. Day, Secretary, all other officers and committees remaining as before.

A favorable and encouraging report was presented to the meeting. As all know, the money for the purchase of the building now occupied, was donated by a former resident, Mrs. Geo. I. Hale, of Mexico, and the money for repairs, decorating, furnishings, etc., was subscribed by supporters in and around Odessa. So that today, Odessa has a $15000.00 library, of which the people may justly be proud, and which in almost free of debt, the present indebtedness being only about $40.00, which sum the Board hope to raise in a short time.

The spacious reading room, well heated, well lighted, gives access to all the leading daily and weekly papers, as well as to a goodly assortment of the best magazines of the day. This room is free to all; anyone is welcome to enjoy its hospitality every afternoon, from one to nine. The book room is in splendid order, the shelves holding over eleven hundred books of every class, and the summer is being constantly increased. The privileges of the book room are as nearly free as they can be, the price being the merely nominal one of fifty cents a year, or twenty-five cents for six months, which amount entitles the subscriber to take home two books at one time, and to have them changed three times a week, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, if desired.

Our ecrnal librarians, Mr. and Mrs. John Denyes, are always ready to give a welcome to both books and visitors, or a copy of our fine new catalogue.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Why fret, for one weak heart in a hundred is, as a rule, actually diseased. It is almost always a feeble or irritable nerve that really is all at fault. This electric force, and not heart, is the "power" simply because it controls, more governingly and directly, the Heart muscle contraction. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have their nerve-controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for what is really Heart Weakness, though it was given out as a Heart remedy. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of Heart Weakness, and then made his Restorative to overcome it. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this and no prescription—is alone directed to those weak and wailing nerve centers. It builds Nerve Strength; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, straighten those nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

In Chorus Cried, Give Us Newbro's Herpicide.

This word of late has been in everyone's mouth, and many are wondering what the word signifies, though no one has yet been found, who will deny that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE does the work. Well by the hundreds of thousands of people who like to know all about a good thing, we would say that HERPICIDE means a destroyer or killer of "Herpes," Now "Herpes" is the family name of a disease caused by various vegetable parasites. A similar microbe causes dandruff, itching scalp, and falling hair; this is the microbe that NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE promptly destroys; after which the hair grows. Sold by leading druggists. The Conquest of Canaan

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

Eugene, visibly perturbed, followed her to the doorway of the room and paused.

"Do you know the way?" he inquired, with a note of solemnity.

"Where?" Ariel had not risen.

"To the library."

"Of course," she said, beaming upon him. "I was about to ask you if you wouldn't speak to the judge for me. This is such a comfortable old friend, this chair."

"Speak to him for you?" repeated the nonplussed Eugene.

She nodded cheerfully. "If I may trouble you. Tell him certainly I shall be glad to see him."

Eugene went. There was nothing else to do. And he wished with every fibre of him the distance to the portals of the library might have been greater.

In whatever guise he delivered the summons, it was perfectly efficacious. A door slammed, a heavy and rapid tread was heard in the hall, and Ariel, without otherwise moving, turned her head and offered a brilliant smile of greeting.

"It was good of you," she said as the doorway filled with red, imperial wrath, "to wish to have a little chat with me. I'm anxious, of course, to go over my affairs with you, and last night after my journey I was too tired. But now we might begin, not in detail, of course, just yet. That will do for later when I've learned more about business."

The great one had stopped on the threshold.

"Madam," he began coldly, "when I say my library I mean my"—

"Oh, yes," she interrupted, with amiable weariness; "I know. You mean you keep all the papers and books of the estate in there, but I think we'd better put them off for a few days"—

"I'm not talking about the estate!" he exclaimed. "What I want to talk to you about is being seen with Joseph Louden!"

"Yes," she nodded brightly. "That's along the line we must take up first."

"Yes, it is!" He hurled his bull bass at her. "You know everything about him and his standing in this community! I know you did, because Mr. Pike told me you asked all about him from Mamie after you came last night, and, now here, don't you"—

"Oh, but I knew before that," she laughed. "I had a correspondent in Canaan, one who has always taken a great interest in Mr. Louden. I asked Miss Pike only to get her own point of view."

"I want to tell you, madam," he shouted, coming toward her, "that no member of my household"—

"That's another point we must take up today. I'm glad you remind me of it," she said thoughtfully, yet with so magically compelling an intonation that he stopped his shouting in the middle of a word, stopped with an apoplectic splutter. "We must arrange to put the old house in order at once."

"We'll arrange nothing of the sort," he responded after a moment of angry silence. "You're going to stay right here."

"Ah, I know your hospitality," she bowed graciously. "But of course I must not tax it too far. And about Mr. Louden! As I said, I want to speak to you about him."

"Yes," he intervened harshly, "so do and I'm going to do it quick! You'll find"—

Again she mysteriously baffled him. "He's a dear old friend of mine, you know, and I have made up my mind that we both need his help, you and I."

"What!"

"Yes," she continued calmly, "in a business way, I mean. I know you have great interests in a hundred directions, all more important than mine. It isn't fair that you should bear the whole burden of my affairs, and I think it will be best to retain Mr. Louden as my man of business. He could take all the cares of the estate off your shoulders."

Martin Pike spoke no word, but he looked at her strangely, and she watched him with sudden keenness, leaning forward in her chair, her gaze alert but quiet, fixed on the dilating pupils of his eyes. He seemed to become dizzy, and the choleric scarlet which had overspread his broad face and big neck faded splotchily.

Still keeping her eyes upon him, she went on: "I haven't asked him yet, and so I don't know whether or not he'll consent, but I think it possible that he may come to see me this afternoon, and if he does we can propose it to him together and go over things a little."

Judge Pike recovered his voice. "He'll get a warm welcome," he promised hoarsely, "if he sets foot on my premises!"

"You mean you prefer I shouldn't receive him here?" She nodded pleasantly. "Then certainly I shall not. Such things are much better for offices; you are quite right." She swept lightly and quickly to the door, where she paused, gathering her skirts. "I shall not detain you further just now. And if Mr. Louden comes this afternoon I'll remember. I'll not let him come in, of course. It will be perhaps pleasanter to talk over my proposition as we walk!"

There was a very faint, spicy odor, like wild roses and cinnamon, left in the room where Martin Pike stood alone, staring whitely at the open doorway.

CHAPTER XIII.

THERE was a custom of Canaan, time worn and seldom honored in the breach, which put Ariel that afternoon in easy possession of a reign of vantage commanding the front gate. The heavy Sunday dinner was finished in silence (on the part of Judge Pike deafening) about 3 o'clock, and soon after Mamie tossed a number of cushions out upon the stoop between the cast iron dogs. Sam Warden having previously covered the steps with a rug and placed several garden chairs near by on the grass. These simple preparations concluded, Eugene was somewhat conformably upon the rug and Mamie seated herself near him, while Ariel wandered with apparent aimlessness about the lawn, followed by the gaze of Mr. Bantry until Miss Pike begged her a little petulantly to join them.

She came, looking about her dreamily and touching to her lips now and then, with an absent air, a straw blossom she had found in the longer grass against the fence. She stopped to pat the neck of one of the cast iron deer and, with grave eyes, proffered the clover top first for inspection, then as food. There were those in the world who, seeing her, might have wondered that the deer did not play Galatea and come to life.

She had put on her hat after dinner, and Mamie now inquired if she would not prefer to remove it, offering to carry it indoors for her, to Ariel's room, to insure its safety. "You look so sort of temporary, wearing it," she urged; "as if you were only here for a little while. It's the loveliest hat I ever saw, and so fragile, too, but I'll take care"—

"I am wearing my hat," answered Ariel, "because at any moment I may decide to go for a long walk."

"I hope not," said Mamie. "There are sure to be people. A few still come, even though I'm an engaged girl. I expect that's just to comfort me, though!" she added, smiling over this worn quip of the betrothed while shaking her head at Eugene, who grew red and coughed. "There'll be plenty today, but they won't be here for long. It's you, Ariel, and they'll be terribly disappointed if you weren't here. I shouldn't wonder if the whole town came. It's curious enough about you!"

And now the young men of the town, laboriously arranged as to apparel, began to appear on the street in small squads, making their Sunday rounds, the youngest working in phalanxes of threes and fours, those somewhat older inclining to move in pairs, the eldest, such as were now beginning to be considered middle aged bachelors (by the extremely youthful) "old bachelors," evidently considered it advantageous to travel alone. Of all these there were few who did not before evening fell turn in at the gate of the Pike mansion. Carelessly, shyly or confidently, according to the condition of their souls, they made their way between the cast iron deer to be presented to the visitor.

Ariel sat at the top of the steps and, looking amiably over their heads, talked with such as could get near her. There were many who could not, and Mamie, occupying the bench below, was surrounded by the overflow. The difficulty of reaching and maintaining a position near Miss Taber was increased by the attitude and behavior of Mr. Flitcroft, who that day cooled the feeling of friendship which several of his fellow townsmen had hitherto entertained for him. He had been the first to arrive, coming alone, though that was not his custom, and he established himself at Ariel's right, upon the step just below her, so disposing the great body and the pounding arms and legs the gods had given him that no one could mount above him to sit beside her or approach her from that direction while conversations' distance.

Norbert, not ordinarily talkative, had nothing to say. He seemed to find sufficient occupation in keeping the place he had gained, and from this coign vantage he fastened his small eyes immovably upon Ariel's profile. Eugene, also apparently determined not to move, after severing to her in the forenoon at her left, but as he was thin others who came and went were able to approach upon that side and hold speech with her.

The conversation of the gallants consisted for the greater part of witticisms at one another's expense, which, though evoked for Ariel's benefit (all were constantly reverting to her as each shaft was tossed), she found more or less antagonistic. The young men, however, laughed at each other loudly and seemed content if now and then she smiled. "You must be frightfully amused with all this," Eugene said to her. "You see how provincial we still are."

She did not answer. She had not heard him. The shadows were stretching themselves over the grass long and attenuated. The sunlight upon the trees and houses was like a thin, rosy pigment, blackbirds were calling each other home to beech and elm, and Ariel's eyes were fixed upon the western distance of the street where gold dust was beginning to quiver in the air. She did not hear Eugene, but she started a somewhat later when the name of Joseph Louden was pronounced by a young man, the poetic Bradbury, on the step below Eugene. Some one immediately said, "Eh?" But she leaned over and addressed Mr. Bradbury, who, shut out, not only from the group about her, but from the other centering upon Miss Pike as well, was holding a private conversation with a friend in Wiggle-fortuna.

"What were you saying of Mr. Louden?" she asked, smiling down upon the young man. (It was this smile which inspired his description of her as "a revelation and a dream.")

"Oh, nothing particular," was his embarrassed reply. "I only mentioned I'd heard there was some talk among the"— He paused awkwardly, remembering that Ariel had walked with Joseph Louden in the face of Canaan that very day. "That is, I mean to say, there's some talk of his running for mayor."

"What?"

There was a general exclamation, followed by an uncomfortable moment or two of silence. No one present was unaware of that noon walk, though there was prevalent a pleasing notion that it would not happen again, founded on the idea that Ariel, having only arrived the previous evening, had probably met Joe on the street by accident and, remembering him as a playmate of her childhood and uninformed as to his reputation, had, naturally enough, permitted him to walk home with her.

Mr. Flitcroft broke the silence, rushing into words with a derisive laugh: "Yes, he's talked of" for mayor—by the saloon people and the niggers! I expect the Beaver Beach crowd would be for him, and if tramps could vote he might"—

"What is Beaver Beach?" he repeated and cast his eyes to the sky, shaking his head awesomely. "It's a place," he said, with abysmal solemnity—"a place I shouldn't have mentioned in your presence, Miss Taber."

"What has it to do with Mr. Louden?"

The predestined Norbert conceived the present to be a heaven sent opportunity to enlighten her concerning Joe's character, since the Pikes appeared to have been derelict in the performance of this kindness.

"He goes there!" he proceeded heavily. "He lived there for awhile when he first came back from running away, and he's a friend of Mike Sheehan's that runs it. He's a friend of all the riffraff that hang around there."

"How do you know he goes there?"

"Why, it was in the paper the day after he came back." He appealed for corroboration. "Wasn't it, Eugene?"

"No, no!" she persisted. "Newspapers are sometimes mistaken, aren't they? Have you ever met any one who has seen him there?"

"I've seen him there myself!" The words skipped out of Norbert's mouth like so many little devils the instant he opened it. She had spoken so quickly and with such vehemence, looking him full in the eye, that he had forgotten everything in the world except making the point to which her insistence had led him.

Mamie looked horrified. There was a sound of smothered laughter, and Norbert, overwhelmed by the treachery of his own mouth, sat gasping.

"It can't be such a terrible place, then, after all," said Ariel gently, and, turning to Eugene, "Have you ever been there, Mr. Bantry?" she asked.

He changed color, but answered with enough gallantry. "No."

Several of the young men rose. The wretched Flitcroft, however, evading Mamie's eye, in which there was a distinct hint, sat where he was until all of them, except Eugene, had taken a reluctant departure, one after another, leaving in the order of their arrival.

Ariel started to her feet, but the best figure coming up the walk in the darkness was that of Eskew Arp. He bowed gloomily to Mamie and in response to her inquiry if he wished to see her father answered no; he had come to talk with the granddaughter of his old friend Roger Talbot.

"Mr. Arp!" called Ariel. "I am so very glad!" She ran down to him and gave him her hand. "We'll sit here on the bench, shan't we?"

Mamie had risen and, skirting Norbert frostily, touched Eugene upon the shoulder as she went up the steps. He understood that he was to follow her indoors, and, after a decent pause at the bench where Ariel had seated herself beside Mr. Arp, he obeyed. Norbert was left a lonely relic of the group of cold twin dogs. He had wrought destruction this afternoon, and that sweet vendure, his good name, so long in the planting, so carefully tended, was now a dreary waste; yet he contemplated this not so much as his present aspect of splendid isolation. Frozen by the daughter of the house, forgotten by the visitor, whose conversation with Mr. Arp was carried on in tones so low that he could not understand it, the fat one, though heartbreakingly loath to take himself away, began to comprehend that his hour had struck. He rose, descended the steps to the bench and seated himself unexpectedly upon the cement walk at Ariel's feet.

"Leg's gone to sleep," he explained in response to her startled exclama-

"Will you go riding with me tomorrow afternoon?"

tion, but, like a great soul, ignoring the accident of his position as well as the presence of Mr. Arp, he immediately proceeded, "Will you go riding with me tomorrow afternoon?"

PLAN TO FIGHT DISEASE

DRUGGISTS WILL BATTLE STOMACH TROUBLES IN NAPANEE.

The increase of stomach troubles in Napanee has led T. B. Wallace to take effective measures to combat the disease. He has the local agency for Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and in order to induce people suffering with weak stomach or indigestion to use the remedy, offers to supply it with the distinct understanding that money will be refunded in every case where it does not cure.

Mi-o-na is not a mere digestive, but an absolute stomach tonic and builder-up of the whole digestive tract. If you suffer with headaches, giddiness, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, nervousness, coated tongue, distress after eating, use Mi-o-na and see how quickly the symptoms of a weak stomach will disappear. The remedy strengthens the muscular walls of the stomach and increases the flow of gastric juices so that nourishment is extracted from the food and the refuse is expelled without the aid of purgative or laxative medicines.

Remember that T. B. Wallace gives a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. He takes all the risk, and there is no danger of your losing anything except indigestion when you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na.

CHILDREN FOR HIRE.

Quite a fashionable trade is done by the poorer classes of Madrid, who let out their children to beggars at so much per hour. The intending hirer applies to the parents of a likely child, the price is agreed upon, a small amount paid down as a guarantee for the return of the little one, and the beggar forthwith sets out with his human implement of trade to implore the public charity.

The children whose task it is to soften the hearts of the passers-by are required to possess special qualifications. They must have hungry looking faces, be fruitful criers and not very ugly, for a good-looking child is more likely to earn extra pesetas on account of its pretty face than a less favored competitor.

While the professional beggar and his hapless charge wearily walks the streets of Spain's capital the father of the child, comfortably seated in a tavern hard by his house, proudly remarks to his letter half, as he contentedly sips his wine: "What a splendid career our Jose has before him! He is hardly three years old, and in two years at the outside he will be the owner of a combination between the one-eyed man of Trocadero street and the wooden-legged one of Atocha! As soon as he grows up we'll make a beggar of him!" —Heraldo de Madrid.

Tremendous Sacrifice Sale

AT DESERONTO

THE PUBLIC BENEFITS

THE PUBLIC OF DESERONTO AND VICINITY WILL BENEFIT GREATLY BY THE TREMENDOUS SACRIFICE SALE OF

R. Miller's Big Stock of Dry Goods, Clothing, Etc.

Who has placed his entire stock in the hands of the National Salvage Co., of Toronto, for immediate disposal. The National Salvage Company, of Toronto, say they propose to sell more than half or about $9,000 worth of R. Miller's stock out quickly at prices less than actual cost of the raw material. This will be a sacrifice sale of Dry Goods, Women's Wearing Apparel, etc., such as the people of Deseronto never had before, or will ever have again. It will be a sacrifice sale such as the public only have an opportunity to attend about once in a lifetime, and the people of Deseronto and vicinity will no doubt take advantage of this great sacrifice sale to secure for themselves, dry goods, etc., at about sixty-five cents on the dollar. The National Salvage Company informs us that they have engaged twenty-five extra salespeople in order to serve the vast crowds who will attend this sale. We bespeak for this sacrifice sale of R. Miller's stock a most gigantic business, as they have never carried any except only the most reliable quality of dry goods, etc. This great sacrifice sale no doubt will attract thousands of people to Deseronto, as the people know when they are getting big bargains, and the public are always ready to save on their purchases, whenever that opportunity presents itself, and this certainly is the time for our people to secure dry goods at almost one-half actual value. Think what this great sacrifice sale of R. Miller's stock means to you right in the height of the season, when you need dry goods, etc., the most. The entire stock is placed on sale without reserve. The store, which is now closed, by order of the National Salvage Company, of Toronto, will remain closed, getting every article marked down in plain figures, until Wednesday, Jan'y. 29th, at 9 a.m.

As they purpose to sell more than half of this entire stock in ten days' time. The store will not be open for business until the opening day of this tremendous sacrifice sale. Let all who can come and take advantage of this tremdous ten days' slaughter of prices, and secure their share of the many great bargains that will be offered. At the prices we understand this stock will be sold at, we expect this stock of dry goods, women's wearing apparel, etc., to melt away quickly like a snowfall before a July sun. Remember the opening day of this big Salvage Sale of R. Miller's stock, opening Wednesday, Jan. 29th, at 9 a.m. It will be a collossal event, and we would advise early morning trading, in order so as to facilitate the serving of the immense crowds of people that will attend this great sale. A word to the wise should be sufficient, and we advise you to be on hand early, and benefit accordingly. Look for the big sign, covering the entire front of R. Miller's store. Act quickly.

If You Value Money! Then Prepare Accordingly!

You Cannot Afford To Miss This Sale.

The Best Flour.

Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and you will get the best, thereby saving money.

Dafoe's Nonesuch flour is not any more expensive than the many inferior brands on sale, while for to be unsurpassed throughout all miles at great expense, and usually possible all round, is not possible in quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the mechanic sends in Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home grocer, but at good cost, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away. And unless you as labeling flour for home money than you can purchase the Nonesuch flour at every one of the following stores:

Charles Cormenal and Rockwheat Flour always on hand. Rolled Oats a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the well-known Ontario Cash also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Dye Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Cash.

BROOD OF PYTHONS.

(London "Tribune.)

Most people think that vipers bring forth their young alive and that the common English grass snake deposits its eggs to be hatched by the heat of decaying matter. Some of the great constricting snakes, however, devote a certain amount of care over their eggs, gathering them into a heap and coiling around them till the young make their way out or are helped into the world by the kindly offices of the keepers who break away the hardened shell.

A case of this kind occurred with the Indian python in the Tower menagerie in the early part of the last century, and others are on record at the Jardin des Plantes in Paris, the Regents Park Gardens and at the Natural Gardens in Leipsic. An incubation which has been unusually successful is just recorded from the Terrario of Herr Arnold Fockelmann at Gross-Borstel, near Hamburg.

In August last he bought a large reticulated python from a sailor trading to the East. Within a month she began to lay eggs, and when one was examined it was found to contain a partly developed embryo. As time went on others were opened and in this way the proprietor obtained a series of specimens of young in different stages of development. The mother paid the greatest attention to her eggs, leaving them only at night, when she went for a time into the bath.

The general results appear to be far better than have hitherto been obtained. At Regents Park though it was found that the eggs had been fertilized, no living young were produced. Gross-Borstel twenty-seven young pythons came into the world, and these were all of very lively little reptiles, with much the appearance of common grass snakes, measuring from twenty-two inches to twenty-six in length and being readily at anything with the mouth sufficient force to make an impression on one's hand.

On Nov. 25th they took food for the first time—white mice of a pretty good size. All appear to be in the best possible condition and should they reach maturity the fact of their having been hatched in confinement will no doubt enhance their value considerably, for this appears to be the first instance in which this particular species has so bred.

"Happy Week" is Rightly Named

Everybody in this store was smiling this week. We will continue "Happy Week" until Friday night. January 31st.

There are six more days with a hundred smiles in each (600 in all) still coming to you—even if you missed attending to-day.

No matter what you want—in good, timely, modish merchandise—you'll find it here priced so remarkably and agreeably, that while you buy just exactly what you want—you'll thoroughly enjoy paying the tiny sums.

You'll smile all the time you're here—the spirit of good nature that will be everywhere throughout the store, will act as a veritable tonic to puzzled blue or discouraged people, but at the same time, apart from the smiling side of the occasion, there's an intensely practical and helpful side to this sale—AND THERE IS NOT ONE WOMAN OR MAN WHO READS THIS WHO CAN AFFORD NOT TO COME TO THIS STORE DURING THIS COMING HAPPY WEEK.

That Ordered Suit

you want isn't quite to hand, suppose your pet suit—or dry — if you may, is sent during this sale. Reductions of from $3.00 to $5.00 on about 100 Suits.

Just Look at These Prices

Men's Tweed Overcoats at Half Price—$7.50 now $3.75, $10 now $5, $15 now $7.50.

Dollars For You

There are dollars waiting for you here. Come in and get them; we'll cut them off the prices of our Men's and Boys' Suits, Pea Jackets, Overcoats, Winter Vests, Wool Toques, Gloves and Mitts of all kinds, Woolen Sox, Working Shirts, etc.

The reason? Why it's simply a business proposition, while a good part of Winter is still ahead of us—our time for selling is growing short. We'll soon have to be thinking of "Spring Things"—we'll want room—and besides we never carry over stock from season to season if it can possibly be avoided. It's poor policy.

We'll Take Our Loss Now

Yes Sir,—There are dollars waiting for you here, and you'll get some of them with every purchase you make. Consider these inducements:

25 per cent. discount on all "Ready-to-wears," Men's and Boys' Suits, Pea Jackets and Overcoats.

$16.00 Suits reduced to	$12.00	$18.00 Overcoats, now	$13.50
12.00 Suits reduced to	9.00	14.00 Overcoats, now	10.50
10.00 Suits reduced to	7 50	12 00 Overcoats, now	9.00
7.50 Suits reduced to	5.63	10.00 Overcoats, now	7.50

The same discounts are on all Boys' Clothing.

15 odd Fancy Winter Vests, regular prices $1.75 to $3.00; you can take your choice for 1.25

25c and 50c Puff Ties reduced to 10 Cents.

50c Toques, 38c, or 2 for 75c. Toques, 25c. 40c 25c Toques, 17c.

Genuine Moca Lined Gloves, good value		20c Woolen Sox, now	15c
at $2.00, now	$1.50	15c Woolen Sox, now	10c
$1.50 Kid Gloves, now	1.20	75c Working Shirts, now	55c
1.00 Kid Gloves, now	.75	50c Working Shirts, now 35c, or 3 for $1

What about an Ordered Suit? This is the season of the year that we offer special inducements on all Winter Suitings.

A Great Doctor Speaks Of a Great Remedy.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Strongly Endorsed by One of the World's Greatest Doctors—Hope for the Sick.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is the only advertised medicine in the world that has had the public endorsation of a doctor of world wide reputation. Such an endorsation stamps this medicine as being worthy of the confidence of every person who is sick or ailing. A great doctor would not risk his reputation unless he was absolutely confident, through a personal knowledge, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do what is claimed for them. Dr. Giuseppe Lapponi, one of the greatest physicians of modern times, for years the trusted medical adviser of the Pope, writes the following strong letter in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills:

"I certify that I have tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in four cases and the simple anaemia of development. After a few weeks of treatment, the result came fully up to my expectations. For that reason I shall not fail in the future to extend the use of this laudable preparation, not only in the treatment of other morbid forms of the category of anaemia or chlorosis, but also in cases of neuras-

(Signed). DR. GIUSEPPE LAPPONI,
Via dei Giardi 337, Rome.

The "simple anaemia of development" referred to by Dr. Lapponi is of course the young woman's condition at the time when development to womanhood is taking place, and when health, at the period of that development, is so often imperiled. His opinion of the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at that time is the highest scientific authority, and confirms the many published cases in which anaemia and other diseases of the blood, as well as nervous diseases, have been cured by these pills, which, it need hardly be mentioned, owe their efficacy to their power of making new blood, and thus acting directly upon the disordered and nervous system. In all cases of anaemia, decline, indigestion, and all troubles due to bad blood, and all affections of the nerves, as St. Vitus' dance, paralysis and locomotor ataxia, they are commended to the public with all the greater confidence because they have the strong endorsation of this great physician

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Reeve Meng in the chair. All Members present—Councillors Kimmerly, Osborne, Denison, Alexander, Simpson, Stacey and Reeve Symington.

Minutes of last Monday morning and evening sessions were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From W. S. Herrington, Town Solicitor, in reference to municipal rights claimed by James Taylor, from falling on an icy sidewalk near the swing bridge on December 30th. We had a big storm of snow and sleet, the Gazette had been considering the matter for some time.

$500.00, and that a special committee, composed of the Mayor and Com. Alexander, Stacy, Simpson and Kimmerly, be appointed to confer with the Agricultural association and report to this Council; when formed. Carried (if legal.) Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Alexander, that the consideration of a donation to Kingston General Hospital, be left over till after the first meeting of the County Council.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that John Lynn be granted the room over the fire hall, and that the Poor and Sanitary Committee make arrangements to have him made comfortable there. Carried.

Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Osborne that the communication from C. A. Walters be left in the hands of Fire, Water and Light Committee, to confer with the Town Solicitor and report at next meeting.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the Finance Committee be instructed to place $250.00 to the credit of the contingent fund, over and above the overdraft to date. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Denison, seconded by Coun. Stacey, that the Town Property Committee have a donation of $500.00 placed to their credit.

Moved by Coun. Alexander, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that the Printing Committee have an additional appropriation of $150.00 placed in their hands. Carried.

DANGER OF CATARRH.

UNLESS PROPERLY TREATED WITH HYOMEI, BECOMES SERIOUS.

Catarrhal troubles are far more dangerous than they seem at first thought.

If you have catarrh, there is no irritated state of the mucous membrane and no inflammation of the throat, which does not drag and derange the stomach, and thus lead on to indigestion, loss of appetite, sleeplessness and destroying all disease germs that may have entered the body.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by T. B. Wallace is the best evidence of his confidence in the treatment and should dispel all doubt as to its merits. Druggists who agree to refund the purchase price to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit, and you do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues. Ask somebody who uses it and $1.00 if it helps you, not a cent if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

ST. OLA.

The cold weather and abundance of snow have been welcomed by lumbermen—The Municipal elections resulted in the election of P. P. Clarke, Esq., Warden of Hastings County, as Reeve, with Messrs. Campbell, Hazlitt, Langmuir and Baker, as Councillors. Reeve-elect gave an oyster supper at the boarding house on the evening of the election, at which about one hundred people were present. The Clerk of the Municipality declares the above majorities as duly elected after which speeches were made by the same gentlemen. The election of the nomination date for the Reeveship also addressed the gathering.

On Tuesday evening, 14th inst., a quiet but pleasant time took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Martin, St. Ola, the latter daughter, Agnes Edna, was united in marriage to Howard Soldon, youngest son of Mr. Gilbert Soldon, of Greenbush. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. C. Huffman. The young couple left the following morning for Peterboro' where they expect to make their home.—Mrs. Isaac Hagarty, Gunter, is at this point of death, as the result of a stroke of paralysis. Rev. Mr. Huffman has just concluded this week at Gilmour, beginning Tuesday night.—February Quarterly meeting will be held at Bethel.—A meeting is called for Friday night next week for the purpose of organizing an Epworth League.—A number of young people were pleasantly spent at the parsonage on Friday evening, 17th inst.—On Sunday morning last during the regular church service at Pineview, the home of Mr. Jas. Wright, was destroyed by fire, the pipe of the kitchen stove. Fortunately the fire was discovered in time to save the home would have been reduced to ashes.—Mr. T. J. Lapum accompanied by Mrs. Clarke, goes to Bellville on Monday, the former to attend County Council, the latter to visit friends in that city.—Mrs. Clarke will also visit her daughter, Mrs. (Rev.) Bowerman, before returning home.—Mr. Schriver Clarke has returned to Campbellford High School and Mr. Perry Clarke to Queen's University, to continue his studies in medicine.—The District meeting of the Orange order was held in St. Ola on Tuesday of last week.—Messrs. Green and Morey, purchasers of the stock of Mr. Sidney Lorgants, general store, and are now doing business as partners.—Mr. Judson Gunn, Justice of Peace and Mr. Tudor and Mr. George Sprackett, elected as Councillors, gave an oyster supper at the latter's home on Saturday evening, 11th inst. A good representation from Gunter, Pineview and Gilmour were present and a very pleasant evening was spent.

"Aren't you very good natured, Mr. Harcott?" she asked, with an odd intonation.

"I'm imposed on often enough," he replied, rubbing his leg, "by people who think I am. Why?"

"It is only that your sitting so abruptly upon the ground reminded me of something that happened to me only before I left Canaan, the last time I met you."

"I don't think I knew you before you went away. You haven't said if you'll go riding with me tomorrow. Please"—

"Get up," interrupted Mr. Arp, coldly. "Somebody'll fall over you if you stay there." Flitcroft departed abruptly.

Ariel laughed, leaning forward, resting her elbows on her knee and her chin in her hand, so that the shadow of her hat shielded her eyes from the light. "I thought you looked surprised when you saw me today."

"I reckon I did!" he exclaimed. "Who wouldn't of been?"

"Wasn't the whole town the same way?" he demanded. "Did you meet anybody that didn't look surprised?"

"Why should they?"

"Good gracious!" he broke out. "Ain't you got any lookin' glasses?"

"I think almost all I have are still in the customs warehouse."

"Then use Mamie Pike's," responded the old man. "The town never dreamed you were goin' to turn out pretty at all, let alone the way you've turned out pretty. The Tuesta had a good deal about your looks and so forth in it ones in a letter from Paris, but the folks that remembered your kind of set that down to the way papers talk about anybody with money, and nobody was prepared for it when they saw you. You don't need to drop no courtesies to me." He set his mouth grimly in response to the low air he made him. "I think female beauty is like all other human furbelows and as better as fewer will be if only the good people are let in. But yet I did stop to look at you when you went past me today, and I kept on lookin' long as you were in sight. I reckon I always will when I git the chance, too—only show what human nature is. But that wasn't all that folks were starin' at today. It was your walkin' with Joe Lemkin that really finished 'em, and I can say it upset me more than anything I've seen for a good many years."

"Upset you, Mr. Arp?" she cried. "I don't quite see."

The old man shook his head deplorably. "After what I'd written you about that boy"—

"Ah," she said softly, touching his sleeve with her fingers, "I haven't thanked you for that."

"You needn't," he returned sharply. "It was a pleasure. Do you remember how easy and quick I promised you?"

"I remember that you were very kind."

"Kind!" He gave forth an acid and chilling laugh. "It was about two months after London ran away and before you and Roger left Canaan, and you asked me to promise to write to you whenever-word of that outcast came"—

"I didn't say it as Mr. Arp."

"Yes, but you'd ought of! You asked me to write you whatever news of him should come, and if he came back to Canaan to let you know and all about it. And I did it and kept you sharp on his record ever since he landed here again. And whatever why I've done it? Do you know why I promised so quick and easy I would do it?"

"Out of kindness of your heart, I think."

The acid laugh was repeated. "No, ma'am! You couldn't of guessed colder. I promised and I've put my promise because I knew there would never be anything good to tell. And there never was!"

"Nothing at all?" she insisted gravely.

"Never! I leave it to you if I've written one good word of him!"

"You've written of the treatment he has received here," she began, "and I've been able to see what he has borne and bears."

"But I written one word to show that he didn't deserve it all? Haven't I told you everything, of his associates, his"—

"Indeed you have!"

"Then do you wonder that I was more surprised than most when I saw him walking with him and Joe Lemkin? I knew you did it in cold blood and knowledge aforethought! Other folks thought it was because you couldn't get here long enough to hear his reputation, but I knew!"

"Tell me," she said, "if you were disappointed when you saw me with him."

"Yes," he snapped. "I was."

"I thought so. I saw the consternation in your face. You approved, didn't you?"

"I don't know what you're talking about."

"Yes, you do. I know it bothers you to have me read you between the lines, but for this once you must let me. You are so consistent that you are never disappointed when things turn out badly or people are wicked or unfortunate."

"No, certainly not. I expect it."

"And you were disappointed in me today. Therefore, it must be that I was doing something you knew was right and good. You see?" She leaned a little closer to him, speaking energetically. "Ah, Mr. Arp," she cried, "I know your secret! You admire me!"

He rose, confused and incoherent, as full of denial as a detected pickpocket. "I—you—what are you?" What! It's an ornery world," he protested. "I don't admire any human that ever lived!"

"Yes, you do," she persisted. "I've just proved it. But that is the least of your secret. The great thing is this—you admire Mr. Egerton!"

"I never heard such nonsense," he continued to protest, at the same time moving slightly his walk toward the gate, leaning heavily on his stick. "Nothin' of the kind. There ain't any logic to that kind of an argument, nor no reason."

"You see, I understand you!" she called after him. "I'm sorry you go away in the bitterness of feeling you do out."

"Found out!" His stick ceased for a moment to tap the cement. "Pooh!" he ejaculated uneasily. There was a pause, followed by a malevolent chuckle. "At any rate," he said with joy in the afterthought, "you'll never go walkin' with him again."

He waited for the answer, which came, after a time, sadly. "Perhaps you are right. Perhaps I shall not."

"Ha, I thought so! Good night, Mr. Arp."

"Good night, Mr. Arp."

SUFFER NO MORE.—There are thousands who live miserable lives because dyspepsia dulls the faculties and shadows them with the cloud of depression. One way to dispel the vapors that twist the victim of this disease is to furnish them a course of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which are among the best vegetable pills known, being easy to take and are most efficacious in their action. A trial of them will prove this.

CROYDON.

The Orangemen of the place held their annual tea meeting on Thursday evening, Jan. 16th. At five o'clock people began to arrive at the hall, and by seven o'clock was crowded, and at seven it was overflowing. The tea was a very good one. Mr. W. J. Paul, M.P.P., Tamworth, acted as chairman, and always found it an easy task to keep the crowd under perfect control. The local talent rendered and supported with a selection. Mrs. May McGregor, Napanee, should be congratulated on having the choir so well under control. Rev. Mr. Centreville, delivered an address to the audience with a couple of selections, and received rounds of applause. Tamworth choir was present and made the time pass very quickly. Mr. Carmichael some splendid music. Addresses were delivered by Rev. Dixon and Rev. Healy, of Tamworth. Rev. McCready, of Bath, and Rev. Allin, of Enterprise. Mr. Paul was called to describe the hall programme, but will state that everybody seemed to enjoy the evening's entertainment. Refreshments were served at a o'clock in abundance, none left to go satisfied. A slight mistake was made about the proceeds, and was given out as $55.00 but which amounted in all to $61.00

CAMDEN

(For last week.)

Our fight in Camden for the closing of the bars was a hard one, and while some of the temperance people were no different the great majority of them were very jealous, and did all they could to close the bar. The antis also put up hard fight, flooding the township with letters and literature, extracts from the speeches delivered by the Mayor of Owen Sound. But the literature had very little effect upon our people. The strongest influence against local option was the Village of Newburgh, in Camden, and the fact that they were not voting on the question strongly influenced the south western part of the township. However, we are glad that we do not feel much stand in the column of majority against the By-law. We were able to roll up a majority of 29, but failed to secure the undue, unfinish three-fifth majority, and many of our people will not and I trust no temperance man, will support any man, grit or tory, who is not opposed to the three-fifths clause. And it has inspired our people with a determination to never give up until the bars are closed. The results of our campaign are as follows:

For the By-law	336
Against the By-law	457
Majority for By-law	29

I regret that our Township is polled in many of the papers as against local option.

ODESSA.

(For last week.)

The Oddfellows met on Wednesday evening of last week at Bond's Hall, when the general business was transacted, and afterwards had supper at the Dominion. Speeches and toasts were in order and finally, at quite a late hour, dispersed to their several homes. About fifty were present.

The Evangelists have gone, after a two weeks' series of meetings. During the time they visited from house to house over the circuit, therefore a crowded house each evening was the result. Much spiritual good was done, some sixty giving in their names as beginners in the new life. We sincerely hope a permanence all will be found at their posts.

On Sunday the attendance at the different churches was small, owing to the very inclement state of the weather. The Anglican minister did not come.

Roads are in good condition.

On Monday our new Council came to the Town Hall, arrayed in their best, with their most engaging smiles, where they set to work with enthusiasm as to the duties of the new year, and how well they would try to make the year 1908 the best of all others years, so at the end of the year things would be most satisfactory to themselves and the people at large. So mote it be.

On Monday evening the Public Library Board met to ascertain the standing of the resources, and to consult as to the best means of getting and selecting new books for the use of the community.

Tuesday evening the Chosen Friends held an entertainment in the Town Hall, to which a number came from different places, so that the hall was well filled. A number of speakers were present, among the many being Mrs. Spence, of Napanee; Dr. J. Bell, of the same place; Mr. H. Davey, jr., of this place, and others. All were served with sandwiches, cake, pie, etc., with plenty of good coffee.

We are pleased to see Mrs. Sidney Sproule able to be around again, after her long sechission.

Assessment and Insurance men are numerous in the village, which shows the amount of business transacted here.

Our merchants, Bong and Bonnett, and we suppose the others too, are having a rushing business during the month. Quite a reduction is made in prices of goods. This is certainly the progressive way and in the right direction. So come along, people, and give them a call.

Dr. C. Nash was here on the 15th, and will be here again on the 29th January. After that on the first and third Wednesday in the months, unless further here of.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong, of the Northwest, have been spending some time visiting friends in and around Odessa.

Miss Bethushire, of Kingston, has been spending some time with Miss Jones, and other friends.

FEW HERE KNOW THIS

When an eminent authority announced in the Scientific (Pa.) Times that he had found a new way to treat that dread American disease, Rheumatism with pain common, every-day drugs found in any drug store, the physicians were slow indeed to attach much importance to such claims. This was only a few months ago. Today nearly every newspaper in the country, even the metropolitan dailies, commend it and the splendid results achieved. It is so simple that any one can prepare it at home at small cost. It is made up as follows: Get from any good prescription pharmacist Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix these in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. These are all simple ingredients, making an absolutely harmless home remedy at little costs.

Rheumatism, as every one knows, is a symptom of deranged kidneys. It is a condition produced by the failure of the kidneys to properly filter or strain from the blood the uric acid and other matter which, if not eradicated in the form of through the skin pores, remains in the blood, decomposes and forms about the joints and muscles, causing the untold suffering and agonies of rheumatism.

This prescription is said to be a splendid healing, cleansing and invigorating tonic to the kidneys, and acts almost immediate relief in all forms of bladder and urinary troubles and backache. He also warns people in a leading New York paper against the discriminate use of many patent medicines.

BETHEL

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 15th a number of friends and neighbors about 140, assembled at the home of Mr. A. McWilliams, upon learning of her intended departure from our midst. Games and music were indulged in and oysters were served in abundance from eleven to one. Mrs. MacWilliams will be greatly missed from our neighborhood for her sunny disposition and many acts of kindness to everyone in need. Also, her removal will be a decided loss to the church, where she seemed to get the happiest days in working for the Master. Every one wished her many years of future usefulness, and we hope to have many visits from her, and feel sure she will always be greeted with a warm welcome from the people she has spent the last twenty years amongst. After singing "God be with you till we meet again" the crowd dispersed, each one feeling the evening had been well spent.—Mr. A. T. Lowes, B.A. left on Tuesday for his last term at the Theological Seminary, Leamsville. Mr. Lowe expects to be ordained in June.—Miss Ivy Lowes is spending the week in Napanee.—Our school is progressing favorably under the management of Miss Jessie O'Hara.

SLEEPLESS BABIES ARE SICKLY BABIES.

Well babies sleep soundly and wake up bright. Sick little ones are restless, sleepless and cross, it is the surest sign that they are not well. Probably the stomach and bowels is out of order, or it may be teething troubles. Give Baby's Own Tablets and see how quickly the child grows well and happy and sleeps soundly and naturally. Not the unnatural sleep of "soothing" medicines, but the natural sleep of health. You have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no poisonous opiate or narcotic, and you can give the Tablets just as safely to a new born babe as to the well grown child. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

JACOB CLANCY, ALBION, MICH.

Editor of The Beaver:

Dear Sir,—Compliments of the holiday greetings to yourself and many readers of one of the best local papers that comes to our home. But through a little greed or jealousy on the part of Uncle Sam, we, on his plantation, United States, are demanded three cents more than we have ever paid since long ago receiving the first copy of The Beaver. And so your Canadian friends have the advantage of us away off here in the west. But nevertheless we would not do without it, as its weekly visits for three times the extra cost. And it seems to us as the Editor, that in view of the extra cost you have made in the paper in excess in interest far above what you ever been before. And just to think how much writing and postage it save one in the long writing and writing to a host of old loved friends in our old loved country, to keep posted each week with all the matrimonial births and deaths, and the many happenings each week. We are always glad to have an opportunity of hearing from our old home town.

And now, Mr. Editor, I arrived home last week from a visit of about a month's travel of over two thousand miles, the longest journey I have made in the whole of life, and spending over four months, with the land of health all the time, and every day of that time with increasing interest. After leaving Napanee my next stopping place was the fine town of Lindsay, a fine town and one of the finest inland counties in Ontario. In the town I met with many old friends and Addington friends, including the Parrotts, formerly from Marmora, they having a fine home, and all doing well. Also old friend, James Holmes, wife and family, formerly from Bath, but of Newburgh. They also have a fine home and are very highly respected as a family. And another from near Camden East, Mr. Galbraith, and his amiable wife, whom I knew in her young girlhood she being the youngest daughter of the late John Allen, near Newburgh. They also have a fine home and are much respected as good citizens.

The town is considerably noted for its fine schools and different fine churches, also its lumber industry. A town situated in the midst of what has been and is now a great country of extensive lumbering operations. And here I must say that I have been so anxious to meet but had not met her nearly fifty years, an old uncle, ninety-two years of age, by the name of N. Brandt, my mother's brother, the only remaining member of a once large family. The much senior of my father's or mother's families on the land of the living. He is now living a retired life and very highly respected as a good man. He still attends all his mental faculties. I could see no difference in his conversation and memory on as I remembered over sixty years. We talked of long years ago, and he gave me some of his early history, lived for a number of years, in his young boyhood days, after his father, helping to carry on the business of the old homestead, and the writer spent eighteen years ago, in the person of Allen Wilson Parrott, Esq., the then Reeve, over the small village of Napanee, conducting the old mill was now a small store, blacksmith shop carried on by a German named Bender, a hatchworking and honest workman, and a few residences occupied by the workmen. Also a small school house where he first attended school in his boyhood. He then thought of giving me the benefit of many attending school with him such as the McPherson's, Read's, Wells, Shotters, Pringles, Hanes, Huffmans, Carscallens, Grahms, Vanderbeeks, Bartlets, Vanalstines, Mckims, and many others he spoke of the principal work when a young man was training, drawing timber and feed to Kingston. Parson, Belleville and many other places. He told me of many grand preachers of that day, and gave Father Lambert some sermons that heard preached by those faithful pioneer preacher. He spoke of his home back in talking of those days quite a fond remembrance. It did me much good to walk each day with him in the town and take drives each day with each of his sons and daughters. Three of the daughters and two sons are all live in the town with their families and in the one business. Two daughters are married and live out in the country. I had a treat, an example for many who may read this article how to live and how to care for.

It seemed to me that each son and daughter were doing their best to make their old father happy each day to the fullest possible extent.

And now, having his photograph as he is, and also his old age, and those who look at the line intelligent face, and the many remarkable features. And now, I say good bye, possibly forever, in this world now on my train for the west. A day and night of thirty-six hours to the end of the journey, Michigan City, on the south shore of Lake Huron. My youngest son has a fine dairy farm and is engaged in the business of cheese. I took the train here after running west in and year out the largest lumber mills and factories I ever saw. Three brothers, named Land, are said to be each many times wealthy. They have a large mill, operate a railroad, extending over fifty miles to their great lumbering camps. They are all very pleasant, accommodating gentlemen and they gave me son and myself an invitation to spend a week down at the best hotel table. Everything seemed to be a luxury in the dining room, oh, to see them eat. The foreman invited me to go with him to the camps. I declined, he asked us to sing a duett, and for me to address the crowd. I did, and never had a more appreciative audience. They urged us to stay over Sunday and sing and preach for them. I could not. Many thanks, Mr. Editor.

McConnell's.

MOSCOW.

On last Wednesday evening, Jan. 15th, a merry sleighing party of about seventy took Her. and Mrs. Farnsworth by surprise, at the parsonage, Yarker, and spent a very pleasant time. All join in voting Rev. and Mrs. Farnsworth an ideal host and hostess. After refreshments all joined in singing "Auld Lang Syne", and betook themselves home.—A large number from here took in the oyster supper and teamecting held at Bell Rock on Friday evening last, and report a good time, and an abundance of good things to eat.—Mr. Maurice and Miss Adah Asselstine, Hawley, have been visiting friends in this locality for some days.—Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Nugent, Newburgh, were over-Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Asselstine.—Mr. and Mrs. James Rose, Belleville, Mass., spent Saturday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. VanLeven.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lampkin are spending a week visiting friends at Morven and Napanee.—Mr. W. and Miss Flo. Asselstine spent Tuesday in Kingston.—Much sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Willet Craig, in the loss of a bright little son on last Wednesday. The funeral service on Friday to the Friends' meeting house, and was largely attended.

A COUGHING PLANT.

(From 'Journal de la Sante.')

Cattarrous colds are known which will consume even mice in laughing scents and plants that weep are also known; but no one has ever heard of a plant that suffered from whooping cough. Yet there exists, however, a plant which prospers in tropical countries and the fruit of which, fresh from the tree, cures broad bean. It is quick a crank, easily a rage, and what is more peculiar, has a horror of dust. As soon as a few grains of dust are thrown on its leaves the stomata, or air chambers which breathe, are stopped and then are the respiratory organs of the plant, become filled with a swell and end by driving out the gas with a sound which resembles so much the cough of a child suffering from a cold as to be mistakes for it. It serves as an ornamental plant. One can imagine the concert that would be brushed if two or three of these strange plants in a drawing-room in which the coming and going of visitors has raised a cloud of face powder.

HAND AND ARM ENDANGERED.

ZAM-BUK ARRESTS BLOOD POISON.

Neglect a cut or a scratch and it may turn to blood poisoning. Mr. Joseph Lalibertie of 34 Artillerie Street, Quebec, might have lost his hand and arm but for the timely use of Zam-Buk. He says: "I cut one of my fingers on a rusty piece of tin and had no idea it would become so serious, but in two days blood poison set in and my fingers became terribly discolored, and my hand and arm swollen. I was alarmed and began using one ointment after another but none relieved me. I was about to consult a doctor when a friend advised me to try Zam-Buk. This I did. Zam-Buk began by drawing out the inflammation and in one week the wound was nearly healed. Since then I have had no healing balm in the house but Zam-Buk. I feel so grateful for its speedy cure that I unhesitantly give my testimonial to the merits of Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk cures Cuts, Burns, Chapped Hands, Chafings, Solid Sores, Itch, Chilblains, Eczema, Running Sores, Sore Throat, Bad Chest, Ringworm, Piles (blind or bleeding), Bad Legs, Isolated Pains, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Abscesses, and all forms of injured and irritated conditions of the skin. Of all druggists and stores, 50c. or post paid upon receipt of price, from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. 50c. a box, 6 boxes $2.50.

John C. McLeod was sentenced at Sault Ste. Marie to two years in penitentiary for writing the "Black Hand" letters.

Napanee People With Weak Lungs Need Vinol.

Many people almost weak lungs which are likely to be attacked by consumption. So often are lungs weakened by disease of the throat and bronchial tubes.

No matter what the cause Vinol strengthens weak lungs and gives one the power to throw off wasting diseases.

The reason that Vinol has such power to heal and strengthen is because it contains in a highly concentrated form, and the potent, medicinal, and strength-creating elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers on the seashore, the nauseating oil eliminated and tonic iron added.

No one are we of what Vinol will do that we are every person in this town suffering from weak lungs, stubborn hacking coughs, or who wasting disease to try Vinol on our offer to return money if it fails. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

Special Announcement
RE CREDIT SYSTEM

Having long felt that the present system of allowing goods on approbation and selling on credit was expensive to both ourselves and customers, and too far out-of-date for this progressive 20th century, we have decided to adopt the STRICTLY CASH SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER FEB. 1st, 1908, NO GOODS WILL BE ALLOWED ON APPROBATION UNLESS ONE PAIR IS PAID FOR.

In case goods do not suit we will cheerfully refund purchase money. Among our regular credit customers were many who paid promptly whenever the account was rendered, and with whom it was a pleasure to do business. But these will readily understand that to make the Cash System a success, all must be treated alike, and no one family or person can be excepted from this rule.

BOYLE AND SON

Our fact is established beyond shadow of doubt
That no other merchant such goods can send out
About town as J. F. Smith & Son, "
Who all other merchants have completely outdone
In town and the country about.

Their teas are the best they are fit for a King,
Their sugars the best that money can bring
For the purest of coffees and raisins and rice
Espouse bottled extract and all kinds of spice,
And their butter is pronounced "just the thing."

Prizes have been awarded as follows for the best rhymes about the quality of groceries and meats which are kept in the store of J. F. Smith & Son—Mr. J. F. Tilley first prize and Miss Nettie Hinch second prize.

APPRECIATION.

Campbell House, Napanee,
January 6th, 1908.

Mr M S Madole, Town,

Dear Sir:—Replying to your recent request for an expression of my opinion as to the merits of the steam heating plant installed by you, I have much pleasure in giving an unqualified endorsement of its efficiency, after a month's trial, proving conclusively that the work done is of a permanent and thorough character.

In this connection let me offer a tribute of praise to your mechanical superintendent, Mr. Jamieson, whose direction of the installation, stamps him as expert and a gentleman.

Yours very truly,
fa H. TAYLOR.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Napanee Horticultural Society was held in the Historical Rooms on Tuesday evening last. The officers of the preceding year were re-elected.

The meeting approved the action of the directors in offering to supply vines and decorative shrubs for any of the churches in town, adding the single condition to the church authorities undertake to take proper care of them.

The Harney Warner Park, which has been under the special care of the Society will receive some additional attention during the coming year.

The spring distribution of seeds will be a generous one and will include the school children as well as the members.

Prizes will again be awarded to the children producing the most satisfactory results.

The event of the evening was an address prepared by Mrs. F. H. Wilkison, the first president of the Society, and forwarded to the President from Switzerland. The descriptive powers of the writer found ample scope for exercise in portraying her experiences during the last thirty months in England and upon the continent, with special reference to parks, horticultural gardens and rural districts she had visited. The address was intensely interesting and was greatly appreciated by the members. The address was followed by a Question Drawer, which proved attractive and instructive.

As the membership list for 1908 is now being made up those desiring to join should hand in their subscriptions at once, as the list will be closed when the orders for seeds are sent away.

CHRISTINA STEWART.

Relict of the late George Paul, and ex Warden and Reeve of the Township of Camden, died at Wingham, Ont., 28th inst., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. H. Gillespie, aged 74 years. Deceased was the eldest daughter of the late Neil Stewart, of Sheffield, and had resided with her daughter for some years past. The remains were brought to Napanee on Tuesday, and conveyed to Camden East, where they were placed beside those of her deceased husband. Mrs. Paul was an aunt of Mr. W. J. Paul, M.P.P. for Addington, and sister of Messrs. John Stewart, Harrowsmith, Neil Stewart, Ottawa, George Stewart, Strathroy, and Peter Stewart, Park Hill. She also leaves three sons and two daughters, to mourn the loss of an indulgent Christian mother.

A THOUGHTFUL SUGGESTION.

There are fully three-quarters of our people whose health is impaired from either chronic constipation, stomach trouble or fallibleness. As a result numberless remedies have been floated into our midst purporting to effect most remarkable cures. After much careful study and scientific research a compound has been named known as "Hyperdon," which is considered to be by far the best thing obtainable for treating these conditions. It is used with rhubarb and mandrake as directed on the wrapper on which it is sold, and can be easily obtained at any first class drug store for 25 cents. One bottle will convince the most doubtful as to its value.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Editor.—In the discussion about retired farmers, we are moved to say something, if it is agreeable to you.

It is an profitable having a joke at the farmers' expense, as at the plumbers' expense or the governman's profit. We have heard about the boy that said to the grocer:—"Ma wants ten cents worth of brown sugar. She wants to plant some seeds and has not any sand."

We were told, though we think it hyperbolic, that a retired farmer had stopped his paper on account of "the blasted letter, but now borrows it to see how bad it feels. When the joke is on The Beaver, we hope it joins in the laugh.

Cases of either generosity or closeness is an desirable, but the man, who as prudent and successful as a doctor that he can quit the farm and live in town, or indulge in elaborate farming if he has been a town man, may be considered swan by some people, particularly the unsuccessful ones. We have usually found such people to be good poor, and prompt in business matters.

Just consider short's the life of a town groceryman; at 6:30 store from seven o'clock in the morning till seven in the evening, with scarcely a day off. He visits a country friend on Saturday, sees the grain growing, the hens laying, the porkers making pork, the bees hoarding sweet stores, and the cows coming up with udder stores. Is there any wonder he longs for a farm? If he is prudent he sticks to his groceries and if contish until he can afford to have a farm as an agreeable diversion.

Then consider the farmer, for years milking at 5 o'clock a.m., walking in mud, working in the broiling sun, cleaning stables, walking on pegs, crawling through wet grass and grain to drive out cattle and demand the fence in a rain storm; is there any wonder he should long to wear good clothes and clean boots every day, have sidewalks, electric light, to be near churches, public library, concerts, and the College of Indigent for his grandchildren?

Then, if from choice or necessity, he is what rome consider "close", the town is glad to have him. He pays his taxes and frequently makes a valuable municipal officer. He finds too much time on his hands and is glad to collect the taxes or do some other public service, for a small remuneration.

There are many people of different vocations, or no particular business, who from a variety of reasons will never be in a position to wholly or partly retire from business, but are very ready to criticise the man, who by thrift and careful business in early life attains a competency. In fact the ones that are most concerned about others, probably have made more or less complete failures by not attending to their own business thoroughly.

We would not be uncharitable, and say that the unsuccessful always are so because they deserve to be so. We can all think of cases to show quite contrary. But the farmer, who gets tires and lives in town is not only a successful man, and must bear the usual curses of all such environs. We may wonder that he leaves the delights of the country, but rarely has a right to please himself.

In conclusion we would express regret that anyone would want to "take it out of The Beaver" to get even. It is interesting to know the different opinions on a subject, and if there happens to be "swirling on facts" that some one feels, it is better to believe it was intended for some one else. Surely the retired farmer has had very nice things written about him; things he might not have heard of if there had not been something to call it forth.

HOCKEY MATCH.

A very interesting and exciting game of hockey was played Tuesday night between a representation of the Bank clerks and of Madole's hardware staff. Following is the line up:

Bank Clerks.		Madole.
Goal		Goal
E. Anderson...		H. Belcher
Point.		Point.
E. L. Kenny...		Fred. Blair
Cover Point.		Cover Point.
F. Chenoweth...		Wm. Coates
Forwards.		Forwards.
J. C. Carroll.'		J. A. Fellows
W. B. Anderson,		Henry Hinch
Jas. F. Belle...		Clinton Haines
J. G. Loyst...		Ed. Wagar
Umpire		Umpire
"Bunc" Simpson...		A. E. Wehodall
Referee—Jos. McNeil.

Score in favor of Bankers, 3-2.

From the first it was evident to the spectators that the teams were well matched, fortunately for Madole's representation the goal tender had shaken off for the first time, while the bankers had that capacity as a team to shine and verteran player. Spare will not permit mention being made of each player. "Perky" Blair proved himself equal of strength in his position at point, ably assisted by Will. Coates. Fellows made himself conspicuous by his lightning rushes up the ice and scored both goals. "Dude" Hearne, although small, made a good centre man, showing that quality if not quantity counts. Ed. Robinson was put down and out in first half by landing hard on the fence.

The bankers' combination work was fair, and they had the other team outclassed in skating. They still require considerable practice to become expert handlers of the puckle. Carroll and Anderson were fast men. Chenoweth apparently was the "big man" but is slow with the stick. The return game will be played next week.

BARRETT.

Moved by Mr. Symington, seconded by Mr. Paul, that this Council adjourn for fifteen minutes, to consider the selection of a Warden. Carried.

Council adjourned.

Council resumed.

Moved by Mr. Edgar, seconded by Mr. Creighton, that Mr. Chas. W. Hambly be Warden for the year 1908. Carried unanimously by a standing vote.

Ex-Warden L. L. Gallagher, escorted Mr. Hambly to the chair, and His Honor Judge Madden administered the oath.

The Warden thanked the members of the Council for the honor they had conferred on him. He was proud of the honor, and hoped they would all work together agreeably and harmoniously.

Moved by Mr. Creighton, seconded by Mr. Hamm, that the Council go into the Committee of the Whole to strike the Standing Committees for the year. Lost.

Moved by Mr. Paul, seconded by Mr. Kimmerly, that Council adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. Carried.

Ex-Warden Gallagher addressed the Council on matters respecting Petworth bridge, which had collapsed during the interim. Mr. Edgar said he had the bridge repaired, and they had also, subject to ratification of this Council, settled with Mr. Carr for damages to his son and threshing outfit. The County of Frontenac will pay one half.

WEDNESDAY—SECOND DAY

Council met as per adjournment. Members all present. Warden presiding.

Minutes of yesterday's sessions were read and approved.

Moved by Mr. Edgar, seconded by Mr. Hamm, that Council go into Committee of the Whole to strike the Standing Committees. Carried.

Moved in amendment by Mr. Symington, seconded by Mr. Paul, that a committee of five be appointed to strike the Standing Committees. Lost.

In Committee of the Whole the following were appointed members of the various committees, and at later stage the chairmen and Secretaries were appointed.

Finance—Thos. Symington, Chairman, R. Ryan, Secretary; R. W. Paul, J. F. Dawson, C. W. Hambly.

County Property—C. Edgar, Chairman, S. Gilmour, Secretary; R. H. Burleigh, R. W. Kimmerly, G. A. Wartman.

Education and Printing—J. F. Dawson, Chairman; Thos. Symington, Secretary; R. H. Burleigh, R. W. Paul.

Ex-Warden Gallagher presented a report of what was done in settlement of the Petworth bridge accident. Mr. Edgar and he had settled with Mr. Carr for $1,000. Frontenac to pay a similar amount. The bridge had been repaired, and was now safer than it was when built, and when the traction engine went through it. The repairs to the bridge cost $120.00, of which this County will pay $half—$115.00

Council adjourned till 1.30 p.m.

(Balance of report next week.)

ODESSA.

A fine entertainment was given in Wilson's one night last week, by the Presbyterians. A few from this place attended, and were highly pleased with the programme. The Odessa orchestra gave a few selections.

Mr. Hodge, of Wilton, purposes giving a concert on Saturday night, in the town hall here. He promises great things.—"The Babes in the Woods," will be one feature of the entertainment. So come along, laugh and grow fat.

Rev. McCamus conducted services at Newburgh on M. church, while Rev. Shaver filled the appointments here. Rev. McTear, Bath, conducted the service in the Anglican church.

Mr. A. P. Donaldson, Mr. S. J. Sprouts, with some others, attended the lodge of instruction held in Gananoque Thursday afternoon and evening, under the direction of District Deputy Grand Master, W. S. Johnston. No doubt they thoroughly enjoyed the instruction and entertainment given.

Invitations are out for a leap year party in the town hall on Friday night. Mr. Clement, who has lately moved to Mr. N. Bond's place, gave a large party on a large number of young people. A pleasant time was spent.

Mrs. S. J. Sprouts has returned home, after spending a couple of weeks with friends and relatives at Kingston.

Rev. McCamus is holding a series of meetings at Fellows. A load of some twenty attended the services, and report a good meeting.

Miss Pearl Sills, of Sydenham, is spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. Will. Clark.

The weather was not favorable for the Y. P. A. supper, yet Bath people attended them.

Mr. and Mrs. Jark Graham spent an evening with Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCormack.

ENTERPRISE.

Mr and Mrs. Guy Fenwick moved in their new home last week. Their many friends thereabouts wish a good opportunity to give them a kitchen shower. The following list of kitchen-ware is sure to prove the high esteem in which the young couple are held:

RUTUS ALBERTUS SHOREY.

Son of James and Elizabeth Shorey, was born in Ernestown, on Sept. 6th, 1842, and was translated to his eternal home on January 19th, 1908, after years of affliction, which he bore with great patience. He was a faithful member of the Methodist church, at Bethel, a member of the Trustee Board, and Secretary Treasurer of the Enville Committee until declining health caused him to resign. He was educated in the Public Schools and Commercial College. He was for many years a merchant and tax collector in Napanee; a man of broad in business and enjoyed the confidence of all who knew him. He was twice married. His first marriage was to Annie Scott, daughter of Wm. Scott, and his second marriage was to Eleanor Aylesworth, who preceded him six years. He is survived by two brothers, Egerton R. Shaubner, of Toronto, and John W. Shorey of Bellerville, and one sister, Mrs. M. N. Hawley, who, with her husband, ministered to him with untiring devotion to the end. His end was peace.—Com.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Oakland, Cal., Enquirer, Jany. 15th. One of the very happy events of the passing week was the golden wedding anniversary of Judge and Mrs. W. S. Williams, to celebrate which, Thursday evening at the Judge and Mrs. Williams' home at 1414 Harrison street, was attended nearly a hundred of their friends at their home on Orchard street. Judge and Mrs. Williams have lived for more than a score of years in Oakland and have made many useful friendships, and sincere were the congratulations offered them by the score of neighbors and friends who were their guests, Thursday evening. The rooms were prettily decorated with golden daffodils and quantities of smilax and huckleberry, and Judge and Mrs. Williams were posted to welcoming their guests by their four children, Mrs. Robert Mills, Mrs. W. H. George, Mrs. Rupert Whitehead, Mrs. Herbert C. Parks, the hostess' sister, Mrs. A. B. Huffman, of Belleville, Canada, and a grand-daughter, Miss Caro Mills. The presents on the occasion included Mayor E. K. Taylor of Alameda, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Kinsey, Attorney J. A. Johnson and wife, Rev. George White, D. AN UP-TO-DATE HOTEL.

The Campbell House, under the proprietorship and management of Mr. H. J. Taylor, has undergone extensive modern improvements during the past six months, which add greatly to the convenience and comfort of its patrons, as well as to the appearance of this well known hostelry. The main and most important adjunct is an up-to-date steam heating plant, made by the Gurney Foundry Co., Toronto, which is complete in every detail, and makes the atmosphere throughout the house on a cold winter's day as warm as the tropics. The system comprises three sixty radiators, which are distributed most lavishly, embracing the Sample Rooms in addition to the rest. The contract was handled by Mr. M. S. Mahode, the work being under the supervision of his efficient and practical foreman, Mr. Wm. Jamieson, and is certainly a credit to all concerned. Every room in the hotel has been papered and painted, the halls frescoed and decorated, the floors laid with Wilton and Brussels carpets and parquetry linoleum. The walls of the rotunda have been decorated in old English panelling effect, and the cafe grained to match. To this attractive room has been added a commodious fireplace and grate. A decided acquisition to the office are exceptionally comfortable leather upholstered chairs finished in the early English style. The whole decorative scheme produces a luxury most artistic, pleasing and restful. Original design ornament combination electric and gas wall and pendant fixtures have been placed in the office and bar. An intercommunicating system of telephones has been installed, which connects the office with all of the bedrooms, also the kitchen and working departments. The writing room, a well furnished and quiet apartment, has artistic electric lamps with a protecting green shade over the desk. The pool room has a new equipment and is tastefully decorated. The lighting by Humphrey arc gas lamps is a special feature. In short, every department of this big caravansary has been renewed and equipped, making it second to none between Toronto and Montreal. The courteous proprietor, Mr. Taylor, is to be commended for the progressive spirit shown in the expenditure of over $5,000.00 in these new appointments, and the latest and most approved creature comforts for the traveller and farmer alike, the inevitable result being an increased patronage.

"ANNIE LAURIE."

William Douglas whose love ballad, "Annie Laurie," has become one of the famous lyrics of the world, woo and won Miss Annie Laurie, of Maxwelton. The real Annie Laurie gave "her promise true" to Douglas, but wedded another, a wealthier suitor, Fergusson, of Craigdarroch. Douglas who was ready to "lay me down and die," went to the wars and, when he came back married also and left a goodly crop of heirs. The tender romance that has won the hearts of people the world over was set in the words many years after by Lady John Scott. Annie Laurie was born Dec. 1615, 1682, at the home of her father, Robert Laurie, at Maxwelton, Scotland, an old-fashioned stone mansion fortress that had once been the castle of the earls of Glencairn.

TOWNS—ALLEN.

A pretty but quiet wedding took place at the home of Mr. Geo. Towns, Kingston, on Wednesday afternoon, January 15th, when his daughter, Minnie, was married to Mr. Harry Allen, of Thornhill. The Rev. C. Tester performed the ceremony. The bride was charmingly gowned in grey English broadcloth, made in jaquet style, trimmed with white silk cordings and applique. She was attended by her sister, Miss Jessie Towns, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Courtney, a friend of the groom was attended by his brother, George Allen, of Winnipeg. After the service a reception was held, at which about forty guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Allen left on Thursday morning's train for Winnipeg, and on their return will reside in Thornhill. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and costly presents, which testified to the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

A SPLENDIDS HOWING

MADE AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE LENNOX AND ADDINGTON MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The annual meeting of the Lennox and Addington Mutual Fire Insurance Company was held in the Council Chamber, on Saturday afternoon last. A large number of policyholders were present, and apparently were well pleased with the insurance afforded by our home company and also with the management thereof, as not a dissenting voice was heard. The year has been one of loss and total assets have increased materially since a year ago, and taken altogether the Lennox and Addington Mutual occupies an enviable position in these Counties.

Mr. J. J. B. Aylesworth, president, occupied the chair.

Mr. M. C. Rogart, Secretary, read the minutes of the last annual meeting, and on motion they were approved.

Mr. C. W. Neville, Auditor, presented the report of receipts and disbursements, assets and liabilities, etc., as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Cash at Head Office, Dec. 31st, 1906, as per audit	$ 1151 32
First instalment fixed payments of 1907	1567 78
Second and third instalments fixed payments	2887 42
For fixed payments levied in prior years	215 55
From Agents	210 50
From Interest	34 01
	$ 6016 77

DISBURSEMENTS

By losses, 1907	$ 2048 85
Agents' fees	776 61
Secretary Treasurer	400 00
Directors' fees	206 00
Auditors	20 00
Adjusting claims	74 75
License fees	17 36
Printing and advertising	41 00
Refund on policies	84 13
Reinsurance and taxes	115 04
Stationery and postage and calendars	142 38
Office account, rent, etc	41 56
	$ 47231 97

ASSETS.

Cash on balance	$ 3116 14
Amount unpaid of fixed payments, 1907	655 92
Amount unpaid of fixed payments, prior years	6
Amount unpaid agents, balances	42 70
Amount unpaid agents, balances Office furniture and safe	541 55
Amount of Premium Notes in force, after deducting all payments thereon and assessments levied	50 60
	47231 97
	$50,690 38

LIABILITIES.

None.

On motion the report was received and adopted.

Mr. M. C. Rogart, Secretary, was called on to read the by-laws. The increase in insurance amounts to nearly $1,000,000 as compared with the previous year. The cash on hand, 1st January, amounted to $2,116.14, together with $655.92 unpaid assessments, 1907, makes the cash assets $3,406.11, thus fully adding to the security of the policy-holders. All the surplus of assets over liabilities compares favorably with other companies doing farm business in these Counties. The cheapness of management adds greatly to the popularity of the Company. On the 31st day of December, 1907, there were 1,145 policies in force, insuring $1,712,410. The amount of notes on premium notes on hand is $47,231.97, which includes unpaid payments, etc., amounting to $3,458.41 makes the available assets $50,690.38. Mr. Rogart also dealt with the matter of reinsurance agreements. Some policyholders were owning insurances in the Company, on the running great risk in so doing, as the policy where an unpaid assessment exists is certainly void, and the insurance uncollectable.

The President, Mr. J. B. Aylesworth, spoke a few words for "the good of the order." Among other things he said that he had not missed an annual meeting since the organization, over thirty years ago, and had only missed one Directors' meeting.

On motion the retiring directors, Messrs. H. A. Baker and E. W. Longmore, were re-elected.

Messrs. W. D. Lott and C. W. Neville were elected Auditors for the year 1908.

Mr. Saul Parrish was killed at a crossing near Gladys and Bay Roberts, Nfld., their carriage being struck by a train.

Miss Gladys Vanderbilt was married at New York Monday to Count Laszlo Szecsen, a Hungarian nobleman.

Clifford Fisher, an Indian, aged sixteen, set fire to the barn of the Mount Elgin Industrial Institute, and a lot of stock, in the hope of escaping during the confusion.

Miss Lovina Amatti of London, Ont., committed suicide after a quarrel with her lover.

The Canada Tin Plate & Sheet Steel Company's new factory at Morrisburg was badly damaged by fire.

WALTER D. FILE.

The Miller School, New York.

Pitman's Journal, January, 1908.

Some twelve or thirteen years ago the Board of Education of the city of New York did what it had been threatening to do for some years, namely, unified the instruction in shorthand and gave to that subject the dignity and recognition which it deserved. I say "dignity" advisedly, for the instruction in shorthand before that time was left in the most haphazard sort, almost every system under the sun being taught dependent upon the teacher who were available. No real effort had ever been made to systematize the teaching of this very important subject.

The Board of Education did something more. Shorthand had been taught only in the high schools and in the night schools. The Board selected the Isaac Pitman system for instruction in shorthand and declared that new stenography was to be made an elective study in French and German in the last six months of the grammar schools as well, with the result that nearly every thirteen and fourteen year old child just finishing the grammar school elected shorthand, and graduated with a smattering knowledge of the Isaac Pitman system, who upon entering other schools wanted naturally to continue the same system.

The patronage of business schools comes very largely from the graduates of the public schools, and it instantly became a very important matter that the private schools should be in a position to continue the teaching thus begun in the grammar schools, high schools and night schools, and the Miller School was one of the first of the larger institutions to get into line.

It was through this train of circumstances that the subject of this sketch, Mr. Walter D. File, became a member of the faculty of the Miller School of Business. Establishing the Isaac Pitman department in the middle of the year as we did, I have since come to feel that we were fortunate in securing such an able exponent of that system, but more particularly such an able writer. I have not been many to enrol him. Some physician possess rare faculty in diagnosing disease. Mr. File has rare faculty in individualizing his students. He can gauge the temperament and capacity of the student with great accuracy, and his style of teaching is quiet, persuasive, yet forceful. His ideas are uncompromising; and not only does he expect but he usually gets the best effort that the student can exert.

Isaac Pitman shorthand is pure and parcel of the man. He began writing with it at the age of fourteen years, and has used it ever since. When he decided to teach it with his usual clearness of perception, he qualified first by taking a Canadian teacher's course in shorthand, was a Canadian farmer's boy—and can be numbered among the many successful Canadian teachers that we are getting.

He has no patience with those "systems" of shorthand who themselves are not able to do the work in a practical way that they undertake to teach to others, and as evidence of that I will say as a stenographer in the city and town and then spent two years in the accounting department of a large mercantile firm and a year as a bookkeeper with a Canadian firm (for you must know that he is also a graduate of the bookkeeping department of the Ontario Business College at Belleville, Canada) his teaching experience has been with the Schreiber School at Northtown, the Y. M. C. A. man College at Newark, N.J. and nine years with the Miller School New York. I am pleased to write you this about a man who has served me well and whom I recommend as a successful teacher.—Chas. M. Miller

RECIPE MIXED OFTEN

Some remarkable stories are being told about Peruna and among the many people coming in of the worst form-made mixture curing Rheumatism and Kidney trouble. Here is the recipe and directions for taking: Mix by shaking well in a bottle one ounce Fluid Extract Buchhoo, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla Take as a done one teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime.

This change need be made in your usual diet, but drink plenty of good water.

This mixture, writes one authority on leading Philadelphia newspaper, has a peculiar tonic effect upon the kidneys, cleansing the clogged-up pores of the delicate tissues, forcing the kidneys to filter out and strain from the blood the uric acid and other poisonous waste matter causing Rheumatism, Bladder and Urinary troubles in a short while.

A New York druggist who has had hundreds of calls for these ingredients since the first announcement in the newspapers last October, stated that the people who once try it "swear by it," especially those who have Urinary and Kidney trouble and suffer with Rheumatism.

The druggists in this neighborhood say they can supply the ingredients which are easily mixed at home. There is said to be no better blood-cleansing agent or system tonic known, and seemingly none more harmless or sure to use.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, British Premier, will probably retire shortly on account of ill-health.

Jack Leedom, who was believed to have been lost with his yacht on the Pacific, has returned to San Francisco.

The C. P. R. has decided to revise its pension rules to make the minimum retiring allowance twenty dollars a month.

Nursing baby?

It's a heavy strain on mother.

Her system is called upon to supply nourishment for two.

Some form of nourishment that will be easily taken up by mother's system is needed.

Scott's Emulsion contains the greatest possible amount of nourishment in easily digested form.

Mother and baby are wonderfully helped by its use.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

She turned toward the lighted house. Through the windows nearest her she could see Mamie, seated in the familiar chair, following with happy and tender eyes the figure of Eugene, who was pacing up and down the room. The town was deadly quiet; Ariel could hear the sound of footsteps perhaps a block away. She went to the gate and grazed a long time into the empty street, watching the yellow grains of light slowly through the maples from the arc lights on the corner moving to and fro in the deep shadow as the lamp-swung slightly in the night air. Somewhere not far away the peace was broken by the screams of a "parlor organ," which howled and wailed in pious agonies (the intention was hymnal), interminably protracting each spasm. Presently a woman's voice outdid the organ, a voice which made vivid the picture of the woman who owned it and the plowed forehead of her whose the tuneless glasses when the "grace notes" were proudly given birth. "Rescue the Perishing" was the startlingly appropriate selection, rendered with inconceivable lingering upon each syllable—"Roos-cyoo the Poor-ssoh-oosh-er." At unexpected intervals two male voices, evidently belonging to men who had contracted the habit of attending to their mouths, joined the lady in a thorough search for the lost chord.

That was the last of silence in Canaan for an hour or so. The organ was merely inaugural. Across the street a piano sounded. Firm, emphatic, determined vocal competition with the instrument here also; "Rock of Ages" the incentive. Another piano presently followed suit in a neighboring house—"Precious Jewels." More distant, a second organ was heard. Other pianos, other organs, took up other themes, and, as a wakeful puppy's barking will go over a village at night, starting from the nearer dogs to give voice, these in turn stimulating those farther away to join, one passing the excitement on to another, until bounds is farthest and beyond the town contribute to the long distance conversation—even so did "Rescue the Perishing" enliven the greater part of Canaan.

It was this that made Ariel realize a thing of which hitherto she had not been able to convince herself—that she was actually once more in the town where she had spent her long ago girlhood, now grown to seem the girlhood of some other person. It was true her foot was on her native earth and the name was Ariel Tabor—the very name of the girl who had shared the town's disapproval with the Loudens! "Rescue the Perishing" brought it all back to her, and she listened to these sharply familiar rites of the Cannards' Sally, both evening with a shiver of pain.

She turned from the gate to go into the house, heard Eugene's voice at the door and paused. He was saying good night to Mamie.

"And please say 'au revoir' to Miss Tabor for me," he added, peering out under his hand. "I don't know where she can have gone."

"Probably she came in and went to her room," said Mamie.

"Don't forget to tell her 'au revoir.'"

"I won't, dear. Good night!"

"Good night!" She lifted her face, and he kissed her perfunctorily. Then he came down the steps and went slowly toward the gate, looking about him into the darkness as if searching for something. But Ariel and fled away from the path of light that led from the open door.

She skimmed noiselessly across the lawn and paused at the side of the house, leaning against it in the veranda, where, on a night long past, a boy had sat and a girl had wept, a small creaking sound fell upon her ear, and she made out an ungainly figure approaching, wheeling something of curious shape.

"Is that you, Sam?" she said.

Mr. Worthy stopped close by. "Yes'm," he replied. "I'm a-gittin' out de hose to lay de dus' yonnah." He stretched open the crossbar of the reel, relazing himself apparently for conversation. "Y'all done change considerable, Miss Ariel," he continued, with the directness of one sure of privilege.

"You think so, Sam?"

"Yes'm. Ev'body think so, I reckon. Be'n a tai-ble lot o' talkum 'bout you today. Dumno how all dem oth' young ladies gon' take it." He laughed with immoderate delight, yet as to the volume of mere sound discreetly, with an eye to open windows. "You got purty all beat, Miss Airil! Dey ain' be'n no one roun' dis town evah got in a thousan' mile o' you! For back as de way you walk an' ca'y yo'self an' as fer de cle'es—name o' de good lan', looney ain' evah see de like be'o'! My ole woman say you got mo' fixin's in a minute dan de whole res' of 'em got in a month. She say when she helpin' you onpack she must 'a' see mo'n a bunerd paths o' allppaha alone! An' de good man James I mentioh when he'n got runnin' roun' de beds yoh an' up de alley rompin' 'ith Joe Louden same you's a boy!"

"Do you ever see Mr. Louden nowdays?" she asked.

His laugh was repeated with the same discreet violence. "Ain' I seen him dis ve'y day fur up de street at de gate yonnah, stan'in' 'ith you w'en I drivin' de judge?"

"You didn't happen to see him anywhere this—this afternoon."

"No'm, I ain' see him." Sam's laughter vanished, and his lowered voice became serious. "I ain' see him, but I hearn about him."

"What did you hear?"

"Dey be'n consid'rable stir on de aidge o' town, I reckon," he answered gravely, 'an' dey be'n havin' some trouble out at de Beach"—

"Beaver Beach, do you mean?"

"Yes'm. Dey be'n some shootin' go in' on out dat way."

Evidently "Alix" suffers happen to him. Nigh as I kin mek out from de talk, dat Happy Fear gone on de rampage ag'in, an' dey hatta sent fer Mist' Louden to come to a hearin'—"

CHAPTER XIV.

AS upon a world canopied with storm, hung with mourning purple and habited in black, did Mr. Fitzherbert turn his morning face at 8 o'clock antemeridian Monday as he bled himself to his daily duty at the Washington National bank. Yet more than the merely funereal gloomed out from the hillocky area of his countenance. Was there not, i' faith, a glow, a Vesuvian shimmer, beneath the murk of that darkling eye? Was there one, think you, to turn the other cheek? Little has he learned of Norbert Fitzroth who conceives that this fiery spirit was easily to be quenched! Look upon the jowl of him and let him who dares maintain that people—even the very Fikes themselves—were to grind beneath their brougham wheels a prostrate Norbert and ride on scatheless! In this his own metaphor is nearly touched: "I guess not, fer'ney don't run over me. Martin Pike better look out how he tries it!"

So Mother Nature at her kindly tasks, good Norbert, uses for her unguent our own perfect inconsistency, and often when we are stubbed deep in the breast she distracts us by thin scratches in other parts, that in the hitch of these we may forget the greater hurt till it be better. Thus, the remembrance of last night, when you indignisedly ran from the wrath of a Pike, with a pretty girl looking on (to say nothing of the acrid Arp, who will fling the legend in a thousand winds), might well agonize you now, as, in less hasty moments and at a safe distance, you brood upon the pitteous figure you cut. On the contrary, behold! You see no blood crimson-flowing, no horrid gash in your panoply of self esteem; you but smart and scratch the scratches, forgetting your wound in the hot itch for vengeance. It is an itch which will

CANADA'S AREA.

Canada contains one-third of area of British Empire—3,729,665 square miles, measured to Alaska boundary award.

Fifty per cent. of this area is not yet surveyed into provinces.

Canada extends over forty-eight degrees of latitude—equal from Rome to the North Pole.

Only one-fourth of Canada's area is occupied; one-eighth is under cultivation. Canada's proportion of population is 1.5 to square mile. Australia, 1; United States, 21; England, 558; British Empire (outside of India), 4.

Canada has nearly a million square miles of fresh water—the largest area of the far north.

Eighty per cent. of Canada's area lies north of Lake Superior; twenty per cent south.

Only three and one-half per cent. of Canada's area is water.

Canada is bounded by three oceans; its 13,000 miles of sea coast equals half the circumference of the earth.

Canada is 3,500 miles by 1,400 miles in area.

Canada has enough land to give each family about 100 acres.

Canada is larger in area than the United States, including Alaska; has 3,729,665 square miles (with population of one-twelfth).

Canada is as large as thirty United Kingdoms and eighteen Germany's.

Canada contains one-third of British India; and almost as large as Europe.

Canada is larger than Australia by one-third.

Canada is eighteen times as large as France, twenty of Spain, thirty-three of Italy.

Britain's other-seas empire is one hundred times as large as the motherland.

Canada has over thirty per cent. of Empire area, but only one and a half per cent. of Empire population of four hundred millions.—Selected.

HIS SWEET REVENGE.

Upon Inheriting a Fortune Johnson Destroys His Worst Enemy.

"Uncle Hiram," said the nephew, Hiram Johnson, I bequeath the sum of $100,000."

"What—what's that?" gasped the nephew.

"To my beloved nephew, Hiram Johnson," continued the lawyer who was reading the will, "I bequeath the sum of $100,000."

"Do—do you mean to say that I am now worth all that money? And do—do you mean to say I can now throw up my job at Keependown & Kicken's?"

"You can, sir."

And that—and that I won't have to leap out of bed after this when the alarm clock goes off?"

"A man of your wealth, sir, can sleep all day," replied the lawyer as he held out his hand. "Allow me to congratulate you."

But Mr. Johnson waved him back and stood like one dazed for a few moments. Then he mechanically felt for his hat and ran out the front door and dashed up the street. Thinking the good fortune had affected his brain, the lawyer hastened after him, and he was soon joined by others in the pursuit. Hiram made straight for the little room in the boarding house he had so long called home, and as he rushed up the stairs four policemen and a score of men, women and children were at his heels. When the officers had succeeded in breaking open the door that Hiram had closed and locked after him, he had an ax in his hands and was pounding something to pieces on the floor of the room.

"Poor fellow, he has gone mad," remarked one of the policemen.

"Castor oil."

"You've got another guess coming," chuckled the man who had just inherited a fortune as he jumped up and down on the wreck he had made. "I'm only knocking the life out of that blamed alarm clock that has been getting me up at daylight every morning for the past ten years."—Judge.

"The court takes this case under advisement until next Wednesday, when it will render a verdict in favor of the defendant."—Youth's Companion.

PLAN TO FIGHT DISEASE

DRUGGISTS WILL BATTLE STOMACH TROUBLES IN NAPANEE.

The increase of stomach troubles in Napanee has led T. B. Wallace to take the agency for Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and in order that people suffering with weak stomach or indigestion may test the remedy, offers to supply it with the distinct understanding that money will be refunded in every case where it does not cure.

Mi-o-na is not a mere digestive, but an absolute stomach tonic and builder-up of the whole digestive tract. If you suffer with headache, giddiness, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, nervousness, coated tongue, lack of appetite after eating, use Mi-o-na and see how quickly these symptoms of dyspepsia and stomach disorder disappear.

The remedy strengthens the muscular walls of the stomach and increases the flow of gastric juices so that nourishment is extracted from the food and the refuse is expelled regularly. It is void of purgative or laxative medicines.

Remember that T. B. Wallace gives a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. Sold by the rich and poor, there is no danger of your losing anything except indigestion when you buy a 50-cent box of Mi-o-na.

Eggs and Beef.

Very common is the belief that an egg is as good as a pound of meat. If you feed yourself on eggs according to this absurd theory, you will simply shrivel up into skin and bone. The value of an egg is its weight in good beef, so that it would take eight eggs of the average size to supply the place of a pound of meat.

The Best Flour. Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flours in the market.

When buying flour ask for Dafoe's, and patronize your home mill. Harvey produces finer and whiter flour at less cost and cheaper than the product of the Eastern mills, which have to be transported thousands of miles as great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality.

The grocer complains if the farmer or the merchant sends to Toronto or to outside points for an article he can get at the home mill, and we feel sure he does not patronize us by sending from mills hundreds of miles away. Our mill is the oldest flour and feed mill in Lennox and Addington. Why not patronize the home product for, every time the quality is guaranteed.

SCUGOG.

Port Perry Paper.

The friends of the Methodist Sunday School, Scugog, held a Grand Concert and attractive Christmas Tree in the Camp Church on the evening of Friday last. Rev. W. T. Wickett occupied the chair.

A committee, which for some time, had been actively engaged on a highly commendable and labor of love campaign, deemed the opportunity a good one to honor their popular and worthy pastor, and at the proper time Mr. Thomas Graham, Clerk of the Municipality, stepped forward and read the following address:

To the Rev. W. T. Wickett:

Dear Pastor,—Christmas with its happy memories, kindly greetings, good cheer, is once more in our midst, the very atmosphere seems charged with peace and good will. So we the members of the Church and congregation of the Scugog Circuit deem it an opportune time to tell you how greatly we esteem, and how strongly we have become attached to your ourpastor and the dear lady of the parsonage. Your kindly manner, your genial smile, your winning ways, your manly bearing, your Christian deportment, your noble devotion to every interest that contributes to the welfare of our beloved Zion, your earnest presentations of Bible truth, your faithfulness in pastoral visitations, your words of encouragement and inspiration in life's battle and trial, your utterance of sympathy and comfort to those in sorrow and bereavement, your readiness to assist in every good word and work, have greatly endeared you to the hearts of all our people and the appreciation has given birth to a desire, which has crystalized into action and blossomed into fruit. We ask you to accept this, as a token and pledge and as a small tangible proof of our warm appreciation and lasting regard for the unstinted service which you and yours have rendered during your sojourn in our midst, and we pray that still larger success may crown your efforts, that long life and happiness may be yours in which to enjoy God's blessings and make known to others the riches of His grace. Wishing you a Merry Xmas and a Happy New Year.

Signed on behalf of the members of the Church and congregation of Scugog.

The Reverend Gentleman in a few and appropriate remarks, acknowledged the compliment paid to him.

CONTROLLING NATURE.

Everybody knows that of late years natural forces have been wonderfully subjected to man's need. We are dazzled by the spectacular achievements in steam and electricity, but are likely to forget the less noisy but no less marvelous conquest of animal and plant life.

Horses are swifter; cattle heavier, cows give more milk and sheep have finer fleeces than in days gone by. In plants the transformation is even more marked. For example, our parents knew nothing of the tomato except as a curious ornament in the garden. Sweet corn was hardly better than the commonest field corn. All oranges had seeds.

This progress has been made in spite of the great tendency manifested in all plants and animals to go back to their original type. It is indeed a battle to keep a strain pure and up to the standard they have already attained, let alone any improvement. The practical results are accomplished by man operating largely for love of the work, like Luther Burbank in California, and Rickford in England, as well as by the great seed merchants D. M. Ferry & Co., of Windsor, Ont., who are not only eternally vigilant to hold what ground has been gained, but have a corps of trained specialists backed by ample means to conduct new experiments. The results of their experiences can be found in their 1908 Seed Annual, which they will send free to all applicants.

THE MISPLACED COMMA.

(Baltimore 'American.')

Some lawsuits of the highest importance have hinged upon the right placing of a comma," said Judge F. C. Downing of St. Louis.

"Here I first started to practice law a Missouri editor came to me in a peck of trouble to defend him against a threatened libel suit produced out of faulty punctuation. He had not meant to give any innocent young women the slightest offense when he wrote a story about two young men who went with their wives to attend a lecture and after they left the girls got drunk." Putting that incontestable little comma out of its right place did the work as it made the girls the ones who became inebriated instead of their escorts. I managed by proper diplomacy and the publication of a neat apology to stave off the damage suits, and afterward my editorial found believe an expert on punctuation."

CHAMAN'S SUCCESS IN MEXICO

(Baltimore 'American.')

Away down in the Sierra Madre Mountains of northern Mexico I came across a Chinaman who has made a great success of farming and who is destined to become a very rich man. He is Mr. Thomas H. Hamby, of San Antonio, Tex. This son of the Orient, whose name is Joe, has the biggest potato farm in the whole republic. He speaks both English and Spanish well and he is as quick and practicable as any Yankee I ever beheld. His neighbors admire and like him immensely, and all hands say there ain't a squarer man in Mexico.

Joe came into Mexico about five years ago and bought 600 acres of unimproved but productive land at trifling cost on credit. He started in raising fresh potatoes and made enough the first year to pay for his place. His success caused him to buy more property, and he now owns 3,000 acres. Not once has he had a failure of crops, and this season he told us he expected his shipments of potatoes to be about seventy carloads. They are the finest I ever saw and of quality fully equal to the celebrated variety that has made Greeley, Col., famous.

His farm is right at the summit of the continental divide, 7,500 feet above the sea level, where there is plenty of rainfall to make good crops without irrigation. Joe told me that he had made a fortune in sugar beet farming with good results and he believed that northern Mexico would some day be one of the great sugar producing regions of the world.

We Sell... be it cottage, farm or mansion, is complete without a piano. Probably nothing else in the world is the means of so much pleasure. It is elevating, instructive, and far more entertaining than anything else that can be placed in the home, and has now established itself more as a necessity than a luxury. In purchasing a piano it is well to get the greatest easy. The low priced instrument is dear at any price, because the cheapest, as after a few years use, it is likely to become an expense, and a worry to the owner. The one piano in Canada has earned an international reputation for general excellence of tone and durability is the Gerhard-Heintzman, which has come to be recognized the world over, as an instrument of real quality. Unsolicited testimonials from the leading musicians and artistic personages will assist in proving the above statements. Among these are Prince Edward, the late President McKinley, Lady Laurier, Emperor Motsuhito of Japan, and others, amongst a host of others, are willingly placed on record the fact that they are proud to possess the Gerhard-Heintzman Piano. The instrument can be seen and all particulars obtained at

PEOPLE WHOSE EYEBROWS MEET.

(From 'Answers.')

The person whose eyebrows meet may rest content in the knowledge that he is the possessor of a virtuous constitution. The growth of hair above the nose is as a rule a fairly sound proof of good health. That is what the scientists will tell you, but the superstitious have much more to day.

In the northern part of Aberdeenshire there is a common belief that a 'close brow'd' man, or one whose eyebrows meet, is foredoomed to end a wicked career on the scaffold. This may be compared with the view held in parts of the English Midlands, that the close-browed person is destined for fame and fortune.

On the Continent there are several superstitions on this subject. The eyebrows of gypsies are often adorned in this way, a fact which they turn to good account, for in many parts it is believed that the owner of meeting eyebrows is also the possessor of what is called the evil eye and therefore a person whose good will must at all costs be retained. The gypsies, especially in Germany and Austria, use this belief to extract money from the credulous peasants.

Laces

Who can resist these new filmy Laces in exquisite designs that are a delight to look upon?

Lovely pieces of "lacey" beauty which may be yours at a tiny cost.

(Every piece reduced for White Carnival).

Embroideries

Miles of Embroidery, beauty ready for your choosing.

Styles of garments will use up great quantities this coming season.

Be sure and see our Embroidery section.

(Special price on each piece for White Carnival).

Just as o'd Mother Nature dons her suit of white each year, so this store is transformed—and with counter, case and even the tiniest and most remote corners filled with spotless, snowy fabrics and garments and novelties, we announce the most delightful and opportune of all the year's merchandizing events—our Annual Showing and Sale of White.

It is to be a carnival—pleasant, merry week, where the immaculate products of the world's best workmen and workwomen will meet you—where the tiniest of sums may purchase much that is beautiful or durable—or both.

A sale without a parallel—where undermuslins and fresh linens and shimmering white silks drop in price until they may be freely purchased by the most economical.

A Queen of White Sales—where mothers will find pretty dresses and guimps and bonnets for their little ones—where frosty laces and embroideries reign in a court of their own—where ribbons and neckwear and stout domestics and towels and sheets and waists and dresses meet on the common ground of the Low Price—a sale that will fascinate every customer.

A SALE WHERE THIN POCKETBOOKS WILL ACCOMPLISH GREAT THINGS.

You know (and all our customers know) the great importance of our annual white event but, no matter how well you remember, you will not be prepared for the splendid difference between the White Carnival of ours and any preceding muslin underwear or White Sale. You must come and be surprised.

It begins Saturday, February 1st, at 9 in the morning.

White Fabrics

Fresh, crisp India Linens and Linen Lawns—Organdies—Batistes—Persian Lawns—sheer enough to have been woven on a fairy's loom—fabrics loveliness—stout Ducks, almost unwearoutable. You cannot afford not to invest now. You need these materials now, and will for months to come.

(White Carnival price on each)

Snowy Heaps of White Underwear

Corset Covers, Skirts, Night Robes, Drawers, Marguerites—deftly fasnioned, with colswebby insertions, tiny tucks and fine lace edges. Whole sets, rich with needlework, embroidery lands, and generous ruffles.

Provide for your Underwear needs now, at the smallest prices imaginable.

(Remember that every garment is specially priced for the White Carnival).

White Shirt Waists

Everyone wears Shirtwaists all the year long, and the Carnival of White introduces diverse new styles and designs for these universally worn garments.

(White Carnival price on each).

Towels

and Towels. Heaps of snowy damask and huck-a-back, fringed or hemstitched, with pretty borders. The soft kinds that are as satin to the skin. Great, luxurious Turkish bath towels for the brisk rub after the morning bath. They may be yours at the smallest expense.

(Special White Carnival price on each).

White Frocks

Charming dresses for Misses' and little folk. Here are any variety of them—daintily and tastefully made with the newest wrinkles of fashion in every garment. Such prices, as irresistable as the pretty dresses.

(White Carnival price on each).

Bed Fittings

Other housewifely delights are found among the bed fittings. Sheets and Pillow Cases, all linen, embroidered, ready hemmed and spotlessly white. Spreads and Counterpanes in simple designs, or more elaborate if desired. And they may be selected without any severe drain on the regular household allowance.

(Special White Carnival price on each).

—Scarlet fever wrought havoc in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Bent, Hay-ton. Within a week three of their children succumbed to the fatal disease. The first a little girl of eight years, died on Tuesday, 21st Jany., and on the following Sunday two sons, aged seven years, and four months, respectively, died, after scarcely a day's illness. Mr. and Mrs. Bent have the heartfelt sympathy of their many friends and neighbors in their dire affliction.

—The owner of a leather mitten found on the street last Monday, may have it at The Review Office.

—Mr. George Clendl has disposed of his cheese factory at Selby to Woods Bros., who will conduct it in future.

—John H. Rutan, Deerland post office, has been appointed bailiff of the third court of Lennox and Addington, vice Daniel Devenie, resigned.

—Mr. A. E. Paul has sold his interest in the undertaking business of Paul & Ming, to Mr. John Hamblin. The new firm will be styled "Hamblin & Ming."

—There's no need of suffering with bronchitis. Breathe Hy-o-mei and its healing medication will stop all irritations. Sold under guarantee, by T. B. Wallace.

—Mr. Lewis Clark, who has been thirty-five years turnkey in the jail here, resents that for a month past there has not been a single individual within the precincts of the county jail. This is something that has never been recorded in this jail before.

—The annual meeting of the Presbyterian congregation, Napanee, was held on Wednesday night. The past year was a satisfactory one, and each department of church work showed a balance on the right side of the ledger. The salary of the pastor, Rev. J. R. Conn, M.A., was increased a hundred dollars, to take effect 1st Jany.

—A fire occurred about three o'clock Tuesday morning, at the residence of Mr. L. A. Shannon in the west end of the town. Before the fire brigade arrived the place was a total loss, very little of the contents being saved. The house belonged to Mr. L. Harrison and was not insured. The cause of the fire is supposed to have been from heated ashes in the woodshed.

—Recently in England the mind of the public has been much exercised as to the correct pronunciation of the word "Bovril" the name of the well known preparation of beef. A consensus of opinion has been obtained by the proprietors of the preparation. As many as 9640 voted for "Bov-ril" and that seems to have been the favorite pronunciation. A Mrs. Brain, of Shirehampton, near Bristol, secured a prize of £100 by giving the exact number of the majority of persons voting for "Bov-ril." Whether pronounced "Bo-tril" or "Bovril" either preparation is very acceptable at this time of year.

ERNESTTOWN STATION.

It is with deep regret we have to chronicle the death of Mrs. Frank Morrison, nee Miss Elsie Miller. Mrs. Morrison went in company with her husband and little daughter, to Mexico, through the advice of her doctor here, hoping that she might be restored to health, but she was afflicted with a disease of the throat. She did not improve but gradually grew worse. She had a strong desire as each friend she could not get better, to return home before she died. So they started for home on the 11th inst., but she died some ninety miles before reaching St. Louis. Mr. Morrison had her removed to St. Louis, where they placed her in a casket, and he and the little daughter proceeded to the home of her father, George Miller, Millhaven, where the funeral services were held by the Rev. Mr. White, of Brighton, her former pastor, who spoke in the most feeling terms of the noble character of the deceased, whom he had learned to respect and regard, and expressed his deep regret and sympathy for Mr. Morrison and little daughter Elsie, which was shown by the large number of neighbors and friends in attendance at her funeral. Mrs. Morrison leaves a husband and little daughter, besides an aged father and mother, two brothers and two sisters, Arthur in California; Edmund, of Beulah, Albert and Frank at home, and Irwin of Erresttown Station; Mrs. Hurt, at home, and Mrs. Wm. Wood, of Morven, to mourn the loss of a kind wife and mother, and loving daughter and sister.

YARKER CIRCUIT.

Editor Beaver:—

Dear Sir,—The Yarker Circuit has been steadily advancing, during the past three years, under the able pastorate of Rev. E. Farnsworth. Special meetings have been held at each of the appointments, and the efforts crowned with success. As a result the church membership has been largely increased.

The Circuit purchased a parsonage four years ago. The building is a modern brick structure, with all the latest improvements, and one of the best in the Napanee District. The property is situated in the progressive and flourishing village of Yarker, having first class railway facilities, electric lighting, and a branch of the Merchants Bank of Canada. The churches on the circuit are all substantial buildings, and in a good state of repair, having been thoroughly renovated during the past three years. The Yarker church has been repaired at a cost of $410.00, the Colebrook church at a cost of $405.00, and the Moscow church has been extensively repaired at a cost of $1800.00, having a new iron roof and the spire covered with galvanized iron; also concrete platform, new stained glass windows, with the latest device for ventilating. On the inside a new metallic ceiling has been added, the floor relaid on an incline and the old seats replaced with new circular ones of the latest design manufactured by the Globe Furniture Co., beautifully white, making this church very comfortable, and quite up-to-date in every particular.

We are rewarded during the past three years in paying off our parsonage debt, as well as providing the funds for the church repairs before mentioned, making in all a total of $3,300.00, leaving the Circuit practically out of debt.

We have also been able to increase the salary of our minister from $640.00 to $850.00.

TEN CHANCES TO ONE FOR THE BABY.

Remarkable Decrease in the Death Rate of Babies During the Last Century.

"A century ago the anxious parent of the new-born babe had good reason to be uneasy," says Dr. Woods Hutchinson, in writing on "The Irrepressible Tendency of Babies to Grow Up," in the February Woman's Home Companion. "That was still the age of dirt and a huge infant mortality.

"Less than half the children born lived to be five years old—in London, in 1750, 74.5 per cent died—and more than one-third perished in the first year. Now such a condition is rapidly disappearing, and remains only in our slum and most ignorant peasant communities.

"To-day the average mortality in the first five years of child life in the entire United States is less than twenty per cent. The mortality for the first year, about ten per cent., and eliminating the slums and our foreign population, the rate is nearly three per cent. lower yet. So that your baby, gentle reader, has ten chances to one of reaching his first birthday, five to one of reaching his fifth, and three to one of attaining adult life. Surely this is not an outlook to justify serious worry or constant anxiety for fear that some dreadful thing will happen."

A AWFUL EXPERIENCE WITH HEART DISEASE.—Mr. L. J. Law, Toronto, Can., writes:—"I was so sorely troubled with heart disease that I was unable for 18 months to lie down in bed lest I smother. After taking one dose of Dr. Agnew's Heart Cure, I retired and slept soundly. I used one bottle and am glad he has not returned." For sale by T. B. Wallace.

—Miss Ella May Perry, of Wilton, went to the General Hospital, Kingston, on Thursday, 16th inst., to undergo an operation for the removal of a tumor. Mr. and Mrs. Hogeboom accompanied her and remained with her until the operation was performed, which was successful. Mrs Hogeboom remained with her for four days afterward, and left her improving finely.

DANGER OF CATARRH.

UNLESS PROPERLY TREATED WITH HYOMEI, BECOMES SERIOUS.

Catarrhal trouble are far more dangerous than they seem at first thought. If you have catarrh, there is no irritated state of the mucous membrane, and weakened tissues which afford an ideal lodgment and culture medium for disease germs, especially those of consumption.

You should get cured as quickly as possible before any dangerous germs that you may breathe lodge on the diseased tissue and work destruction in the throat and lungs.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to cure catarrh is by the direct method, breathing Hyomei. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed in, directly following and destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by T. B. Wallace is the best evidence of his confidence in the treatment and should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. He agrees to refund the purchase price to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit, and you do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues. A complete outfit costs but $1.00 if it helps you, not a cent if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

NORTHBROOK.

The heavy snow storms recently have greatly retarded the progress of the lumbermen.—G. Boomhour, who had the contract of drawing the Rathbun lumber to Kaladar Station, made one trip and gave up the job in despair.—M. Prestar is drawing cordwood to the Adelaide mines. —Messrs. WAGARVILLE.

On Monday evening, Jan. 21st, after a short illness, Mr. George Scott passed peacefully away. The funeral was held on Thursday. Rev G. Fredrick preached a very impressive sermon to the family and community. He leaves a wife and seven small children. The funeral was not a very large one owing to the storm on the day of the funeral. The body lies in Fredericksburgh vault, awaiting burial in the spring. —A very pleasant evening was spent at Mr. Sidney Cook's and Mrs. Sidney Cronk, it being the occasion of their thirtieth anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Cronk have spent all their life at their present home in Wagarville. They received a lot of costly presents, showing the esteem in which they are held. Everybody left them the compliments of the season.—Mrs. Joe Cox left on Friday for Port Huron, to spend a few weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Walker.—Miss E. Barton, of Plevna, is spending a few weeks with Miss Minn Sills.

Have you tried Holloway's Corn Cure? It has no equal for removing those troublesome excrescences as many have testified who have tried it.

A LOVELY CHILD.

Six years old on Feby. 9th, 1898, Mary, beloved daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. M. Williams, Gosport, died Sunday morning, June 5th, after an illness of only 5 days. She was the baby, but her patient and selfdenying disposition endeared her to all. As a child her love of order, shown even in her early play things was most marked for a child not 6 years old. Never had she enjoyed her Christmas more. She had been attending school about a year. Through her illness she was most patient never but once was she seen in tears and that, when her little sister came to her bedside and cried through sorrow and sympathy. She was always conscious and manifested the knowledge of a crowd person. She called "God help me" just before dying and God did help her; He took her to be forever with Himself. A memorial service will be held in Hay Bay Church on Sunday, Feb. 2d, at 3.30 p.m.

Growing Girls Need Pink Pills.

This Tonic is Necessary for Their Proper Development and to Insure Health and Strength.

There are throughout Canada thousands and thousands of young girls who are in a condition approaching a decline. The complexion is pale or sallow. Appetite feckle. A short walk, or going upstairs, leaves them breathless and with a violently palpitating heart. Headaches and dizziness often add to their misery. Doctors call this anaemia which, in common English, means poor blood. There is just one sure and certain cure for this trouble — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new, rich, red blood, strengthen every nerve and bring a glow of health to pale faces. Do not waste time and money experimenting with other medicines. Do not delay treatment until you are in a hopeless decline. Get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once and see how speedily they will restore your health and strength. Here is the proof. Mrs. Joseph E. Lepage, St. Jerome, Que., says: "My daughter Emilia began to lose her health at the age of thirteen years. She suffered from headaches and dizziness. Her appetite was poor. She was pale and apparently bloodless. She had no strength and could scarcely work, do any work. Doctors' medicine failed to cure her and I thought she was going into a decline. She was in this condition for several months when a neighbor advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them a trial. It was not long until an improvement was noticed and the continued use of the pills for a month or more completely cured her and she has since enjoyed the best of health. I feel sure that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure any case of this kind."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles due to poor and watery blood, such as rheumatism, sciatica, indigestion, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance, and the ailments that make the lives of so many women miserable. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ROBERT McDONALD SCHRYVER.

On Thursday last, Jany. 23d, Robert McDonald Schryver, son of the late Captain Jacob Schryver, of North Fredericksburgh, passed quietly away, after a long and very painful illness, at his home in Los Angeles, Cal. Deceased left us in the early age of nineteen to seek fortune in the far-off gold fields, and though never engaged to any extent in mining he succeeded in accumulating a considerable amount of wealth in real estate and wholesale paint and oil, which business he was engaged in when stricken with paralysis two years ago. He was a member of the I.O.O.F., and since his youth a very active Mason, having taken all the degrees of that Order. He was for a number of years Clerk of the City Waterworks, Sacramento, and was a general favorite with the public where ever he dwelt, being of a cheerful, wholehearted disposition and much given to charity. He leaves a wife and six brothers, Timothy, Colin, Draper, Ashel, Myro and Wilkr, to mourn the loss of a loving husband and faithful brother. The remains were interred in the Sacramento cemetery on Saturday last.

S. S. MONTROSE SAFE IN PORT.

St. John, N. B., Jan. 26.—After nearly 50 days on the ocean the 300 immigrants who left Antwerp on Dec. 7 for St. John on the S. S. steamer Mount Royal to make homes in western Canada and the United States arrived here this morning on the S. S. steamer Montrose. As is known, the Mount Royal was battered about the Atlantic for a month, given up for lost and finally reached Queenstown. There the passengers were transferred to the Montrose, and on Jan. 11 left again for St. John. On the Montrose were also 100 other immigrants from Antwerp. The Montrose should have reached here on Wednesday last, but very much weather delayed the steamer. For seven days between Jan. 12th and 19th little more than 100 miles was covered on any day. On the 14th a great sea carried away a lifeboat, the bridge and the deck was very heavy, and while it rared the body of a child who had died the day before was committed to the deep. The Montrose officers say the voyage was the roughest of their experience.

A PASSENGER'S STORY.

Of the Mount Royal's passengers few can speak English. One Englishman has, however, told a thrilling story. "When days followed days," he said, "and food was reached the immigrants became alarmed, but their fears became absolute terror when on Christmas ward went round that the boilers had given out. They prayed and cried, women tore their hair in their agony and one woman attempted suicide by hanging herself in a beam, but was cut down. The weather was very rough and the ship plunged into the seas, one mounting almost to the crew's nest."

DESTINATION OF THE NEW-COMERS

Of those on the Montrose 226 are for western Canada, 60 for Cape Breton and 126 for United States points. Nearly all passed the immigration inspectors. A Russian lad had his feet frozen while travelling overland to Antwerp from his home to join the steamer. Relatives aboard refused to allow amputation and the lad was placed in the hospital here, but will likely have to have his feet amputated and also will likely be deported.

TO CLEAN OIL PAINTINGS.

To clean an oil painting that is covered with dirt and fly specks, wipe all the dust from the painting with a soft cloth.

Put a little linseed oil in a saucer, and, dipping the finger in the oil, rub the painting gently.

It will require time and patience, but the effect will repay you.

Artists use flour in cleaning a painting nothing but the fingers, dipped in oil or water, should be used.

"Your Honor," said the lawyer, "I ask the dismissal of my client on the ground that the warrant fails to state that he hit Bill Jones with malicious intent."

"This court," repl.ed the country Justice, "ain't a graduate of none of your technical schools. I don't care what he hit Bill with. The point is, did he hit him? Perreed."

Newbro's Herpicide

IS PRAISED BY

PAULA A. EDWARDES

Paula A. Edwardes, the well-known theatrical star, writes as follows:

"I am charmed with Newbro's Herpicide. It is a refreshing hair remedy, producing a beautiful luster and luxuriance of growth; at the same time keeping the scalp free from dandruff."

Very truly yours,
(Signed) PAULA A. EDWARDES.
New York City.

Good results from the use of Newbro's Herpicide mean as much to one person as to another, but on the other hand, the fact that leading theatrical stars prefer Newbro's Herpicide is an important point in its favor. Professional people have an inclination and an opportunity—not enjoyed by others—to discrim nate in their choice of toilet remedies and their opinions should not go unheeded.

The extraordinary success of Newbro's Herpicide is due to the simple fact that it kills the dandruff germ. While other remedies treat the disease that results in hair loss, Newbro's Herpicide destroys the cause of the disease, after which nature grows the hair, if it is not too late.

Chronic baldness cannot be cured, but before the hair follicles are too badly diseased, one can, by careful treatment and intelligent application, actually cause down and ultimately destroy the tiny vegetable growth (dandruff germ) when continued presence in the sebaceous glands of the scalp means hair destruction.

Ladies become enthusiastic over Newbro's Herpicide, because it brightens up the hair and keeps it light and fluffy.

Stops itching of scalp almost instantly.

Guaranteed under the Food and Drug Act June 30, 1906. Serial No. 975. TWO SIZES, 50c AND $1.00 AT DRUG STORES. INSIST UPON HERPICIDE. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. L., Windsor, Ont.

Special Announcement

I wish to announce to all my old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with their patronage, that I have moved my Bicycle business from the old stand in the Miller Block to the WEBSTER & BOYES CARRIAGE FACTORY, just across the street.

The Factory is being fitted up with all the latest improvements, machinery and tools for the MANUFACTURING and REPAIRING of BICYCLES, BUGGIES and all CARRIAGE WORK in general. I have also added a new and special machine for mounting the rubber tires on buggy wheels. My long experience in the rubber tire business enables me to warrant satisfaction in this line.

Bring along your buggy wheels and have new tires put on for Spring. I will guarantee every set and my prices are right. Now is the time to get your Bicycle fitted up for Spring. I have all the repairs and parts in stock.

BELL ROCK.

(For last week.)

Geo. Snider, Napanee, has taken charge of the public school here for the ensuing year.—The annual teameeting and oyster supper given by the ladies of the Methodist church, on the 17th inst., was a grand success.—The programme at the church after the tea, was of the best.—Rev. A. Fowler, Perth Road, took the audience by storm with a very few words. He evidently has learned that brevity is the soul of eloquence as well as of wit. Rev. R. Calvert's address on the life and sayings of J. B. Gough, was full of interest to the last word. Especial mention should be made of the solos given by Miss Emma Campsall, Bethel, and Rev. Mr. Calvert with Miss Townsend, of Sydenham, as accompanist. Miss G. Sanborn gave a fine recitation. The meeting was presided over by W. H. Reynolds, Esq., who proved to be an M. M. chairman.—Quarterly services will be held here on the first Sunday in February.—Business is booming at the new store on Pepper street.—Mrs. Stella Vanvolkenburg has secured a good position in Belleville.—Mr. and Mrs. N. Bradner, Inverary, were visiting friends here last week.—W. Drew at G. M. Sanborn's.—Chas. Amey at J. Yorke's.

THE OLD AND NEW WAY.

Some Important Facts Which May Prove Helpful.

Thirty years ago cod-fashioned cod liver oil had to be forced down a patient's throat.—Invalids couldn't take it, and children wouldn't. But doctors prescribed it, and it had to be taken by force. Yet it cured people where enough could be taken into the system, for it has ever been the greatest of all tissue builders and general reconstructors known to medicine.

We are now anxious to have every one know that Vinol is a new form of this very old and valuable remedy, containing in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but by an extractive and concentrating process it is made without oil or grease, and it is as delicious to the taste as a fresh orange.

Vinol does not upset the stomach like cod-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions; its strengthening and healing properties are remarkable, and both doctors and patients are delighted with its action.

Many wonderful cures right here in Napanee have been effected by its use, and we ask all of our customers to try Vinol on our guarantee to return money, every time it fails to make rich, red blood, increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, run-down, tired and debilitated or cure chronic colds, hacking coughs or bronchitis. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

WHITEWATER, MAN.

Our winter up to the present has been all that is ideal. The last two days has been a steady thaw and are like days in May. The cattle and horses still continue to find their living grazing on the prairie.—John Carlson, Stan Brown and Bert. Reid spent a few days last week up in the mountains; also took a trip across the Red River into Dakota, and contemplate opening a store at that place.—The concert at Bayview, on Friday day evening, was a grand success. A number of those disposed engaged the hall after the programme was finished, and continued enjoying themselves tripping the "light fantastic" until the wee small hours of morning.—Messrs. Ross and P. Brougest have purchased the boarding house belonging to Fred. Peters and contemplate opening a store and boarding house in the near future.—Mrs. Wm. Shepherd and Miss Helen Hill called on Mrs. S. Reid, one day last week.—Messrs. Collison Brothers are moving to Milford, Sask., where they have purchased a large farm.—Mr. David Dougall has sold his farm for a good price, and intends moving there too in the spring.

Black Watch Remarkable for richness and pleasing flavor. The big black plug chewing tobacco.

Andrew Collins sold one of his farms to David Pratt from north of the lake.—Mr. King Cade, from Boisenvain, formerly of Belleville, Ont., called on S. Reid, one day last week.—S. Reid and Stan Brown took a trip to Adelphi on Friday. —A little girl boarder has come to remain at R. S. Reid's.—Thomas Jamieson was in town one day last week.—Mr. Stonehouse is visiting at the parsonage, this week.—Mr. L. Miller lost a valuable horse last week. He had been offered a short time previous two hundred and seventy-five dollars for her.—H. S. Reid purchased a fine team from H. Bonisteel, last week.—B. Reid bought a fine horse from Mr. Barrett.—Mr. James MacGregor intends moving his family west in the spring.—D. Allen and K. Barrett called on A. Swanson on Saturday.—Feed is quite reasonable here now, barley selling from forty to forty-five cents per bushel, oats from thirty to thirty-five cents per bushel, hay from seven to eight dollars per ton.—The farmers of Mountain Side are putting in the phones and having long distance connections. This will prove a great convenience to them when completed.—Harry Smith intends going west in the spring.—Henry Schofield is at present very ill. We hope for a speedy recovery.—Martin Carlson had the misfortune to be kicked by a horse. He injuries will necessitate his being laid up for a week or two.—Our little hamlet was the scene of a very pretty wedding last evening, when the youngest daughter of Rev. North was united in marriage to Mr. Stonehouse, North Dakota. Many are the good wishes of people in this community for the happy couple. May they have a long, happy and prosperous journey through life.

A SAFE MEDICINE FOR ALL CHILDREN.

All so-called "soothing" syrups and most of the powders advertised to cure the ailments of babies and young children contain poisonous opiates, and an overdose may kill the child. Baby's Own Tablets are absolutely safe. You have the guarantee of a government analyst to the truth of this statement. Good for the new born babe and the well grown child. The Tablets positively cure such ailments as colic, sour stomach, indigestion, constipation, diarrhoea, and teething troubles. They also cure simple fever, break up colds, relieve croup and destroy worms. Every mother who has used this medicine praises it highly. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CROYDON.

On Friday, Jan. 25th, a very exciting hockey match was played on the "Hearts of Oak" skating rink. The teams were chosen from the younger members of the above club. In spite of the inclement weather, the crowd was large, and it may be safely said that their time was well spent. The game started with a lightning rush by Patrick Nolan, Jarob Boupe and John South, the result being one goal for the "Stars."—No more goals were scored in this half, although the goal tenders, M. A. Williams and Thos. Dewey, were forced at times to move very quickly. The second half was correspondingly fast, as both teams were determined to carry off the honors. Ten minutes before time the score stood two, 1-1. It was at this time that the "Moustaches" showed their mettle. The plucky efforts of the "Moustaches", Ed. Hannah, obtained the rubber and with a remarkable rush succeeded in scoring a goal on M. A. W. From this on the game was slightly rough, Inez Deline and Elmore Galbraith receiving nasty cuts on the face. At 4 o'clock the game closed, in favor of the "Moustaches," score, 4-5. After the game the teams retired to Simon's Hall, where a sumptuous repast was served by Mr. Simson. In the evening a concert was given by "Hearts of Oak" Branch No. 19, aided by Branch 51 of Tamworth. After an address by the President of the Society, M. A. Williams, the programme proceeded as follows:—Whistling solo by E. Galbraith and Ed. Hannah, an Irish song by Jakie Boupe and Patrick Nolan; highland fling by Inez Deline and Fred. McKnight; a recitation by Geo. Barrager was succeeded by a step dance by Arthur Bissett, who proved themselves, masters of the art; an address by Robt. John Bond, on "Best Methods of Dairying." Mr. Bond showed by his address that dairying can be made to pay even in a hard year like 1907. George Deline then followed with an address based on the respective merits of the Ontario and Dominion Governments. The meeting closed by a song "The Carry Reef Farmer," by the "Hearts of Oak" quartette, viz., Edward Hannah, Elmore Galbraith, Jas McGregor and Wm. Quinn. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and all went home proud of the entertaining ability of the "Hearts of Oak."

A tickling cough, from any cause, is only stopped by Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. And Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, great care to babies. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

To the Editor.—

Mr. Geo. H. Barr, a member of my staff, who was Official Referee of Butter and Cheese at Montreal last season, in speaking of his work at the recent Dairy Convention held at Pictou, Ont., made the statement that "only 2 per cent. of the cheese which he examined were of No. 1 grade." This statement has been widely quoted as showing a serious condition in the Canadian Cheese Trade. As there is nothing in the statement itself or in the facts of the case to warrant such a conclusion, I ask your permission to make the following explanation.

As Mr. Barr explained in his statement, he examined less than half of 1 per cent., or about one lot out of every 200 lots of cheese received at Montreal during the season, and further, as he was asked to examine only those lots which were suspected of being inferior in quality, or which had been condemned by the purchasers, it is not surprising that only 2 per cent. were first grade. The showing is a remarkably good one rather than a bad one. As a matter of fact, the quality of Canadian cheese never stood as high as it does at the present time. Much improvement has been made in the last year or two than for many previous years. The writer has just returned from a lengthy visit to the markets of Great Britain, and can speak with confidence on that point.

Trusting I may count upon your kind attention to this explanation, you will greatly oblige,

J. A. RUDDICK,
Dairy and Cold Storage Commissioner.

RE CREDIT SYSTEM

Having long felt that the present system of allowing goods on approbation and selling on credit was expensive to both ourselves and customers, and too far out-of-date for this progressive 20th century, we have decided to adopt the STRICTLY CASH SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER FEB. 1st, 1908, NO GOODS WILL BE ALLOWED ON APPROBATION UNLESS ONE PAIR IS PAID FOR.

In case goods do not suit we will cheerfully refund purchase money. Among our regular credit customers were many who paid promptly whenever the account was rendered, and with whom it was a pleasure to do business. But these will readily understand that to make the Cash System a success, all must be treated alike, and no one family or person can be excepted from this rule.

CARD OF THANKS.

To those who expressed their sympathy and helped by their many acts of kindness through the sickness and death of our darling Mary, we express our gratitude and thanks. Especially to the ones who patiently watched outside the window each hour through the darkness of the night may God's richest blessing follow them. Sigded,
MR. AND MRS. O. M. WILLIAMS.

A THOUGHTFUL SUGGESTION.

There are fully three-quarters of our people whose health is impaired from either chronic constipation, stomach trouble or biliousness. As a result numberless remedies have been floated onto our midst purporting to effect most remarkable cures. After much careful study and scientific research a compound has been formed known as "Herbaline", which is considered to be by far the best thing obtainable for treating these conditions. It is used with rhubarb and sandrake as flavors on the wrapper in which it is sold, and can be easily obtained at any first class drug store for 50 cents. One bottle will convince the most doubtful as to its value.

ALBERT.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stotts were visiting at Mr. J. H. Bradshaw's, on Wednesday last.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Whiteman were the guests of T. Scott, one day last week.—Miss Ada Bradshaw spent a couple of days in Thurlow.—Miss Flossie Dell has returned to her home, after spending a week in this vicinity.—Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Bradshaw spent Friday evening at W. H. Anderson's.—Miss Jennie Woodall spent Friday evening at Robt.n.— Miss Selena Whiteman spent a few days at Croydon.

WANT TO KEEP YOUR NEURALGIA ?

Of course you don't; so you should take Scott's Emulsion. It is a fact this remedy cures it; and it cures nervousness, nerve debility and insomnia also. 4b

MARLBANK.

Mr. Wm. McKnight, of Mountain Grove, was visiting his uncle, Mr. Thos. Evans, here, last week.—Mr. Mallick, father of Mr. Frank Mallick, died on Sunday, after a long illness.—Mr. Jas. Laird visited his home at Bath last week.—Mr. Ed. Connors had the misfortune to drive a sharp pick into his foot. Dr. Burrows dressed the wound.—Mr. A. E. Brown and wife, of Vancouver, are visiting their nephew, Mr. E. D. Shangraw.—The home of Mr. Frank Canaday is quarantined for diphtheria.—Mr. D. N. Armstrong was in Toronto and Buffalo a few days last week.—Owing to the severity of the weather the school attendance has dropped considerably. This is to be regretted as the children are progressing very favorably, under the able management of our teachers, Miss McGinness and Miss Hayes.—Miss Julia Parris, who was injured for a few days, is able to be around again.—A bran band is about to be organized here, which we sincerely hope will be a success.

BEAVER LAKE.

A number of friends and neighbors enthusiastically met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. McDonald, on the evening of their son Donald's birthday, a number of years in Brantford. Mr. McDonald and family have greatly endeared themselves to their neighbors by their kindness to every one in this part of the country, and will be missed by all. The evening was spent in pleasant conversation, and at a late hour all left for their home and all. Every one wished them many years of future happiness, and we hope to have many visits from them in future.

"You're rather a young man to be left in charge of a drug store," said the fussy old gentleman. "Have you any diploma?"

"Why—er—no, sir," replied the drug clerk. "But we have a preparation of our own that's just as good."

The Store of Superior Qualities and Moderate Prices.

We Excell In Dress Goods.

What you find here is the pick of the world's leading markets. We buy our dress materials with an eye to quality and style coupled with good value. Our ability to pay spot cash for everything we buy gives us advantages in the great cash markets, and in getting the very best for the money. At this store customers are not compelled to pay the added middle man's profit, because we buy our goods from the makers, and have a skilled buyer. Every leading style and design is in this mammoth showing of spring dress goods and silks, while the ordinary merchant is just thinking about buying his stock. For these reasons this is the leading dress goods store in this district. We mention a few leading cloths (Priestley's) run a whiskey and soda."

He, however, declined both the cigarette and the stimulant, which was, to my the least of it, remarkable.

"Look here, Briggs," he said, after a short pause, "I've come to see you concerning something which affects the happiness of my life."

It may have been a brutal and possibly an insulting thing to say—but I could not have helped it—had my life depended on it. "My dear fellow," I remarked, "I and my cheque book are both at your disposal."

His face flushed scarlet, and for a moment I quite thought he would have got up and left the room. He controlled himself, however.

"I have not come to borrow money," he observed. "I have come to tell you something that I think it is only fair you should know."

"Being a man of business, I am always open to consider a good investment," I replied. "Perhaps you told me the other day that Patagonian Rails are likely to rise in the near future."

never made her appearance at that meal, her daughter officiating in her stead. On this occasion Muriel looked as if she had passed a sleepless night. Her eyes were red and swollen and her conversation was not as fluent as usual. Sir Gilbert also struck me as being somewhat quieter than usual As I drew my chair I looked round the table and to my surprise could discover no sign of my friend, Captain Gainsborough. As a rule I detest being compelled to think until I have disposed of the first meal of the day; on this occasion, however, I could not help doing so.

When we rose, I made my way to the billiard room with the intention of writing some letters. If I were to tell you that I was easy in my mind, I should not be telling the truth. As a matter of fact, I was about as unhappy as a man could well be.

I had scarcely seated myself at the writing table before Sir Gabriel entered the room. One had only to look at his face to see that he was not in a good temper. He fidgetted with the ornaments on the mantelpiece, lit a cigarette and almost immediately threw it away; then "Wait till you have heard what I have got to say to you. I presume that you have no doubt as to the stability of your affection for Miss Beverley?"

"Look here, Briggs, I can't tell what you are driving at, but don't you think it's a trifle hard on a man to hit him when he's down? I have loved that girl ever since I was a boy, and I shall continue to do so till the end of my life. If I had been rich I might have been able to marry her; but as I am only a poor devil with no prospects—"

"She marries me? Yes; I see the position exactly. Well, so it happens, I had a talk with the young lady this morning. If I were a man I should not have been flattered by what she said to me—but as I am only an ordinary commonplace individual I put my pride in my pocket and come to you. Is it true that you are clearing out of the Army?"

"Quite true," he answered. "I sent in my papers three days ago."

"And what do you propose doing now?" I asked.

"I shall leave England and try my luck either at the Cape or in Australia."

"Very good. In the meantime, however, you will marry Miss Beverley."

I heard him gasp, and for an erstwhile dashing hussar he turned undeniably pale.

"What do you mean?" he asked in a husky voice. "Is this another of your jokes?"

"No," I replied, "but you may call it so, if it gives you any satisfaction."

"Well if it is, it is one that I am unable to appreciate. I am not very keen on that sort of humour myself. Even if she were not engaged to you, how could I marry her? You know as well as I do that I am as poor broken-down as a man can well be and manage to keep his head above water. Besides, knowing how fond you are of me, it is likely you would give her up to me."

"My dear Gainsborough, when a young lady tells me to my face that her affections are bestowed elsewhere, and that she is only marrying me for the sake of her family, I should be less than human if I were to accept such a sacrifice at her hands. Therefore with the best grace I can muster, I yield to circumstances and resign her to the more favored suitor."

"Oh heavens, Briggs, you are a man—but it is impossible for me to accept such a sacrifice."

"In that case you will break her heart. The poor child loves you."

"But I tell you I have no money."

"Well, I have a proposition to make you. You have doubtless heard that Brigg's Patent Long Burning Candles — according to the advertisements—illumine the world. Well, there's one part of it in which they burn to a considerable extent, and that is in the salubrious atmosphere of the Argentine. I have a big horse farm there and I am on the lookout for a manager. As a cavalry man you ought to know something about horses. Marry the girl of your heart, I will take care that Sir Gabriel offers no objections, and go out. It all depends on yourself whether you are happy or not."

The silly fellow got up from his chair, tried to speak, but could not utter a word. Then he shook me by the hand, and went to the other end of the room to look out on the street. Up to that moment I had always regarded him as being a somewhat commonplace young fellow. I was mistaken in that as I was in several other things.

That afternoon we returned together to Beverley, where I spent a somewhat uncomfortable half an hour with the worthy Baronet. However, in the end I induced him to see reason.

All this happened eighteen months ago. Next month I propose going out to South America to pay the young couple a visit and inspect and pass my opinion on my palace.

"Look here, Briggs," he said, "this is no time for jesting."

"My dear fellow, I never felt more serious in my life," I answered, and though he did not know it, I was telling him the literal truth. There was a pause, and then I asked him what it was that had brought him to me.

"Well, to tell you the truth, I have come to make a confession to you that may very possibly cause you to think badly of me. But I give you my word, Briggs, I'm trying to play straight, although what it costs me to do it you will never know."

By this time all the devil-may-care soldierly swagger had gone out of him, and he was as humble as a cringing sweeper, or for the matter of that, a commonplace Millionaire.

"I know it's a nasty thing to say—but well, to be plain with you—"

"Don't be plain with me. I know exactly what you are going to tell me, and I have no desire to hear it."

"You know then that I—"

"Yes, I know. It's the usual story, I suppose. You have loved each other from childhood's hour and all that sort of thing. Fate, however, in the shape of a stern ground and the picture was beautiful beyond compare. I fortunately, however, I was not in the humor to enjoy it. I had passed the statue of Apollo and was about to descend the steps to the path below when my attention reached my ears which made me pause. Someone was crying—and that someone was without doubt a woman. I made my way in the direction whence the sound proceeded and discovered exactly what I expected to find. Muriel, the pretty little sweetheart, was seated in the Italian summer house by the Lady Pond, and from the way her heart were breaking I went in and comforting myself beside her, took her hand. As a rule I am not given to, a display of sentiment, but I believe on this occasion I permitted myself to indulge in the luxury. In some stirring less than five minutes I knew everything, and a pitiful tale it was.

Over my interview with Sir Gabriel half an hour later I will, with your permission, draw a veil.

"Confound it, Briggs," he growled, "you're as bad as that fellow Gainsborough. I ask you to stay, and two or three days later you bolt off declaring that you have important business. It isn't very two millions. It seems funny, does it not?"

"I don't see the humor of it myself," he replied, "and I confess I rather wonder that you do."

"When all's said and done, it's only a matter of temperament," I continued.

"Well, I wish I had never asked him down here, that's all. It has upset me more than I can say."

"Be philosophical, my dear Sir Gabriel —as philosophical as I am."

This remark proved too much for my friend's equanimity, and muttering something to the effect that he did not believe I cared a scrap about his daughter, he strode from the room, leaving me to derive what satisfaction I could from my victory.

Once more I tried to settle myself down to my correspondence, but the inspiration had flown, and at last, in despair, I threw aside my pen and determined to go for a stroll. For some reason or another I chose the path which leads through the shrubbery to what is called the Lady's Garden. The snow lay thick upon the become aware of it and more than once he glanced anxiously at my direction. I was too interested, however, watching Sir George killing the Dragon to comment on their absence.

As it turned out the performance had almost reached its conclusion when they made their appearance. Muriel's face was as white as the paper I am now writing upon and Gainsborough was busily engaged in biting his carefully cultivated moustache as if he had not had anything to eat for six months.

"I'm afraid you have missed the best part of the show," I said to my betrothed when she came and seated herself beside me. "The Dragon is certainly one of the most wonderful monstrosities I have ever encountered."

She did not answer, and I knew why. A woman does not pick, pick, pick at a lace handkerchief for nothing.

Next morning we proceeded to the village church — according to custom—and afterwards returned to the court to eat a dinner (Sir Gabriel was sufficiently old fashioned to dine in the middle of the day), which I, for one, knew as well as possible, would disagree with me. I record the fact that I was not happy and also that plum pudding is a vastly overrated condiment.

After dinner we made our way to the Lake, and some of us pretended to skate. I, for my part, was content to watch, I have outlived that amusement. It was evident, however, that Muriel and the Captain had not. They glided over the ice, hand in hand, like twin souls, and I verily believe I heard Sir Gabriel swear.

And now we come to the curious part of the story I have set myself to narrate. That I should tell it at all is extraordinary enough—but you will be in position to judge of that for yourself if you have the patience to read on. Even to this day I am afraid I do not regard the matter in the light I should have done. Possibly you will be able to see why.

My man, Judson, I may tell you, as a rule as imperturable as a block of granite—he would park my bag for the North Pole as calmly as he would put studs into my shirt, or tell me that my bath was ready for me. Yet on this particular evening, when he came to my bedroom, there was an air of suppressed excitement about him that I could not for the life of me account for. I felt sure something was coming, and as it turned out I was not disappointed. Having arranged everything for the night, he was about to depart when he suddenly stopped, coughed apologetically, and turned to where I was seated in an arm chair before the fire.

"You'll excuse me, sir," he said, and when Judson commences with that phrase I distrust him on principle—"But Captain Gainsborough's man told me just now that my master would like to see you here, if you could spare him a few minutes."

I felt as if a lump of ice had been drop ped down my back. What is more I fancy Judson knew it.

"Tell Captain Gainsborough that I shall be very pleased to see him if he will come to me," I found myself saying, and my estimable valet departed on his errand.

Ten minutes elapsed before there was the sound of a knock upon my bedroom door. It was not a confident knock, but rather that of a man who has worked himself up to the pitch of doing a thing, and who is by no means certain what reception will attend his effort.

"It's awfully good of you to let me come here to worry you at this time of night," said Gainsborough as he closed the door behind him.

"Not at all," I answered politely. "I am, of course, very glad to see you. Take that chair; you will find it comfortable. There are cigarettes in that box on the mantelpiece. I believe at a pinch I can he drummed with his fingers on the window pane, and at last turned to me.

"Strang, I want one thing about Gainsborough," he said.

"What has happened? I enquired — though I thought I could hazard a very good guess.

"Why, he's gone off, leaving only a short note behind him to say that he is called away on important business. He'd thrown up the Army, too, I hear."

"Young men will be young men," I answered, for want of something better to say.

"The worst of it is I know what's at the back of it all," continued my host.

I looked sharply at him.

"And what may it be?" I asked, doing my best to keep my voice under control.

"Why, that he's in love with my girl, Muriel."

"The deuce he is," said I, with what I hope did well feigned surprise.

"He hasn't a halfpenny to bless himself with," he went on.

While she is engaged to something like complimentary to my hospitality."

I gave him my most positive assurance that the business which necessitated my sudden departure was of such a nature that it would admit of no delay, but that I hoped to come back again as soon as it was completed. Somewhat mollified he permitted me to depart, and an hour later I was on my way to town on one of the most miserable nights it has ever fallen to the lot of a lovelorn man to encounter.

Having arrived at Paddington, I chartered a cab and drove to a certain club in Pall Mall, where I knew I should find the man I wanted. My lucky, or unlucky star, as you may please to call it, was in the ascendant, for he had just arrived. That he was surprised to see me admitted of no doubt.

"What on earth has brought you to town?" he cried, throwing down the paper he had been pretending to read.

"I have come to see you," I replied. "I want to have a little conversation with you."

"Not on that subject," he answered. "There is nothing to be gained by it, and it can only mean pain for both of us."

The Girl Across The Aisle.

By E. H. HOUGH.

Copyright, 1907, by E. H. Hough.

RETURNING to my car as the train started, I noticed that I had neighbors across the aisle, apparently a well dressed, gray haired and bearded man, his wife and their daughter, the latter so lovely that I stared at her until my persistency provoked a keen, fierce glance from her father, whereupon I withdrew my gaze, and he resumed his newspaper. Immediately the girl across the aisle glanced around, and I intercepted a look from a pair of dark eyes instinct with what seemed like fear or entreaty.

But not even the beauty of my fair vis-a-vis could successfully divert my mind from the painful theme upon which it was dwelling with a consciousness of humiliating failure.

The cashier and confidential man of a large business house had absconded with half a million dollars in cash and negotiable securities, and simultaneously the only daughter of the firm's senior partner had eloped with a worthless suitor.

My firm was not professionally interested in this branch of the case. We were to trace the absconding cashier, described as twenty-seven years of age, tall, slender and dudish, heavy black mustache, smooth shaven cheeks, while certain memoranda evidently forgotten and discovered in a secret compartment of his desk seemed to render the task of overtaking him a matter of little time and ordinary skill.

My assignment on the case was a high compliment, and I had been sanguine of success. But most of the clews I followed ended in a "pocket," my carefully formulated theories and hypotheses proved fruitless, and while debating as to what I should do next I received a peremptory telegram directing my immediate return to headquarters.

While ruminating thus I fell to drumming with my fingers on the arm of the car. Instantly the girl across the aisle looked up, darting a keen, inquiring glance at me. Her lips moved as though repeating some formula, and as I kept on drumming her excitement visibly increased. Just then her father, looking up from his paper, frowned at me, then glancing over at me, tapped his forehead, waving his other hand toward the rear.

For awhile I kept up my drumming, while the girl did not appear to notice me I could see that she was listening intently, her lips moved, and her expression varied from one of fear to the deepest depression. For the want of better occupation I continued the experiment awhile, finally tearing a card together, whereupon she sank back apparently in despair.

By and by the cars stopped again, and my attention was attracted to a boy on the platform jerking a round string through a drum shaped piece of cardboard—a sample of the basketful he carried and which he was demonstrating with a real and volume of discordant sounds that rivalled pandemonium. Instantly the girl across the aisle—that was the side nearest the station platform—became violently excited. The blind rushed to her cheeks and tears to her eyes. Touching her father's arm, she exclaimed eagerly:

"Papa, papa, buy me one of those pretty, noisy playthings!"

I fancied I detected a sinister gleam in the man's eyes, but he answered roughly:

"No; that thing is only for toys and children!"

"Oh, please, please, papa!" she pretended, clapping her hands. "I must have it! I want to see if it will sing for me. Quick, quick, before it is gone!"

As she would not be pacified and some of the passengers were looking at her, her father smiled grimly and passed one hand into his pocket.

"Anything to please a fool!" he muttered. Opening the window, he made the boy outside turn on one of his infernal machines, snatched it from him, threw out a quarter and shut the window.

"There!" He tossed it in the girl's lap. "See how long that will amuse you." As he resumed his paper I watched the girl across the aisle with a new interest, coupled with growing mystification.

What was the girl trying to do? A look into her set, tense face scouted the idea of anything so trivial as a birthday. When I stopped drumming she resumed her performance, when I drummed she was quiet, listening intently, but with evident disappointment. Giving up the riddle at last, I leaned back, with folded arms. Immediately with the most inexplicable look toward her father and toward me, the girl across the aisle resumed, with an air of desperate determination, the same unvarying iteration of sounds and pauses until the performance became almost intolerable. Indeed, it was getting upon my nerves, and I was contemplating an appeal to her father when I stumbled into the light. Her manoeuver was making its way not upon my nerves alone, but upon an inner consciousness, slowly responding to the magic code. I began to follow and analyze that rhythmical succession of sounds and pauses until I was able to recognize, distinguish and translate them. The girl across the aisle was communicating through her crude plaything telegraph messages to me!

Noting my expression, she stopped, then flashed a significant glance toward her father. Obeying her unspoken injunction I busied myself with a book, but in a moment she was at work again, and her message read:

"I am trying to speak to you. Do you understand?"

My response was to cast a twinkler-

The Conquest of Canaan

iast (for in such matters your temper shall be steadfast), and let the great Goliath in the mean time beware of you! You ran last night. You ran—of course you ran. Why not? You ran to fight another day!

A bank clerk sometimes has opportunities.

The stricken fat one could not understand how it came about that he had blurted out the damning confession that he had visited Dover Beach. When he tried to solve the puzzle, his mind refused the strain, became foggy and the terrors of his position arose. Was he, like Joe Louden, to endure the ban of Canaan and, like him, stand excommunicate beyond the pale because of Martin Pike's displeasure? For Norbert saw with perfect clearness today what the judge had done for Joe. Now that he stood in danger of a fate identical this came home to him. How many others, he wondered, would do as Mamie had done and write notes such as he had received by the hand of Sam Worden late last night?

Dear Sir—this from Mamie, who, in the Canaanitish way, had been wont to address him as "Norb"—My father wishes me to state that after your remark yesterday afternoon on the main street which was overheard by my mother, who happened to be standing in the hall behind you and your behavior to himself later on he considers it impossible to allow you to call any more or to speak to any member of his household. Yours respectfully,

MAMIE PIKE.

Erasures and restorations bore witness to a considerable doubt in Mamie's mind concerning "Yours respectfully," a self restraint based upon the unlikely, if not even glance toward the keep which was Mr. Arp. "I notice she left her flowers!"

Ariel was not the only one who climbed the dingy stairs that day and called that small scrap upon Joe's door: "Will not return until evening, J. Louden." Many others came, all accordingly unlike the first visitor. Some were quick and watchful, dodging into the narrow entrance furtively; some paused considerately long at the door as they were in view of the street, drooping wanly as they reached the stairs; some were young and unused, with some were thin and troubled. Not all of them read the message, for not all could read, but all looked curiously through the half opened door at the many rows which lifted their heads above the floor and then scanned on Joe's desk to scent that dusty place with their cool breath.

Most of these clients after a grunt of disappointment turned and went away, though there were a few, either unable to rest long in one place or perhaps by habit that they disregarded it, who entered the room and sat down to wait for the absentee. These were more thoughtful than the rest, drooping wanly as they reached the stairs; some were young and unused, with some were thin and troubled. Not all of them read the message, for not all could read, but all looked curiously through the half opened door at the many rows which lifted their heads above the floor and then scanned on Joe's desk to scent that dusty place with their cool breath.

The conclave was not what it had been. (See Arp and all his works.) There had come as the years went by a few recruits, but faces were missing. The two Taboos had gone, and Uncle Joe Davey could no longer lay claim to the patriarchship. He had laid it down, with a half sigh, and gone his way. Eskew himself was now the oldest of the conscript fathers, the colonel and Squire Buckslow pressing him closely, with Peter Bradbury a great time behind.

Today they did not plant their feet upon the brass rail inside the hotel windows, but courted the genial weather outdoors and, as their number ran was, tilted back their chairs in the shade of the western wall of the building.

"And who could of dreamed," Mr. Bradbury was saying, with a side glance at expectancy on Colonel Flitcroft, "that Jonas Tabor would ever turn out to have a niece like that?"

Mr. Arp ceased to fan himself with his wide straw hat and said grimly:

"I don't see as Jonas has 'turned out' yet in particular. If he's turned at all lately I reckon it's in his grave, and I'll bet he has if he had any way of bettin' how much she must of spent for clothes."

"I believe," Squire Buckslow began, "that some folks' memories are short."

"They're lucky!" interjected Eskew. "The shorter your memory the less sentiment you have."

"I meant young folks don't remember as well as older people do," continued the squire. "I don't see what's so remarkable in her comin' back and walkin' up street with Joe Louden. She used to go kitin' 'round with him all the time before she left here. And yet everybody talks as if they never heard of such a thing."

"It seems to me," said Colonel Flitcroft hesitatingly, "that she did right. I know it sounds kind of a queer thing to say, and I stirred up a good deal of opposition at home yesterday evening by sort of advising something of the kind. Nobody seemed to agree with me except Norbert, and he didn't say much, but—"

He was interrupted by an unnoticed noise which issued from the mouth of Mr. Arp. The colonel turned upon him with a frown, inquiring the cause of his spirit.

"It put me in mind," Mr. Arp began promptly, "of something that happened last night."

"What was it?"

It being known that was open to tell, but he remembered just in time that the grandfather of Norbert was not the audience properly to be selected for this recital, called a half born word, confined himself to relating that he had walked down to the post office without the story of the felling of Martin Pike until the colonel had taken his departure for his noonday meal.

"Nothin' to speak of. Go on with your argument."

"I've finished," said the colonel. "I only wanted to say that it seems to me a good action for a young lady like that to come back here and stick to her old friend and playmate."

"Stick to him!" echoed Mr. Arp. "I seen 'em walkin' up street with him yesterday. She just sniff that stick to him? She's been away a good while, she's forgotten what Canaan is. You wait a few days now for that one to get what his standing in this town—"

"I agree with Eskew for once," interposed Peter Bradbury. "I agree heartily."

"Guess you better wait," cried Eskew, holding up his hand in protest. "She will not have what you're accusing her of. I say you take a broader view than that to-day and rise and sail forward up, and it stands to reason that she won't—"

"No; it don't!" exclaimed Buckslow impatiently. "Nothing of the sort! I tell you!—"

Bisbee rose to his feet and pounded out with his stick. "If reason that she won't stick to—until no other decent woman will speak to, a feller don't been the mark for every stone thrown in the town ever since he was a boy, an outcast with a reputation as black as a preacher's shoes on Sunday! I don't care if he's her oldest friend on earth, she won't stick to him! She walked with him yesterday, but you can mark my words, his goose is cooked!" The old man's voice rose shrill and high. "It ain't in human nature for her to do it! You hear what I say—you'll see it with a reputation as black as

WILTON.

Mrs. Samuel Storms and Mrs. Birdsall are quite ill. Dr. J. E. Mabee, Odessa, is in attendance.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Caton, Cherry Valley, are visiting friends in this vicinity.—The heavy storm of Saturday has blocked the roads and traffic was very slow. The mail stage was unable to make the trip either Saturday or Monday.—The Quarterly service was not held in the Methodist church here on Sunday morning, owing to the roads being blocked.—School was also closed on Monday, as the scholars were unable to get there.—The body of the late Mr. Zi. Stafford, of Montreal, was brought here last week for interment. His daughter, Miss Lottie Stafford, came with the body, and returned to Montreal a few days later.

LEAVING FOR REGINA.

Lanark Era.

Rev. William A. Guy, Presbyterian minister at Clarendon Corners, has received a call from Regina, Sask., has accepted the same, and gave notification of his resignation to the three congregations of McDonald's Corners, Elphin and Snow Road. Mr. Guy also received a call from Carleton Place, but the Regina offer came first. Deep regret is felt by the people at losing Mr. Guy. He has been such a devoted worker, zealously attending to all the difficult duties of his extensive field during the five years of his ministrate, that a great bond of close personal friendship has existed between him and the people. Young and aggressive he carried on his work with abounding faith and many souls were won for the Master. The intimation of his removal was received with great emotion, and as the popular pastor spoke of severing ties strong as which had bound them so closely the congregation bowed in tears. Mr. Guy will preach his farewell address the second Sabbath of February. He then leaves for Regina, where he will go on six months on approval, after which he will make permanent arrangements.

CAMDEN EAST.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Saul, of Saskatoon, Sask., are visiting his brother, James Saul, Tamworth. — Everton Alcombrack, of Toronto, is spending a few days with his relative, J. W. Stewart.—We were very sorry to hear of the death of Mrs. McCarthy and Mrs. J. Galbraith.—J. W. Stewart returned home Monday evening, after spending a week with his many friends and relatives in Montreal.—Mrs. J. W. Stewart was the guest of Mrs. Jackson on Tuesday afternoon.—The people in this vicinity are busy laying in their ice for the summer.—We are glad to hear that Miss Nellie Hicks is improving, after a very severe illness.

SANDHURST.

The anniversary and King Edward Dinner held at Adolphustown U. E. L. Methodist church on Jany. 30th and 31st, were a good success. Rev. J. F. Mearns delivered two able sermons, and gave a good address at the dinner. The choir furnished appropriate music. Soloists, Mrs. and Miss Horton, Mr. and Miss Schell and Miss M. Perry, of Morven, furnished music for the Dinner, which was much appreciated. The chairman, Mr. M. S. Mabee, filled the chair very acceptably, making a short and impressive speech. Miss M. Bell, Miss Stevens, Miss Pearl and Miss Phippen gave splendid readings. The dinner was of the very best quality with turkey, goose, etc., in abundance, and thoroughly well served. Proceeds, over $60.00.—Quarterly meeting and sacramental service will be held at Hay-bears at 10.30 a.m., and the evening service at 7 p.m. at Sillerville, on Sunday, Feby. 9th, and Quarterly Board and Leaders' Aid at Hayburn on Monday, at 2.30 p.m. Refreshments at close of each meeting. All welcome. W. S. Boyes, Pastor.

HAYES' CORNERS.

The snow storm that fell on Saturday filled the roads to the top of the fences.—Charles Baker and R. Johnson spent Friday evening of last week with Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Close.—Addison Kellar and wife passed through here one day last week.—Mrs. Stewart Baker and Harman Yorks called on E. Johnson, Sunday evening.—Thomas Hayes and his brother-in-law have been engaged cutting wood for Robert McKelvey.—R. Armstrong called on Israel Cook on Tuesday.—A. Symes passed through here on Tuesday last.—Sarah Owen was calling on friends at Lake View on Tuesday afternoon.—Miss Lena Owen is spending the past week at John Polmateer's.—Cook is busy cutting wood for H. Armstrong.

POWDER WORKS BLOWN UP.

EXPLOSION NEAR TWEED SHATTER ED WINDOWS IN TOWN.

A terrific explosion, which broke well nigh every window in town, and caused scenes of excitement, occurred a mile east from Tweed, shortly after seven, Tuesday morning when the powder mills of the Ontario Powder Company, comprising from twelve to fifteen buildings, were blown to atoms.

It is fortunate there was no loss of life. The men in the works had only been at their occupation a few minutes, when one of the big vats of nitric acid was observed to boil over, owing to the fact that the extreme cold weather congealed the nitroglycerine, and it entered the mixer and caused the nitric acid to boil and pour over the floor, thus setting the building on fire.

The mixers, seeing the danger, ran through the works calling to the men to run for their lives. The men needed no second warning, but rushed to places of safety, many of them in their shirt sleeves, and as the thermometer registered well below zero, many of them had ears and fingers frozen.

PANIC IN TOWN.

There was considerable of a panic in the town for a little while until some of the powder makers arrived with the intelligence that all had been saved. As it is, there is considerable inconvenience in town, if not suffering, as, with all the windows broken, and the thermometer much below zero, it is impossible to keep the houses warm.

Much perishable foodstuff has been frozen in the stores, and rendered absolutely useless, the plate glass fronts having been smashed. Business is practically suspended, and will be for some days. The churches of the town are also without windows, and as the glass is somewhat hard to replace, there will not likely be services next Sunday.

CHIMNEY BLOWN DOWN.

The factory of the Steel Trough and Machine Co., which is situated a short distance away from the powder mills, had its big chimney blown down, as well as the glass broken in the sash.

Across Stoco Lake, a distance of six or seven miles, is the little village of Stoco. There was much damage done to the windows, and at Madoc, 16 miles away, there are some plate glass fronts reported broken.

The buildings of the Powder Company were most of them completely blown to atoms. The explosion would took place in the building where the blasting gelignite cartridges are made. The company had just started the manufacture of this powerful explosive, having installed a lot of expensive machinery in December last. This explosive is 60 per cent. more powerful than ordinary dynamite.

The loss on plate glass and other glass in the town is estimated at over $1,000. The company's loss will be $25,000 at the lowest estimate.

SHOCK FELT IN NAPANEE

The explosion in the nitrate building of the Ontario Powder Works plant at Tweed was distinctly felt in Napanee, 25 away, Tuesday morning, making windows rattle and buildings shake. By many it was first thought an earthquake had taken place.

HISTORICAL.

The regular January meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society was held in Historical Hall, on Friday evening, January 31st. The meeting was called to order by the President, at 8 p.m. The first number on the programme was the reading of a paper on "Harbor and Vicinity" by Mrs. A. H. Grange. This excellent description of the beautiful village was written by Mr. E. H. Checkley, who was unable to attend the meeting. The author gave an early history of Simcoe Falls, and carried the description down to the present day by telling of the principal events which have influenced its growth. He referred particularly to the first brick stags and settlers, the schools, the churches, the manufactures and the building of the railway. The Society is indebted to Mr. Checkley for his excellent work, and to Mrs. Grange for reading the paper.

Miss Chauncey Tocque of Toronto gave a paper on Prince Edward Island. Miss Tocque has a charming manner of reading, and the paper was excellent, containing many very witty remarks. She described the first settlements on the island, the trouble over the settlement of the ownership of the land and the manners and customs of the people. The reading of this paper took about thirty minutes, and every one present was sorry when the end was reached. We are sure that Miss Tocque's paper on Newfoundland will receive a very warm welcome when the Society can arrange to have it read, and we hope that date will not be far distant.

The last number on the programme was a paper on "The Origin of Some Canadian Names," by Mr. W. G. Herrington, K.C. Mr. Herrington opened his paper with a short explanation of the manner which he wished to convey to his hearers, stating that it was not the purpose of the paper to furnish in any systematic order the history of any part of the country, but simply at random to treat of the origin of some of the geographical names with which we are familiar, and which, from time to time, are the occasions of history as might be necessary for that purpose. He treated his subject in an excellent manner and produced a paper which every one enjoyed. It was filling and also an interesting evening.

On motion of Mr. U. J. Flach and Mr. Marshall Bogart, a vote of thanks was tendered to those who had taken part in the programme and to Mr. Checkley for his good work.

The meeting concluded with "God Save the King."

Last Saturday afternoon, while the storm was at its height, a train of twenty-three cars of cattle, pulled in to Brockville from the west, and immediately was backed out on the local yards. The snow was deep and drifting, and efforts to move the cars were impossible until Sunday noon, when it continued to snow. The cattle were cold and hungry, but as no place in the local yards to turn them out, they were perished and a number were had frozen legs.

NEWBURGH.

At the meeting of Council on Monday night the report of the Auditors was received, showing the financial condition of the village, and the treasurer's statement has a cash surplus of upwards of $600.00, and the Board of Education a surplus of over $200.00 on current account.

Mr. Ryan reported the action taken by the County Council in regard to the bridge in the village. They had appointed a committee which would at once engage an engineer to prepare plans, and tenders will be asked for, and construction be proceeded with as soon as possible. Mr. T. B. Wilson was appointed engineer.

Mr. W. D. M. Shorey is to be heartily congratulated on his splendid success in his term law exams. at Osgoode Hall, the result of which were lately published. He stands eleventh in the list, 36 pass candidates, and in the honor examination list stands first. Newburgh will represent in coming to the top. Played, Played.

On Sunday night, in the Methodist church, Mr. Shorey addressed a large social League, read a comprehensive and exceedingly interesting report of the Conference E. L. Convention at Lindsay. The Rev. Dr. Chown, General Secretary, presided, made an appeal for the Missionary Forward Movement, the response to which

Mr. J. J. Shorey has sold his property on Main street to Mr. Hetherington, and will remove his family at once to the Mill property in the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoar Allen entertained friends from the town on Friday night of last week.

A lively hockey match was played by the town and H. S. teams on Thursday afternoon of last week, the score being 5 to 3 in favor of the town.

Warren Meacham returned from Gravenhurst last week.

Miss Muriel Nesbit returned to Toronto on Saturday to complete her musical studies at the Conservatory of Music.

Miss Vera Rose, of Richmond, visited last week at her grandmother's, Mrs. John Shorey, and with other relatives.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND.

WITTY AND INTERESTING LETTER FROM MR. G. A. AYLESWORTH.

26, Gt. Russell Street,
London, W. C.
Jany. 22d, 1908.

To The Beaver :—

As a shady rock in a sun-burnt land,—

As a drink that you didn't expect,—

The "Beaver" occasionally comes to hand,
And it's never the least in spacket !
Its home-brewed news just reaches the spot,
(Like Argyle's punts to the scratching Scot,)
To the homesick exile—Balm ! — that's what ! !
Then, here's to the "Beaver",—beloved as a brother ;
Long life to the "Beaver" ; (Send me another.)

Nonsense aside, really and truly the "Beaver's" arrival means more to a fellow like me, so far from home,—much more than I can "Express." They say that travellers are always under obligation to lie for the edification of those that stay at home ; but, born on the same continent as the late Geo. Washington,—likewise Mark Twain,—how shall I begin ? And having been practised—albeit somewhat sporadically,—as a political stump-radiator, my tongue knows but to tell plain truths ; also my pen.

Last season, all over the South Western country-side, I was assigned to advertised dates and stands, where I talked to the farmers and villagers—plain Bill to Dam—the cause over before the Conqueror,)—and his brothers and sisters, for the Liberals. This year they have loaded me with some three score of lime-light lantern-slides ; and I have to stand up on the stage, travel a great white sheet, and the foot-lights,—these last are relied forbad to convey the "stage-frightened "unaccustomed-as-I-am" confusion,— and also in order to bring out the views in sight of the audience. In short, it is a "Pannytannyy", and I'm the showman. O don't I wish I could have you and a few select others, here, "for one night only" to hear me and the magic lantern buzz ! (N.B.—"One night only" ! there on would be enough.) I've shown up, (or those, just as you prefer), at Staines (I regret to have to report that I came away from there without—I thought—a best—shutfity after the lecture. I "trod out sod'ly" without waiting to visit Hunnimede—not far,—to observe the volcanic traces of King John's lava-like language after having signed, sealed and delivered Magna Charta in the self-sacrificing spirit so characteristic of the Plantagenet. At Abraem, at Runnymede, assembled there just on purpose to oblige him, some 700 years since. Ah, those were fine and stirring old (Tory) times !

At the University town of Cambridge some 6,000 students missed an opportunity that may never occur again, by the mere accident of my lecture being on the Thursday evening previous to holidays' ending, and term's beginning. Otherwise Cambridge might have learned a great deal even before they finally left the University. Prof. Holgate and his wife, who entertained me at dinner, is proud of mine, showed me great kindness at Cambridge ; also scenes and buildings of unbounded beauty and unbounded historic interest. In Cambridge I saw also a round church ; there are only three other such in all England ; and on the road north westerly towards Willingham we passed along by a circular moated with thatch, which is still rater. Here we, here traversing Cromwell's own country, and I was filled with awe.

From Sittingbourne in "hops" Kent, strung along on both sides of the old Roman Watling-street, I—I put up at the "Crown" Inn,—I hadly came away for I was within a few miles of Canterbury with its cathedral and its memories of generations of pilgrims, and Thomas-a-Becket, who was a saint, and Henry II. who was a ——Plantagenet. I was bi'led to go through my revolutions next night in Berkshire ; and so could not go further toward Dover.

In times of old there was a bridge from Dover to Calais. History does not state it clear whether it was built by the Romans or by the Druids. Caesar landed at a promontory to was-ckaves ; and so did William, of Normandy. But the Spanish Armada in a fog, or in a funk, ran down it ; and it fell upon them, causing them to founder and to catch their death of cold through putting their feet wet, headforemost. I got these details from a member of the Canadian Parliament, who, needless to remind you how cautious, how painfully scrupulous he is and always was in any and every statement they make, as in becoming in men that feel the weight of their responsibility. The same kindly and unselfish historical authority leaked the following items also :—speaking of a certain walled town in the north, it is said, "Tent is where they beheaded Queen Elizabeth ; and the first Parliament that ever met in England, was held there ;—that's the time Cromwell walked in and told 'em to get out of 'ouse and 'ome and there were with 'em !!"

England is an uncommonly interesting country to travel in, if you happen to meet persons in possession of information and a friendly disposition. I met that if this gifted fellow-countryman were to see and hear a few more of it, he would assuredly instructive history, I should have to show right away off north, to behold Lincoln and Scarborough and Whitby &c.

Reading town in Berkshire, produced Archbishop Laud. He represented Reliance in that triumstrant of tyranny that for twenty years after 1628 imperilled Constitutional Liberty. Strafford himself, Earl of Strafford, rendered the conspiracy formidable by reason of his resolute will and his transcendent abilities ; King Charles I. supplied the sacred majesty of royalty. All these three brought their sects to the axe, with their wicked scheme. English stardy uprightness in the person of Oliver Cromwell, the citizenship of John Pym, destroyed Strafford first, the strongest of the three. Cromwell dealt with Charles. Laud, the least, was also the last.

At Luton I told them, "it behoves me to take heed ; for here in this very County of Bedfordshire, they put into jail, and kept there, John Bunyan, and there he dreamed "Pilgrim's Progress"—; if they so treated Bunyan, what may not Bedfordshire do unto me ? And yet, —"plate God,"—it may put me into its jail as soon as it likes, and keep me as Halligan, L. H. Baldwin, Percy Leadley, Wm. Ross (Port Perry), Dr. J. F. Ross, H. N. Evans, F. H. Gooch, A. C. Knight, Andrew Semple, H. G. Goodeham, R. T. Goodeham, H. B. Hodgins, S. Samuel, F. D. Benjamin, James Scott, F. J. Harris (Hamilton), A. H. Campbell, Wm. Mulock, Chas. Cockshutt, W. G. Cassels, C. H. Ritchie, K.C.; C. C. Ross, A. B. Boswell, K.C.; A. C. Morris, F. E. Macdonald, Thos. Walmsley, Colonel Sir Henry M. Pellatt, C. A. Bogert, Wm. Crocker and others.

It was moved by Mr. L. H. Baldwin, seconded by Mr. A. W. Austin, that Mr. E. R. Osler do take the chair, and that Mr. C. A. Bogart do act as Secretary.

Messrs. A. R. Boswell and W. G. Cassels were appointed scrutineers.

The Secretary read the report of the Directors to the Shareholders and submitted the Annual Statement of the affairs of the Bank, which is as follows.

To the Shareholders:

The Directors beg to present the following Statement of the result of the business of the Bank for the year ending 31st December, 1907:

Balance of Profit and Loss account, 31st December, 1906		$ 28,798 23
Premium received on new Capital Stock		933,456 87
Profits for the year ending 31st December, 1907, after deducting charges of management, etc., and making provision for bad and doubtful debts		635,525 51
		$1,597,400 71
Dividend 3 per cent., paid 2nd April, 1907	$ 85,140 79
Dividend 3 per cent., paid 2nd July, 1907	107,276 92
Dividend 3 per cent., paid 1st October, 1907	111,351 61
Dividend 3 per cent., payable 2nd January, 1908	114,413 63
	$418,513 23
Transferred to Reserve Fund	933,456 87
		1,362,350 10
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward		$235,140 61

RESERVE FUND

Balance at credit of account, 31st December, 1906	$3,900,000 00
Transferred from Profit and Loss Account	933,456 87
	$4,833,456 87

In view of the financial stringency which prevailed throughout the world in 1907, and the unsettled monetary conditions existing in the United States, it has been necessary to exercise unusual caution and prudence in administrating the affairs of the Bank. Our policy has been to restrict advances without interfering with the proper requirements of the customers of the Bank and to assist in marketing the products of the country—more especially the crops of the North Westerndistricts—at the same time maintaining strong Cash Reserves.

Having reference to our announcement at the Annual Meeting that one million dollars of new Capital Stock would be offered to the Shareholders in 1907, we have to inform you that on December 31st $933,700 of this amount was subscribed for, and $933,456.87 paid up.

During the past year it was considered advisable to establish Branches of the Bank at the following points: in the Province of Ontario, at Berlin, Hanover, Ottawa, and at the corner of Queen and Victoria streets, Toronto; in the Province of Quebec, at the corner of Bleury and St. Catherine streets, Montreal; in the Province of Alberta at Strathcona; and at Vancouver, British Columbia.

The opening of our Vancouver Office not only marks our entrance into British Columbia, but completes a chain of Branches from all important centres from Montreal to the Pacific coast, including the Capitals of the Western Provinces. Results so far indicate that these extensions will be of great benefit to the Institution.

We have to record with regret the death in January last of Mr. Timothy Eaton, whose varied business knowledge and wide influence made him a valued member of your Directorate. Mr. John C. Eaton, his son, was appointed to fill the vacancy on the Board.

The Directors also present herewith, duly verified the Head Office Balance Sheet, as on the 31st of December, 1907, including therein the auditing of our foreign balances and the certification of all Cash Effectors, Securities and Investments.

The usual careful inspection of the various Branches of the Bank has been made during the past twelve months.

E. R. OSLER,
President.

The Report was adopted.

The thanks of the Shareholders were tendered to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their services during the year, and to the General Manager and other Officers of the Bank for the efficient performance of their respective duties.

The following gentlemen were elected Directors for the ensuing year: Messrs. A. W. Austin, W. E. Brock, James Carruthers, H. J. Christie, J. C. Eaton, J. J. Foy, K.C., M.L.A., Wilmot D. Matthews, A. M. Nanton and E. R. Osler, M.P.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Mr. E. R. Osler, M. P., was elected President and Mr. W. D. Matthews Vice-President, for the ensuing term.

EASY TO MIX THIS.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or pain in the kidneys or groins. All the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless, can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in Doctors' offices, and often with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles, and backache, as it has certainly a tonic effect upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause much misery and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

SEATTLE'S WAR ON RATS.

(Baltimore 'American.')

"We have begun arresting people in Seattle who fail to comply with a recently passed ordinance relating to rats, said Dr. S. J. Fowler, of the State of Washington. 'Just before I left home two butchers were haled into court for violating the law in that they had failed to make their premises rat-proof.

"After the law was passed the police were overburdened with matter relating to rats and dealers in food products, that they must fortify their houses against the rodents or else be liable to arrest. The purpose was to cut off the rats from their source of sustenance, and thereby make easier their extermination. The butchers arrested did not try to make their places of business secure against the entrance of the pests, and they will no doubt have to suffer.

"We have slain tens of thousands of the rats since the campaign of destruction began, and are beginning to breathe more freely, for at one time it was the fear of our medical men that they might spread the bubonic plague that had appeared in San Francisco and cause a frightful sacrifice of human lives.

A LONG LIFE

How to Conserve Energy and Prolong Life.

The time comes to every one when life forces begin to fail. It is a little like the climb a fat man has up stairs. Exercise is taken less vigorously or abandoned, and we forget that the end of active service is drawing near.

It is more than probable that we have been over-driving the machine of the body which will give out like any machine if overtaxed, and we should immediately take steps to lighten the gear, build up the strength and restore the life forces. To this end nothing equals our delicious cod liver and iron preparation, Vinol, which is far superior to all other cod liver and cod liver preparations because it is made by a scientific, attractive, concentrating process from fresh cod's livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness and for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unexcelled.

LETTER FROM ENGLAND.

prison, the rest of my days, if thereby I shall be enabled to dream as well."

In Colchester Castle, (built out of swiped material—Rome is spelt 30 ft. thick!—in those rollicking times of our Uncle King Wm. Rufus, (ante A.D. 1100), I was shown the hole high up in the thick wall where for many years was immured a leper, whose friends wished to persuade him that his religion was not of the sort that is practised by Royal Head of the Church of that time, officially to sanction. By way of more effectually convincing him of his error, they would not provide him with anything to eat, until, ever time that hunger compelled him, he climbed down,—he's hole being about 15 ft. above the floor,—and humbly begged for it. The ladder they allowed him was only 7 ft., in length, but he was given a piece of rope, by which, after fastening the upper end, he could contrive to climb down as far as the top of the ladder, and then, after meals, he could go up again. One day he greatly diverted his warders by slipping through carelessness, and so falling down he broke some of his old bones. Seeing in no crime his chastisement he claimed that he was cold. They allowed him then to sleep in one of their lower dungeons, till he died, and was buried. I saw the dungeon, and can testify it was of such a size,—about—that a man, even that by lying crosswise from corner to corner, he could repose upon the floor, almost at full length, by only bending his lower limbs somewhat. In those pious times, from the King himself down to the meanest castle turnkey, how wonderful were they to the cause of true religion! How many of them there would trouble ourselves to half that extent, about the religious opinions of an old Quaker's! They leave him where where about the premises; but they are now unable to point out the exact spot, nor can they te sure whether the burial took place before, or after the stubborn old sinner's death!

My lecture at Horsham last night occupied only 1½ hours. I could have made it longer, but they wouldn't stay.

In the London head-office the young lady clerk handed me some newspaper clippings, about my lectures. The English reporters have inserted lots of remarks as having been made by me—things that it never entered into my poor head to conceive,—and after the lecture. And there are statements of fact about Canada that until to-day I never heard about! Where—in a word—of rhetoric—I said, "spirit of equality, as big as a woodchuck!"—they convert my "American language," as they name it,—into "big as a wood-chopper!"

Candidly, I admit that this is different. Yours reflectively,

GEO. ANSON AYLESWORTH.

GLEN—HILL.

An interesting ceremony was performed on Wednesday, 29th Jany., at the home of Mr. William Hill, when his second daughter, Mary, was united in marriage to Mr. Samuel Glen, Rev. J. Cumberland M.A., officiating. The bride, who was unattended, wore a becoming costume of white voile and white silk waist. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion and after the ceremony, after an elegant luncheon, the bride and groom left for a short wedding tour, after which they will reside in Shelby. Many good wishes and congratulations were extended to the happy couple, both of whom are deservedly popular.

FROM THE NEW GODS

HYOMEI'S AROMATIC AIR IS GUARANTEED TO CURE CATARRH OR COST NOTHING

When using the Hyomei treatment, the air you breathe is like that on the mountains high above sea level where the pine woods fill the air with aromatic healing that gives health and strength to those suffering from diseases of the respiratory organs. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, the healing balsams of Hyomei reach the most remote air cells of the throat, nose and lungs, destroying all catarrhal germs and giving quick relief and cure.

Hyomei has performed almost miraculous cures of catarrh, often restoring health in chronic cases that had given up all hope of recovery. Its best action is at the start of the disease, when the germs are first multiplying and when discharges from the nose, droppings in the throat and frequent sneezing or spasmodic coughing begin to make life a burden. At the first symptom of catarrhal trouble, use Hyomei and see how quickly you get relief and cure.

The complete outfit costs but $1.00 and is sold by T. B. Wallace, under guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Heart Streng

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nervousness, or Nerve Weakness—nothing else. Nervousness is not a disease, but a symptom, usually diseased. It is almost always the result of weak nerves. Nothing but nerve force makes the Cardiac, or Heart, Muscle contract. Nothing but nerve force gives stability, more controlling, more positive action to the heart. Therefore, if the heart is weak, and the nerves are weak, there is also controlling nerve force.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative has to the past done more for nervous, weak, ailing Hearts, than for the same of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating, fluttering, pain-filled host of heart sufferers, than all other remedies made. Because it is the one remedy that feeds weak nerves, strengthens weak nerves, restores lost nerve force. Because it offers such help—because it will help you if you will have strong Hearts, strong Hearts, strengthen these nerves—from them as needed, with

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

She leaned back in her chair, and again they laughed together, but only for a moment, becoming serious and very quiet almost instantly.

"I haven't thanked you for the roses," he said.

"Oh, yes, you did! When you first looked at them."

"So I did," he whispered. "I'm glad you saw. To find them here took my breath away—and to find you with them!—

"I brought them this morning, you know."

"Would you have come if you had not understood why I failed yesterday?"

"Oh, yes, I think so!" she returned, the fine edge of a smile upon her lips. "For a time last evening, before I heard what had happened, I thought you were too frightened a friend to bother about."

He made a little ejaculation, partly joyful, partly sad.

"And yet," she went on, "I think that I should have come this morning after all even if you had a poorer excuse for your absence, because, you see, I came on business."

"You did?"

"That's why I've come again. That makes it respectable for me to be here now, doesn't it—for me to have come out alone after dark without their knowing it? I'm here as your client, Joe."

"Why?" he asked.

She did not answer at once, but picked up a pen from beneath her hand on the desk and, turning it, meditatively felt its point with her forefinger before she said slowly, "Are most men careful of other people's—well, of other people's money?"

"You mean Martin Pike?" he asked.

"Yes. I want you to take charge of everything I have for me."

He bent a frowning regard upon the lampshade. "You ought to look after your own property," he said. "You surely have plenty of time."

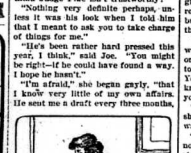
"You mean—you mean you won't help me?" she returned, with intentional pathos.

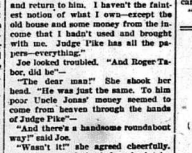
"Ariel!" he laughed shortly in answer; then asked,—"What makes you think Judge Pike isn't trustworthy?"

"Nothing very definite perhaps, unless it was his look when I told him that I meant to ask you to take charge of things for me."

"He's been rather hard pressed this year, I think," said Joe. "You might be right—if he could have found a way. I hope he hasn't."

"I'm afraid," she began gayly, "that I know very little of my own affairs. He sent me a draft every three months,





"Joe," she cried in a voice of great pain, "you mustn't feel like that! How do you know I'm going away again? Why should I want the old house put in order unless I mean to stay? And if I went you know that I could never change. You know how I've always cared for you"—

"Yes," he said, "I do know how. It was always the same, and it always will be, won't it?"

"I've shown that," she returned quickly.

"Yes. You say I know how you've cared for me, and I do. I know how. It's just in one certain way—Jonathan and David"—

"Isn't that a pretty good way, Joe?"

"Never fear that I don't understand! He got to his feet again and looked at her steadily.

"Thank you, Joe." She wiped sudden tears from her eyes.

"Don't you be sorry for me," he said. "Do you think that 'passing the love of women' isn't enough for me?"

"No," she answered humbly.

"I'll have people at work on the old house tomorrow," he began. "And for the—

"I've kept you so long!" she interrupted, helped to a meek sort of gayety by his matter of fact tone. "Good night, Joe." She gave him her hand.

"I don't want you to come with me. It isn't very late, and this is Canaan."

"I want to come with you, however," he said, picking up his hat. "You can't go alone."

"But you are so tired, you"—

She was interrupted. There were muffled, flying footsteps on the stairs and a shabby little man ran furtively into the room, shut the door behind him and set his back against it. His face was mottled like a colored soap thick lines of perspiration shining across the splotches.

"Joe," he panted, "I've got Nashville good, and he's got me good too. I got to clear out. He's fixed me good, but he won't trouble nobody"—

He broke across the room like a flying shadow.

"Quiet!" His voice rang like a shot, and the instant his hand fell sharply across the speaker's mouth. "In there, Happy!"

He threw an arm across the little man's shoulders and swung him toward the door of the other room.

Happy Fear looked up from beneath the down beat brim of his black slouch hat. His eyes followed an imperious gesture toward Ariel, gave her a brief, ghastly stare and stumbled into the inner chamber.

"Wait!" Joe said cavalierly to Ariel. He went in quickly after Mr. Fear and closed the door.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, February 3d, 1908.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding.

Members present — Reeve Symington, Councillors Kimmerly, Osborne, Denison, Simpson, Alexander, Steacy.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read, and on motion were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

From The Canadian Municipal Journal, regarding subscriptions at 50c a year. Ordered filed.

From E. H. Phelps, Reeve of Merrition, re equalization of property, saying he will present way is unfair to towns and villages and enclosed a blank form to be filled in and handed to the local member to be presented to the Local Legislature.

Moved by Coun. Denison, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the Mayor and Clerk execute the document and hand it to our local member, T. G. Marshall, Esq. Carried.

From G. H. Vandaltine, chief engineer of the Napanee Fire Brigade, asking that a horse be placed at the fire hall for drawing hose. Laid on table until later in the evening.

From Kingston General Hospital, asking for a grant. Reeve Symington said the County Council had reduced their grant from $600.00 to $500.00. He also stated that the citizens of Napanee had contributed about $600 in 1907 towards that institution.

Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that the communication be filed. Carried.

Moved in amendment by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Denison, that a grant of $25.00 be made.

Coun. Simpson was of the opinion that the citizens of Napanee were doing their duty towards the Kingston General Hospital.

Coun. Simpson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the Treasurer's monthly statement as follows:

	Over-draft	Balance on hand	Amount expended	Appropriation.
	310 27	1621 14	$3172 86
	72 75	1284 10	2715 00
			646 27	1000 00
			1155	1000 00
			1 83	150 00
				35 00
				50 00
				500 00
	69			289 00
	501 92	14 17	173 50
			386 50
			793 83

On motion the report was received and adopted.

Coun. Kimmerly, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, reported a new stove for fire hall, saying that the old stove was pronounced all right as for new in commission. Re demand for $200 extra per year from the Electric Light Commissioners for street lighting, no action was taken at the meeting, and he asked for further time to report. Adopted.

Re stationing a horse at the fire hall. Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the Fire, Water and Light Committee have power to act re providing a stall at the fire hall. Carried.

Also the matter of placing a fire whistle at the power house was placed in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report.

Mayor Meng stated that he had been served with a summons to appear on the 12th February, re action of James Taylor asking for damages of $50.00 and $4.00 costs, which he had placed in the hands of the Town Solicitor. The Coun cil sanctioned the action of the Mayor.

Coun. Osborne gave notice that he would at the next meeting introduce a by-law to amend by-law No. 447 of By-law No. 467, by adding the words "wages and freight charges."

Coun. Alexander said the Assessor would like to have a map of the town.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the Finance Committee instruct the Assessor to get a correct map of the town of Napanee and report to this Council. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Reeve Symington, that this Council instructs the Assessor to procure and use the forms prescribed in section 18 of the Assessment Act.

Yeas—Alexander, Denison, Kimmerly, Osborne, Simpson, Steacy, Symington. Nays—Meng.

ACCOUNTS.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:

L. Vandewater, shovelling snow, 13.08; J. N. Osborne, bedding, etc., for John Lynn, 53.50; R. McNeil, repairing chair, town hall, 51.50; J. R. Baker, coal, $14.00; M. N. Madole, wood for poor, $35.00; Wm. Dunn, P.M., fees, $4.50; J. G. Fennell, rope, etc., 95c; C. P. R., telegraphing and express, 11.95; Rathbun Engineering Co., nozzle, 14.00; Electric Light Commissioners, wire, 113.00; Dominion Rock Drill Co., supplies, 18.10; W. B. Johnston, work, town hall, 75c; Thos. Smith, shovelling snow, 11.50; G. T. Railway, rent for scales, $5.00; Dr. Stratton, professional services, poor, 16.00.

The following accounts were referred: T. B. Wallace, paint, etc., 12.58, to the Town Property Committee to report; Fire Brigade, repairs, 18.50 to Street Committee, with power to act.

The Treasurer produced vouchers for payments amounting to $146.74, and was granted a voucher for same in the Council.

Mr. Storms asked to have the weigh scales at the station repaired, as it was almost impossible to keep warm.

Reeve Symington said that the poor of the city of Belleville were looked after by a committee of ladies, and that the Council placed $1,500 to their credit at the beginning of the year, and as much as $200 had been received at the end of the year in some instances. He thought it would be a splendid plan for the Council of Napanee to work on.

On motion the Town Property Committee were authorized to repair the scales at the G. T. R. station. Carried.

Council adjourned.

DON'T SUFFER ALL WINTER

READ THIS EVIDENCE AND BEGIN TO-DAY TO CURE YOURSELF WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Its origin is generally rheumatism and is the direct result of taking cold. For this reason the disease is commonly known as "sciatic rheumatism."

There is only one thing more painful than sciatica and that is the treatment of it, as practiced. The sickening burning of the flesh is only one of the forms of cruelty employed by the old school doctors, and all too often this is entirely vain for the relief gained is but temporary.

It is a scientific fact that the majority of sciatica cases result from exposure to cold when the patient is "in an anaemic or bloodless condition, in which the nerve is literally starved. It needs no argument to show any reasonable person that a starved nerve cannot be fed by the application of a hot iron to the nerve flesh. It may deaden the sciatic pain for a time but it will not cure sciatica.

Absolute rest is the best aid to proper medical treatment. Hirst and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which actually make new blood and thus feed the starved nerve, will cure in most cases.

Mr. H. W. Awalt is one of the leading merchants of Hemford, N. S. A few years ago he was a great sufferer from this excruciating trouble. He says:—"The attack was so severe that I had been off work for some time. I was under the care of a doctor, were all drawn up and I could only walk along with the aid of a stick. The pain I suffered was terrible. I was in misery both day and night. Every movement caused me pain as only those who have been tortured with sciatica know. I was treated by several doctors, but they did not help me a bit. In fact I almost began to think my condition was hopeless, when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my notice. I got a half dozen boxes and used the entire quantity before I found any benefit. But I was encouraged and got a second half dozen boxes, and before these were all gone every vestige of the trouble had disappeared. Not only this, but I was improved in health in every way, as all will be readily understood that the king drugs of pain I had suffered had left me bad! run down. I can't say too too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I can't recommend them too strongly to other sufferers."

Sciatica is stubborn in resisting treatment and the patient often suffers for years. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not simply relieve the pain. They cure the disease caused by poor watery blood. They actually make new blood and have therefore a direct and powerful curative effect on such diseases as rheumatism, anaemia, general debility and after effects of the grip. As the nerves depend upon the blood for nourishment, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unequalled for the treatment of even the most severe nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, sciatica, paralysis, St. Vitus' dance and locomotor ataxia. As a tonic for the blood and nerves they are just everywhere with the greatest success, building up wasted bodies and bringing the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Oldest British Holiday.

The Saturday afternoon is the oldest British holiday. It originated in the eleventh century, when an edict of King Canute enacted that "every Saturday be kept from Saturday noon to Monday's dawn."

A Sign of Rain.

It is always a sure sign of rain when horses and cattle stretch their necks and snuff the air for a long time.

The Diamond.

A diamond is nothing but carbon, almost absolutely pure. If a diamond be raised to a white heat in the absence of oxygen it turns into a black mass, which is virtually the same as a piece of charcoal. Diamonds which are not absolutely white owe their tinge of color to the presence of oxides of various metals, such as iron.

Pulque.

It is estimated that the residents of the City of Mexico drink 75,000 gallons of pulque daily.

Table Linen.

The best laundresses give their table linen little if any starch, but iron it while it is quite damp, which makes it just stiff enough. Hot water should never be used in laundering fine table linen or embroidered doilies. Cold water and pure white soap containing borax will preserve their whiteness and beauty.

Babel.

Babel, now called Birs Nimroud, built at Babylon by Nimrod, was used as an observatory and as a temple of the sun. It was composed of eight square towers, one over the other, in all 670 feet high, and the same dimensions on each side of the ground.

The Red Cross.

The red cross was chosen as "the badge of the humane society out of compliment to Switzerland, the design, with the colors reversed, being the Swiss national flag. At the Geneva convention in 1864 the nations decided upon a common flag and badge for hospitals, surgeons, etc. The red cross was then chosen.

Labels on Bottles.

To remove paper labels from old bottles easily wet the face of the label with water and hold it for an instant over any convenient flame. The steam formed penetrates the label at once and softens the paste.

Musketry Fire.

At Waterloo the musketry fire of the foot guards, armed with the old clumsy Brown Bess, was so fatal that the heads of the charging French columns melted away before it without advancing, just as they probably would have done before machine gun fire.

Alfred de Musset.

Alfred de Musset fell in love with George Sand, and when she tired of him, as she did of every one else, he took to chastity and soon succeeded in drinking himself to death.

Sorrel Juice.

West Scotland is devoted to sorrel juice, and there isn't a village along the whole of the west Scottish coast where "sollie" is not to be had. It is harmless enough, but not to be recommended to any one with a weak stomach. It can be bought anywhere for about twopence a pint, and every little village grocer keeps a cask or two of "sollie."

Russia's Wheat.

Russia produces eight bushels of wheat to the acre and might produce twice or three times that quantity if the cultivation were as careful and systematic as in Germany or France.

Trees.

Trees which grow on the northern side of a hill are said to be much more durable and valuable for timber than those which grow on the southern side.

IT IS A LIVER PILL.—Many of the ailments that man has to contend with have their origin in a disordered liver, which is a delicate organ, peculiarly susceptible to the disturbances that result from irregular habits or lack of care in eating and drinking. Dr. Agnew's Pills for the great many sufferers now passed on the attention of sufferers, are the result of years of research by Parmelee's Vegetable Pill Store, operation though gentle is effective, and the most delicate can use them.

TESTED BY TIME.—In his justly-celebrated Pills, Dr. Parmelee has given to the world one of the most unique medicines of the age. It is just the right combination to meet the needs of a pill. Pills should be taken without nausea and what would be done without pain, if it be not all requirements in that direction, and it is a general law not only because of these two qualities but because it is known to possess alterative and cathartic powers which place it in the front rank of medicines.

Heart Strength

Heart strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness. Make the nerves strong and the heart is strong. It is useless to treat the heart directly. It is almost always a nervous disease. Get that really healthful blood that circulates to the cardiac, or Heart Nerve Centre, and you have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing power. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is that blood and nerve builder that makes kidneys also have more power.

Dr. Shoop, as a medicine, is different from the past done so much—relieved so many hearts, Dr. Shoop first sounds the cause of pain, palpitating, suffocating heart, then Dr. Shoop's Restorative—the nerve and blood builder—goes directly to those nerve centres that govern the heart. The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

She leaned back in her chair, and again they laughed together, but only for a moment, becoming serious and very quiet almost instantly.

"I haven't thanked you for the roses," he said.

"Oh, yes, you did! When you first looked at them."

"So I did," he whispered. "I'm glad you saw. To find them here took my breath away—and to find you with them"—

"I brought them this morning, you know."

"Would you have come if you had not understood why I called yesterday?"

"Oh, yes, I think so!" she returned, the fine edge of a smile upon her lips. "For a time last evening, before I heard what had happened, I thought they were too frightened a friend to bother about."

He made a little ejaculation, partly joyful, partly not.

"And yet," she went on, "I think that I should have come this morning after all even if you had a poorer excuse for your absence, because, you see, I came on business."

"You did?"

"That's why I've come again. That makes it respectable for me to be here now, doesn't it—for me to have come out alone after dark without their knowing it? I'm here as your client, Joe."

"Why?" he asked.

She did not answer at once, but picked up a pen from beneath her hand on the desk and, turning it, hesitatively felt its point with her forefinger before she said slowly, "Are most men careful of other people's—well, of other people's money?"

"You mean Martin Pike?" he asked.

"Yes. I want you to take charge of everything I have for me."

He bent a frowning regard upon the lampshade. "You ought to look after your own property," he said. "You surely have plenty of time."

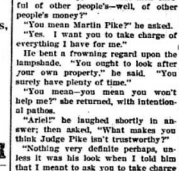
"You mean—you mean you won't help me?" she returned, with intentional pathos.

"Ariel!" he laughed shortly in answer; then asked, "What makes you think Judge Pike isn't trustworthy?"

"Nothing very definite perhaps, unless it was his look when I told him that I meant to ask you to take charge of things for me."

"He's been rather hard pressed this year, I think," said Joe. "You might be right—if he could have found a way. I hope he hasn't."

"I'm afraid," she began gayly, "that I know very little of my own affairs. He sent me a draft every three months,



"Joe," she cried in a voice of great pain, "you mustn't feel like that!"

and I've always thrown the letter away with receipts and other things to sign and return to him. I haven't the faintest notion of what I owe—except the old house and some money from the income that I hadn't used and brought with me. Judge Pike has all the papers—everything."

Joe looked troubled. "And Roger Tabor, did he"—

"The dear man!" She shook her head. "He was just the same. To him poor Uncle Jonas' money seemed to come from heaven through the hands of Judge Pike"—

"And there's a handsome roundabout way!" said Joe.

"Wasn't it!" she agreed cheerfully. "And he trusted the judge absolutely. I don't, you see."

He gave her a thoughtful look and nodded. "No, he isn't a good man," he said, "not even according to his lights, but I doubt if he could have managed to get away with anything of consequence after he became the administrator. He wouldn't have tried it probably unless he was more desperately pushed than I think he has been. It would have been too dangerous. Suppose you wait a week or so and think it over."

"But there's something I want you to do for me immediately, Joe."

"What's that?"

"I want the old house put in order I'm going to live there."

"Alone?"

"I'm almost twenty-seven, and that's being enough of an old maid for me to risk Canaan's thinking me eccentric, isn't it?"

"It will think anything you do is all right."

"And once," she cried, "it thought everything I did wrong."

"Yes. That's the difference."

"You mean it will commend me because I'm thought rich?"

"No, no," he said meditatively, "it isn't that. It's because everybody will be in love with you."

"Quite everybody?" she asked.

"Certainly," he replied. "Anybody who didn't would be absurd."

"Ah, Joe!" she laughed. "You always were the nicest boy in the world, my dear!"

At that he turned toward her with a sudden new interest, and his lips parted, but not to speak. She had reached one arm upon the desk and her cheek upon her hand; the pen she had picked up, still absently held in her fingers, touching her lips, and it was given to him to know that he would always keep that pen, though he should never write with it again. The soft lamplight fell across the lower part of her face, leaving her eyes, which were lowered thoughtfully, in the shadow of her hat. The room was blotted out in darkness behind her. Like the background of an antique portrait, the office, with its dusty corners and shelves and hideous safe, had vanished, leaving the charming and thoughtful face revealed against an even, spacious brownness. Only Ariel and the roses and the lamp were clear, and a strange, small pain moved from Joe's heart to his throat as he thought that this ugly office, always before so harsh and grim and lonely—smelliest for him when it had been most crowded—was now transfigured into something very, very different from an office; that this place where he sat, with a lamp and flowers on a desk between him and a woman who called him "my dear" must be like—like something that people called "home."

And then he leaned across the desk toward her as he said again what he had said a little while before, and his voice trembled:

"Ariel, it is you?"

She looked at him and smiled.

"You'll be here always, won't you? You're not going away from Canaan again?"

For a moment it seemed that she had not heard him. Then her bright glance at him wavered and fell. She rose, turning slightly away from him, but not so far that he could not see the sudden agitation in her face.

"Ah," he cried, rising, too, "I don't want you to think I don't understand or that I meant I should ever ask you to stay here! I couldn't mean that. You know I couldn't, don't you? You know I understand that it's all just your beautiful friendliness, don't you?" She isn't beautiful; it's just me, Joe," she said, "it couldn't be any other way."

"It's enough that you should be here now," he went on bravely, his voice steady, though his hand shook. "Nothing so wonderful as your staying could ever actually happen. It's just a light coming into a dark room and out again. One day long ago, I never forgot it, some apple blossoms blew by me as I passed an orchard, and it's like that too. But, oh, my dear, when you go you'll leave a fragrance in my heart that will last!"

She turned toward him, her face suffused with a rosy light. "You'd rather have died than have said that to me once," she cried. "I'm glad you're weak enough now to confess it!"

He sank down again into his chair, and his arms fell heavily on the desk. "Confess it!" he cried desperately. "And you don't deny that you're going away again—so it's true! I wish I hadn't realized it, then. I think I'd rather have tried to fool myself about it a little longer!"

"Joe," she cried in a voice of great pain, "you mustn't feel like that! How do you know I'm going away again? Why should I want the old house put in order unless I mean to stay? And if I went you know that I could never change. You know how I've always cared for you"—

"Yes," he said, "I do know how. It was always the same, and it always will be, won't it?"

"I've shown that," she returned quickly.

"Yes. You say I know how you've cared for me, and I do. I know how. It's just in one certain way—Jonathan and David"—

"Isn't that a pretty good way, Joe?"

"Never fear that I don't understand!" He got to his feet again and looked at her steadily.

"Thank you, Joe." She wiped sudden tears from her eyes.

"Don't you be sorry for me," he said. "Do you think that 'passing the love of women' isn't enough for me?"

"No," she answered humbly.

"I'll have people at work on the old house tomorrow," he began. "And for the"—

"I've kept you so long!" she interrupted, helped in a meek sort of gayety by his matter of fact tone. "Good night, Joe." She gave him her hand. "I don't want you to come with me. It isn't very late, and this is Canaan."

"I want to come with you, however," he said, picking up his hat. "You can't go alone."

"But you are so tired, you"—

She was interrupted. There were muffled, flying footsteps on the stairs and a shabby little man run furtively into the room, shut the door behind him and set his back against it. His face was mottled like a colored map with thick lines of perspiration shining across the splotches.

"Joe," he panted, "I've got Nashville good, and he's got one good too. I got to clear out. He's fixed me good, but he won't trouble nobody"—

Joe was across the room like a flying shadow.

"Quiet!" His voice rang like a shot, and on the instant his hand fell sharply across the speaker's mouth. "In there, Happy!"

He threw an arm across the little man's shoulders and swung him toward the door of the other room.

Happy Fear looked up from beneath the dome's bent brim of his black slouch hat. His eyes followed an imperious gesture toward Ariel, gave her a brief, ghastly stare and stumbled into the inner chamber.

"Wait!" Joe said cavalierly to Ariel. He went in quickly after Mr. Fear and closed the door.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, February 3d, 1908.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding.

Members present — Reeve Symington, Councillors Kimmerly, Osborne, Denison, Simpson, Alexander, Stacey.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read, and on motion were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS

From The Canadian Municipal Journal, soliciting subscriptions at 50c a year. Ordered filed.

From E. H. Phelps, Reeve of Merrittton, re equalization of property, saying the system is unfair to towns and villages and enclosed a blank form to be filled in and handed to the local assessor to be presented to the Local Legislature.

Moved by Coun. Denison, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the Mayor and Clerk execute the document and hand it to our local member, T. G. Carscallen, Esq. Carried.

From G. H. Vanalstine, chief engineer of the Napanee Fire Brigade, asking for a horse be placed at the fire hall for drawing hose. Laid on table until later in the evening.

From Kingston General Hospital, asking for a grant. Reeve Symington and the County Council had reduced their grant from $600.00 to $500.00. He also stated that the citizens of Napanee had contributed about $600 in 1907 towards that institution.

Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that the communication be filed. Carried.

Moved in amendment by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Denison, that a grant of $25.00 be made.

Coun. Simpson was of the opinion that the citizens of Napanee were doing their duty towards the Kingston General Hospital.

Coun. Simpson, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented the Treasurer's quarterly statement as follows:

On motion the report was received and adopted.

Coun. Kimmerly, Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, reported as to stove for fire hall, saying that the old stove was pronounced all right as to conversion. He demand for the $300 extra per year from the Electric Light Commissioners for street lighting, so action was taken at the meeting, and he asked for further time to report. Adopted.

He stationing a horse at the fire hall. Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the Fire, Water and Light Committee have power to act re providing a stall at the fire hall. Cd.

Also the matter of placing a fire whistle at the power house was placed in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to report.

Mayor Meng stated that he had been served with a summons to appear on the 12th February, re action of James Taylor asking for damages of $50.00 and $4.00 costs, which he had placed in the hands of the Town Solicitor. The Council sanctioned the action of the Mayor.

Coun. Osborne gave notice that he would at the next meeting introduce a motion to amend clause 36 of By-law No. 467, by adding the words "wagon and freight charges."

Coun. Alexander said the Assessor would like to have a map of the town.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the Assessor's committee ascertain the cost of a correct map of the town, and report to this Council. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Reeve Symington, that this Council instructs the Assessor to procure and use the forms prescribed in section 18 of the Assessment Act.

Yeas—Alexander, Denison, Kimmerly, Osborne, Simpson, Stacey, Symington. Nays—Ming.

The Treasurer produced vouchers for payments amounting to $149.74, and was granted a voucher for same by the Council.

Mr. Stearns asked to have the weigh scales at the station repaired, as it was almost impossible to keep warm.

Reeve Symington drew the attention of the city of Belleville were looked after by a committee of ladies, and that the Council placed $1,000 to their credit at the beginning of the year, and at much as $200 had been expended at the end of the year in some instances. He thought it would be a splendid plan for the Council of Napanee to work on.

On motion the Town Property Committee were authorized to repair the scales at the G. T. R. station. Carried.

Council adjourned.

DON'T SUFFER ALL WINTER

READ THIS EVIDENCE AND BEGIN TO-DAY TO CURE YOURSELF WITH DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS.

Sciatica is neuralgia of the sciatic nerve. Its origin is generally rheumatism and it is a direct result of taking cold. For this reason the disease is commonly known as "sciatic rheumatism."

There is only one thing more painful than sciatica, and that is the treatment of it, as practiced. The sickening burning of the flesh is only one of the forms of torture inflicted by the old school doctors, and all too often this is entirely vain for the relief gained is but temporary.

It is a scientific fact that the majority of sciatica cases result from exposure to cold when the patient is in an anaemic or bloodless condition, when the nerve is literally starved. It needs no argument to show any reasonable person that a starved nerve cannot be fed by the application of a hot iron to the outer flesh. It may relieve the pain for a time but it will not cure sciatica.

Absolute rest is the best aid to proper medical treatment. Rest and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which actually make new blood and thus feed the starved nerve, will cure most cases.

Mr. H. W. Awalt is one of the leading merchants of Blenheim, N. S. A few years ago he was a great sufferer from this excruciating trouble. He says:— "The attack was so severe that I had been off work for some time. The cords of my leg were all drawn up and I could only limp along with the aid of a stick. My leg was terribly painful, and was in misery both day and night. Every movement caused me pain and as only those who have been tortured with sciatica know, I was treated by several doctors, but they did not help me a bit. In fact I almost began to think my condition was hopeless, when Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were brought to my notice. I got a half dozen boxes. I had used the entire quantity before I found any benefit. But I was encouraged and got a second half dozen boxes, before these were all gone every vestige of the trouble had disappeared. Not only this, but I was improved in health in every way, as it will be readily understood that the long siege of pain I had suffered had left me badly run down. I can't say too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I can't recommend them too strongly to other sufferers."

Sciatica is stubborn in resisting treatment and the patient often suffers for years. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do not simply relieve the pain. They cure the disease caused by poor watery blood. They actually make new blood and have therefore a direct and powerful cognitive effect on such diseases as rheumatism, anaemia, general debility and after effects of the grip. As the nerves depend upon the blood for nourishment, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are unequalled for the treatment of even the most severe nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus dance and locomotor ataxia. As a tonic for the blood and nerves they are unsurpassed, building up wasted tissues and bringing the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Oldest British Holiday.

The Saturday afternoon is the oldest British holiday. It originated in the eleventh century, when an edict of King Canute enacted that "every Sunday shall be kept from Saturday noon to Monday's dawn."

A Sign of Rain.

It is always a sure sign of rain when horses and cattle stretch their necks and snuff the air for a long time.

The Diamond.

A diamond is nothing but carbon, almost absolutely pure. If a diamond be raised to a white heat in the absence of oxygen it turns into a black mass, which is virtually the same as a piece of charcoal. Diamonds which are not absolutely white owe their tinge of color to the presence of oxides of various metals, such as iron.

Pulque.

It is estimated that the residents of the City of Mexico drink 75,000 gallons of pulque daily.

Table Linen.

The best laundresses give their table linen little if any starch, but iron it while it is quite damp, which makes it just stiff enough. Hot water should never be used in laundering fine table linen or embroidered doilies. Cold water and pure white soap containing borax will preserve their whiteness and beauty.

Babel.

Babel, now called Birs Nimroud, built at Babylon by Belus, was used as an observatory and as a temple of the sun. It was composed of eight square towers, one over the other, in all 670 feet high, and the same dimensions on each side of the ground.

The Red Cross.

The red cross was chosen as the badge of the humane society out of compliment to Switzerland, the design, with the colors reversed, being the Swiss national flag. At the Geneva convention in 1864 the nations decided upon a common flag and badge for hospitals, surgeons, etc. The red cross was then chosen.

Labels on Bottles.

To remove paper labels from old bottles easily wet the face of the label with water and hold it for an instant over the convenient flame. The steam formed penetrates the label at once and softens the paste.

Musketry Fire.

At Waterloo the musketry fire of the foot guards, armed with the old clumsy Brown Bess, was so fatal that the bands of the charging French columns melted away before it without advancing, just as they probably would have done before machine gun fire.

Alfred de Musset.

Alfred de Musset fell in love with George Sand, and when she tired of him, as she did of every one else, he took to drinking, and soon succeeded in drinking himself to death.

Sorrel Juice.

West Scotland is devoted to sorrel juice, and there isn't a village along the banks of the west Scottish coast where "sollie" is not to be had. It is harmless enough, but not to be recommended to any one with a weak stomach. It can be bought anywhere for about twopence a pint, and every little village grocer keeps a cask or two of "sollie."

Russia's Wheat.

Russia produces of bushels of wheat to the acre and might produce twice or three times that quantity if the cultivators were as careful and systematic as in Germany or France.

Trees.

Trees which grow on the northern side of a hill are said to be much more durable when converted into deal boards than those which grow on the southern side.

"THEY SELL WELL" says Druggist O'Dell of truro, N.S. Want any further evidence of the real merit of Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets as a cure for all forms of stomach trouble than that they're in such great demand? Not a specimen into dose that makes one's very bodies rebel—but a pleasant, quick and harmless—a they tablet to carry in your pocket. 25 cents. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—tf.

THREE GENERATIONS IN PULPIT.

Paterson, N. J., Guardian.

Three generations of the family of Rev. Robert D. Aylsworth took part in the services at the Grace M. E. church, of which he is pastor, yesterday and last night. The day was made eventful by the presence of David W. Aylsworth, of New London, N.Y., father of the pastor, who celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday by preaching two powerful sermons. The elder Mr. Aylsworth, his son and his grandson occupied the pulpit at the same time in the evening.

After the sermon in the morning Walter J. Holt, in behalf of the choir, in a few well chosen words, presented Rev. Mr. Aylsworth with a gold-headed ebony cane, suitably engraved. In responding to the presentation Mr. Aylsworth said that the use of a cane indicated either a weak body or a weak head. He protested gainst the assumption that he had either infirmity, though he accepted the cane with many thanks. The large congregation dispersed in a very happy frame of mind.

At 2 o'clock the large Sunday School gathered in the spacious lecture room of the church. As Rev. Aylsworth, sr., was entering he was invited into the room of the class of his grandson; H. F. Aylsworth, where the nineteen young men of the class presented him with a beautiful bouquet of roses.

"Such a scene was never witnessed before in Grace church," was the remark of one of the oldest members as the service closed. It is said to have been the result of a fervent prayer offered by the pastor and carried to a successful issue by the devoted officers and teachers. It means also that this church has a contract on its hands in caring for this large body of young Christians.

At the evening service a large congregation gathered. After a delightful praise service, led by the efficient choir, Robert Putnam Aylsworth, son of the pastor, read the psalter, following which the pastor offered prayer and the pastor's father preached the sermon. The unique feature was that three generations of the same family occupied the pulpit at the same time.

The results of the evangelistic services to date, including the wonderful demonstration of yesterday, is said to be about two hundred and eight persons having publicly accepted Christ. The meeting will be continued during this week. The members of the church are greatly gratified over the outcome of the meetings and are enthusiastic and united in the support of their pastor.

Rev. David W. Aylsworth is the eldest son of the late Robt. Aylsworth, one of the fathers of Ernestown, and is an old Ernestown boy. He is also an uncle of Mr. B. G. Hamm, the present Reeve o Ernestown.—Ed.

The next meeting of the Club will be held on Friday afternoon, 14th February, at 4 p.m. It will be "Students' Day," under the management of Miss Light. This will be a specially interesting programme.

A GOOD "TRAVELLER."

Mr. A. A. Campbell, representing The Christie-Brown Biscuit Co., Toronto, was in Deseronto yesterday afternoon. Being a business man he was anxious to reach Napanee, to get on the afternoon train of the G.T.R., and as the B. of Q. Ry. was frozen in with no prospects of a train getting through, he left Deseronto on foot at 4 p.m., arriving here at 6.45 p. m. Mr. Campbell also reports heavy drifts, but made the seven miles without having a hair. Mr. Campbell also carried a fur coat and a large grip. It's not many who can "carry the grip" who would tackle a job like that.

Walter J. Scott, a Grand Trunk brakeman, saved the life of Mrs. Legault at Stratheona, Quebec, by snatching her off the track, but was himself killed by the International Limited train.

The Messrs. S. M. Conger Co., who have published The Picton Gazette for about fifty years, have retired from active business. The new publisher will be Mr. E. Weldon Sheriff, who has been an employee of the paper for years.

HAWLEY & MAYBEE

MOVE ON!—MOVE ON!!

We Have Been Doing Police Duty in Every Department.

All Laggards and Loiterers Given the "Move On!" "Move On!" Sign.

We must be custodians of our stocks—we must compel tag-ends, oddments and endments to "Move On" in this store—stagnation is the death of trade.

No inert, torpid, lazy stocks here. When lines become broken—when pieces dwindle to remnants—when odds and ends crop up, they are not allowed to accumulate. WE GET BUSY DOING POLICE DUTY.

We go after them with the big stick, and prices are radically and effectively lowered.

What is the natural result? What happens to the seasonable, desirable, fashionable goods when they are priced far below regular? They "Move On" and they move at a pretty lively gait.

These are facts of the story we have to tell to-day---but the figures are the interesting part of it.

Remember — it's time for all oddments and endments to go. Spring goods are pushing them from behind. They must "Move On." Remember all sorts of oddments and endments of staple lines have received "Move On" orders, and will leave the store in triple quick time.

Movement begins Saturday, February 8th.

This was Joseph Louden, attorney at law. And to Ariel it was like a new face seen in a flashlight—not as all the face of Joe. The sense of his strangeness, his unfamiliarity in this electrical aspect, overcame her. She was possessed by astonishment. Did she know him so well after all? The strange client had burst in, shaken beyond belief with some passion unknown to her, but Joe, alert and masterful beyond denial, had controlled him instantly; had swept him into the other room as with a broom. Could it be that Joe sometimes did other things in the same sweeping fashion?

She heard a match struck in the next room and the voices of the two men—Joe's, then the other's, the latter at first broken and protestive, but soon rising shrilly. She could hear only fragments. Once she heard the client cry, almost scream, "Joe, I thought Claudine had chased him away! There to do me!" And instantly followed Louden's voice:

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

The name "Claudine" startled her, and, although she had had no comprehension of the argot of Happy Fear, the sense of a mysterious catastrophe oppressed her. She was sure that something horrible had happened. She went to the window, touched the shade, which disappeared upward immediately, and lifted the sash. The front of a square building in the courthouse square was bright with lights, and figures were passing in and out of the Main street doors. She remembered that this was the jail.

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

"Claudine!" The voice of the husband of Claudine was like the voice of one lamenting over Jerusalem.

"Steady, Happy, steady!"

But, Joe, if they git me, what'll she do? She won't let her job no longer—not after this."

The door opened, and the two men came out. Joe with his hand on the other's shoulder. The splotches had gone from Happy's face, leaving it an even, ghastly white. He did not glance toward Ariel. He gazed far beyond all that was about him, and suddenly she was aware of a great tragedy. The little nasal chin trembled, and he swallowed painfully. Nevertheless he bore himself upright and dauntlessly as the two walked slowly to the door, like men taking parts in some fateful ceremony. Joe stopped upon the landing at the head of the stairs, but Happy Fear went on, clumping heavily down the steps.

"It's all right, Happy," said Joe. "It's better for you to go alone. Don't you worry. I'll see you through. It will be all right."

"Most as you say, Joe," a breaking voice came back from the foot of the steps—"just as you say."

The lawyer turned from the landing and went rapidly to the window beside Ariel. Together they watched the shabby little figure cross the street below, and she felt an infinite pathos gathering about it as it paused for a moment, hesitating, underneath the arc lamp at the corner. They saw the white face lifted as Happy Fear gave one last look about him; then he slid his shoulders sturdily and steadfastly entered the door of the jail.

Joe took a deep breath. "Now we'll go," he said. "I must be quick."

"What was it?" she asked tremulously as they reached the street. "Can you tell me?"

"Nothing; just an old story."

He had not offered her his arm, but walked on hurriedly a pace ahead of her, though she came as rapidly as she could. She put her hand rather timidly on his sleeve, and without speed or more words from her he understood her insistence.

"That was the husband of the woman who told you her story," he said. "Perhaps it would shock you less if I told you now than if you heard it tomorrow, as you will. He's just shot the other man."

"Killed him!" she gasped.

"Yes," he answered. "He wanted to run away, but I wouldn't let him. He has my word that I'll clear him, and I made him give himself up."

CHAPTER XVI.

WHEN Joe left Ariel at Judge Pike's gate she lingered there, for her eyes upon the upper-most crossbar, like a village girl at twilight, watching his thin figure vanish into the heavy shadow of the maples, then emerge momentarily short gray and rapid at the lighted crossing down the street, to disappear again under the trees beyond, followed a second later by a brownish streak as the moonlight beiled after him. When they had passed the second corner she could no longer be certain of them, although the street was straight, with flat, draftsmanlike western directness, both figures and Joe's quick footsteps emerging with the night. Still she did not turn to go, did not after her position nor cease to gaze down the dim street. Few lights shone, almost all the windows of the houses were darkened, and save for the summer crone of crickets and the intermittent bark of insects in the grass there was stillness, drowsiness and somnolent hush, swathed in which was that gray canyon crosses to the far side of the eleventh block.

But Ariel, not soothed by this balm, sought beyond it to see that unquiet Canaan whither her old friend beat his steps and found his lair and his dwelling—that other Canaan where people did not fall comfortably with the coming of darkness, place as often in habit, in thought and almost in speech as if it had been upon another continent. And yet as strange is the duality of towns—it lay but a few blocks distant.

Here about Ariel as she stood at the gate of the Pike mansion the houses of the good (secure of salvation and daily bread) were closed and quiet, as safely shut and sound asleep as the churches. But deeper in the town there were late light and life and merry, evil industry, screened, but strong, at last until morning. There were haunts of unrestrained merriment in pleasure; superstitious chambers where pasteboard wheels swam beneath dizzied eyes; ill favored bars, reached by devious ways, where quavering voices offered song and were harshly checked. And through the burdened air of this Canaan wandered heavy smells of cooking like that upon Happy Fear's wife, who now for now be so pale beneath her rouge. And there was the smell of beer, and because of all this was that door next to which Joe now made his way—that tavern whose lights burn all night long, whose doors are never closed, but are open from dawn until dawn—the jail.

There in that desolate refuge lay Happy Fear, surrendered, stupidly by himself at Joe's word. The picture of the little man was clear and fresh in Ariel's eyes, and, though she had seen him when he was newly come from a thing so terrible that she could not realize it as a fact, she felt only an overwhelming pity for him. She was not even herself stricken, though she had shuddered. The pathos of the shabby little figure crossing the street toward the lighted doors had touched her, but there had been no fear when he left her, for he had not seemed wicked. His face was not cruel, though it was desperate. Perhaps it was partly the desperation which had moved her. She had understood Joe when he told her that this man was his friend and comprehended his great fear when he added: "I've got to clear him! I promised him!"

Over and over Joe had reiterated: "I've got to save him! I've got to!" And he had spoken gently, "Yes, Joe," hurrying to keep up with him. "He's a good man," he said. "I've known few better, given his chances. And none of this would have happened except for his old time friendship for me. It was his loyalty—oh, the rarest and absurdest loyalty!—that got him first trouble between him and the man he shot. I've got to clear him."

"Will it be hard?"

"They may make it so. I can only see part of it surely. When his wife left the office she met Claudine in the street. You saw what a pitiful kind of fool she was, irresponsible and hopeless and feather light. There are thousands of women like that—and where—some of them are 'court beauties.' I dare say—but they always mix things up, but they are not dangerous when they're like Claudine, because then they're among men of action like Cory and Fear. Cory was artful. He spent the day about town telling people that he had always liked Happy; that his ill feeling of yesterday was all gone. He wanted to find him and shake his hand, bury past troubles and be friends. I think he told Claudine the same thing when they met and convinced the tiny brain-let of his sincerity. Cory was a man who 'had a way with him,' and I can see Claudine flattered at the idea of being peacemaker between two such nice gen'lemen as Mr. Cory and Mr. Fear.' Her commonest reservation—quite genuine, too—is that she doesn't like to have the gen'lemen making trouble about her. So the poor imbecile led him to where her husband was waiting. All that Happy knew of this was in her cry afterward. He was armed; saw, when Cory threw open the door and met Fear face to face this time, Happy! His pistol was raised, but never fired. He waited too long, meaning to establish the plea of 'self defense,' and Fear is the quicker-set man I know. Cory fell just inside the door. Claudine came running after him as she came running after Ariel, crying out to her husband that she never meant no trouble to that. Cory had sworn to her that he only wanted to shake hands and 'make up.' Other people heard the shot and broke into the room, but they did not try to find Fear. He warned them off and walked out without Claudine and came to me. I've got to clear him."

Ariel knew what he meant. She realized the actual things as it was and, though possessed by a strange feeling that it must all be mediaeval and not possible today, understood that he would have to fight to free his friend from being killed; that the unhappy creature who had run into the office out of the dark stood in high danger of having his sick broken unless Joe could help him. It was clear to her that the state would kill Happy if it could; that it would be a point of pride with certain corporate men holding office to take the life of this little man; that if they did secure his death it would be set down to their efficiency and was even competent as evidential material. "I wish to point out," Joe had heard a candidate for re-election vehemently orate, "that in addition to the other successful convictions I have gained I and my assistants have achieved the sending of three men to the gallows during my term of office."

"I can't tell you," said Joe at parting. "It may be hard. I'm so sorry you saw all this, I"—

"Oh, no!" she cried. "I want to understand."

She was still that at the gate, her elbows resting upon the crossbar, for a long time after Joe had gone there came to her the sound of a step behind the big house, and the figure of a quartet of those dark strollers who never know a bed, who play by night and playfully pretend to work by day:

"You know my soul is a-full o' them-a-trub-bils

"Them-a-trub-bils!

I can' a-walk without I stum-bil!

Then let me go on—

Then let me go on—

Those things is sow'ceful, sur' I am pow'ceful—

Sick an' fo'lawn!

She heard a step upon the path behind her and, startling, saw a white wrapped figure coming toward her.

"Manie!" she called.

"Hush!" Mamie lifted a warning hand. "The windows are open," she whispered. "They might hear you!"

"Why haven't you gone to bed?"

"Oh, don't you see?" Mamie answered in deep distress. "I've been sitting up for you. We all thought you were writing letters in your room, but after supper when I went in to tell you good night, and you weren't there nor anywhere else, I knew you must have gone out. I've been sitting by the front window waiting to let you in, but I went to bed until I heard, while ago, when the telephone bell rang. Ma got up and answered it. He kept talking a long time. It was something about the Tocsin, and I'm afraid there's been a murder downtown. When he went back to bed I fell asleep again, and then those darkies woke me up. And on earth did you expect to get in? Don't you know he always locks up the house?"

"I could have rung," said Ariel.

"Oh, oh!" gasped Miss Pike, and after she had recovered somewhat asked: "Do you mind telling me where you've been? I won't tell him, nor anyone, either. I think, after all, I was wrong yesterday to follow Eugene's advice. He meant for the best, but I"—

"Don't think that. You weren't wrong." Ariel put her arm round the other's waist. "I went to talk over some things with Mr. Louden."

"I think," whispered Mamie, trembling, "that you are the bravest girl I ever knew—and—and I could almost believe there's some good in him since you like him so. I know there is. And I—I think he's had a hard time. I want you to know I would even tell Eugene."

"You can tell everybody in the world," said Ariel and kissed her.

CHAPTER XVII.

"NEVER," said the Tocsin on the morrow, "has this community been stirred to deeper indignation than by the cold blooded and unmitigated brutality of the deliberate murder committed almost under the very shadow of the courthouse cupola last night. The victim was not a man of good repute, it is true, but at the moment of his death he was in the act of performing a noble and generous action, which showed that he might have become of use to society and the law fearing citizen. Actuated by a desire to forgive his enemy and was stretched out in the hand of fellowship when that enemy shot him down. Not half an hour before his death Cory had repeated within the hearing of a dozen men what he had before said to others, as many can testify: 'I want to find my old friend Fear and shake hands with him. I want to tell him that I forgive him and that I am ashamed of whatever has been my part in the trouble between us.' He went with that intention to his death. The wife of the murderer has confessed that this was the substance of what he said to her and that she was convinced of his peaceful intentions.

"When they reached the room where her husband was waiting for her Cory entered first. The woman claims now that as they neared the vicinity he had his life. The dead man came to his with protestations of friendship and was struck down a corpse.

"It is understood that the defense will in deposition set up the theory of self defense, based on an unsubstantiated claim that Cory entered the room with a drawn pistol, no pistol was found in the room. The weapon with which the deed was accomplished was found upon the person of the murderer when he was seized by the police, a short time after the commission of the crime. Another revolver was found in the pocket of the woman when she was arrested on the scene of the crime. This upon being strictly investigated was also had upon being strictly investigated was also had picked up from the floor in the confusion, thinking it was her husband's and upon the pavement. The chambers were full and undischarged, and we have heard it surmised that the defense intends to claim that it was Cory's. Cory doubtless went on his errand of forgiveness unarmed, and beyond doubt the murderer's ready access to the woman herself, who has an unenviable record—

"The point of it all is plainly this: Here is an unquestionable murder in the first degree, and the people of this city and county are entitled to be assured that such a crime should have its punishment in their law abiding and respectable community. For whom does the fault lie? On whose head is this murder? Not with the authorities, for they do not commit crime. Has it come to pass that, constituting as they do the law, citizens believe that they may kill, maim, burn and slay as they list without punishment? Is this to be another instance of the law's delays and immunity for hideous crime, compassed by a conscience and cynical trickster of legal technicalities? The people of Canaan cry out for a speedy trial, speedy conviction and speedy punishment of this cold blooded and murderous monster. If he is not dealt with quickly according to his deserts the offence is upon us, and the limit of Canaan's patience has been reached.

"One last word, and we shall be glad to have its significance noted. J. Louden Joe, has been retained for the defense! The murderer before being apprehended by the authorities went straight from the scene of his crime to his place his retainer in his attorney's pocket! How long is this to last?"

The Tocsin was quoted on street corners that morning, in shop and store and office, wherever people talked of the Cory murder, and that was everywhere, for the people of Canaan and of the country roundabout talked of nothing else. Women chattered of it in parlor and kitchen—men gathered in small groups on the street and shook their heads ominously over it; farmers, meeting on the road, halted their teams and loudly damned the little man in the Canaan jail; milkmen lingered on back porches over their coffee to agree with cooks that it was an awful thing and that if ever any man deserved hanging that there Fear deserved it—his lawyer along with him. They even hammered here with fists and beer glasses, inquiring if there was no rope to be had in the town, and Dan't you know he always locks up the house?"

"I could have rung," said Ariel.

"Oh, oh!" gasped Miss Pike, and after she had recovered somewhat asked: "Do you mind telling me where you've been? I won't tell him, nor anyone, either. I think, after all, I was wrong yesterday to follow Eugene's advice. He meant for the best, but I"—

They even hammered here with fists and beer glasses, inquiring if there was no rope to be had in the town, and that rial for his sardonic humors, not at arm's length, not even at fair to his finger tips, but beneath his very palms. He rejected it. This was the impossible fact.

Eskew—there is no option but to de-Eskew—no longer Eskew. It is the truth. Since the morning when Ariel Tabor came down from Joe's office, leaving her offering of white roses in that dingy, dusty, shady place, Eskew had not been himself. His comrades observed it somewhat in a physical difference, one of subtle alteration; they may come upon men of his years suddenly, like a "sea change." His face was white; his walk slower, his voice lied thinner. He creaked louder when he rose or sat. Old always from his boyhood, he had in the turn of a hand become aged. But such things come and such things go. After eighty there are ups and downs. People fading away one week bloom out pleasantly the next, and resiliency is not at all a patent belonging to youth alone. The material change in Mr. Arp might have been thought little worth remarking. What caused Pete Hardenbergh, Squire Suckalew and the colonel to shake their heads secretly to one another and wonder if their dear friend's mind had not "begun to go" was something very different. To come straight down to it, he not only startalized, from the standing air to every wakening ear. For way on a quiet street it sounded faint. ly, like the hum of a bee across a room and was drowned in the noise of men at work on the old Tabor house. It seemed the only busy place in Canaan that day, the shade of the big beech trees which surrounded it affording some shelter from the destroying sun to the dripping laborers who were sawing, hammering, painting, plumbing, papering and rip-ping-upon old and new packing boxes. There were many changes in the old house—pleasantly in spite with its simple character—and arrangements now almost completed so that some of the rooms were already finished and ready for occupancy, and inevitable, ready for tenancy.

"but which had been Roger Tabor's studio sat Ariel alone. She had caused some chests and cases stored there to be opened and had taken out of them a few of Roger's canvasses and set them along the wall. Tears filled to know," he pursued, "why it was kept secret from me."

s she looked at them, seeing dy of labor the old man had d upon them, but she felt the pense. Hard, tight, literal as were, he had had in moment of each of them before he saw ddly and knew the truth. And d been given his years of pain st and had seen "how the other ved did it."

Avary that strode through the hall, ang abruptly to a halt in the door-y, and, turning, she discovered Mar-d his big livery coat, his face ushed more with anger than with the st. His hat was upon his head and nished there, for he did he offer any 'n or word of greeting whatever, manded to know when the work he house had been begun.

ase second morning after my re-" she answered.

"I want to know," he pursued, "why was kept secret from me, and I nt to know quick."

Ariel" he echoed, with a wave of hand to indicate the noise which workmen were making.

Upon whose authority was it be-?"

"Me. Who else could give it?"

ook here," he said, advancing to-her, "don't try to fool me! You d done all you by yourself. Who these workmen?"

—mbering her first interview with , she rose quickly before he could ie near her. Mr. Louden was out of the arrangements for me," she epiied quietly, "before he went away. le will take charge of everything hen he returns. You haven't forgot-n that I told you I intended to place y affairs in his hands?"

He had started forward, but at this e stopped and stared at her inarticu-ately.

"You remember?" she said, her hands eting negligently upon the back of he chair. "Surely you remember?"

She was not in the least afraid of him, but coolly watchful of him. This ad been her habit with him since her ctaru. She had seen little of him ex-ept at table, when he was usually rimly laconic, though now and then he would hear him' joking heavily ith Sam Warden in the yard, or, with ddently humorous intent, groaning at Mamie over Eugene's health; but it had not escaped Ariel that he was on his part watchful of herself and upon his guard.

He did not answer her question, and it seemed to her as she continued steadily to meet his hot eyes that he was trying to bind their luckless under some measure of control, and a vain effort it proved.

"You go back to my house!" he burst out, shouting hoarsely. "You get back there! You stay there!"

"No," she said, moving between him and the door. "Mamie and I are going for a drive."

"You go back to my house!" He fell lower in his voice, an arm fiercely at her. "Don't you come around here trying to run over me! You talk about your 'affairs!' All you've got on earth is this two for a nickel old shack over your head and a busted basket of distillery stock that you can sell by the pound for old paper!" He threw the words in her face, the pull base evidently seamed and cracked with falsetto. "Old paper, old rags, old iron, bottles, old clothes! You mind your affairs! Who are you? Hothschild? You haven't got any affairs!"

Not a look, not a word, not a motion of his escaped her in all the fury of sound and gesture in which he seemed to lash himself to envelop himself. Least of all did that shaking of the face-covering of jaw and temple, the tumultuous agitations of his hands—evade her watchfulness.

"When did you find this out?" she said very quickly. "After you became administrator?"

He struck the back of the chair she had vacated a vicious blow with his open hand. "No, you spendthrift! All there was to your grandfather when you buried him was a basketful of distillery stock. I tell you! Old paper! Can't you hear me? Old paper, old rags"

"You have sent me the name before," she lifted her voice to interrupt. "You have made the same quarterly payments since his death that you made before. If you knew, why did you do that?"

He had been shouting at her with the frantic and incredulous exasperation of an intolerant man utterly unused to opposition, his face empurpled, his forehead dripping and his hands violently pounding the back of the chair, but the this straight question stripped him suddenly of gesture and left him standing limp and still before her, pale splotches beginning to show on his hot cheeks.

"If you know, why did you do it?" she repeated. "You wrote me that my income was from dividends, and I have just thought nothing about it, but if the stock which came to me was worthless how could it pay dividends?"

He said, in a low voice strangely pallid and bitter desperation, like a man driven to the wall. "I can if you think you want to know."

"I do."

"I sent it."

"Do you mean from your own"—

"I mean it was my own money."

She had not taken her eyes from his, which met hers sullenly and angrily, and at this she leaped forward, gazing at him with profound scrutiny.

"Why did you send it?" she asked.

"Charity," he answered after palpable hesitation.

Her eyes widened, and she leaned back against the lintel of the door, staring at him incredulously. "Charity!" she echoed in a whisper.

Perhaps he mistook the amazement at his performance for dismay caused by the sense of her own position, for as she seemed to weaken he seemed to take the strength of his own habit of dominance came back to him. "Charity, madam!" he broke out, shouting hoarsely. "Charity, d'ye hear? I was a friend of the man that made the money you and your grandfather squandered! I was a friend of Jonas Tabor, I say! That's why I was willing to support you for a year and ever rather than let a piece of his suffer."

"Suffer?" she cried. "Support! You sent me a hundred thousand francs!"

The white splotches which had mottled Martin Pike's face disappeared as if they had been suddenly sponged off with hot red. "You go back to my house," he said. "What I sent you only shows the extent of my charity."

"Effrontery!" The word rang through the whole house, so loudly and clearly did she strike it—rang in the air, and it stung like a castigation. It was ominous, portentous of justice and of discaster. There was for them the smell of him in it—there was conviction.

He fell back from this word, and when he again advanced Ariel had left the house. She had turned the next corner before he came out of the gate, and as he paused on the sidewalk in his way downtown he saw her white dress mingling with his daughter's near the horse block beside the fire, where the two, with their arms about each other, stood waiting for Sam Warden and the open summer carriage.

Judge Pike walked on, the white splotches reappearing like a pale rash on his face, and he was shaking his clasped before him, knee high, across the sidewalk. He raised his foot and half kicked at it.

CHAPTER XIX.

AS the judge continued his walk down Main street he wished profoundly that the butterfly, which exhibited so much annoyance, had been of greater bulk and more pronounced size, and it was the evil fortune of Joe's mongrel to encounter him in the sinister humor of such a wish unfulfilled.

Respectability dwelt at Harver Beach under the care of Mr. Sheehan until his master should return, and Sheehan was kind, but the small dog found the world lonely and time long without Joe. He had grown more and more restless, and at last, this hot morning, having managed to evade the eye of all concerned in his keeping, made off unobtrusively, partly by scrambling, partly by reaching the road, around the town, his ears erect with anxiety. Soon upon reaching the familiar office, he paused, looking down the long, deserted of which the pimply checked clerk had thrown a bad potato at him a month before. The instant clerk had just laid down the Toonia as Respectability went by, and, inspired to great deeds by behalf of the dignity he had when one he rushed to the door, lavishly seized the time a perfectly good potato and hurled it with a right-hander which missed him, for it took the mongrel fairly amidst the head, which it matched in size.

The luckless Respectability's purpose to reach Joe's stairway had been entirely definite, but upon this violence he forgot it momentarily. It is not easy to keep many things in mind when one is violently smitten on mouth, nose, cheek, eye and ear by a missile large enough to strike them simultaneously. Yelping and half blinded, he deflected to cross Main street. Judge Pike had elected to proceed in the opposite direction, and the two met in the middle of the street.

The encounter was miraculously fitted to the judge's need. Here was no butterfly, but a solid body, light without a wet, muddy and dusty yellow for eminently kickable. The man was heavily built about the legs, and the vigor of what he did may have been additionally inspired by his recognition of the mongrel as Joe Louden's. His impetus from the judge's little runner's side was momentous, and the latter rose into the air. The judge himself, as he delivered his kick, lost the night, discovers an unexpected chair. Let us be reconciled to his pain and his astonishment the gods willed, for two of his unintending adversary's ribs were cracked.

The dog, thus again deflected, retraced his tracks, shrieking distractedly and, by one of those ironical twists which Kismet reserves for the tails of the fated, dived for blind safety into the store commanded by the ecstatic Mr. Bentley Clerk. There were also for the sleepy square beginning to wake up; the bench loafers strolled to the curb; the aged men stirred and rose from their chairs; faces appeared in the open windows of offices; sales ladies and gentlemen came to the doors of the trading places, so that when Respectability emerged from the grocery he had a notable audience for the scene he enacted with a brass din-ner pail held to his tail.

Another potato, thrown by the pimpled, uproarious, prodigal clerk, added to the impetus of his flight. A shower of pebbles from the hands of exhilarated boys dented the soft asphalt about him. The hideous clamor of the pursuing bell increased as he turned the next corner, running distractedly. The dust down had come to life, and its inhabitants gladly risked the dangerous heat in the interest of sport, whereby it was a merry chase the little dog led around the block. For thus some destructive instinct drove him. He could not stop with the unappeasable fervor he raging at his back, and by increasing crowd yelling in pursuit, but he turned to the left at each corner and flew home back to pass Joe's stairway again, unable to pause there or anywhere, unable to do anything except to continue his hapless flight, poor meteor.

Round the block he went once more, and still no cessation at that empty stairway, where perhaps, he thought, Joe was about his trade where Martin Pike's boot had crashed, fore and the howling, set upon his jaws and lolling tongue. He ran desperately, keeping to the middle of the street, and, not howling, set himself despairingly to outstrip the terror. The mob, disdaining the sun superbly, pursued as closely as it could, throwing bricks and rocks at him, striking at him with clubs and sticks. Happy Four, the "tic-tac-toe," right hand against left, in his cell, heard the uproar, made out something of what was happening and, though unaware that it was a friend whose life was sought, discovered a similarity to his own case and prayed to his dim gods that the quarry might get away.

"Mad dog!" they yelled. "Mad dog!" And the cry was taken up, "who cried, 'Loaden's dog!' that being usually as exciting and explanatory.

The dog panted, and still the little fugitive maintained a lead. A gray helmeted policeman, a big fellow, had joined the pursuit. He had children at home who might be playing in the street, and the thought of what might happen to them if the mad dog should head that way rendered him to be cool and steady. He was falling behind, so he stopped on the corner, trusting that his deliberate stand would come upon it. He was right, and the flying bowwalnig thing streaked along Main street, pearing for a brief stab-wipe for the fiend time. The policeman lifted his revolver, took two, missed once, but when he again advanced Ariel had left the house. She had turned the next corner before he came out of the gate, and as he passed on every house up-town downtown he saw her white dress mingling with his daughter's near the horse block beside the fire, where the two, with their arms about each other, stood waiting for Sam Warden and the open summer carriage.

Judge Pike walked on, the white splotches reappearing like a pale rash on his face, and he was shaking his clasped before him, knee high, across the sidewalk. He raised his foot and half kicked at it.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Ontario Legislature was opened at Toronto on Wednesday afternoon by Sir Mortimer Clark, Lieutenant-Governor, with the usual ceremonies. In the speech from the Throne His Honor said:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It affords me satisfaction to once more meet you as the representatives of the people in parliament assembled. Your thanks are due to Almighty God that while in some sections of the province the harvest was not as abundant as in the previous year, yet the general interest and activity of our people displayed during the past year with reference to business and commercial undertakings indicate continued prosperity. It is also a matter of satisfaction that our province has suffered comparatively little from the financial stringency which has been very marked in other countries during the past few months.

It will afford you gratification to know that the first payment of the additional subsidy from the Dominion arranged for at the late Interprovincial Conference, and payable under the act passed at the last session of the Imperial Parliament, has been received.

No disposition has yet been made by the Dominion Government of the territory extending northward to Hudson's Bay and forming the hinterland of Ontario, but a decision is expected soon.

The work of the revision of the statutes has made such progress that several of the important acts will be laid before you for your approval.

The construction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway has been nearly completed, the rails having been laid as far as a point two hundred and eight miles beyond North Bay, and about forty miles south of the probable junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, while the earnings have continued to be satisfactory and largely in excess of the outlay incurred in operating the road.

Very fair progress has been made in the development of the mining industry at Cobalt and vicinity, and the investigation and working of the Gillies' limit have been very satisfactory.

The Minister of Agriculture paid a visit to Great Britain during the past summer for the purpose of investigating the conditions surrounding the emigration problem. While there he was able to take steps for the careful supervision of intending immigrants to Ontario. By agreement the distribution of immigrants has been taken over by the Dominion Government, thus making it possible for the provincial government to devote more attention to the careful selection of desirable settlers.

A demonstration farm has been established at Driftwood River, north of the height of land on a good agricultural country. By experiments in crop raising, conducted there, much practical information will be gained for the use of intending settlers.

Important documents and reports relating to the distribution of electric power under the statute will be laid before you.

At the request of my ministers, the Hon. Mr. Willoughby, Dr. Clark, superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Toronto, and Dr. Ryan, superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Kingston, proceeded during the recess to Great Britain and the Continent, in order to investigate modern methods for caring for and treating the insane. Their very interesting report will be laid before you.

In accordance with my reference to the subject last year my ministers have considered the question of prison labor with a view to preventing competition with free labor and the Provincial Secretary and other gentlemen proceeded to several of the prisons in the United States in order to observe the systems in operation there. The result of their visit will be laid before you together with interesting and valuable information obtained by them.

My ministers will propose for your consideration a scheme of law which will give effect to the long-standing appeals respecting trials and lessening the cost of litigation.

A bill to rearrange the constituencies of the province in order as far as possible to equalize representation will be laid before you.

The large increase in the appropriations for the teachers' salaries, additional normal schools and various other educational purposes, have received the consideration of the public and you will be asked now to consider increased appropriations for urban schools. The policy of throwing open the inspectors' school text books to public competition has led to considerable reductions in the prices of school reading books and it is confidently hoped that reductions in the prices of other books will result from an extension of this policy.

Bills will be laid before you in amendment of various enactments of a public nature, now on the statute book including the mining laws, the liquor license act, the act creating the Railway and Municipal Board, the Public Lands Act, the Free Grants Act, the Supplementary Revenue Act and the Ontario Shops Regulation Act.

Owing to the steady increase of settlement it has been found necessary to create the new judicial district of Rainy River.

A conference has been held with the Dominion Government with a view to adjusting the differences which have arisen relating to the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the province on the subject of railway and other companies, and it is to be hoped that a satisfactory solution will be found.

You will be glad to learn that the revenues of the province are largely in excess of the estimates and more than sufficient to meet the public expenditure during the year.

The public accounts will be placed before you for your consideration at the earliest moment of the estimates for the coming year will also be submitted for your approval at an early day.

BICKNELL'S CORNERS.

We had a great snow storm on Saturday, which caused the roads to blockade, and on Monday there was great shovelling done.—There was no school on Monday owing to the bad roads. RURAL TELEPHONES.

Editor Napanee Beaver:—

Dear Sir,—I believe Moscow has taken the initiative in this County in regard to establishing a rural telephone system, and perhaps our experience would be of some advantage to the readers of your valuable paper who might be desirous of building a telephone line. The telephone first of all is a great time saver, a social convenience, an annihilator of distance and every farmer should have one.

No modern device has done more to remove the feeling of lonesomeness and isolation so acutely felt by farmers, than the rural telephone, the advantages of which cannot be overestimated. There is no question but farm life is the most independent existence. In fact it is the ideal condition, and there must be a reason why so many young men leave their homes to seek a livelihood in town and cities. Does not this find an explanation in the bad roads, the delays in transportation, the lack of companionship, and in other causes which emerge from young men the normal attractions of a country life? What do pure air, pure food, and good health count for with a young man who finds that his friends in the town or city are apparently if not in reality possessed of more opportunities and more companionship than he? Companionship has a practical as well as a sentimental value. Therefore the problem which confronts the Canadian farmer is to provide means for removing the curse of isolation and lonesomeness from the lives of those associated with him on the land. If this be done the tide of population will turn, and our next general census will show that the hitherto increasing percentage of urban population has been checked and that the people are returning to the land, thereby adding to the happiness and most natural condition of life. The use of the telephone overcomes the ill effects of bad roads by minimizing the delays in transportation by abolishing lonesomeness, and by bringing the residents of a city life to the home of every farmer.

The telephone will sell farm cattle, stock and other products. A knowledge of the latest quotations may save the cost of the telephone in one transaction. It will hire help, it will bring the latest news from the neighborhood, from the world around town and remote districts. If a machine breaks down it will order repairs; it will make neighborhood contests possible every evening, it will enable ladies to visit each other without the trouble some necessity of dressing and driving long distances over bad roads, with a team needed at home. It will invite entertainers and makers easy an interchange of thought that is not possible by the fattest city without its aid. In times of illness is of not a great blessing to be able to communicate instantly with your physician. There are many benefits of a rural communities, who are of the opinion that the construction and installation of a telephone line or system is a complicated process, requiring a marked degree of skill and technical education. This belief there are entirely mistaken because the operation of a telephone system depends upon a very few general principles which are so readily familiar and are one of average intelligence can readily grasp them. It is a matter of fact that a large per centage of the rural telephone lines now in successful operation have been constructed and the instruments installed by men who have received their instructions from the factors or from the dealer from whom they obtained their instruments and supplies. The advent of the telephone in our neighborhood dates back about three years when there were but about lines were built. These lines, what are known as ground lines consisting of one wire on the poles and using the earth for the return path of the current. On these lines we are using the Bell telephone or better known as the Blake transmitter. We found however, that these instruments were not suited for party lines where more than five or six telephones are installed.

Having passed the experimental stage in our experience and noting the telephone craze increasing and confidence we feel can rebuilding our lines in a more substantial manner. We have also decided one line having eighteen instruments installed. This line is from Bell Telephone Circuit and the telephones are of the latest design, having the new long distance transmitters, 5 bar generator and the ringer operating on a resistance of 1600 ohms. We have placed one of these on the R. H. station, and our central office is situated at Moscow. We also have long distance connection with the Bell American Telegraph Co. and the Bell Telephone Co. systems. Thanking you in advance for the favor of your valuable paper I am yours, etc.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Ontario Legislature was opened at Toronto on Wednesday afternoon by Sir Mortimer Clark, Lieutenant-Governor, with the usual ceremonies. In the speech from the Throne His Honor said:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It affords me satisfaction to once more meet you as the representatives of the people in parliament assembled. Your thanks are due to Almighty God that while in some sections of the province the harvest was not as abundant as in the previous year, yet the general interest and activity of our people displayed during the past year with reference to business and commercial undertakings indicate continued prosperity. It is also a matter of satisfaction that our province has suffered comparatively little from the financial stringency which has been very marked in other countries during the past few months.

It will afford you gratification to know that the first payment of the additional subsidy from the Dominion arranged for at the late Interprovincial Conference, and payable under the act passed at the last session of the Imperial Parliament, has been received.

No disposition has yet been made by the Dominion Government of the territory extending northward to Hudson's Bay and forming the hinterland of Ontario, but a decision is expected soon.

The work of the revision of the statutes has made such progress that several of the important acts will be laid before you for your approval.

The construction of the Temiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway has been nearly completed, the rails having been laid as far as a point two hundred and eight miles beyond North Bay, and about forty miles south of the probable junction with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, while the earnings have continued to be satisfactory and largely in excess of the outlay incurred in operating the road.

Very fair progress has been made in the development of the mining industry at Cobalt and vicinity, and the investigation and working of the Gillies' limit have been very satisfactory.

The Minister of Agriculture paid a visit to Great Britain during the past summer for the purpose of investigating the conditions surrounding the emigration problem. While there he was able to take steps for the careful supervision of intending immigrants to Ontario. By agreement the distribution of immigrants has been taken over by the Dominion Government, thus making it possible for the provincial government to devote more attention to the careful selection of desirable settlers.

A demonstration farm has been established at Driftwood River, north of the height of land on a good agricultural country. By experiments in crop raising, conducted there, much practical information will be gained for the use of intending settlers.

Important documents and reports relating to the distribution of electric power under the statute will be laid before you.

At the request of my ministers, the Hon. Mr. Willoughby, Dr. Clark, superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Toronto, and Dr. Ryan, superintendent of the asylum for the insane at Kingston, proceeded during the recess to Great Britain and the Continent, in order to investigate modern methods for caring for and treating the insane. Their very interesting report will be laid before you.

In accordance with my reference to the subject last year my ministers have considered the question of prison labor with a view to preventing competition with free labor and the Provincial Secretary and other gentlemen proceeded to several of the prisons in the United States in order to observe the systems in operation there. The result of their visit will be laid before you together with interesting and valuable information obtained by them.

My ministers will propose for your consideration a scheme of law which will give effect to the long-standing appeals respecting trials and lessening the cost of litigation.

A bill to rearrange the constituencies of the province in order as far as possible to equalize representation will be laid before you.

The large increase in the appropriations for the teachers' salaries, additional normal schools and various other educational purposes, have received the consideration of the public and you will be asked now to consider increased appropriations for urban schools. The policy of throwing open the inspectors' school text books to public competition has led to considerable reductions in the prices of school reading books and it is confidently hoped that reductions in the prices of other books will result from an extension of this policy.

Bills will be laid before you in amendment of various enactments of a public nature, now on the statute book including the mining laws, the liquor license act, the act creating the Railway and Municipal Board, the Public Lands Act, the Free Grants Act, the Supplementary Revenue Act and the Ontario Shops Regulation Act.

Owing to the steady increase of settlement it has been found necessary to create the new judicial district of Rainy River.

A conference has been held with the Dominion Government with a view to adjusting the differences which have arisen relating to the respective jurisdictions of the Dominion and the province on the subject of railway and other companies, and it is to be hoped that a satisfactory solution will be found.

You will be glad to learn that the revenues of the province are largely in excess of the estimates and more than sufficient to meet the public expenditure during the year.

The public accounts will be placed before you for your consideration at the earliest moment of the estimates for the coming year will also be submitted for your approval at an early day.

BICKNELL'S CORNERS.

We had a great snow storm on Saturday, which caused the roads to blockade, and on Monday there was great shovelling done.—There was no school on Monday owing to the bad roads. Our teacher could not get there.—Miss Lizzie Lott is visiting her father for a few days, but expects to return to her school at Pine Grove.—Several from around here attended the funerals at Camden East, of Mrs. Galbraith and Mrs. McCaffrey.—Miss Ida Salisbury is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. Wagar, of Enterprise.—J. Judge is visiting Mr. R. Longmore.—Wellington O'Neil lost a horse this week.—Mrs. Edna and Elda Hannah were guests of Misses Olive and Marie Emberley, on Saturday last.

No home, be it cottage, farm or mansion, is complete without a piano. Probably nothing else in the world is the source of so much pleasure. It is elevating, instructive, and far more entertaining than anything else that can be placed in the home, and has now established itself more as a necessity than a luxury. In the purchase of a piano it is well to use the greatest care. The less priced instrument is not by any means the cheapest, as, after a few years use, it will become as expensive, and even more so in the long run. The one piano in Canada has earned the international reputation for general excellence of tone and durability is the Gerhard-Heintzman, which has come to be recognized the world over as an instrument of real quality. Unsolicited testimonials from the following representative personages will assist in proving the above statement. The late Prince Bismarck, the late President Mckinley, Lady Thompson, Empress Metachoff of Japan. Amongst a host of others, have willingly placed on record the fact that they are proud to possess the Gerhard-Heintzman Pianos. The instrument can be seen and all particulars obtained at Francis Weeser of Consecon, Prince Edward county, left Trenton with a freight and two horses on the morning before last, to drive across the bay to his home. The night was a terrible one, with wind and snow. On Saturday morning one of the horses turned up at home and a rescue party went out. Worse was found under his sleigh in the middle of the bay. Snow was piled up all around the sleigh, and the unfortunate man was so badly frost bitten that doctors say now he cannot live. He had unhitched the horses and then wrapped himself in robes and lay down. He is nearly 70 years old.

Baby's Own Tablets
A Little Life Saver.

Baby's Own Tablets have saved many a precious little life. There is no other medicine for children so safe and sure in its effects. The Tablets regulate stomach and bowel troubles, banish constipation, expel worms, break up colds and prevent deadly croup. And you have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain a particle of opiate or narcotic. Mrs. Laroque, Log Valley, Sask., says: "I am a great believer in Baby's Own Tablets. I have used them on many occasions and know of no medicine equal to them in curing the common ailments of babies and young children." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mr. E. G. Johnson, clerk in the C.P.R. auditor's office at Montreal, has inherited a Baronetcy by the death of his uncle.

Keep Zam-Buk Handy! Accidents will happen to the best regulated families, and the necessity of keeping handy a box of Zam-Buk—the valuable "first-aid" cannot be too strongly insisted upon.

Mr. E. Webster, 519 Seigneurs Street, Montreal, says: "One day as I was lifting a pan of water off the stove, my son Eddie ran toward me and knocked the pan upwards. The water ran over his neck and scalded him very badly. It is a very awkward place on which to keep a plaster and several things which we tried failed to give him relief. We then applied Zam-Buk (which we had used some time before for a bad gathering on my little daughter's head) and this acted like a charm. It drew out the pain and healed the scald. We have proved Zam-Buk an invaluable remedy."

Zam-Buk's Wonderful Way

Zam-Buk is absolutely unique in its composition, and must not be confused with cheap ointments containing rancid animal fat which the skin cannot absorb, and which consequently instead of cleansing the pores clogs them up.

Zam-Buk has revolutionized existing methods of healing cuts, bruises, burns, scalds, chapped hands, cold sores, ulcers, and treats in a new, scientific and effective way the worst case of eczema, piles, ulcerated legs, blood poisoning, festering, poisoned sore, scald, ringworm, children's skin troubles, sores on the back, and all those inflamed, burning, irritable and diseased conditions of the human skin that incapacitate and torture their thousand victims.

Of all druggists and stores, or post paid from the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, on receipt of price. 1 box or 2 for 25c.

EVERLASTING SHAVING COMFORT

Will Last a Lifetime.

CARBO MAGNETIC RAZORS have revolutionized razor making—they are TEMPERED BY ELECTRICITY, which is OUR OWN EXCLUSIVE SECRET PROCESS—the steel used in their manufacture is of the finest English and Swedish make. This wonderful discovery is the result of years of experiment and study, and at last there has been produced a razor that will shave any beard, NO MATTER HOW TOUGH.

ELECTRIC TEMPERING adds CARBON to the steel; whereas tempering by fire, (the only other method known for centuries) DESTROYS the CARBON which is the life of steel. All other makes of razors must be HONED AND GROUND often, as their blades will NOT hold an edge any length of time. CARBO MAGNETIC RAZORS do not require HONING or GRINDING during a lifetime in private use; they are all tempered alike, every part of their blades being subjected to the same AMPERES OF ELECTRICITY. CARBO MAGNETIC RAZORS are ground FIVE times by the HAMBURG METHOD, the most expensive grinding known.

YOUR DEALER will deliver to you one of these CARBO MAGNETIC RAZORS on 30 days' trial, without obligation on your part to purchase—take advantage of this opportunity. Break away from the barber habit! You will save $50.00 annually.

Call on our representatives in your town, and request a copy of "Hints On Shaving"—This booklet illustrates the correct razor position for shaving every part of the face (ACTUAL PHOTOGRAPHS TAKEN FROM LIFE)—it also tells you HOW TO STROP A RAZOR PROPERLY; should our dealer be out of them, drop us a card, and we will send you one by return mail.

I wish that I might talk with all sick and suffering people, especially those of Heart, and Kidney ailments. To explain to them how weak Heart nerves lead to Stomach weakness. I am sure I could do what is claimed. And if I can deal with weak hearts or weak kidneys. This is why my Heart and Nerve Restorative and Kidney Pills produce results in cases of the Stomach, Heart and Nerves, and Kidneys. Sold by the Stomach or druggists. Write me about your kidneys. These weak inside nerves make you more strength. My Restorative is the only prescription made expressly for these nerves. Sent to make you well. Write for it, will be to mail you free, my new book entitled "What To Do." Also I will send samples of my Restorative as well. Write for the book today. It will surely interest you. "Well," said Editor McKelway, impatiently, "if you want something to crow about, and he's that kind of a hennery, let him lay it on the table—and be cat. Otherwise have him put it there."

DOMINION BANK ANNUAL MEETING.

The 47th annual meeting of the shareholders of the Dominion Bank was held yesterday afternoon at the head offices of the institution, when the annual general statement was submitted by the general Manager. The statement is a most promising one, and was received with great satisfaction by the shareholders. As the President said in his address, unusual caution and prudence were used by the management in administering the affairs of the bank on account of the financial stringency which prevailed through the world, and the unsettled monetary conditions in the United States. The policy of the bank was to restrict advances without interfering with the proper requirements of the customers, and to assist in marketing the products of the country, more especially the crops of the North-western districts, while at the same time maintaining strong cash reserves. A number of branches have been opened throughout Canada, the ones recently opened in the West establishing a chain of branches from Montreal to the Coast.

Some of the features of the annual statement are as follows:

Total profits for 1907,	$635,335.91
about $100,000 more than for the previous 13 months, being at the rate of nearly 16 per cent. on the average paid-up capital.
Taking these profits $635,335.91 together with $28,798.33, brought forward from last year, and $933,456.87 premium on new stock, there is available for distribution $1,597,490.71, which has been used as follows:
Dividends at the rate of
12 per cent. per annum.	$428,893.23
Transferred to reserve fund	533,456.87
Balance of profit and loss carried forward.	235,140.61

The Reserve Fund and Undivided profits are now $1,235,000 more than the paid-up capital.

The Cash Assets are $9,132,069 or 23 per cent of the total liabilities to the public.

Immediately available assets are $16,000,000 or 40 per cent of the total liabilities to the public.

The directors and the general Manager, Mr. Hoegart, as well as the shareholders, should feel much gratified with the strong position of the bank as shown by this annual statement.

SMALLEST HOUSE IN BRITAIN.

The quaint old town of Conwat, North Wales, boasts possession of the smallest house in Great Britain. The house consists of only two rooms, one above the other, each of which is just two yards square. This place is more than 300 years old and it is said to have spent a curious dwelling place. The upstairs room, which is reached by mounting a tiny ladder, has in it a four-poster bed and a washstand, so that there is no room for any other article of furniture to move about. Names of visitors crawl all over the walls. The present caretaker states that one tenant actually brought up a family of ten in this miniature house, though no explanation is forthcoming as to how the feat was performed. The present occupant, who has inhabited the cottage for many years, pays a rent of seven and sixpence a year, and is very proud of the fact that she lives in the tiniest house in Great Britain.—"World Wide Magazine."

TO STORE AWAY SUMMER HATS.

The time is at hand when white summer hats must be laid away. To keep them in good condition for next summer, take a piece of muslin, about one and one-half yards long, answer. Dip it in strong blue water, dry and spread out in your hot box, so that the goods may reach well outside of the box. Unless you expect to use it just as it is again, remove flowers from hat and straighten the leaves. Take off feath ers and lay out straight. Run through blue muslin up over the contents, adjust cover and wrap the box in newspapers. Make a wad of paper, cover it with tissue paper, or cover a tin can with paper. Set the hat on this. It keeps the under trimming from crushing.

KING CARLOS SLAIN.

THE CROWN PRINCE LUIZ PHILIPPE ALSO KILLED.

Lisbon, Feb. 3d.—King Carlos and the Crown Prince Luiz Philippe were assassinated Saturday afternoon. The royal party returned by boat from visiting the fair at Villa Vicosa and landed at the quay in Lisbon about five o'clock. Premier or Minister Franco and one or two other ministers met them on landing, but did not accompany them. The King's progress was well known and there was a considerable assemblage of people, mostly of the lower classes, along the designated route. It was a bright afternoon, but it was verging towards dusk when the royal party entered an ordinary landau to drive to the palace. There was no escort of troops or police but scattered along the streets to control the crowd was a fairly strong force of policemen. The king and queen took the seat facing the horses and the crown prince and Prince Manuel sat opposite them. The carriage started off at a slow trot and the occupants acknowledged frequent salutes from the crowd. Little enthusiasm was shown due to the king's latest decree, giving increased arbitrary powers to the dictatorship.

The progress of the royal party was without incident until the carriage reached the centre of the Praso Do Commercio, one of the principal squares of the city, close to the Royal Arsenal. Two groups of men, according to one account, were noticed forward from opposite sides, one a little in advance of the other, and three themselves in front of the carriage causing the driver sharply to pull up his horses.

Before action dedicated attention from another group of five, who ran up in the rear close to the back of the vehicle. Throwing back their long Spanish cloaks the men produced carabines and commenced firing at the royal party. The first shot caused the king to leap to his feet and turn his face to his assailants. Shots followed in quick succession and within another instant three struck the monarch, whose exclamation of agony stark almost impossible to note. Two bullets entered his neck, one severing the carotid artery and the third almost instantaneously falling almost into the arms of the queen, who had struggled to rise, and who, an instant later, succeeded in throwing herself in front of the wounded monarch, shielding him with her mother and forced her to his seat and then stood in front of her. Only a few seconds elapsed and a second fusillade came from the determined assassins. The Queen's dress some prize fell dying and his brother, Prince Manuel, who had whipped out a revolver, fired on the men, received a flesh wound which entered his face with blood.

By this time a handful of police, within reach, recovered from their paralysis of horror, rushed forward and opened fire upon the assassins. The queen's escape was marvellous. Capt. Frestra, a cavalry officer and a soldier, killed this would-be regicide as he was about to fire a revolver point blank at her majesty. The police fired indiscriminately, killing two other men who are believed to have been ring-leaders. The queen's party also followed, most of the spectators fleeing in all directions.

The driver, within a moment or two, whipped up his horses and drove at a gallop to the armory. The whole was quickly inside and the gates were closed. The queen, by this time, was in a state of collapse, but she assisted in removing the body of her husband, who was quite dead. The crown prince still breathed but in five minutes he expired before medical aid could reach him.

The bodies of the king and crown prince were removed from the marine arsenal, subsequently, in two closed carriages, to the royal palace. The Queen Necessidades, the late residence of the king, and escorted by municipal guard mounted.

According to news received here the murders of the king and crown prince were executed under the orders of the Republican Terrorists, and the intention was to assassinate the whole Portuguese royal family.

NAPANEE POISON FACTORIES.

YOU WILL BE SURPRISED TO LEARN HOW MANY THERE ARE.

Did you ever feel stupid and dull after eating a hearty dinner?

When food is retained too long in the stomach, because of stomach weakness, fermentation sets in, and poisons are formed there is giddiness, confusion of thought, drowsiness, headache, heart-burn, sleeplessness, nervous trouble and other forms of indigestion.

The general use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets puts within the reach of everyone a reliable and positive cure for all stomach troubles. Mi-o-na quickly cures the worst case of indigestion, and the pain and discomfort is overcome at first after meals will soon disappear, such is the wonderful curative power of this little tablet.

Mi-o-na acts upon entirely different principles from any of the other remedies that have been used in stomach troubles. It is taken before meals, and has a specific for strengthening the nerves which control the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive juices and making the stomach get to work and digest easily and naturally the food which is eaten.

T. B. Wallace has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent. box that the remedy costs nothing unless it cures.

RE CREDIT SYSTEM

Having long felt that the present system of allowing goods on approbation and selling on credit was expensive to both ourselves and customers, and too far out-of-date for this progressive 20th century, we have decided to adopt the STRICTLY CASH SYSTEM.

ON AND AFTER FEB. 1st, 1908, NO GOODS WILL BE ALLOWED ON APPROBATION UNLESS ONE PAIR IS PAID FOR.

In case goods do not suit we will cheerfully refund purchase money. Among our regular credit customers were many who paid promptly whenever the account was rendered, and with whom it was a pleasure to do business. But these will readily understand that to make the Cash System a success, all must be treated alike, and no one family or person can be excepted from this rule.

SAD DEATH.

Death ended the sufferings of Helen Blanche Collier, wife of Dr. C. M. Stratton, on Thursday morning, after a lingering illness of many months. Deceased was the only daughter of the late Capt. L. M. Collier, and besides her bereaved husband, she leaves two brothers, Messrs. W. H. and H. R. Collier, of Peterboro'. Mrs. Stratton was a general favorite with all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance, her bright sunny disposition and sincere friendship endearing her to all. The bereaved husband and brothers have the sincere sympathy of all. The funeral will be private, from her late residence on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

PAY HIM THE REWARD.

Last July, Chief of Police Graham, of Napanee, formerly of the local police force, pursued and caught a horse that named John Morris, of Detroit, who had gone off with a horse and rig owned by Mr. Thos. Hyerman, Kingston. The statute allows a reward of twenty dollars to be paid any person catching a horse thief, and Chief Graham, through H. St. Deroche, K.C., crown attorney, Napanee, has twice asked the Kingston civic authorities to pay the reward. City Solicitor McIntyre has advised the council that it cannot pay the money until it passes a by-law regarding the matter. The statute however upon councils the obligation to pass such a by-law. Another letter of Mr. Deroche is now before the civic finance committee. There should be no further difficulty over the matter. No doubt Chief Graham is worthy of the reward, for he's a splendid officer of the law.—Whig.

The musical part will be furnished by talent from Napanee and surrounding localities. Everybody welcome. Admission, 25 cts.

POSTPONED.

W. T. Hodges' Babes in the Woods entertainment for Bath, Tuesday evening, Feb. 4th, is postponed until Tuesday evening, Feb. 11th, on account of the heavy fall of snow and bad roads. We will make this the best entertainment of the season. High class and refined vaudeville entertainment. Mr. H. G. Hodge, violinist and comedian; Miss A. M. Hodge, soprist; Miss M. E. Hodge, vocalist. A good full house is expected. Come early and secure your seat and avoid the rush. Tickets, 30 cts., children, 10 cts.; reserved seats, 25 cts.

HIGH CLASS CONCERT.

The Ladies' Aid of the Western Methodist church will give a high class concert on Thursday evening, Feb. 20th, in the church auditorium. Miss Jessie Tuite, an honor graduate of Albert College, and Gold Medalist, will give several readings interspersed with musical selections by other talent. All who come will enjoy a rare treat. Admission, 25 cts. The Belleville Ontario says: "Miss Jessie Tuite was wise in the selection of her reading, giving a beautiful selection 'Through the Fields' from Ian MacLaren's 'Beside the Bonnie Briar Bush.' In her perfect mastery of the Scotch dialect and her beautiful expression, Miss Tuite swept every thing before her. She waved the large audience to and fro at her own good pleasure. 6a

THE MAN-EATERS OF TSAVO.

The mighty hunter, Selous, in his preface to Colonel Patterson's account of his adventures with The Man-Eaters of Tsavo says: 'No lion story I have ever read or heard equals in its long-sustained and dramatic interest the story of the Tsavo man-eaters as told by Colonel Patterson.' Colonel Patterson himself in his introduction to this astonishing story says: 'Two most voracious and insatiable man-eating lions appeared upon the scene, and for over nine months waged an incessant warfare against the Uganda railway and all those connected with it in the vicinity of Tsavo. This culminated in a perfect reign of terror in December, 1898, when they actually succeeded in bringing the railway work to a standstill for about three weeks.

Juma Singh, a powerful Sikh, was lying asleep alongside his chum in a tent when at midnight 'the lion suddenly put its head up at the open tent door and seized Juma Singh—who happened to be next—by the throat. The unfortunate fellow cried out 'Choro! Choro! Let go!'—and threw his arms round the lion's neck. The next moment he was gone, and his panic-stricken companion lay helpless, listening to the terrible struggle which took place outside.'

'In the whole of my life,' writes Colonel Patterson, 'I have never experienced anything more nerve-shaking than to hear the deep roar of these dreadful monsters, growing gradually nearer and nearer, and to know that someone or other of us was doomed to be their victim before morning dawn. One by one they reached the vicinity of the camp, the roars completely ceased, and we knew then that they were stalking us for their prey. Shouts would then pass from camp to camp, 'Khabar, dar, chasm, Sha-tan ata!' ('Beware, brothers, the Devil is coming!'), but the warning cries would prove of no avail, and sooner or later agonizing shrieks would break the silence, and another man would be missing from the roll call next morning.'

When Colonel Patterson, on a rickety platform twelve feet high, waited one night for one of these man-eaters to seize the bait laid for him and to shoot the brute while in the act of seizing it, he was horrified to find that he himself was the prey the lion was bent on securing! 'The lion began stealthily to stalk me! For about two hours he horrified me by slowly creeping round and round me, crazy creature, gradually edging his way nearer and nearer.' Before the brute could spring upon him, however, the Colonel at last faintly discerned his form in the pitchy darkness, and fired a shot which finished him.

DIET AND SLEEP.

Dr. Woods Hutchison writes about sleep in the 'American Magazine.' On the subject of eating before sleeping, he says:

'Diet has little influence on sleep, except in so far as it may produce disturbances of digestion and through that of the general balance of health. The hypnotic effects of certain foods, such as onions, lettuce, milk, etc., are chiefly imaginary. Even the time of the last meal of the day is of relatively little importance, except that it is well to let this rest at least two or three hours before retiring. But even this rule has many exceptions, as many healthy laboring men eat their full supper directly after supper, and children, after poking the spoon into their little eyes, nod off over the tea table, with the bread and butter still clutched in their chubby fists.

'The processes of digestion probably go on more slowly during sleep, but they are perfectly carried out, as is illustrated by the famous invariable habit among animals of going to sleep directly after a meal.

'Indeed, a moderate amount of food in the stomach or intestines seems to promote sleep rather than prevent it, for instance, sleep much better for taking a light or even full supper just before retiring.'

MORVEN.

Sunday services were not well attended, owing to the bad roads.

Quarterly service is to be held in the White church on Sunday morning.

The W. M. S. held their monthly meeting at the parsonage on Tuesday afternoon. About forty ladies were present. The ladies presented Mrs. Schell with a beautiful cut glass marmalade jar, set in silver stand. This was to show a slight token of their friendship to her. Mrs. E. Kaylor read the address, which was very appropriate.

Some of our Morventes attended the concert at the Lutheran church on Monday night, and report it fine.

Mr. John Fralick lost a good horse last week.

Rumor states one of our widowers was married on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Frink entertained another crowd of young people on Tuesday evening. The horns and bells and loud voices that were ringing through the air in the wee sma' hours gave evidence of a fine time.

Mr. W. H. Funnell lost a fine colt on Tuesday.

DORLAND.

The dinner which took place in the L. E. L. church on the 24th ult., was a great success. There was a great abundance of good things to eat spread on the large tables, set in the S. S. room, which looked very pretty in the snowy curtains and Japanese lanterns. The programme was of an unusually excellent and high class character. Mr. Maddle, Napanee, ably occupied the chair, and gave a splendid speech. Rev. Mears' address was well received. Mr. Schell sang a solo and Miss Perry and Mr. Schell sang two duets very acceptably. Miss Ida Horton, daughter of Rev. O. Horton, one of our former pastors, was as enthusiastically welcomed as last year, receiving great applause after each selection. She especially took the audience by storm with her Fan song, which was beautifully rendered, with the expression and clear distinct pronunciation, for which she responded with a dainty little encore, "Don't You Grieve." She will always receive a hearty welcome here. Several of the contestants for the medal in elocution, at Napanee, Misses A. Paul, J. Phipps, F. Stevens, M. Bell, gave splendid selections also. Proceeds amounted to somewhat over $80.00.

CURLING.

NAPANEE CHAMPIONS.

The return match with Belleville was played at Belleville on Thursday night of last week, and resulted in a win for Napanee of 34 to 32. Napanee has now won eight and lost one, out of the series of ten matches in the Central Ontario League series. The final game to be played here yesterday with Kingston, was postponed owing to the thaw.

GLENVALE.

The Foresters held an oyster supper in Glenvale hall, on Tuesday evening last. All report having had a good time.—A load of twenty from here attended the party at Catarqui on Friday night.—A very enjoyable time was spent, and none were back home before daylight, on account of the storm.—Our school teacher, Miss Guess, of Murvale, is boarding at H. C. Orser's, on account of the bad roads.—Wilbert Hammond is on the sick list.—Those who are attending the Collegiate Institute from here were unable to return home on Friday evening.—There was a dance at Westbrook on Friday evening, which was well attended with folks from here and Kingston.—J. Cramer, Manitoba, at Joe Cramer's.—B. Leonard at F. Boyce's, Murvale.

MOSCOW.

Owing to the severe storms of last week the sacramental services in the Methodist church were postponed till Sunday, Feby. 9th.—The remains of the late Mrs. Bell, of Colebrook, were placed in the Moscow vault on Saturday.—Henry Huffman lost a valuable horse last week.—Mrs. Alfred Martin entertained a number of friends on Monday evening.—Jesse Asselstine, of Newburgh, has been renewing acquaintances in this vicinity.—Mr. and Mrs. Amos Huffman drove to Napanee on Sunday to attend the private funeral of the late Mrs. (Dr.) Stratton.—Miss Kitson, of Verona, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Earnest Amey.—Miss Flo. Asselstine has been appointed Superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School.

HAYES' CORNERS.

The pathmasters have been busy clearing out the roads, and they are now in a heavy condition.—John Hinch has just engaged hauling wood for Thos. Mowers.—Masters Sid York and Ernest Hinch called on E. Johnston, last Tuesday.—Misses Edna and Lillie Anderson took in the dance at Mrs. T. Palmateer's, on Monday night, and report a good time.—M. Stinson called on W. Tyrrell visited friends in Erinsville on Monday last.—A little Bellhouse has been very poorly with croup.—Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Yorke, Robin, visited Isaac Johnston, Hayes' Corners, on Wednesday.—Mr. Colville and family visited at Thos. Mowers', on Wednesday last.

F. F. MILLER,
Electric Light Commissioner.

NEWBURGH.

The annual meeting of the patrons of the Newburgh cheese factory was largely attended and was very harmonious.

Mr. J. H. Aylesworth was chairman, and Mr. Thos. Winters secretary. A few figures from the annual report may be of interest. The total milk received at the factory last season was 2,776,891 lbs., number of cheese made 258,655, an average of 10.73 lbs. milk per lb. cheese; average salary per cheese 11⅞c. per lb., and price paid patrons 93c. per 100 lbs. milk. The total value of cheese made was $30,317.03. Mr. Geo. Clrall, lessee of the factory was present and made his proposition to the patrons for the coming season, his offer being to manufacture for 15-16c. per lb. Other conditions as in previous years. This proposal was accepted. The Dominion Bank, represented by its Napanee manager, was voted the business of the factory for the year. Other banks of the district were also represented.

On Saturday afternoon last the fastest game of hockey so far this season on the local rink was played by the High School and Napanee Collegiate teams. Score at half time was 3 all, but the visitors won out in the second half, scoring twice to the home team's one.—Mr. Anderson of Napanee, refereed.

Rev. Mr. Duke attempted to reach Arden and Mountain Grove missions on Saturday for quarterly services, on Sunday, but found the C. P. R. out of business at Tweed. He spent Sunday with Rev. R. N. Burns at Tweed, preaching for him in the evening. Mr. Duke's pulpit was filled by Rev. Mr. Chant, who preached a very timely sermon upon the fields of opportunity now white unto the harvest and awaiting the sickle of the church.

Mention was made last week of the audit of the books of this municipality by Messrs. J. S. Haydon and D. Welsh. This was an exhaustive review of the financial affairs of the village, extending a number of years, and the results were presented in such a shape as to furnish a valuable document for reference in future. The auditors instructed a statement in bill for services instructed the Council to vot an equivalent to the Public Library. This generous and public-spirited action merits the thanks of the supporters of this institution.

On Sunday afternoon the Mission Band of the Methodist church continued the study of "Christus and the World" trip, making the journey from Tokio to Shanghai, thence up the Yangtse Kiang river to Zchang by steamer and by houseboat to Kiating in the Province of Szechuen, Chen-Qu, the capital of this province. Rev. Shon and Yuin Shien were also visited and the missions inspected. Conductors introduced the party to the missionaries and their work, and chief conductor, Mrs. E. W. Stickney, explained many interesting features of the work. The return journey will be begun March 1st, when a stop will be made at India to inspect a number of mission stations in that interesting land.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Wagar, Tamworth, spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. J. H. Chant's.

Another successful carnival was held at the skating rink on Monday night. Costumes and skating were good. Among the number attending were several from Napanee and Camden East. Prizes were awarded by the judges, Messrs. A. Clasby and J. Davey, as follows: Gentleman's costume, George Fox; lady's costume, Miss Pearl Patterson; gentleman's fancy skating, Harold Hodge; lady fancy skater, Mrs. H. Kelly; special prize, Highland costume, F. F. Miller; special lady skater, Miss Lena S. Merchant; girls' costume, 10 to 15 years, Miss Lela Lounder; boy's costume, Earl Conway; best couple, Morley Conway; egg race, Leighton Emery. Another carnival will be held about the end of February.

Citizens generally are sorry to hear of the loss sustained by The Thomson Paper Co. in the fire in their warerooms in Toronto.

At the meeting of the Board of Education on Wednesday night, Mr. C. H. Fiskle was elected chairman for 1908. Mr. Fiskle has very faithfully served upon this Board for a number of years and is now deservedly honored with the chairmanship. The retiring chairman, Mr. T. J. Dunwoody, made an excellent head, devoting himself closely to the best interest of our schools. The committees for the year were appointed on Wednesday night and routine business transacted. Mr. E. Gandier was re-appointed secretary-treasurer.

The Napanee Bankers' hockey team came out on Wednesday afternoon and were defeated by the home team right in nil in a rather loosely played game.

ENTERPRISE.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Grass and family left for their home in Hanover, N. Dak., last week, after visiting friends here.

We have surely got our share of snow here now. The roads are full to the top of the fences and the traffic was at a standstill for a day or two.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wagar, of Wagarville, spent a few days visiting in town, and returned home on Saturday.

The quarterly services in the Methodist church were postponed on account of the storm on Sunday, and will be held the first Sunday in March.

Mr. E. J. Wagar, who has been on the sick list for the past week, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Reid returned last Tuesday from Watertown, where they attended the funeral of Mr. Reid's sister, Mrs. Thos. Baxter.

Mr. C. B. Wagar, of Maple Grove Stock Farm, lost a valuable three-year-old heifer valued at $200, this week.

Owing to the disagreeable state of the roads, farmers are having great difficulty in drawing wood, as some are hauling quite a distance.

Arnold Davey returned from the west this week, where he was in the lumber camp.

Mr. A. F. D. Lace spent Sunday at Napanee.

Dr. Ming, U.S., of Napanee, was in town on Friday, to attend to a horse belonging to Mr. Wesley Wagar of Wagarville. Something had lodged in the animal's throat and the horse was unable to either eat or drink.

Mr. David Wagar, of Watertown, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Card on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wagar spent last week at Napanee visiting friends.

Mr. D. Bowen was at Kingston on Saturday.

Mr. Will. Smith returned from Marlbank on Saturday, where he had been working for Mr. E. Jackson.

The shock of the explosion at the powder works at Tweed was distinctly felt here. It made the doors and windows rattle in most all the houses here. People thought it was an earthquake till we got the news by wire shortly afterwards.

Miss Gertie McGregor gave a birth day party Thursday afternoon to her schoolmates.

Mr. John Drum spent Sunday at L. Tennyson's.

Mr. May, our genial photographer, returned home on Saturday, after an extended trip. He caught it was cold.

Mr. D. W. Bell, one of our town butchers, is harvesting his crop of ice this week.

LONG LAKE.

A farewell party was given last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Drew, prior to the departure of Mrs. Drew's sister, Miss Chris. Grass, of Hanover, New Hamburg, before her marriage, which taught school at Long Lake, and gained many friends. Some of her former companions gathered together and had a very jolly evening. Games and music were enjoyed by young and old, and about the o'clock hot maple sugar and good old-fashioned taffy were served, then a few games and music. At midnight the party broke up, bidding Mr. and Mrs. Grass, little Miss Grass and Master Bobbie good-bye, wish them a safe and pleasant trip home and hoping they will return again to enjoy many more jolly evenings with the friends at Long Lake.

CAMDEN EAST.

We were very much pleased on Saturday last to see some of our citizens out with their snow shovels cleaning off the different walks in our village, which makes a decided improvement, not only for the scholars going to school, but also for those attending church. Do it again boys.

Mrs. Claney and Mrs. Milligan, of Enterprise, visited Mrs. S. Greenway this week.

C. Davidson, Brownville, N.Y., at J. W. Skinner's, Saturday and Sunday.

We were glad to see the ministers of the different churches at their post on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lane, Denbigh, were guests of Miss May Saul last week.

The roads are being looked after by Mr. A. Allenbrack, of this place. He is trying his best to keep them open.

Mrs. M. W. Evans spent Tuesday in Napanee.

Mrs. C. H. Finkle, Newburgh, visited her mother, Mrs. Spafford, on Tuesday.

Three days' mail came in on Saturday. Guess we were glad.

Mr. and Mrs. McGinness and children returned home on Monday after a month's visit with friends at Selby.

Business is rather dull at present. The merchants are taking advantage of it and are taking stock. Look out for bargains in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoffman, Moscow, called on friends on Monday.

On the sick list "Mrs. D. B. Parrott, John Watts, John Skinner and H. Saul.

Mr. S. Bryant had a bee on Saturday last, hauling stone out of his yard.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Warner, Yarker, at C. Switzer's, recently.

Mr. Jas. Homan is here with us for a while. We are glad if you would settle in Camden East. Would rather see you stay than take some of our village people away.

Quarterly meeting in C. M. church next Sabbath evening.

ODESSA.

Well! and what could Rideard now say of the snow? We think it would be "Lads of the Snow" still. Any who went visiting before the storms had to remain longer than was intended, and those who went to entertainments had a most serious time getting home. Some had quite a long stay, but most likely they made the best of a bad bargain and enjoyed it. The stages have only run their regular trips since the 10th.

The Babes in the Wood given by Mr. Hodge, was fine. The hall was well filled, and everyone seemed to enjoy the evening immensely. His little daughter, Mary, sang sweetly several selections. His son, Herbert, as violinist, humorist and actor, was exceptionally good. So, take it all in all, Hodge's concert is well worth attending at any time.

An African missionary has given several evening's entertainments in the Free Methodist church, which were well attended. He gave an interesting account of the manners and customs of the Africans, also moving pictures, which were good. Altogether a very instructive and amusing time was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. King entertained a number of their village and country friends on Tuesday night of last week. All enjoyed the evening, even if the thermometer dropped to 36 below.

Miss Pearl Sproule went to Kingston on Tuesday, but owing to the state of the roads was unable to return until the following Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Miss Wilson and Miss Schoales, were stormbound for two or three days, the former at Bath, the latter at Kingston.

Some 35 of our young people took it in their heads to surprise our baker, Mr. Burley, but he, unlike "Samantha Allen," did not object, so a lively time was spent in games, plays, etc. Refreshments were served, to which all did justice, and after the night was far gone they returned to their homes well satisfied with the evening's enjoyment.

Mr. Well. Clark is ill with lagrippe.

Miss Shirley Parrott is spending some time in the village, a guest of her brother, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. R. Maber and Mrs. Sine and Miss Flossie Caton spent a few days with Mrs. E. O. Clark.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Benjamin at John Graham's for two or three days.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Benjamin at Mr. Wycott's.

Dr. and Mrs. Day at Kingston on Sunday.

Miss L. Davey has gone to Toronto for a visit.

Those having ice houses are taking advantage of the few warm days and are filling them up.

THE FARMER AS A MECHANIC.

How very seldom do we find a devoted set of workers on the farm; farmers have a handsaw and hatchet which comprise their entire stock. It is just as essential that the farmer have a good set of tools as any part of the knowledge of how to use them as it is to understand the duties of agriculture and stock-raising, or any part of science in the farming.

Every farmer should have fitted up in his barn or tool shed a neat little bench with a vise, and a tool chest in place. And then on rainy days or at leisure moments he can make many improvements and repairs which will save losing time in the busy season and avoid the expense of repairs. The time to repair anything is when you first see the need of it. "Procrastination is the thief of time."

Farmers should encourage their boys in this line, for we well know that a boy naturally takes to the mechanical art. A boy when ten or twelve years of age should be provided with a few tools, such as a handsaw, chisel, plane, hatchet and augers and encouraged to make such articles as will be useful around the house, barn and poultry yard the rest of it. "Procrastination is the thief of time."

Don't Take Milk at Night

Milk in any form taken at night is apt to cause digestive disturbance. Your night's rest is not refreshing. To appease hunger, or merely for company's sake, "BOVRIL," in the form of a bouillon, or sandwiched between thin bread and butter, is excellent.

After this light supper you will sleep well and awake refreshed.

Who Gets the Most Out of Life?

Not the wealthiest, not the most learned, nor the idler—but the man who has good health and works for his living. This truth is trite, but not trivial.

Every man should guard his health as his most valuable possession. The more or because health is easier to retain than regain.

Keep your grip on health by regular exercise, reasonable care in eating and requisite sleep. Take Beecham's Pills occasionally, to tone the stomach and keep the liver and bowels in good working order. And don't worry.

A WAGES AWARD.

Board of Investigation's Interesting Report in the Telegraphers' Case.

EMPLOYERS HAVE INTERESTS.

Not to the Public's Advantage That Proportion Should be Made Unprofitable.

The following, which will appear in the February "Labor Gazette," is from the Report of the Board of Investigation under the Lemieux Act, composed of Prof. A. Shortt, J. G. O'Donoghue and W. Nesbett, K.C., which recently adjusted the matter between the Grand Trunk Ry. and the Telegraph operators :—

"The board were much impressed by the suggestions that the same board had recommended a higher rate of pay to the telegraphers in the service of the Canadian Pacific than they were prepared to recommend in the present instance. We are glad to be able to report that the parties appreciated the reasons why the members of the board could not in this instance see their way to the recommendation of any higher rate than that finally agreed upon between the parties, and we desire to put upon record some of the reasons why we came to this conclusion.

"We thought, under the present conditions, that the duties of the operators, the matter of increase of wages was all that could be justified. There are many considerations entering into the question. In our view, there is the right of the men to receive a living wage, and that right is paramount. The workman is entitled to get a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. What, however, often seems to be ignored in that capital and labor are both necessary in order to produce a profit, whether it is in the operation of railways, in manufacturing, or in any other line of trade. The aim of both the worker should be to secure a fair share of this profit. But there is also to be considered the position of the man who advances the money to enable the undertaking to be carried on which gives employment. He, too, is entitled to receive a return for his money and his risk. A hundred millions of the capital stock of the Grand Trunk Railway receives no dividends whatever. If such dividends on the preferred stock as are now being paid are still further reduced by the wages bill being increased, it would necessarily follow ? The company cannot obtain further money for expansion. So it can be more remuneratively employed in other undertakings. This certainly would be a disadvantage to the vast numbers who find employment on railways. Then there is the constant demand of the public for the betterment of the service and equipment, for more and facilities, the bettering of the roadbed and general improvement in the accommodations. These can only be obtained where the parties asked to advance the money can see some possibility of a return for the advance. Our experience on a number of these boards has led us to the conclusion that there seems to be an understood on the part of the public of two things: First, that there is a continual demand for an increase of expenditure upon the part of the company for facilities, and, second, a continual demand for a reduction of the tariffs which furnish the means necessary to provide these facilities and accommodations. The growth of earnings is not keeping pace proportionately with the growth of expenses. If the operating expenses and the wages to employees must be increased from time to time, and the public so demand very serious considerations must be given to the proposals for the reduction of freight and passenger rates. Inasmuch as every reduction directly affects the ability of the railways to pay the wages asked by their employees.

"We think that the cost of living has greatly increased, and that the employees of a railway company are entitled to be better compensated to meet such increased cost, but surely they are not entitled to be compensated at the sole expense of people who have invested their money and who would in return be deprived of their means of livelihood. The public should bear their share. The railway employer spends his money for the benefit of every other member of the community from cartage to manufacturer, and if the employer has to obtain more money to meet his increased cost of living, other classes of the community who receive the benefit of the money he spends should contribute their share towards enabling him to get the money he has to spend, and it is for the foregoing reasons that, under the present conditions, and having in view all the surrounding circumstances, we thought that the offer of increase made by the officials of the Grand Trunk Railway Company had gone as far as could be justified, though not necessarily to the point which the telegraphers ought to receive under other circumstances. The deferring of the investment of capital in railway undertakings would certainly not be a benefit to the community at large, and if the property of lenders is to be practically confiscated between the demand of the public for cheap rates and the demand of the employees on the other, all must lead to a general reduction in wages or a shrinkage in the number of employees, with a much greater attempt to go to labor. It has been suggested that this state of affairs may be met by the state becoming owners of the railways. To accomplish this the capital necessary to make railways and work them would still have to be found. The fact of state ownership would not bring capital down from the skies like the manna to the Israelites in the desert. If borrowed by the state, interest must be paid for it, and probably at a higher rate, than the state now has to pay, for two reasons, first, because of large lender borrowers; second, because of the risk incident to industrial undertakings. Then, again, taxation. This would be nothing more than getting it from the collective members of the country, in the wages, other than the living wage before referred to, which are paid by railway companies to their employees must, therefore, diminish as we may depend upon what a company earns after the interest on capital employed is paid. This may equally be said of all industrial and commercial undertakings, and no amount of wage philanthropy can alter the fact any more than it can alter the fact that two and two make four.

SIMPLE HOME RECIPE.

Get from any prescription pharmacist the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful dose after each meal and at bedtime.

The above is considered by an eminent authority, who writes in a recent book daily paper, as the finest prescription ever written to relieve Backache, Kidney Trouble, Weak Bladder, Irritation of Urinary Organs, etc. This mixture acts promptly on the kidneys, relieves sinuses of the head, causing them to filter and strain the poisonous acid and other waste matter from the blood which causes Rheumatism. Any person who suffers from these ailments may not feel inclined to make this prescription up in this simple mixture, yet those who have tried it say the results are simply surprising in relief from backache, kidney and bladder misery due to the stomach or other causes.

Mix some and give it a trial. It certainly cannot injure anyone, since it is the prescription of an eminent authority, whose entire reputation, it is said, was established by it.

A druggist here at home is also asked stated that he could either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription for our readers, also recommends it as harmless.

Returns prepared by the province's Licensing Department show that in the recent local option campaign the by-law was carried in 31 places by the required three-fifths majority. In 27 municipalities local option received a majority of the total votes cast, but failed to become operative, because the majority was under the required three-fifths. The by-law was defeated outright in 27 other places, but in the latter instances were the electors voted on repeal the effort is to be made in order to do things failed in every case except one, that of Thamesville.

TO THE RATEPAYERS OF ERNESTOWN.

Gentlemen.—You who attended nomination at Odessa will remember what the Reeve has stated in reference to the financial statement of the Reeve and Treasurer, and went so far as to say he could prove it, and emphasized the word prove with a double grip of his teeth, and a double look of the eye, that the statement was wrong and misleading by over $2,000. Now, I ask the farmers and ratepayers may know how they stand. I have before me the financial statement of the Auditors, which only vary from ours by $306.12, and this error is explained by the writer at the time, as being put into our account from the last year. We gave a statement to from 1902, 1903, the Auditors to Dec. 31st, 1907. Their statement shows the liabilities $8,364.35, surplus $36,266.08. Our statement shows the liabilities $8,670.47, assets $44,580.87, surplus $35,671.20. You will plainly see that assets and liabilities change almost daily, and you can still further see that my statement to the end was correct almost to a cent. Believe me the Treasurer keeps books right, and before any one attempts to contradict him they should get more positive and less abusive to their opponents in experiences.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS, A SMILE IN EVERY DOSE.

The mother who, in her gratitude for what Baby's Own Tablets have done for her child, said that "There's a smile in every dose" coined a very happy and very true phrase. The tablets carry all the minor troubles of babies and young children, and make bright, smiling, happy little ones. Mrs. John Young, Aubrey, Que., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for more than a year and I think there is no medicine that can be given a baby. They are splendid at teething time, and for colic and bowel troubles. You don't need a doctor if you have Baby's Own Tablets in the house." That's about the highest praise a mother can give and it's true, every word of it. You can get the Tablets from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIRE AT ARDEN.

On Sunday evening, Feby. 2d, a fire broke out on the premises of T. H. Hall. The building was occupied as a frame store and dwelling. When the fire started word was sent being held in the Methodist and Anglican churches, and by the time the people got to the fire the building was so enveloped in flame that it was impossible to do anything, consequently very little was saved. It was only by the utmost perseverance that the adjoining buildings were saved. There was considerable damage was done to building, stock, furniture, etc., which the loss is adjusted, as every claim was satisfactorily settled a few days after the fire, the claims amounting to $3,200.

CAMDEN EAST.

The following interesting event speaks for itself :

To Mr. and Mrs. Miles Evans :—

We, few of your friends and neighbors, have assembled on this occasion to show in a slight degree the high esteem we have for you and your family, and the kind manner you have conducted yourselves on your departure from this community.

We shall not only miss you as a valuable citizen, one whom we could always rely on to stand up for good principles, but also as a worker in the church, filling the position of trustee and steward with ability and credit to yourself and entire satisfaction to the church.

We also desire to express our gratitude to Mrs. Evans for the cheerful assistance always rendered in her department of church work, and we shall miss very much her kindness and valuable services, but our loss shall be others gain.

We ask you to accept this purse of gold for its intrinsic value, but as a token of the love we have for you and your family. While in far off lands may it be a reminder to you of the kind feelings ever cherished by the people of Camden East and vicinity towards you.

We wish you and family a happy and prosperous life in your new home, and that you may find kind friends and neighbors in the far distant land.

Signed on behalf of the congregation,

James Skinner,	Wm. Bicknell,
Geo. Day,	Jas. Dickson,
J. S. Galbraith,	J. B. Alcombrack,
H. Parrott,	H. Parrott,
Jas. Homan,	Mr. Lang.

Mr. Evans said in behalf of himself and Mrs. Evans, that he could not express here this evening. I am glad we have had such a pleasant surprise and now as we are about to leave I must say good bye. We are leaving these parts on account of having no friends, for we have many of the true friends but while in the west last summer my health was first-class, and I am going to have a family out to see this country, and if they do not like it we will come back and settle in Old Ontario.

I would ask you, one and all, if you ever come out our place you will find the doors open to receive you. If we should not be at home, you certainly will meet in that upper and better land. Let us endeavor to live with you till we meet again, the gathering dispersed to their several homes.

LUTHERAN S. S. CONCERT.

Owing to the storm of last week our concert was postponed from Feby. 7th to Feby. 14th. Those who did not attend missed a rare treat. The programme, which was a lengthy one, was rendered about twenty numbers. Two chorus, a word given by the school recitations, reading, dialogues, duets and solos. Miss Ada Anestine, Bowlby, gave a recitation entitled, "The Little White Lie." Miss Grace Cummings read a very appropriate address, and Miss Belle Cummings presented her with a biscuit jar with silver top and handle, on behalf of her class, then Mrs. W. H. Crabbe read an address, Mrs. Wesley Chrysler and Miss Emma Gould presented her with hand painted china cake plate and hand painted china salad bowl on behalf of the remaining members of the school. Mrs. Schell leaves for Bath for her new home near Sydenham, N.Y. Her place will be hard to fill, as she has been a faithful worker in our S.S. for over 15 years. She expects to go in a few weeks. We regret at leaving, but may God be with them through life. Miss L. M. Chambers was given a silver cold meat fork by Mrs. Crabbe on behalf of her class, for her services as organist in the school. Proceeds, $14.45.

We have a great amount of snow in our section.—Miss Mina Schell visited friends at Wilton recently.—Mr. McCullough, Desoronto, at her niece's, Mrs. N. Hill.—Quarterly service will be held in the White church, Morven, on Sunday, and service at Lutheran church at night.

GOLDEN WEDDINGS.

On Sept. 30th, 1857, Mr. James S. Lochhead, of Camden, was united in matrimony to Miss Eliza Ann Baker, by the late Rev. Gilford Dora. They settled in Centreville, and by the early rising of the family of four sons and four daughters grew up around them, and God greatly prospered them in material things, so that they were enabled to educate their family for positions of trust and responsibility. On the 30th Sept., 1907, three sons and two daughters, with their families and several old neighbors and friends, gathered in the old happy home to celebrate the golden anniversary of their wedding day, after a sumptuous dinner suitable addresses were given by the sons, Messrs. Rev. H. Lochhead, Toronto, and others. A gold beaded ebony cane, suitably engraved, was presented to the father, and a purse of gold to the mother by the children. The gifts indicated the strength of the family affection. Mr. and Mrs. Lochhead are now in their 74th year, and are among the oldest members of the Methodist church at Centreville, and are held in the highest respect by the entire community. Their three sons, Andrew, of Hamilton; William, of Berlin, and Mortimer at home, are respected citizens, and useful members of the church, while the two daughters, two in Vancouver, B.C., one in Fortescue, and one at home, are among the good of their fathers, and honoring the parental name. Their family is a very much prized son, Bert., died some years ago in far off Manilla, Philipine Islands. Mr. and Mrs. Lochhead are hale and hearty and able to attend church regularly.

Another happy event was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. Mathew Shannon and Mrs. Minnie Shannon, at which took place at their beautiful home near Centreville, Dec. 29th, 1907. Mr. and Mrs. Shannon were married on the 29th, 1857, by the late Rev. Daniel Brown, and for many years have resided in Camden. Their only son, William, of Napanee, and family were present, a few old neighbors and friends, met in the afternoon, and a very enjoyable day was spent. Beautiful and suitable gifts were presented by the children and grandchildren to all present. Mr. and Mrs. Shannon received many congratulations and printed citizens. Mr. Shannon having for years been prominent in municipal affairs as well as an official in the Methodist church, while Mrs. Shannon has been and is an ideal housekeeper and helpmeet to the ways of her household and eating out of the hand of God and his family under walking in his footsteps.

Still another interesting event transpired at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ward, Camden East, on Wednesday, Jan. 25th, 1908, it being their golden wedding anniversary. All the children were present, Mrs. Alonzo Walker and Mrs. Clayton Hoag, Napanee; Professor G. L., of Mt. Hermon College, Beecher, of Akron, Ohio, and Cyrus and German at home. Two grand children of the total eleven were at the celebration, also Mrs. Ward's sister. Besides there were two brothers and one sister of Mrs. Wagar, and one brother of Mr. Wagar present.—a real family gathering. After the bountiful repast was served the 91st Psalm was read by Prof. Gardner B. Wagar, and prayer by Rev. R. Allin, led in prayer, after which several sang and played some, and the guests had an old fashioned visit. Mr. and Mrs. Ward were presented with a purse of gold from the children. Mr. and Mrs. Wagar are enjoying a fair degree of health, have been prominent members of the church for nearly fifty years, and their lives are an proving the truth of that passage which says, "The path of the just is as the shining light, shineth more and more unto the perfect day." Mr. Ward is fond of quoting passage, "With long life will I satisfy him and show him my salvation." Their family are all well and blessed, and are walking in their footsteps.

HYOMEI'S AROMATIC AIR IS GUARANTEED TO CURE CATARRH OR COST NOTHING

When using the Hyomei treatment, the air you breathe is like that on the mountains high above sea level where the pine woods fill the air with aromatic healing that gives health and strength to those suffering from diseases of the respiratory organs. Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, the healing balsams of Hyomei reach the most remote air cells of the throat, nose and lungs, destroying all catarrhal germs and giving quick relief and cure.

Hyomei has performed almost marvelous cures of catarrh, often restoring health in chronic cases that have given up all hope of recovery. It is so safe to use at the start of the disease that even the breath is becoming offensive and the discharges from the nose disappear, and the throat and frequent hawking and disagreeable coughing begin to break up. At the first symptoms of catarrhal trouble, use Hyomei—and see how quickly you get relief and how soon you have a complete cure. It is not a cure-all, but it does cure catarrh, and is sold by T. H. Wallace under guarantee to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

The Reason Why

Zutoo

Is Used by Thousands.

It would probably surprise you to know how many thousands prefer to use Zutoo Tablets who had never before used a headache cure.

This is due to three facts.

They tried the tablets.

The tablets cured their headache.

The tablets did not hurt them.

Like sensible people, they do not suffer from headache any more. They either let Zutoo ward off the headache, or nip it in the bud—or assist nature in stopping it. Which do you do? Do you suffer from headache or do you take Zutoo?

No home, be it cottage, villa or mansion, is complete without music, and nothing else in the world so much refreshes, invigorates, revives, and far more entertains than music. The Stone & Nightingale has now established itself so firmly in the public favor as a piano that it is well to use the word "Nightingale" as a household word. Canada has turned out many pianos for generations, but the ability to the Gerhard Heintzman has enhanced the reputation as instrument of real musical excellence. Many of the first personages will appear above statement; and the mark, the late President Harper, Esquire Dr. Theodore Theobald, Esq., Toronto, amongst a host of others, highly prized. The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,
Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

"I tell you it was. I heard him speak just now—out there in the yard—that no account stepbrother of Joe's! What if he is a hired hand on the Tocsin? He'd better give up his job and quit than do what he's done to help make the town think hard of Joe. And what is he? Why, he's worse than Cory. When that Claudine Fear first came here, Gene Bantry was hangin' around her himself. Joe knew it, and he'd never tell, but I will. I saw 'em buggy ridin' out near Beaver Beach, and she slapped his face for him. It ought to be told!"

"I didn't know that Joe knew—that," Eugene stammered huskily. "It was—it was a long time ago."

"If you understand Joe," she said in a low voice, "you would know that he knows a long time ago!"

Eugene found himself alone and stumbled away, his glance not lifted. He passed his own home without noting up and did not see his mother beckoning frantically from a window. She ran to the door and called him. He did not hear her, but went on toward the Tocsin office with his head still bent.

CHAPTER XXI.

THERE was merit for gossip a-plenty in Canaan that afternoon and evening. There were rumors that ran from kitchen to parlor, and rumors that ran from parlor to kitchen; speculations that detained housewives in talk across front gates, wonderings that held cooks in converse over shuddens back fences in spite of the heat and canards that brought Main street clerks running to the shop doors to stare up and down the sidewalks.

Out of the confusion of report the judicious were able by evenfall to extract a fair history of this day of revolution. There remained no doubt that Joe Louden was in attendance at the deathbed of Eskew Arp, and precisely how it came to be known that Colonel Flitcroft, Squire Buckalew and Peter Bradbury had been made wards with Joe and declared themselves his friends. There were those, particularly among the relatives of the weary foe, who expressed the opinion that the colonel and his comrades were too old to be responsible and a commission ought to sit on them. Nevertheless some echoes of Eskew's last "argument" to the concave had sounded in the town and were not wholly without effect.

Everywhere there was a sipping certainly to learn how Judge Pike had "taken" the strange performance of his daughter, and the eager were much disappointed when it was truthfully reported that he had done and said very little. He had merely discharged both Sam Warden and Sam's wife from his service, as the mild manner of the dismissal almost unnerving Mr. Warden, although he was fully prepared for bird shot, and the couple had found immediate employment in the service of Ariel Tabor.

Though the humanly felt the judge's behavior to be a trifle flat and unsensational were recompensed late in the afternoon when it became known that Eugene Bantry had resigned his position on the Tocsin. His reason for severing the connection was dumfounding. He had written a formal letter to the judge and repeated the gist of it to his associates in the office and acquaintances upon the street. He declared that he no longer sympathized with the attitude of the Tocsin toward its stepbrother and regretted that he had previously assisted in emphasizing the paper's hostility to Joe, particularly in the matter of the approaching murder trial. This being the case, he felt that his effectiveness in the service of the paper had ceased. He must in justice to the owner resign.

"Well, I'm cursed!" was the simple comment of the elder Louden when his stepson sought him out at the factory and repeated this statement to him.

"So am I, I think," said Eugene wearily. "Goodby. I'm going now to see mother, but I'll be gone before you come home."

"Gone where?"

"Just away. I don't know where," Eugene answered from the door. "I couldn't live here any longer. I'—"

"You've been drinking," said Mr. Louden, inspired. "You'd better not let Mamie Pike see you."

Eugene laughed desolately. "I don't mean to. I shall write to her. Good-by!" he said and was gone before Mr. Louden could restore enough order out of the chaos in his mind to stop him.

Mrs. Louden's call to the wall at the window was tragically rewarded, and she became an unhappy actor in Canaan's drama at once. She was in time attended at other windows or near their front doors throughout the afternoon—in the case of the face at the arche awaiting their return as the time drew on with something akin to frenzy. Mrs. Flitcroft, a lady of temper, whose rheumatism confined her to a chair, had her grandson wheel her out upon the porch, and as the dusky fell and she finally saw her husband coming at a laggard pace, leaning upon his cane, his chin sunk on his breast, no warning to make him remain silent in the hallway. The veteran was speaking, and his voice was very weak, seeming to come from a great distance.

"It's mighty funny, but I feel like I used to when I was a little boy. I reckon I'm kind of scared—after all. Alfie Tabor—are you—here?"

"Yes, Mr. Arp."

"I thought—so—but I—I don't see very well—lately. I—wanted—to—know—the—to know—"

"Yes—to know?" She knelt close beside him.

"It's kind of—foolish," he whispered. "I just—wanted to know if you was still here. It—don't seem so lonesome now that I know."

She put her arm lightly about him, and he smiled and was silent for a minute; then he struggled to rise upon his elbow, and they lifted him a little.

"It's hard to breathe," gasped the old man. "I'm pretty near—the big road, Joe Louden—"

"Yes?"

"You'd have been—willing—willing to change places with me—just now—when Alfie—"

Joe laid his hand on his, and Eskew smiled again. "I thought so! And, Joe—"

"Yes?"

"You always—always had the—the best of that joke between us. Do you—you suppose they charge admission—up there?" His eyes were lifted. "Do you suppose you've got to—to show your good deeds to git in?" The answering whisper was almost as faint as the old man's.

"No," panted Eskew, "nobody knows. But I hope—I do hope—they'll have some free seats. It's a—mighty poor show—we'll—all have—if they—don't."

He sighed peacefully, his head grew heavier on Joe's arm, and the young man set his hand gently upon the unseeing eyes. Ariel did not rise from where she knelt, but looked up at him when, a little later, he lifted his hand.

"Yes," said Joe, "you can cry now."

CHAPTER XXII.

JOE helped to carry what was mortal of Eskew from Ariel's house to its final abiding place. With him in that office were Buckalew, Bradbury, the colonel and the grandsons of the two latter, and Mrs. Louden drew in her skirts grimly as her stepson passed her in the mournful procession through the hall. Her eyes were red with weeping (not for Eskew), but not so red as those of Mamie Pike, who stood beside her.

On the way to the cemetery Joe and Ariel were together in a carriage with Buckalew, and the minister who had read the service, a dark, pleasant eyed young man, and the squire, after being a'most overcome during the ceremony, experienced a natural reaction, talking cheerfully throughout the long drive. He recounted many anecdotes of Eskew, chuckling over most of them, although filled with wonder by a coincidence which he and Flitcroft had discovered—the colonel had recently also made the custodian of his old friend's will, and it had been opened the day before the funeral. Eskew had left everything he possessed, with the regret that it was so little, to Joe.

"But the queer thing about it," said the squire, addressing himself to Ariel, "was the date of it, the 17th of June. The colonel and I got to talkin' it over on his porch last night, tryin' to recl'ect what was goin' on about then, and we figgered it out that it was the Monday after you come back, the very day he got so upset when he saw you goin' up to Louden's law office with your roses."

Joe looked quickly at Ariel. She did not meet his glance, but, turning instead to Ladew, the clergyman, began, with a lazily perceptible, blush, to talk of something he had said in a sermon two weeks ago. The two fell into a thoughtful and amiable discussion, during which there stole into Joe's heart a strange and unreasonable pain. The young minister had lived in Canaan only a few months, and Joe had never seen him until that morning, but he liked the short, honest talk he had made, liked his cadenced voice and keen, dark face and, recalling what he had heard Martin Pike vociferating in his brougham one day, perceived that Ladew was the fellow who had "got to go" because his sermons did not please the judge's ear. Ariel remembered for more than a fortnight a passage from one of these sermons. And as Joe looked at the sharp a pace as his architecture permitted, within ten minutes opened Ariel's gate.

Sam Warden came forward to meet him.

"Don't ring, please, anh," said Sam. "Dey sot me out heah to tell inquirin' frien's dat po' ole Mist' Arp mighty low."

"I want to see Mr. Louden," returned Norbert. "I want to see him immediately."

"I don' reckon he kin come out yit," Sam said in a low tone. "But I kin go in an' ast 'im."

He stepped softly within, leaving Norbert waiting, and went to the door of the parlor used. The door was open, the room brightly lighted, as Ariel had commanded when, a little earlier, he awoke.

Joe and Ariel were alone with him, leaning toward him with such white anxiety that the colored man needed

"It was the jealousy element," Mr. Farbach had returned pensefully, "dot does der fighten'."

"And you have considered my standing with that part of Canaan which considers itself the most respectable section?" He rose to his feet, standing straight and quiet, facing the table, upon which, it chanced, there lay a copy of the Tocsin.

"Und yet," observed Mr. Farbach, with mildness, "we got some pooty believeable men right here."

"Except me," broke in Mr. Sheehan grimly, "you have."

"Have you thought of this?" Joe leaned forward and touched the paper upon the table.

"We has," replied Mr. Farbach; "all of us. You shall beat it."

There was a strong chorus of confirmation from the others, and Joe's eyes flashed.

"Have you considered," he continued rapidly, while a warm color began to conquer his pallor—"have you considered the powerful influence which will be against me, and more against me now, I should tell you, than ever before—that influence, I mean, which is striving so hard to discredit me that I—that we have been united for poor Fear if I should clear him? Have you thought of that? Have you thought"—

"Have we thought o' Martin Pike?" exclaimed Mr. Sheehan, springing to his feet, face aflame and beard bristling. "Aye, we've thought o' Martin Pike, and our thinkin' of him is where he begins to git what's comin' to him! And d'ye stand there pickin' straws fer? What's the matter with ye?" he demanded angrily, his violence tenfold increased by the long repression he had put upon himself during the brewer's deliberate utterances. "If Louie Parlow—and his cronies—are scared, it's a kinds of pickle in the market for the purchase of all kinds of people."

"Then you're blind," returned his grandson disrespectfully; "you're blind or else—or else—" He paused, open mouthed, a look of wonder struggling its way to expression upon him, mentally conquering every knobby outpost of his customary inferiority. His eyes fat hands together. "Where's Joe Louden?" he asked sharply. "I want to see him. Did you leave him at Miss Tabor's?"

"He's goin' to sit up with Eskew. What do you want of him?"

"I should say you better ask that!" Mrs. Flitcroft began shrilly. "It's enough, I guess, for one of this family to go runnin' after him and shakin' hands with him and heaven knows what not! Norbert Flitcroft!"

But Norbert jumped from the porch, ruthlessly crossed his grandmother's geranium bed and, reaching Joe at as sharp a pace as his architecture permitted, within ten minutes opened Ariel's gate.

Sam Warden came forward to meet him.

"Mist' Louden, please, anh," said Sam. "Dey sot me out heah to tell inqifirin' frien's dat po' ole Mist' Arp mighty low."

"I want to see Mr. Louden," returned Norbert. "I want to see him immediately."

"I don' reckon he kin come out yit," Sam said in a low tone. "But I kin go in an' ast 'im."

He stepped softly within, leaving Norbert waiting, and went to the door of the parlor used. The door was open, the room brightly lighted, as Ariel had commanded when, a little earlier, he awoke.

Joe and Ariel were alone with him, leaning toward him with such white anxiety that the colored man needed

You have heard of biscuits—and read of biscuits—and eaten biscuits—but you don't know biscuits—until you try Mooney's Perfection Cream Sodas. They are everything that the ideal biscuits should be.

The air-tight, moisture-proof package brings them to you fresh, crisp, inviting.

Practically every grocer in Canada has MOONEY'S. Yours will get them if you ask. In 1 & 2 lb. pkg.

NAPANEE POISON F. C. TORIES.

YOU WILL BE SURPRISED TO LEARN HOW MANY THERE ARE.

Did you ever feel stupid and dull after eating a hearty dinner?

When food is retained too long in the stomach, because of stomach weakness, the poison factory works overtime and there is coldness, confusion of thought, despondency, heart-burn, sleeplessness, nervous trouble and other forms of indigestion.

The general use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets puts within the reach of everyone a reliable and positive cure for all stomach weakness. Mi-o-na quickly cures the worst case of indigestion, and the pain and dullness which is often felt after meals will soon disappear, such is the wonderful curative power of this little fact.

Mi-o-na acts upon entirely different principles from any of the other remedies that have been used in stomach trouble. It is taken before meals, and has a specific strengthening action upon the muscles of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive juices and making the stomach able to digest its food easily and naturally the food which is eaten.

T. B. Wallace has seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na that he is willing to guarantee with every 50-cent box that the remedy costs nothing unless it cures.

Mrs. Gadsby (barging in)—I don't know what we're going to be about poor, darling Fido.

Mr. Gadsby—Enough! What ails him?

Mrs. Gadsby (in surprise)—Why, have you not noticed how irritated he becomes whenever the baby cries?

The Best Flour.

Dafoe's Nonesuch, Dafoe's Manitoba Patent

By numerous tests by the best bakers the above mentioned grades have been proven to be the best flour in the world.

When buying flour, ask for Dafoe's, and guarantee your home will thereby produce Bran and Shorts that—you can purchase cheaper than the product of the Western mills, which has to be transported thousands of miles at great expense, and usually when it reaches you is of inferior quality.

The grain grown in the farmer of the above mentioned districts or to outside points for an article he can depend on, and more just as good, but he does not hesitate to buy flour from mills hundreds of miles away, and sells you an inferior flour for more money than you can purchase the home product for, every bag of which is guaranteed.

Dafoe's Cornmeal and Buckwheat Flour always on hand. Grinding a specialty, with the best feed mills known to the trade.

A full stock of the best Anthracite Coal; also in the market for the purchase of all kinds of grain.

Ask for prices at the Big Mill, before purchasing your Flour, Feed or Coal.

TO THOSE OF SEDENTARY OCCUPATION. Men who follow sedentary occupations which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver, than those who lead an active, outdoor life. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a medicine with out equation, the most efficacious on the market. They are most pleasant to take, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap. 25 cents per box.

STEEL PASSENGER CARS.

The Travellers' Protective Association of the United States is supplementing its active campaign for a passenger fate—of two cents a mile by another for steel passenger cars. Backed by more than half a million travelling salesmen, there was introduced into Congress a bill which, if passed, will compel all the railroads of the United States to replace their present wooden equipment with fireproof steel coaches. It is desired that the railroads devote 10 per cent of the wooden cars each year for the next ten years.

The association, which is actively engaged in working for the proposed legislation, has compiled some startling tables showing the great destruction of life during the past five years as a result of collisions, derailments and other accidents. In nearly every case the great amount of loss was the almost wholly needless one of the wooden coaches—coaches were crushed into splinters or kindled into fire after the wreck. Steel cars, it is claimed, would have prevented the loss of life.

It further states that in the 18 years since the interstate commission began the collection of facts about accidents nearly 15,000 passengers and over 18,000 employees have been killed on American railways, and nearly 1,000,000 more have been crippled. In 1905 "was twice as dangerous to travel on a railway train or to work for a railway company of the United States as it was in 1893. In the only accidents which are reported to the commission which are included in these statistics. The fact that a large number of railway employees do not report accidents is demonstrated by the lamentable records of the largest railway companies for failure to report over 200 accidents.

He will erect a dwelling and reside on it.—The opposite his brother William's home, which is the old Neely homestead.—Mrs. Weese is at her daughter's, Mrs. R. Martin.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Lasher and Mr. and Mrs. John Madden took a trip to Bath, to visit Mr. Lasher's daughter, and other friends.—The paper mill is closed down for want of supplies, the blocked railroads being the cause.—There has been no service in the churches here since the smallpox has broken out. Although school has been resumed.

WILSON'S CROSSING.

Like Bruin, on Candlemas, we saw our shadow, and have been snowed in ever since. The snow is laying around here from three to seven feet deep. Glad the weather has taken a turn, as we were long enough 40 degrees below zero.—Rev. Mr. Allin, and Mrs. H. Switzer and family, Mrs. Henry Switzer, Bath, and Mr. Cornelius Jackson, dined at Mr. Robert Switzer's, Tuesday.—Mrs. Switzer spent Monday night with her aunt, Mrs. Lewis Jackson.—Mr. Wm. Hurley and Mr. Milton H. Switzer are still, we are sorry to say, on the sick list.—Mr. Edwin Wilson was Miss Lily Black's guest Sunday.—Mrs. J. F. Wilson spent Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. Wm. H. Hurley.—Miss Ida Salisbury is visiting her sister, Mrs. Herb. Wagar, at present.—Mr. Mr. Allin called on Mr. M. Loucks on Tuesday.—Snow shoes are all the rage but there are a few who can't use them are having sad times.—What's happened our Canada? We are without a pathmaster here, and the roads in some places are in a dangerous condition.

NEWS NOTES.

The steel plant at Sault Ste. Marie has been closed again, owing to a break in the machinery.

Britain will not undertake the construction of any battleships this year, except those already on her programme.

The bill for $7,500 of Mr. Frank Arnoldi against Mr. G. R. R. Cockburn for legal services was cut down by Chief Justice Mulock to $2,000, with $400 for costs.

Three officials of the Big Six, a New York branch of the International Typographical Union, were fined $250 each and sent to jail for twenty days for disobeying an injunction.

The eight-inch oil pipe line which John W. Gates and associates built from Tulsa, Oklahoma, to Port Arthur, Texas, is in regular operation. It is 562 miles long and was built at a cost of more than $6,000,000.

Mrs. William Kimmerly, Belleville, died very suddenly on Friday evening. When her husband, employed at the Crystal Hotel, went home, he was confronted by the dead body of his wife lying on the floor near the bed. A doctor pronounced the cause of death to be heart disease.

Hugh Turner was killed without a moment's warning while at work in Martin & Sayer's flour mill at Glenora. No one was a witness of the sad fatality, but it is supposed he was readjusting a belt while the machinery was in motion and was caught. He called for help, but when Mr. Martin came he was lying dead. The unfortunate man was married only a few weeks ago.

Sale of Samples From Glasgow.

We have again been fortunate in securing from that great exporting house, (The J. & W. Campbell Co., of Glasgow, Scotland), their set of samples that was sent out for the Canadian trade to choose from. We will commence selling them Saturday morning, Feb. 15th. The samples will be displayed on centre aisle tables. Every article will be sold at considerable less than regular price. We have had several sets of Scotch samples in previous seasons. Customers who have bought before know what a fine lot of choosing there is among them. As these samples have only been shown to leading stores in larger centres, every article is in perfect condition. Ready Saturday morning, Feb. 15th, and continue next week. Sooner you come, better the choosing. The following headings are an index of samples:

Plain Huck and Damask Towels,
Turkish Bath Towels,
Turkish Bath Mats,
White Linen Table Cloths,
Colored Linen and Tapestry Table Covers,
White Tea Cloths,

Coronation Braid

GOING TO BE MUCH USED.

Ladies who keep up-to-date in needle work will tell you that Coronation Braids will be much used. Designers of stamp work have introduced many designs calling for its use. At the counter where we sell Coronation Braid you may see a sample piece of Coronation Braid worked on linen.

Peri Lusta

2 SKEINS FOR 5c.

For shadow embroidery on Persian Lawns, Organdies and Batistes we are selling more Peri Lusta than ever. Our price for Peri Lusta must be right or we would not get orders from other towns for it.

Embroideries

Our Embroideries are the talk of the community. Such an immense assortment of real fine qualities has made many sales for us. Test our stock at any point you wish—narrow edgings, fine insertions, deep flouncings, allovers, waist fronts or corset cover Embroidery—the verdict will be the same: Beautiful.

Such Lovely White Materials

FOR WAISTS AND DRESSES.

By all means see the new white materials. Sheer dainty stuffs that make up prettily with fine laces. Dimity cords forming cross barred effects is the popular fabric of the season.

Black Underskirts

Just received our spring stock of Petticoats. Our values at $1.00, $1.25 and $1.50 are splendid. The $1.50 quality is made in extra O. S. size.

FEATHER SILKS AND HEATHER BLOOM PETTICOATS We have these famous Skirts made from Feathersilk and Heatherbloom Taffetas. They are not silk, but looks it, feels it, and often outwear it. Would like to show them to you. $2.25, $2.50, $3.60, $4.00, $5.00.

Black and White and Blue and White Small Check Ginghams—12 1-2c yard.

Our first showing of staple Ginghams is ready. Navy and White and Black and White in the small shepherd checks are about the most satisfactory ginghams at the price. They wash and wear well, are easy to sew and iron.

Prints at Old Prices.

By placing large contracts early we are in a position to protect our customers from paying advance prices on prints. As a matter of fact we are now giving our customers the same identical prints at 5c., 10c., and 12½c. per yard that mill prices to-day would necessitate retailing at 7c., 12½c., and 15c. per yard.

At 5c. YARD—The cloth is same as last year.

A 10c. YARD—The quality is the famous duck print in the Acorn brand.

At 12½c. YARD—You may choose from Crum or Potter prints.

MEMORIES RECALLED.

Lines written upon reading a poem by Mr. S. McCamus of Sherrett, County Cavan, Ireland, and recently published in the Peterboro' Review:

A McCamus a poet?
And 'we didn't know it!
And of the old sod
Where our fathers have trod!
Yes, a poet for sure
With a diction so pure,
Fine literary taste,
And a style most chaste.

O now, I am glad;
Though it does make me sad;
For the days of yore
And the old folk-lore
Come back to me.
Now again I see
The circle, the hearth,
Where oft'n we did listen
While our young eyes would glisten.

To tales bumrons and scarey
Of the ghost and the fairy
And the fate that befell,
(No one but fathers could tell)
The poor Paddy belated
On the journey ill-fated,
When the light in the bog
He followed agog
'Till bedraggled and torn
Most sad and forlorn,
He was found by day-light
In a terrible plight,
In spite of the coat
He had turned inside out.

Then there's the lakes of Killarney
And the stone they called Blarney
That made the tongue slick
When you kissed it a lick;
And the hedges and brooks
And the four-leaf shamrocks.
O yes, and we've heard
Of the 'Sea of the Mist'
And the towers that bloom
In the land they called "home."
Exiled for a while
From the Emerald Isle
They were sojourners here
Where with hope and good cheer,
In this newer land,
With stout heart and strong hand,
Life's burdens they bore
'Till life's journey was o'er.

Dead! Yes, and gone home
Ne'er again shall they roam
No more burdens they bear,
Not sorrow nor care
For they've reached the Ur bi Shoz,
Where sorrow's no more

So wherever we stray
For this may we pray
That our hearts may be pure
So that we may secure
A home with the blest
In the land of sweet rest

So we tender our friendship
And acknowledge our kinship
To our friend o'er the ocean
Whose poetic effusion
We have read and admired
And these lines have inspired

After the blizzards of the past two weeks, the roads are getting in shape for travelling on now.—Mr. George Daly and family visited at Albert Hartman's, at Asselstine.—Mr. Hodge with his "Babes in the Woods" show gave an exhibition here on Tuesday of this week to a crowded house.—Mr. Ceylon Robinson, near Kingston, visited his brother, Maxwell Robinson, on Tuesday last.—Mr. Norman Bikley is having the interior of the "Bay View House" repainted. Also some metallic ceilings on some of the rooms.

TAMWORTH

The funeral of the late Mrs. Miller was held here on Tuesday last. E. N. Miller, New York, D. B. Dowling, Ottawa, Mrs. Capt. Amey, Moscow, and Mrs. W. J. Wagar and daughter, Centreville, were amongst the mourners at the funeral which was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Dixon preached the sermon.—Mrs. Reed, Kingston, was in town over Sunday.—The snow storm of Sunday last blockaded all the roads for several days.—The powder explosion at Tweed was plainly heard in and about Tamworth.—A little girl has come to stay at Hicks Lockridge's, all smiles.—Henry Card lost a valuable cow one day last week.—Mrs. Dewhurst has sold out her milkmen's to Miss Clara Cotan, who will carry on the milkmen's in the future.—The Ladies' Missionary meeting, held at Mrs. D. B. Floyd's on Wednesday afternoon last was largely attended.—All shades of fancy velvet only 39 cents now at Floyd's cheap cash sales. Come where you get bargains.

STELLA.

The snow storms of the past ten days have filled all the roads, and travel is almost at a standstill. There is not much driving on the ice, as it is not considered very safe.—On January 29th Miss Mary Hill, daughter of William T. Hill, was united in marriage to Mr. Arthur Glenn. Rev. James Cumberland performed the marriage ceremony. The happy couple left for the west on the evening train.—The shock of the explosion at the Ontario Powder Works, at Tweed was felt here.—The A. O. U. Kilpatrick has purchased the property of the late Lauren Beaubien on the south shore.—W. H. Preston has had a valuable horse last week.—W. Bird, Kingston, purchased a number of fat cattle here last week.—H. McCormick has returned home from Mallorytown.

COLEBROOK.

Mrs. James Bell, an old and respected resident of this neighborhood, died on Tuesday, the 4th inst. The funeral services were to be held at her home on Thursday. On account of the heavy snow storm, which completely blocked the roads, the people were unable to get to the house to remove the corpse until Saturday, when with difficulty the body was conveyed to the vault. The memorial services were held in the Methodist church on the following Sabbath. Mrs. Bell was always a consistent member of the Methodist church and always attended the services as long as she was able, until she became invalided. Her daughters, Emma and Thalia, were ill at the same time, Thalia being very low, and they are both getting better.—Zelotis Brown, another old resident of this place, who was recently afflicted with paralysis, on Saturday, the 8th, again experienced a severe stroke, from which he did not survive, and expired today, at two o'clock. The funeral services will be held on Thursday in the Methodist church, of which he was a member.—Mrs. Charles Benn is very ill with inflammation of the nerves.—Mrs. Hicks Ball was suddenly called to the bedside of her sister, who is very ill at Wellington.—A leap year party, got up by the young people, will be held at Rose Gallbraith's, on Friday evening.—Joseph Boyce is around again after his recent illness.—R. Wartchby has been spending the past three weeks in Rochester.—Miss Libbie Riddell is visiting friends in Kingston.

Nine men were blown to pieces in an explosion of dynamite at the Standard Company's factory at Isle Perrot, Quebec.

Early History of Prince Edward Island

By MISS CHAUNCEY TOCQUE.

The following interesting paper was read by Miss Tocque at the regular January meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, Friday evening, 31st January:—

Historians are not agreed as to the exact date of the discovery of Prince Edward Island, but it is certain that John Cabot landed on the island on St. John's Day, June 24th, 1497. Hence the name given to it, Isle St. Jean, and which it retained for 250 years. It was visited by Sebastian Cabot in 1508, and by Jacques Cartier in 1534.

The British Government, however, did not take possession of this newly discovered territory for many years, and it was visited and appropriated at one part of Nova Scotia's dependencies in North America, in 1729, during under instructions Vetriani Brook claimed the island for the King of France. Many years later when France began her colonization of North America she laid claim to St. John's Island on the strength of her first claim thereto, having already ceded to Nova Scotia. Before any actual attempt at settlement had been made, the little island had changed hands over forty times.

The French did not use the land until 1663, when a grant of the Company of New France to one Captain Doublet of the French Navy, who established a few small fishing stations thereon and remained in possession until 1690, nothing being done during all these years to encourage permanent settlement.

In the reign of Queen Anne the famous Treaty of Utrecht was made by the British, French and Netherlands in 1713, and by the Acadia and St. John. The French in Acadia were subjected to foreign British customs were allowed a year in which to remove themselves. Many came to the island and in this wise began the settlement of St. John's Island. Colonies appear to have been formed first at Port La Joie (now Charlottetown), Pisarini, Port Lajeune, St. Peters, Rustico and Malpeque. The mass of the law was represented by a French officer with a garrison of about 100 men. The Island was ceded to the British, but could not have been more than 400, and up till 1763 did not exceed 1,000. In that year the island became one of England's Royal Province and Louisburg, C.B., was captured by the British, and with the exception of the French settlers were removed to our island, forming the largest addition to the population. Many years later when France began her colonization of North America, she laid claim to St. John's Island on the strength of her first claim thereto by having already ceded to Nova Scotia. Before any actual attempt at settlement had been made, the little island had changed hands over forty times.

After the fall of Quebec in 1763 a number of warships were detached to aide upon this little island. This was done and it became a part of the British Empire—its governments, public wars, grants of Cape Breton and Nova Scotia, being carried on at Halifax, the French Acts, who established a few small fishing stations thereon and remained in possession until 1790

Special Announcement

I wish to announce to all my old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with their patronage, that I have moved my Bicycle business from the old stand in the Miller Block to the WEBSTER & BOYES CARRIAGE FACTORY, just across the street.

The Factory is being fitted up with all the latest improvements, machinery and tools for the MANUFACTURING and REPAIRING of BICYCLES, BUGGIES and all CARRIAGE WORK in general. I have also added a new and up-to-date machine for mounting the rubber tires on buggy wheels. My long experience in the rubber tire business enables me to warrant satisfaction in this line.

Bring along your buggy wheels and have new tires put on for Spring. I will guarantee every sett and my prices are right. Now is the time to get your Bicycle fitted up for Spring. I have all the repairs and parts in stock.

LAPUM.

(For last week.)

This place has experienced one of the worst storms for a number of years. Saturday and Sunday the roads were completely blockaded, the only way of getting from place to another was on snow shoes. Early Monday morning everybody was out with their shovels with James Hull and his fire team to take the lead, and by hour o'clock the roads were quite passable to drive in a sleigh. Brown Bros. snowplow got out but they were leaving the road on Tuesday morning, about 7 o'clock the people here were awakened from their slumbers by what sounded like a report of an earthquake. Windows and doors were shaken and in some houses furniture was overthrown. The same shock was felt on Sunday, 20 February, long enough for Mrs. Hull and Bruce to get out to the pump. As little bit said he would have liked to have had his shave, but did not. Notwithstanding the bad state of the roads our baker Mr. Allen made his trip here on Tuesday. Mrs. J. Hull and son Clifford went last Thursday with Mrs. Will Hull Thorpe—Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brown spent Friday with Mr. and Mr. Orrin Buck, Camden East. —Those who attended the party on Bedford evening of last week at Fr. H. Sunder's Thorpe, speak of it in the highest terms. The music by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, Odessa, and Miss Mabel Valentine Sunder, was appreciated by all.—Mrs. Sunder made a fine hostess, serving the ladies the home of everything the entertainment got to supper, making a very tasty party for the old fashioned way. —James Hull made a trip to Camden East on Tuesday, and B. Rose to Maple Avenue.—Clarence Boulton is spending a few weeks with his grandfather W. Boulton, who is much improved in health after his recent illness, and with his granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. William Boulton, spent Tuesday evening at a nearby neighbor's.—There was no school on Monday, but our teacher Miss Gretta Lowell came home on Monday morning.—The boys have been busy drawing to spend their evenings from home to home.—Gaiters are beholded in Shovelling snow is the order of the day.—We cannot complain of our recent storms, as the first part of our winter had been very pleasant.—Stanley Mc-Keown, Steward Hughes and Miss Fannie McKnight spent Sunday at Miss Lucy Caniff's.—We are pleased to hear that Miss Mary Craig still continues very low.—Miss Myrtle Davis is spending a few days at Mrs. Geo. Barrager's.—Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah have returned after spending the honeymoon at Bancroft.—Our school is progressing favorably under Mr. Will. Quinn.—Geo. Beline, Cloyne, is spending a few weeks with his parents, after a recent illness of pneumonia.—T. Quinn, our miller, is doing a rushing business, and M. A. Williams, our hotelkeeper.—Robt. Hawkins passed through here recently, with a fine drove of cattle.—Wm. McKeown is exercising cutting timber for J. Doupe.—Owing to the snow storms our stage has been unable to make its usual trips this week. —A large number from here attend the kitchen shower at Mr. and Mrs. F. P. McKnight's, on Wednesday evening, and reported a good time.—Mr. King is visiting his brother at this place.—Fred Campbell and P. Pennell are repairing their barn for cutting wood in the near future. —Miss Shannon, of Napanee, is spending a week with Miss M. Mellroy.

F. S. Richardson & Bro.'s Studio is the best equipped and most up-to-date photographic studio in Napanee. HAY BAY

The heavy snow storms and drifts for the past few days have put the roads in a bad shape, which will cause a total failure in our midst.—Snow shoes are the only way for travelling on the back street of ours, going to and fro from our farm—Note on the corner of Church and Hall street.—Hay Bay did not hold service on Sunday, as the roads were in no condition for any one to travel. We come out and hold service—Our teamster, Mr. Bert Hall, has been laid up for a few days, but is around again, so that it could not be said that he is disabled.—Mr. Anderson, of Gretta and Trinity church, Napanee, as the only visitor to the village on Sunday by a small sleigh, but we prefer our Hay Bay. Who said the preacher would be 6300 or more. How could it reach that figure when too late.—The roads at present are in a good passable condition, and in a few days more the farmers will be busy getting their wood to and fro from the bush towns of Sydenham and Devereaux.—Mr. Metcalfe had a telephone placed in his residence by the Bell Telephone Company, by the Toronto on Monday last.—Hay Bay church has the material on the ground for a cookhouse, which will be built in the near future.—Mr. Edward Hamblin is confined in the house with the lumpo.

Grippe is sweeping the country. Stop it with Preventics, before it gets deeply seated. To check early colds with these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets, is surely sensible and safe. Preventics contain no quinine, no laxative, nothing harsh or sickening. Preventics would never appear if early colds were promptly broken. Also good for headache, biliousness, or to tone the system. Price, 25 cents. Small pocket boxes 5 cents. Sold by T. B. Wallace. tf

HIGH CLASS CONCERT.

The Ladies' Aid of the Western Methodist church will give a high class concert on Thursday evening, Feb. 20th, in the church auditorium. Miss Jessie Tuite, an honor graduate of Albert College, and Gold Medalist, will give several readings interspersed with musical selections by other talent. All who come will enjoy a rare treat. Admission, 25 cts. The Belleville Ontario says: "Miss Jessie Tuite was to the selection for her reading, giving a beautiful selection "Through the Flood" from Ian Wad Lorrey's 'Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush.' By her perfect mastery of the Scotch dialect and her beautiful expression, Miss Tuite swept everything before her. She swayed the large audience to and fro at her own good pleasure." 6b

A POPULAR PASTOR.

At a meeting of the Official Board of the Adolphustown Circuit, held at Harlburn, on Feby. 10th, a motion was carried by a unanimous standing vote, asking the Rev. W. S. Boyce, B.A., B.D., to remain as pastor for the ensuing year, at a salary of $810.00. Mr. Boyce thanked the members of the Board for the invitation and said he and Mrs. Boyce had received nothing but kindness from the people since they first came to the circuit. At present he could not give a decided answer, but would in the near future. Through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. Boyce the mortgage has been entirely paid off the parsonage, and the finances of the circuit have been greatly improved.

Hastings County Home of Refuge at Belleville has nine inmates, and one is ninety-eight years old.

SUCCESSFUL BALL.

The seventh annual assembly of Branch No. 303, C. M. B. A., Napanee, was held in the Town Hall, on Wednesday evening, and was the most successful one ever held, from every standpoint. The music was furnished by Crosby & O'Connor's orchestra, Kingston, and was excellent. A large crowd was present and all enjoyed themselves until an early hour. The committee, Messrs. Jas. Fitzpatrick, R. McNeill, C. Trimble, A. J. Gleeson, N. B. Mathewson, chairman; P. Gleeson, Secretary, are to be congratulated for the success attending their efforts.

CRAWFORD—MEAGHER.

A very pretty wedding occurred at the Church of the Assumption, Erinsville, on Wednesday, February 12th, when Miss Annie, daughter of Mr. John Crawford, was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. M. Meagher, of Read, Rev. Father Carey officiating. At nine o'clock the bridal party entered the Church and proceeded to the altar to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Miss M. Dwyer, of Napanee. The bride wore a tailor-made suit of navy blue with cream lace blouse, and pretty hat to match. She was attended by her sister, Miss Mamie Crawford, similarly attired, while the groom was supported by his cousin, Mr. M. Hanley. After the ceremony the guests drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a sumptuous dinner was served. After congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. Meagher left on the evening train amid showers of rice and best wishes for Toronto and Hamilton.

OBITUARY.

Mary H. Galbraith, wife of John Galbraith, passed peacefully away on Thursday morning, January 30th, 1908. She had asked the family to read the Sunday School lesson, and passed away during the reading to her Redeemer in whom she fully trusted; nothing could induce her to give up her faith in Christ. She was a faithful member of the Methodist church for over forty years, having converted when a young woman at a revival meeting in Bethel school house, where she was teaching school. Her beautiful Christian home example should never be forgotten by the family. The funeral services were conducted at the Methodist church, Camden East, by the Rev. Dukes, assisted by Rev. Mr. Lowe, of Yarker. Her husband, two sons, and an only daughter, also three brothers and three sisters. Her maiden name was Mary H. Love, and she was born in the Township of Kingston, near the Village of Westbrook.

HOCKEY.

The return match was played between the Bankers and Madole's rinks on Tuesday night. Score, 4-1, in favor of Madole's. Following is the line-up:

Madole's.	Goal.	Bankers.
Chas. Eyvel	.....	Ernest Anderson
	Point.
"Porky" Blair	.....	E. L. Kenny
	Cover.
William Coates	.....	F. Chenoweth
	Forwards.
Frank Brown	.....	G. M. Bellis
W. J. Robinson	.....	G. J. S. Loynes
Dude Hearns	.....	Wm. Anderson
J. A. Fenlon	.....	J. C. Carroll

Referee—Perry Wagar.
Umpires—A. E. Wesdale, Allan Simpson.

The match was won by a fair combination and rough play, the younger men being a little afraid at times to face the heavy weights in the defence lanes. Kenny and Chenoweth, of the latter team, rendered a few bad cranks, but will recover. Both teams have decided to call things square for the season.

Mr. Frank Brown had one of his lights darkened.

The return match was played between the Bankers and the Shams of Newcastle resulting 7 to 2 in favor of the Bankers. Following is the line-up:

Referee—Mr. Macdonald.

Bankers.	Goal.	Newcastle
E. Anderson	.....	George Shorey
	Point.
E. L. Kenny	.....	Yankee Shorts
	Cover Point.
F. Chenoweth	.....	Harold Ryan
	Forwards.
Wm. Anderson	.....	Pirgie Degan
J. C. Carroll	.....	Wm. Degan
G. J. S. Loynes	.....	H. Duke
G. M. Bellis	.....	Dick Madden

The teams were evenly matched and played a good clean game. The game was fast from start to finish, and it would be hard to make special mention of any player, each man played his position. The ice was in fine condition. The Bank team had good support in reserve, J. H. Oldfield, who was prepared to play had occasion demanded it.

HAWLEY.

Quarterly services were well attended here last Sunday. Mrs Harry Meyers and daughter are guests of Mrs. Robert Meyers.—A goodly number of our young people attended the Lutheran Church social on Wednesday night.—Sorry to state Mr. Henry Creighton is confined to his bed with mumps.—Mr. and Mrs. George Fretts arrived home Saturday, after an extended trip through many of the western cities.—Mrs. and Mrs. W. H. Cadmus have been spending a few days with their daughters, Mrs. Will Fretts and Mrs. F. M. Asselstine.—Miss Beatrice Creighton, of Albert College, spent last Sunday under the parental roof.—Miss Haight and Mr. Jim Detlor spent last Sunday at Conway.—The Wide Awake Circle of Hay Bay held their annual entertainment in the church last Friday evening. An excellent and carefully selected programme was given, consisting of choruses, songs, readings and recitations and dialogues. Special mention should be given to the very able address in behalf of the Missionary cause, delivered by the chairman, Rev. M. J. Bates; also of the duet given by Miss Nathella Smith and Master Walter Detlor, entitled "Aunt Peggy and Uncle Dan". Despite the constant down pour of rain the proceeds amounted to $18.25.—The chivari here last Tuesday night was well attended and heartily enjoyed until Rover was loosened, when all suddenly disappeared.—Arthur Creighton, of Toronto, is visiting relatives here.

Last Monday evening the neighbors and relatives, numbering over 50, met at the home of Mr. Sam. Parks, who was entirely unaware of their coming to a delightful tea from the many baskets was served about midnight. All reported a good time.

MARLBANK.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Shangraw attended the funeral of Mr. Shangraw's grandfather, Mr. F. Beamish, at Shannonbrook last week.—The members of the Methodist church gave a very successful entertainment on Monday evening.—A ball will be held in Baker's hall on Feby. 28th. The committee are sparing no pains to make it a success.—Mr. John T. Howell, who left here about three years ago for Fort William, has resigned his old position at the Cement Works.

Sunday School Convention.

For the 21st year many of the Sunday School workers of Lennox and Addington assembled in convention on Feby. 12th and 13th. The meetings were held in the Western Methodist church, Napanee. There were four sessions, Wednesday evening, 9.30, 1.30 and 7.30 Thursday. Despite bad roads and unfavorable weather, the attendance was excellent, an earnest spirit was manifested, and the convention was an unquestionable success. With two exceptions the speakers were present and the programme was carried a fund of information and helpful suggestions as to best methods.

The opening session on Wednesday evening was largely attended. The County President, Mr. J. S. Mallett, presided, and Rev. J. R. Real, pastor of the Cententon church, led in prayer. The addresses, Rev. W. H. Emsley on a Sunday School as a place on the programme, and spoke inspiringly on the subject suggested by the motto, "The Sunday School the Hope of the Nation". Rev. J. F. Keys spoke to the subject, "The central idea of the Sunday School".

Thursday morning, Mr. S. Gibson considered "Best Methods from the Teacher's Standpoint," and insisted on the necessity for definite, persistent individual endeavor. The various schools reported, and a hopeful spirit was manifested and advance noted. Mr. C. W. Neville discussed the matter of Township organization and it was agreed that the old system was desirable and should be again observed. Rev. W. H. Emsley's Executive meeting will be called and Township meetings arranged.

At the afternoon session Rev. R. Bake, President of the Bay of Quinte Methodist Conference, addressed the opening exercises. Mrs. T. Symington read an interesting report of the Provincial Convention at Brampton. Mr. Thos. Yellowlees, of Toronto, General Secretary, addressed the Convention on the "Model School," and insisted on the value to the "shut-in", the aged and to parents unable to attend the school.

Mr. W. T. Gibbard introduced the subject, "How Methods from the Superintendent's Standpoint", and urged the necessity of every member doing that member's whole work with persistence and enthusiasm, for the best general canvass of the whole district. Mr. Harrison, Superintendent of Sydenham St. Methodist Sunday School, Kingston, followed with valuable suggestions from his years of rich experience and success in Sunday school work. The discussion was aided by the experience of Rev. Canon Hill, who urged the imperative nature of Christian character building.

Mr. Yellowlees conducted a normal lesson conference that was of great value. His personality and power as a leader commanded enthusiasm was to all more or less contagious. At the evening session Mrs. C. Black and Mrs. C. W. Demille sang, and each sang with taste and the primary class gave a demonstration of the sand table to the delight of all.

In the evening Mr. Thos. Gibbard, the President's address was announced, and took the chair. Rev. W. H. Emsley gave a "Talk Talk". Mr. J. M. Denyes, of Newburgh, spoke on the "Duty of the Sunday School, its most pressing needs". Too much preaching, too little teaching was the burden of his message.

Rev. Canon Hill, again spoke to the delight of all. The Bible school is more than a place of instruction. It is a positive field of effort; teaches by deeds. The Convention was announced at 9.00 to give the closing address, and Rev. Canon Hill followed in a helpful minutes, he held the attention of all. What will you do with the Bible? The Bible class in the answer in the concrete. Miss Iva Kimmerly and Mrs. C. Black sang pleasingly during the evening.

The following officers were elected for the year:

T. Gibbard—President.
Vice Presidents.—
North Fredericksburgh—F. S. Wilson.
South Fredericksburgh—W. H. Hogle.
Richmond—Ira B. Hudgins.
Ernestown—Rev. Mr. Langmaid.

Sheffield—Mrs. D. Ross.
Newburgh—T. A. Dunwoody.
Napanee—Rev. Mr. Real.
Bath—Miss Aylesworth.
Secretary-Treasurer—C. W. Neville.
C. W. Neville—Representative to the Provincial.

Rev. D. B. Marsh, Sc.D., F.R.A.S., will deliver his popular lecture, "A Trip to the Skies," on Monday evening, 16th March, in the Western Methodist church. See large bills for particulars.

GRAVEL ROAD.

The many friends of Mrs. S. Sexsmith will regret to hear that she is confined to bed, through illness, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Archibald Campbell, Bridge st.—Della Murphy and Maud Cronan left this week for Kingsford, after spending a couple of weeks with Miss Annie White.—Miss Libbie Exley spent Monday in Napanee.—Mr. Barnes, our blacksmith, has returned, after visiting in Verona.—Miss Loretta Meagher spent a few days last week with her cousin, Miss Alice G. Fitzpatrick, Napanee.—Miss Annie White was at home to a number of her friends on Friday night last.

LIME LAKE.

Breaking roads and shovelling snow is the order of the day.—Mr. and Mrs. Robinson, of Alberta, have been visiting friends around here.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Dunn, of Napanee, who have been renewing acquaintances here, started for their home on Tuesday morning. They will stop at Detroit on the way to visit their daughters there.—Mrs. John Bushy spent Sunday and Monday at Mr. G. Jarvis'.—Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mills visited at Jas. Lorac's on Sunday.—Mrs. Alex. Busby is staying with her mother this week.—Mr. Bell, of Napanee, spent Sunday at Mr. Richard Marlin's.—Mr. Clay Parker, of Montreal, is the guest of his sister, at Lime Lake camp.—Mr. Wesley Brown has a car load of hay for sale.—Percy Wright, of Mr. Whiteman, of Albert, visited at Mr. W. Henderson's, on Sunday.—Miss Annie Travers is the guest at the home of her uncle, J. M. Purvis.—Mrs. Breen, of Deseronto, is visiting at Mr. Wm. Brown's.

LAPUM.

Mr. and Mrs. James Homan and daughter Laura, Camden East, were guests on Tuesday last of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stover.—Messrs. W. Love and B. Rose attended the quarterly Board meeting at Violet on Monday afternoon.—Miss Annie Love has left the roads in a very bad condition.—Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Love started for church at Wilton on Sunday, but were obliged to turn back. Mrs. Love's staff and two children were spent last week with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Rose.—Mrs. Rev. D. Williams and Mrs. Williams with Mr. and Mrs. Levi Brown, on Monday.—Mrs. Parrs, Colebrook, visited here on Tuesday in this place.—There is talk of a temperance lecture held here in the near future.—Henry Bush spent Thursday with B. Rose.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Lapum went up to Greving on Friday, and was accompanied home by Mrs. Lapum's sister, Miss Annie Fields.—Clarence Lapum spent Monday with Edwin Bell.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Boulton and Mrs. Elson Bush were callers on Friday of Mr. and Mrs. B. Rose.—Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Brown attended the funeral on Thursday at Colebrook of Zelotus Brewer.—Mr. and Mrs. Sl. Rose attended a party on Tuesday evening for Jas. F. Dawson's, Odessa. Music was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith and Mrs. Fred Caton. A very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent until the wee sma' hours.

TAMWORTH.

The recent thaw was welcomed by everybody, but we have enough snow left to pump a person.—Owing to the bad roads Dr. F. Dixon has cancelled his appointment in Marlbank on Sunday last.—Mr. Charlie Hannah spent Sunday evening at Mr. Geo. McKnight's.—Mr. Stuart Hughes spent Sunday out of town.—The teameeting on Wednesday evening will be taken advantage by Lecture by Rev. J. F. Mears was appreciated by all present.—Jas. Wheeler foreman of Mack's mills, has his new floating dam repaired, and a large pond of water on hand.—The Methodist Ladies' Aid spent a very pleasant and enjoyable time at the home of Mrs. Thomas Farrell on Thursday afternoon.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Fawcett, of Napanee, spent Sunday with Mrs. F. D. Moore, who had to respond to an encore. Miss Lillie Wagar gave a fine recitation which was thoroughly appreciated.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wagar spent Sunday with friends in Napanee.—Mr. Thos. Thompson, of Napanee, spent Sunday with friends here.—Mr. Wm. Wallace, of Portland, and one sister, Mrs. John Brown, of Seeford. The late Mrs. G. A. Shangraw was also a daughter. The funeral services were conducted at the family residence by the late pastor, the Rev. Mr. Farnsworth. The pall-bearers were six brethren of the Loyal Orange Lodge of which he was a member. The floral tributes were sympathy of the whole community in their hour of bereavement.

NEWBURGH.

A very interesting meeting of the High School Literary Society was held on Friday afternoon last, one of the most profitable and entertaining of the season. The literary feature of the programme comprised three admirable essays by Miss Edna Bicknell, Marion Riley and Marion Lapum, discussing the subjects of Manual Training and Domestic Science with special reference to the advisability of their introduction into High Schools. Their value was strongly accented. The musical part of the programme consisted of instrumental duets by Misses Beaman and Finkle, and Misses Service and C. Kennedy, a violin solo by Miss Ida Mitchell, a vocal solo by Mr. F. D. Moore, who had to respond to an encore. Miss Lillie Wagar gave a fine recitation which thoroughly Pomeroy did himself much credit in an address on the relative merits of monarchical and republican governments. Miss Pearl Patterson made a wisely discriminating critic.

A concert is announced for Tuesday evening, March 3d, which is to be the musical event of the season. It is to be under the joint auspices of the choir and Dowrth League of the Methodist church, and will be held in the auditorium of that church. They have secured the services of Mr. C. J. W. Taylor, organist and choirmaster of the Methodist church in Picton, for both organ and vocal numbers. This itself assures the success of the concert. However, Mr. Taylor will be assisted by Miss Bessie Campbell, a soloist of the first rank, and the elocutionary part of the programme will be furnished by Miss Myrtle Wood, of Tamworth, well known as an accomplished elocutionist. Herbert and the local choir will also assist. Newburgh has not had unusually barren of entertainment this season, and this announcement of the league and choir will be welcomed. Certainly a musical treat is in store for us on the eve of the Lenten season. Tickets have been placed at the low figure of 20 and 15 cents, and a full house should be the result. Further announcement will be made next week.

Dr. Beeman returned on Friday from attending the meeting of the Provincial Board of Health in Toronto. The meetings of this important body are of deep import to the Province in general, but it is to be feared that interest in its proceedings is not very great, and this is due to the fact that little publicity is given these proceedings through the press or in any other way. It has been suggested that Dr. Beeman should be asked to address a public meeting here upon the general subject of the public health with special reference to the measures undertaken to that end by the Provincial Board, and such a meeting may be announced later.

MILLHAVEN.

The ice from Amherst Island to the mainland is now fit for crossing.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Clement and Mr. and Mrs. Lawler, Odessa, were the guests of Mr. J. J. Clement, on Sunday.—Miss Pearl Yorke, of Enterprise, is visiting at C. W. Collins'.—Mr. Bullock and family have moved near Collins' Bay.—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Haworth visited at Mr. J. F. Baker's, recently.—Mr. and Mrs. Will Marchant, of Medicine Hat, visited at Enterprise on the latter's last week. They intend spending the remainder of the winter among friends.—Miss Thurston, of Perth, has returned home, after spending a few days with her friend, Miss Mabel Thurston.—Mrs. Harry Laidley at Mrs. J. F. Baker's.—Rumor says a wedding in the near future.

CENTREVILLE.

Owing to the condition of the roads being in a terrible very dull.—Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Clancy, Regina, have been spending the past two months with their brother Mr. Geo. Milligan.—Mr. and Mrs. M. Lochhead who have been spending the past two weeks with friends in Hamilton, returned home on Saturday.—Miss Susan Hinds, Napanee, is attending her sister, Mrs. Ned. Hinch, who is ill.—Miss G. Ross Croydon, has returned home, after spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. W. Donevan.—Miss Jennie Long is home after an extended visit in town.—Cheese meeting, which was held on Tuesday last, was largely attended.—Mr. Bruce Fairbairn, Newburgh, spent Sunday under the parental roof.—Miss M. Husband attended the party given by her sister Mrs. Miller, Switzerville.—Watch for the bills of a concert, which is to be held in the near future.

COLEBROOK.

In the death of Mr. Zelotus Brown on Tuesday, Feby. 11th, there passed away one of the finest known and best liked men of this community. Deceased had been in poor health for the past three months, and a few days before his demise was stricken with paralysis, from which he did not regain consciousness. He was 70 years of age and spent the greater part of his life in Colebrook. He was a devoted member of the Methodist church, for many years a trustee of the office of trustee, and always took an active interest in anything pertaining to church work. He was always known as a man of unbending integrity, and a neighbor as good as his bond. Deceased is survived by a wife, two sons, Wellington, on the homestead, and Edward of British Columbia, and one daughter, Mrs. William Wallace, of Portland, and one sister, Mrs. John Brewer, of Seeford. The late Mrs. G. A. Shangraw was also a daughter. The funeral services were conducted at the family residence by the late pastor, the Rev. Mr. Farnsworth. The pall-bearers were six brethren of the Loyal Orange Lodge of which he was a member. The floral tributes were sympathy of the whole community in their hour of bereavement.

A concert is announced for Tuesday evening, March 3d, which is to be the musical event of the season. It is to be under the joint auspices of the choir and Dowrth League of the Methodist church, and will be held in the auditorium of that church. They have secured the services of Mr. C. J. W. Taylor, organist and choirmaster of the Methodist church in Picton, for both organ and vocal numbers. This itself assures the success of the concert. However, Mr. Taylor will be assisted by Miss Bessie Campbell, a soloist of the first rank, and the elocutionary part of the programme will be furnished by Miss Myrtle Wood, of Tamworth, well known as an accomplished elocutionist. Herbert and the local choir will also assist. Newburgh has not had unusually barren of entertainment this season, and this announcement of the league and choir will be welcomed. Certainly a musical treat is in store for us on the eve of the Lenten season. Tickets have been placed at the low figure of 20 and 15 cents, and a full house should be the result. Further announcement will be made next week.

Dr. Beeman returned on Friday from attending the meeting of the Provincial Board of Health in Toronto. The meetings of this important body are of deep import to the Province in general, but it is to be feared that interest in its proceedings is not very great, and this is due to the fact that little publicity is given these proceedings through the press or in any other way. It has been suggested that Dr. Beeman should be asked to address a public meeting here upon the general subject of the public health with special reference to the measures undertaken to that end by the Provincial Board, and such a meeting may be announced later.

FREE TO YOU AND EVERY SUFFERER HOPELESS OF WOMAN'S AILMENTS.

I am a woman.
I have had troubles, sufferings.
I know and can help you.
I will mail, free of any charge, my home treatment (full instructions) that positively cures all women's ailments. I want to tell all women about this cure as soon as you, for I owe a debt of gratitude to my daughter, your mother, or your sister. I want to tell you (or if you prefer it, to herself) how I was cured when the doctors gave me up. It is almost unbelievable, but I will tell you the truth, and I will prove it. I will tell you of a simple, safe, home remedy that cures. I will tell you of my own MEDICAL ADVISER—the most helpful book ever written for women. I will tell you of my Illustrated Catalogue, which explains my own home treatment in a safe and sure cure for all female troubles, inflammation, ulceration, displacement or falling of the Womb, Profuse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Unclean or Offensive Tumors or Growths, also pains in the head; back and bearing down feelings, nervousness, creeping feeling, dragging up the spine, melancholy, ability to cry, bad dreams, fainting spells, hysteria, and all symptoms where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex.

I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely, and I will, if you desire, tell you how to get it free. You can have it by return mail. Just send me your address, and I will send you the treatment, a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue it, it will cost you only about as much as a postage stamp a week. Isn't that fair? I want you to write me to-day. Don't send for your treatment now, but write me and tell me you will do as I ask you, and I will send you the treatment free. Don't write me if you are not a sufferer, for I can only help those who suffer, and how they can easily cure themselves at home. Every woman should have my 64-page illustrated book. There is a cure for you in it, and I will send it free as a gift from me. Don't write for it unless you are

CHAPTER XXIII.

FROM within the gloomy old walnut bar that ran from wall to wall the eyes of the lawyers and reporters wandered often to Ariel as she sat in the packed courtroom watching Louden's fight for the life and liberty of Happy Fear. She had always three escorts, and, though she did not miss a session and the three never failed to attend her, no whisper of scandal arose. But not upon they did the glances of the members of the bar and the journalists with tender frequency linger; but the younger members of these two professions all who gazed that way. Joe had fought out the selection of the jury with the prosecutor at great length and with infinite pains. It was not a young jury, and it stared at her.

The "court" wore a gray beard with which a flock of sparrows might have villaged a grove, and yet in spite of the vital necessity for watchfulness over this baffling case, it once needed to be stirred from a trancelike gaze to Miss Tabor's direction and aroused to the realization that it was there to "set" and not to dream.

The August air was warm outside the windows, inviting to the open country, to swimmin' hole, to orchard reveries or shaded pool wherein to drop a meditative line. You would have thought no one could willingly coop himself in this hot town for three hours twice a day while lawyers wrangled, often unintelligibly, over the life of a puny little creature like Happy Fear, yet the struggle to enter there was almost like a riot, and the bailiffs were busy men.

It was a fighting case throughout, fought to a finish on each tiny point as it came up, dragging in the mere matter of time, inconsiderably, yet 'Sop people of Canaan (not only those who succeeded in penetrating to the court room, but the others, who hung about the corridors or outside the building, and the great mass of stay at homes, who read the story in the Toesin) found each segment of it enthralling enough. The state's attorney, fearful of losing so notorious a case and not underestimating for he was one of his modestly summoned others to his aid, and the attorney for the defense single handed found "the full array of legal talent such as seldom indeed had bolstered at this bar," faced it good naturedly, an expressive crossing up and his head on one side most of the time, yet faced it indomitably. He had a certain coolness and disarming smile when he lost a point which carried off the defeat as of only humorous account and not at all part of the serious business in hand, and in his treatment of witnesses he was plausible, kindly, knowing that in this case he had no intending perjurer to entrap; brought into play the rare and delicate art of which he was a master, employing in his questions subtle suggestions and shadings of tone and manner and avoiding words of debatable and dangerous meanings—a fine craft, often attempted by blunderers to their own undoing, but which, practised by Joseph Louden, made inarticulate witnesses articulate to the precise effects which he desired. This he accomplished as much by the help of the continuous fire of objections from the other side as in spite of them. He was infinitely careful, asking never an ill advised question for the other side to use to his hurt and, though exhibiting only a pleasant easiness of manner, was electrically alert.

A hundred things had shown Ariel that the feeling of the place, influenced by "public sentiment" without, was subtly and profoundly hostile to Joe and his client. She read this in the spectators, in the jury, even in the Judge, but it seemed to her that day by day the inimical spirit gradually failed inside the railing and also in those spectators who, like herself, were enabled by special favor to be present throughout the trial, and that now and then a kindlier sentiment began to be manifested. She was unaware how strongly she contributed to effect this herself not only through the glow of visible sympathy which radiated from her, but by a particular action. Claudine was called by the state and had no much of her story as the law permitted her to tell, interlarding her replies with fervent protestations, too quick to be prevented, that she never came there to bring no trouble to Mr. Fear" and that she "did hate to have gre'lemen startling things on her account." When the defense took this perturbed witness her interpolations became less frequent, and she described straightforwardly how she had found the pistol on the floor near the prostrate figure of Cory and hidden it in her own bosom. The attorneys for the state listened with a somewhat cynical amusement to this portion of her testimony, believing it of no account, uncorroborated, and that, if necessary, the state could impeach the witness on the ground that it had been indispensable to produce her. She came down weeping from the stand, and, the next witness being Talbot how gravely, to her across the railing. Now, a thousand things not set forth by legislatures, live men and judges affect a jury, and the slight substation caused the members of this one to glance at one another, for it seemed to hardly that the exquisite lady in white not only knew the stand, and the little man had proved an excellent witness. During his life he had been many things—many things disreputable; high standards were not brightly illumined for him in the beginning of the night march which his life had been. He had been a tramp, afterward a petty gambler, but his great motive had finally come to be the intention to do what Joe told him to do—that, add to keep Claudine as straight as he could. In a measure these were the two things that he brought him to the pass in which he now stood, his loyalty to Joe and his resentment of whatever tampered with Claudine's straightness. He was subjective to the consequences; he was still loyal. And now Joe asked him to tell "just what happened," and Happy obeyed with crystal clearness. Throughout the long, tricky cross examination he continued to tell "just what happened" with a plaintive truthfulness not to be imitated, and through out it Joe guarded him from pitfalls for lawyers in their search after truth are compelled by the exigencies of their profession to make pitfalls even for the honest and give him, by various devices, time to remember, though not to think, and made the words "come right" in his mouth, so that before the sitting was over a disquieting rumor ran through the waiting crowd in the corridors "across the square and over the town that the case was going by going "Louden's way." This was also the opinion of a lookout in Canaan—a ferret faced counselor in corporations who called to consultation with the eminent Buckalew Smyth. few of the squires, had afterward spent an hour in his company at the trial. "It's going that young fellow Louden's way," said the stranger. "You say he's a shyster, but"—

"Well," admitted Buckaiew, with some reluctance, "I don't mean that exactly. I've got an old uncle who seems lately to think he's a great man."

"I'll take your uncle's word for it," returned the other, smiling. "I think he'll go pretty far."

They had come to the flight of steps which descended to the street from the visitor, looking down upon the angry crowd, added, "If they don't kill him!"

Buckalew himself was anxious concerning no such matter. He shook hands with Happy at the end of the sitting, bidding him be of good cheer, and when the little man had marched away under a strong guard began to gather and sort his papers at a desk inside the bar. This took him perhaps five minutes, and when he had finished there were only three people left in the room —a clerk, a negro janitor with a broom and the darky friend who always hopefully accompanies a colored man awaiting high public office. These two approvingly greeted the young lawyer, the janitor handing him a note from Norbert Flitcroft and the friend mechanically "borrowing" a quarter from him as he opened the envelope.

"I'll be roun' yo' way to git a box o' se-gahs," laughed the friend, "soon es dis hangin' jedge is up good. Say all goin' vote yo' way down on de river bank, but dey who' expecks to git to make a little 'Yo' feckshun day! We knows who's ow frien'!"

Norbert's missive was lengthy and absorbing. Joe went on his way, pursuing it with profound attention, but as he descended the stairway to the floor below a loud burst of angry shouting outside the building caused him to hasten toward the big front doors which faced Main street. The doors opened upon an imposing vestibule, from which a handsome flight of stone steps, protected by a marble balustrade, led to the ground.

Standing at the top of these steps and looking over the balustrade, he had a clear view of half the yard. No one was near him. Everybody was running in the same direction—toward that corner of the yard occupied by the jail, the crowd centering upon an agitated whirlpool of men which moved slowly toward a door in the high wall that inclosed the building, and Joe saw, that Happy Fear's guards, conducting the prisoner back to his cell, were being jostled and rushed. The distance over had made was short, but as they reached the door the pressure upon them increased dangerously. Clubs rose in the air, hats flew, the whirlpool heaved tumultuously, and the steel door clanged.

Happy Fear was safe inside, but the jostlers were not. Joe saw them still stirred with the passion that changes a crowd into a mob.

Then came a sudden caught sight of Joe as he stood alone at the top of the steps, and a great shout of rage and execration arose.

For a moment or two he did not see his danger. At the clang of the door and eyes, caught by the glance of wide white hat, had turned toward the street, and he was somewhat drastically watching Mr. Ladies' entrieate Ariel and her aged and indignant escort from an overflow of the crowd which they had been caught. But a voice warned him, the wild pipin of a newsboy who had climbed into a tree near by.

"Joe Louden," he screamed, "look out!"

With a muffled roar the crowd surged back from the jail and turned toward the steps. "Tar and feather him!" "Take him over to the river and throw him in!" "Drown him!" "Hang him!"

Then a thing happened which was dramatic enough in its inception, but almost ludicrous in its effect. Joe walked quietly down the steps and without the advancing army with his head cocked to one side, one eyebrow lifted and one corner of his mouth drawn down in a falsely distorted smile.

He went straight toward the yelling countenances, with only a small bundle of papers in his hands, and then, while the nonpartisan spectators held their breath expecting the shock of contact, straight on through them.

A number of the bulge cheeked formers, charging the unerring aim of these forerunners, charging with hoarse and cruel shrieks of triumph. The first, apparently about to tear Joseph Louden to pieces, changed countenance at arm's length, swerved violently and with the cry, "Head him off!" dashed on up the stone steps. The man next behind him followed his lead, with the same about, strategy and haste. Then the others of this advance attack, finding themselves confronting the quiet man, who kept his even pace and showed no intention of turning aside for them, turned suddenly aside for him and, taking the cue from the first, pursued their way, bellowing: "Head him off! Head him off!" until there were a dozen and more rowdyish men and youths upon the steps, their eyes blazing with fury, menacing Louden's back with frightful gestures across the manly balustrade as they hysterically bleated the chorus, "Head him off!"

Whether or not Joe could have walked through the entire mob as he had walked through these is a matter for speculation. It was believed in Canaan that he could. Already a gust of mirth began to sweep over the crowd, or spirits as they paused to marvel no more at the disconcerting advance of the lawyer than at the spectacle presented by the intrepid daredevils upon the steps, a kind of lane actually opening before the young man as he walked steadily on. And when Mr. Sheehan, leading half a dozen huge men from the lower ward, vociferously commanded, "Make room there!" Joe stood at the top of the steps and spoke.

The laughter increased. It became voluminous. Homeric salvos shook the air. And never one of the fire eaters upon the steps tired long enough to live down the hateful cry of that day, "Head him off!" which was to become a catchword on the streets, a taunt more stinging than any devised by deliberate invention, an insult bitterer than the ancestral doubt, a fighting word and the great historical joke of Canaan, never omitted in after days when the tale was told how Joe Louden took that short walk across the courthouse yard which made him mayor of Canaan.

CHAPTER XXIV.

AN hour later Martin Pike looking from his office window, saw at a man open the gate and passing between the cannonal deer rapidly approach the house. He was a thin young fellow, very well dressed in dark grey, his hair preened very neatly and carefully, and he was naturally somewhat fixed and his set covered a scar such as might have caused by a blow from a blunt instrument in the hands of a poker.

He did not reach the door, nor was there necessity for him to ring, for before the last set foot on the lowest step of the Judge had hastened to meet him, not, however, with any fulsomely low-pitched inter; his hand and arm were raised to execute one of his Olympian gestures of the kind which had obtained for young man upon a certain bygone morning.

Louden looked up calmly at the big

CATARRH YIELDS.

TO HEALING AIR OF HYOMEI. SOLD UNDER GUARANTEE BY T. B. WALLACE.

Catarrh is the most prevalent disease known to mankind. Probably 75 per cent. of the people in this country suffer at one time or another with this common disease.

It is a curious disease and hence can be cured only by some method that will reach and kill the germs.

This is best found in Hyomei. Hyomei may be called direct system of treating catarrh, as its medication, taken in with the breath, goes directly to every air cell in the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes, kills all catarrhal germs; heals the irritated mucous membrane, vitalizes the tissues so as to render catarrhal germs impossible.

The unique way in which Hyomei is used (simply breathed through the curative properties, gives its absolute guarantee to cure catarrh, no matter how severe the case, or of how long standing, or the price to any catarrh sufferer that Hyomei fails to benefit. You can't risk a cent in testing its healing power. What should be used in preference to you than this, where a hard-earned dollar is the risk of it does not cure, and where you have you to be the judge.

"It won't do, judge," he said, that was all, but there was a significance in his manner and a certainty in his voice which caused the uplifted hand to drop limply, while the look of apprehension which of late had grown more and more to be Martin Pike's habitual expression deepened into something close upon mortal anxiety.

"Have you any business to set foot upon my property?" he demanded.

"Yes," answered Joe. "That's why I came."

"What business have you got with me?"

"Enough to satisfy you, I think. But there's one thing I don't want to do"—Joe glanced at the open door—"and that is to talk about it here—for your own sake and mine because I think Miss Tabor should be present. I called to ask you to come to her house at 8 o'clock to-night."

"Have you any business to set foot upon my property?" he demanded.

"You did!" Martin Pike spoke angrily, but not in the bull bass of yore, and he kept his voice down, glancing about him nervously as though he feared that his wife or Mamie might hear. "My accounts went to her estate are closed," he said harshly. "If she wants anything, let her come here."

Joe shook his head. "No; you must be there at 8 o'clock."

The Judge's choler got the better of his uneasiness. "You're a pretty one to come ordering me around," he broke out. "You slanderer! Do you suppose I haven't heard how you're going about tradneing me, undermining my character in this community, spreading scandalous that I am the real owner of Beaver Bench!"—

A Woodstock butcher who has been missing pails of lard from a stall in the market building adopted an ingenious method on Saturday of catching the thief. He placed a pail filled with sawdust on the counter, and through a hole in the bottom and through the counter the pail was connected by a long string with half a dozen bottles. In the middle of the morning the bottles suddenly tumbled to the floor, and there at the end of the string with the pail neatly tucked in a basket was one of the most embarrassed women ever seen. She hastily removed the pail from the basket and decamped. It was considered that punishment had been sufficient and no prosecution will take place.

Housecleaning Time at the Big Store

Broken Lines and Remnants Greatly Reduced

This is the FINAL Clean-up.

Final reductions—prices cut down to the last notch, in many cases below manufacturing cost—in all cases reducedto to a much lower point than at any time during the previous twelve months.

An enormous assortment of Winter goods from almost every department in the Big Store—all broken lots, odd sizes and short lengths, INCLUDING THIS SEASON'S CHOICEST PRODUCTS, have had the bottom knocked out of their prices!

You owe it to yourself to anticipate future needs NOW; the greater part of these Odds and Ends and Remnants are the very things you will require during the next few months—many of them are "staples" which will be just as useful next year as this.

Men's Overcoats

HALF PRICE.

THE LAST CALL FOR THIS WINTER

Even if you do not require one this year, it is well worth your while buying one of these and carrying it over till next winter. Just think, you can buy a $5.00 Overcoat now for $2.50, or a $10.00 one for $5.00. That's what it means—and that means a great deal.

Boys' Overcoats

HALF PRICE.

Buy one fairly large for your boy and it will last him two years. There was never a better opportunity to save money than right here and now.

—Charles Elliott made his first appearance in the Arena as a hockey referee and set a standard of Lobson by appearing in faultless attire. Wearing a spotless black suit evidently designed by a fashionable tailor, high collar and white tie with a large diamond, was a contrast to the club members worn by the athletes Montrealers are accustomed to. Despite the sartorial handicap, the versatile man from Kingston," baseball player, football coach, and hockey expert, proved to be a good referee. He had a difficult game to handle and proved equal to the task—Montreal Gazette

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE

Robert Wales, one of Napanee's oldest residents, died at his home Water street on Wednesday, after a lingering illness of about two years, in his 78th year. Deceased, who was a native of England, came to this country with his parents when about four years old, who located in Napanee, and he has resided here ever since. Mr. Wales was well and favorably known by all and will be greatly missed. Besides a loving wife, he leaves six children: R. E., Napanee; Wilson, Brandon, Man.; John, Winnipeg, Man.; Fred., Thomas and Minnie, Toronto. The funeral will take place from his late residence this (Friday) afternoon at 2 o'clock, service at the house, thence to vault of the Eastern cemetery.

Our roads are again in bad condition on account of the recent snow storm, but we are looking for something better in the future.—Mr. and Mrs. Miller, Bay Circuit, visited friends here last week.—Mrs. Merrill of Colborne, is at Mr. Wright's.—Mrs. Edgerton Vanluven is spending two weeks visiting in Napanee. —We are glad to see Clinton Smith out again, after a severe attack of la grippe. —Those on the sick list now are Frank Irish, Robert Gordon, Cyrus Peters and John Cumberland.—Several farmers are all smiles. It's a girl—At a meeting of the quarterly official board held here the resolution was carried unanimously, that as the pastoral term of Rev. E. Perry is worth in connection with this circuit, is willing to leave the appointments in the hands of the Stewards and Trustees of the Board, extend to him a hearty invitation for a fifth year if Conference permit, and decide to place on record our appreciation of his services as pastor and preacher. We recognize the fact that he has studied our interests in every respect, has shown himself a faithful and efficient pastor. Our congregations, pastor and people have been most cordial, and we trust he may meet with continued success in his ministry.

BE NOT ALARMED.

Mr. Reformer, of Lennox County, be not alarmed, the Liberal-Conservatives have not gone asleep; they will have a winning candidate in the field in due time. Short and decisive battles are the ones that count, and it has been said better to prepare for war in a time of peace. The policy of the Whitney Government will not be thwarted by the County. We love honesty in purpose, action, word and deed, and as the opposition acknowledged last week on the floor of the House that the Premier is and has been so, therefore the Hon. J. P. Whitney has in part redeemed the awful record of Ontario's politics, but they being so badly corrupted by the Mowat Hardy and Ross administration, it will take more than a day, so to speak, to bring the politics of Ontario to the highest standard of perfection, which should be the aim of every true loyal and British subject of our Dominion. Whitney and his colleagues have their eyes open to the welfare of this Province by protecting the timber, the manufacturer, the business men and last but not least, the good honest farmer. FARMER

CLIPPING COWS.

Though I do not imply that cows should be clipped all over like a horse, I find part clipping has its advantages. As winter goes on cows are rather apt to become hairy. The pests flatter, by boring about their necks, along the spine and by the rump. They give great discomfort to cow, both while out and indoors. She is always rub, rubbing and restless. This does not contribute either to her good condition or milk giver, to peace and contentment are the greatest contributory forces. One may wash them with insecticides, but they will often persist in coming again amazingly. It may be noticed, too, that insects on any part of the cows do not worry them to the same extent as on the neck, shoulders and back, and those are the places to deal with the insects with the view of extermination.

One effectual means towards this is to clip those parts with the horse clippers, and as close as the horse is clipped. A patent dated June 13th, 1786, Letters No. 39, 40, 41, 42 and 43, in the first Canvassed of Canadas were conveyed to Governor Simcoe himself, and this property comprising one thousand acres, was for many years known as the Simcoe tract. It was not present village of Yarker stands on Lots 41 and 42.

At that time the Simcoe tract was covered by the primeval forest, and the land was not onic well wooded but well watered, for the Napanee River runs through it, and on this river was a beautiful fall 26 feet high. For some reason the Governor kept this property intact for many years, what his reason was then we can only conjecture, but it is probable that he was not present owing to the unearned increment, due to the labours of others, and that he considered that in one or in other words, he had a good speculation in view. Of all the land in the township it. To the north of the Simcoe tract was a hamlet called Peter's Mills, now covered by the prim-ival forest, and the land was not onic well wooded but well watered, for the Napanee River runs through it, and on this river was a beautiful fall 26 feet high. For some reason the Governor kept this property intact for many years, what his reason was then we can only conjecture, but it is probable that he was not present owing to the unearned increment, due to the labours of others, and that he considered that in one or in other words, he had a good speculation in view. Of all the land in the township it. To the north of the Simcoe tract was a hamlet called Peter's Mills, now to the south was the Village of Wilton. The speculation does not appear to have turned out very well, for in the end his heir, Henry A. Simcoe, sold the whole property including the beautiful Simcoe Falls, which was a valuable water power to Sidney Warner, of Wilton, for the sum of $4,000, after building it for forty years.

I have mentioned that the Simcoe Falls was 26 feet high. Today it is only about 12 feet high. Owing to the construction being covered by the flood waters, much greater quantity of water came down the river then, than now, and old residents state that in the spring-time the roar of the water over the falls could be distinctly heard for five miles. But the cause of the decrease in the height of the fall was the lumbering on the river long ago they did not bring down round logs as in recent years, but they were first squared in the woods and the square timber then floated down the stream. The result of the rafts in limestone rock and when the timber went over the fall it would dislodge pieces of the rock and the fall then grew also. This original water process went on year after year, and in the course of time the height of the fall was reduced, and a sloping rapid developed above the fall extending back for 50 feet or so. At the head of this rapid there is now a dam which holds the water into the flumes on either side of the river. A very large number of green heads and spear heads made of flint have been found around they fall and on the banks of the river below them, and also on the shores of Varty Lake, about a mile away. This is an interesting question where the Indians obtained their flint, as there is none in any part of the country, so far as I am aware.

In these early days the making of Potash was one of the principal industries, and it was a great industry. Wood was cheap, labor was plentiful, and the long logs blazed on the clearings at night, and the ashes were carefully saved. When the ground was cleared of the logs, roots of the trees taken out, they were piled and burned in order to obtain the ashes. Much valuable timber appears to have been burned simply for the ashes. One of the principal markets of potash was Mr. Nathan Warner, of Kingston, who also had a large general store and the potash would obtain whatever it was converted in exchange for ashes. Mr. Warner lowered the ashes into potash, and sent it down the St. Lawrence to Montreal. There he got so much for his potash, and the supplies he wanted from the store. The potash was then shipped to England, where it was used in the bleaching of cotton. But other methods of bleaching cotton have long since prevailed and potash is no longer used. But it was a great industry while it lasted.

The land by which the Simcoe tract was transferred by Henry A. Simcoe, the heir and I presume the son, of Governor Simcoe, to Sidney Warner for $4,000 in 1846. Mr. Warner opened it up by selling that portion of lots 41 and 42, north of the river, to Mr. George Miller, and the power adjoining the river on the south side he sold to David Yarker, on which a saw mill upon it. Mr. Alpheus Vanloven, who still lives in Yarker, and is a nephew of David Yarker, tells me that he went to Yarker as a mere boy to his uncle's farm, and remembers the old saw mill. Mr. Yarker's first farm was on lot 42, on the north side of the river, and he built a log blacksmith shop and the first house on that lot, which is still standing. Which was built of boards. George Miller built a frame house, built a grist mill and a carding mill, which stood on the land that he took upon the north side of the river. Under the agreement with Mr. John A. Macdonald, he established in 1851 the first store in Yarker, and then the village began to take shape. The settlement moved to the site of the present village, and Mr. Yarker built the stone building that he had built in 1851, and which is now Mr. John Ewart's store. Mr. John Ewart now conducts a general store and the YARKER AND VICINITY.

The following interesting paper, by Mr. E. R. Checkley, Yarker, was read at the regular January meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, Friday evening, 31st January:—

A little over one hundred years ago, when Upper Canada was young, when Governor Simcoe held his court at Muddy little York, the land wherein Yarker now stands belonged to the Crown. By a patent dated June 13th, 1786, Lots No. 39, 40, 41, 42 and 43, in the first Canvassed of Canadas were conveyed to Governor Simcoe himself, and this property comprising one thousand acres, was for many years known as the Simcoe tract. CARE OF THE HORSE.

The hardest thing to buy in this world is a horse. Why? Because there is so much buying? We should plan so it will be best quality to buy as little as possible, but on the other hand try to have a good one to sell occasionally. Ride horses, says the Stockman.

If you must buy a horse at the first, look for an honest man to try to buy from, and when he has for it there is. By trade where we appreciate an honest man and is a horse trade. There are far too many horses changed hands, hence trading business, and I expect to keep out.

Did you ever think the horse enjoys a variety of food as much as you do and that the same ration three times a day and for months at a time would get tired of it and tests prove that it does. Variety is spice and palatable feed. Give a change, occasionally, at least, do not feed on corn and timothy hay all the time.

Plan a change in the harvest this summer, do not forget to put the hay of best quality in the barn as little as possible. There is where it is needed. Of course, I would like to see oats were good but there is always some which is better and cheaper. Early cut mixed timothy and clover is my choice for horses, cows, sheep and all other stock.

You will never make a living working yourself to death; neither will you ever make anything worth while for your horse for he will feel the effects of it afterwards. Do the best you can, try to feed right, and in the end you will find that you have not only helped your horse but you have helped your neighbor in showing more than you have. Because his horse is no reason that you should.

When boys show a decided tendency to curl at the corners, sew an L shaped patch at bottom of the seam.

Special Announcement

I wish to announce to all my old customers and as many new ones as may favor me with their patronage, that I have moved my Bicycle business from the old stand in the Miller Block to the WEBSTER & BOYES CARRIAGE FACTORY, just across the street.

The Factory is being fitted up with all the latest improvements, machinery and tools for the MANUFACTURING and REPAIRING of BICYCLES, BUGGIES and all CARRIAGE WORK in general. I have also added a new and special machine for mounting the rubber tires on buggy wheels. My long experience in the rubber tire business enables me to warrant satisfaction in this line.

Bring along your buggy wheels and have new tires put on for Spring. I will guarantee every set and my prices are right. Now is the time to get your Bicycle fitted up for Spring. I have all the repairs and parts in stock.

DORLAND.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Fournia, in the loss of their little daughter, Thelma Pauline, on Jany. 27th. The little one was playing about apparently quite well in her usual way on Thursday morning, when she suddenly complained of feeling sick. Dr. Dorland was summoned, and pronounced her to be suffering from spinal meningetis, and despite all the medical and the most careful nursing, the little one passed peacefully away on Monday night. Of a particularly sweet, bright and loveable disposition she had greatly endeared herself not only to her sorrowing parents, but to all who knew her. The funeral service was conducted at the home of her parents on Wednesday morning, in the presence of many relatives and friends, the Rev. Canon Roberts officiating. The remains were afterwards taken to the vault at Pirton.

YARKER.

The iron bridge over the Napanee river at Petworth is all right for another year. In the spring a new will be built under the centre.—Hay is still selling at $20 per ton here. Potatoes are 85c.; butter, 25c.; eggs, 25c.; hard wood, $5; soft wood, $3 per cord; coal, $8 per ton.— Ice harvesting will now be the order of the day, both with villagers and farmers. The number of farmers are increasing every year who lay in a supply of ice.—Rev. F. D. Woodcock will preach here next Sunday night in the Anglican church. There have been no services here for two Sundays.—High license is talked of in townships where local option did not carry.—The new building erected by E. W. Benjamin is fully completed for occupancy by Merchants Bank.—M. Neville and J. O'Brien, of Tamworth, gave Yarker a call.—Miss Lena Benjamin is the guest of Madaline Ramsay, Dunville, Ont.—Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell, of Tamworth Corners, are at Rev. E. Farnsworth's.

I am glad that I might talk with all sick ones about my special cause of Stomach, Liver and Kidney ailments. To explain in person how Stuart's Stomach nerves prove to Stomach weakness, and how Build interest all. And it is the same with the parts of weak Kidneys. That is why my prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—promptly reaches and tones the Stomach, Heart and Kidneys. It is wrong to drug the Stomach to stimulate the Heart or Kidneys. These weak inside nerves simply need more strength. My Restorative is the only prescription made expressly for these nerves. Next to seeing you personally, it will be to mail you free, my new book-let explaining this. It will also tell how my Restorative at will. Write for the book today. Don't delay. Address Dr. Shoop, Box 8, Racine, Wis. Sold by T. B. Wallace.

WILTON

About fifty friends of Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Lake met at their home last Tuesday evening, and gave them a surprise. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee, which was done ample justice to, was served about ten o'clock, after which an address was read by Mr. N. A. Asselstine, expressing the regret of the Wilton people in losing Mr. Lake and family from our midst. After the address was read a handsome velour couch was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Lake, and a purse of money to Miss Sarah Lake. Mr. Lake's family have been residents here for over twenty years, and constant attendants of the Methodist church, where they will be greatly missed. They moved to their new home at Sydenham on Thursday last. The quarterly service, having been postponed on account of the roads, was held on Sunday morning in the Methodist church, and the quarterly Board meeting was held at Violet on Monday afternoon.—The late Mr. Thomas Mills, an aged and respected resident of this place, was called to the great unknown on Friday night last. Deceased had been in failing health for some time, but contracted a severe case of la grippe, from which he was unable to recover. He leaves a widow, who is very ill at present from la grippe, with only slight hopes of recovery, and two sons, Mr. H. W. Mills and Mr. Benj. Mills, of this place, and two daughters, Mrs. Jane Birdsall, of Chicago, Ill., at home at present, and Mrs. Wm. Jordan, of Campbellcroft, Ont. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Williams, at the house on Monday morning, thence to the vault for interment.—Mrs. Wm. Jordan and Miss Margie Lake, of Campbellcroft, are here to attend the funeral of the late Mr. Mills.—Miss Leita Davey, ill at her home here for the past two weeks, has recovered, and returned to Camden East.—Mr. Overton Babcock had the misfortune to lose a horse last week, by getting its leg broken.—Mrs. Jackson was removed to the Kingston General Hospital last week, and is reported to be recovering.

MOUNT PLEASANT.

The weather has moderated. Also our vicinity was visited by a big rain the latter part of last week, which had the effect of taking away considerable of our snow. For a time the roads were very nearly impassable, but they are much better now.—Death entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. Smith on Friday, and took their baby girl, of a week old. The many friends of Mr. F. Mc-Cambridge were shocked to learn of his quite sudden death on Thursday, Feby. 6th. The deceased had been a life long resident of this place, only removing to town a very few years ago. During his residence here he was a much respected citizen, and the family have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.—Our teacher, Mr. Martin, visited at his home in Strathcona on Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Ed. Francisco spent a couple of days in Montreal last week.

Vanvolkenburg were at D. Kirk's, on Sunday.—Misses Martha, Genevieve and Victoria Smith, of Wagarville, at Mrs. Harvey Woods', on Sunday.—A sleigh load of young folks spent Sunday evening at George Sills'.—Mr. Vanvolkenburg is on the sick list, but is recovering.—Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Sills and family spent Sunday last at Charlie Sills', Wagarville.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Arney at Harvey Vanvolkenburg's, on Sunday.—Bert. Cornwall, of Long Lake, at James Wagar's, on Sunday.—Miss Ida Sills is spending a week with her sister, D. Kirk.—Mrs. Harvey Wood at Fred. Vanvolkenburg's, on Sunday evening.—Enoch Simkins made a flying trip through here on Monday.—Mr. Charlie Sills and daughter Mina were at George Sills', one day last week; also Mrs. James Wagar and family.—The surprise party at A. Brown's, last Tuesday evening, was well attended, and a very enjoyable time was spent.—Mr. and Mrs. D. Kirk made a trip to Parham on Saturday.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Thompson dined at D. Kirk's one evening last week.—Miss Arney spent Sunday with Mary Sills.

REMOVE THE CAUSE.

HOW TO REMEDY MUCH OF THE SUFFERING IN NAPANEE

There is hardly a family in Napanee where there are not one or more members who suffer at times from the effects of a weak stomach.

It may be that this occurs only after eating some food that does not agree, or perhaps after eating a hearty meal, but it may be that the stomach is so weak that scarcely any food can be eaten without pain and distress.

The only way to treat a condition of this kind successfully is with Mi-o-na. It removes the cause of indigestion, the weakness of the muscles of the stomach and bowels, and restores the whole digestive system to health and strength so that it takes care of all the food that is eaten.

Get well and strong by using Mi-o-na tablets. Take the remedy at the first symptom of indigestion, when you can be cured easily with a few doses. However, no case of stomach trouble is too severe or chronic for Mi-o-na to overcome.

T. B. Wallace sells it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. A 50-cent box lasts for a couple of weeks, and will do more real good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets.

CLOYNE.

Owing to the big snow storm the farmers had a hard time to keep the roads passable at all, and on Friday and Saturday there was a very heavy fall of rain. It has taken the frost a great deal, but not cold enough to freeze as yet. The saw mill is doing good sawing at Armstrong's, with Mr. H. Snider engaged as sawyer. They expect to be through in about two weeks, and will then move to T. Storey's Lake, where another cut awaits them. The cut will not be nearly as large as it was last year, owing to the deep snow in the woods.—Mr. John Critchley has just returned home, after attending a business meeting of the Hebron mines in Toronto.—Mr. Norman McMillan entertained the other evening by giving them a taffy pull, and all returned to their homes well satisfied.—Mr. and Mrs. D. Chadwick are still engaged as cooks at the Big Dipper mine.—Mrs. Denison Meeks, very low for some time, is now better.—Mrs. Thos. Reese is very sick.—Cutting ice is the order of the day here.—Miss Ella Kenelley has just returned home, after an absence of three weeks at her uncle's, E. Kenelley.—Miss Mary E. Kenelley and brother John spent Saturday afternoon at T. Storey's.—Misses Maggie and Bridget Welsh at Ella Kenelley's.—Miss Bettie Kenny and Mr. Oster are visiting her sister, Mrs. Murphy. Miss Kenny intends taking a trip to Rainy River.—Miss Pearl Storey at Mrs. Cuddy's.—Miss Cuddy at Mr. Crabtree's, on Sunday.—Mr. Perry and son at T. Storey's, on Monday.—Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Winters returned to Cloyne last night.

Grippe is sweeping the country. Stop it with Preventics, before it gets deeply seated. Be check early noble with these little Cold Cure Tablets, is surely sensible and safe. Preventics contain no dope, no laxative, nothing harsh or sickening. Preventics never appear in sight, but are sure promptly broken. Also good for several other ailments. Take box at bedtime. Fifty pocket boxes 5 cents. Sold by T. B. Wallace.

VALLEY ROAD.

The rain on Saturday last left the roads in a very bad condition.—Miss Blanche Johnston spent Sunday with Mr. Isaac Johnston's.—Mrs. M. McKeown spent a few days last week at M. Dowling's.—Delma Close visited Miss Baker one evening last week.—Wm. Anderson at Mrs. McKeown's, recently.—Mr. Frank York, Colborne, visited his mother here a few days last week.—Mr. J. Ander-son, jr., who has been on the sick list for the past few days, is improving nicely.—Miss F. Welbanks called on Mrs. Geo. Wallace one evening last week.—Rachael and Martha at York called on Mr. F. York, on Tuesday evening.—Miss G. A. Murphy called on Miss E. Anderson, recently.—Mr. Lott Kellar, Enterprise, visited friends at Erinsville Station on Sunday.—Rachael and Jen. York took tea with J. Anderson, Tuesday evening.—Owing to bad roads and cold weather some of the folks have had to trim up their feet for lack of wood.—Mr. Robt. Huffman, Enterprise, visited at Wm. Anderson's, on Sunday evening.—Good prospects for some weddings in the future. Leap year does good work.

MAPLE AVENUE.

Every person was more than pleased to see the thaw last week to lower the snow, as the roads were almost impassable, after the heavy fall of snow the week before.—The explosion of the Powder Factory at Tweed was heard in this vicinity. Some people thought it was an earthquake.—Mr. and Mrs. Walter Clark, of Havelock, are visiting his uncle, Mr. Lewis Clark.—Mr. Ernest Clark visited his cousin, Mr. Leighton Clark, at Wilton.—Mr. and Mrs. Maund Hartman, of Colebrook, visited her brother, Mr. Will Snider, Maple Avenue West.—Mr. and Mrs. James McGaughey and daughter Grace are guests of Mr. I. JACK LONDON SAFE.

The special correspondent of the Woman's Home Companion in San Francisco has telegraphed the following message in regard to Jack London:

San Francisco, Jany. 27th, 08.

Jack London and wife arrived on the Mariposa, safe, and well. Sailed up for repairs.

London's banker in Oakland, despairing of his safety, recently record ed the mortgage against his home at Glen Ellen, which dates back to April in order that the adventurous writer would obtain funds with which to fit out the Snark. It was understood that the mortgage was to be held without being recorded as long as London's safety seemed assured. The action of the bank was taken as an indication that its officers believed he had met disaster.

Jack London left Hilo, Hawaii, on October 27th for Tahiti of the Society Islands on his voyage around the world for the Woman's Home Companion in his little ketch-rigged boat the Snark. He should have reached Tahiti by the first of December, and was feared that some serious accident had befallen him. With London in the Snark were his wife, Charmian Kittredge, who is captain, Martin Johnson, the engineer, a sailor and two Japanese servants.

London intends to spend seven years in his voyage around the world, describing for the Woman's Home Companion the life and customs and countries of the strange people he meets. From the Society Islands he expects to touch at Samoa, Tasmania, New Zealand, Australia, New Guinea, then up through the Philippines to Japan, Siberia and China, and so on to India. After that he will cross Europe to the Atlantic Coast of America, and then back again, via the Horn.

The Snark is forty-five feet on the water line, weighs thirty tons, and has an auxiliary gas engine, which, getting out of repair, caused the delay that has occasioned so much worry. The Snark, however, was overhauled at Papeiti. The cost of construction of the boat, $7,000. She actually cost to date $25,000 before she left San Francisco and there is no doubt that the increase in cost being due to the earthquake and fire and to the subsequent scarcity of labor.

INDIGESTION CAN'T STAY where Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are arrayed against it. Thomas' Smith, of Dover, Ont., says: "I am delighted with them — from the first using I have been entirely relieved of the pains of indigestion—I have recommended them to many friends and cheerfully recommend them to any and every sufferer from indigestion." 35 cents. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—13.

THE LADIES' MUSICAL CLUB.

The Ladies' Musical Club has every reason to be proud of students' day. Miss Jean Light is to be congratulated on the way every number was sustained. It was not only a red letter day, but pretty red hearts were everywhere in evidence in all the decoration. Special mention surely can be made of the paper, "Children in Music" by Helen Herrington, good in research and well read. The vocal solo by Marion Wilson "The Old Sheik" had a well deserved encore. Napanee need have no fear of the success of her Musical Club, when we have such talent as we listened to on Friday.

DEATH OF A FORMER NAPANEEAN

The sisters are Misses Maggie and "Chick" with their mother in New Jersey, Mrs. John Downey, Belleville; Mrs. J. F. McAlister, Toronto, and Dr. Edward Phelan of Newark, N.J. The sympathy of their friends in this vicinity will go out to the bereaved ones in this their time of affliction.

SPRING TIME IN CALGARY, ALTA.

The following item from The Daily News, of Feb. 14th, of Calgary, Alberta, speaks well of the climate in that place, at present:—"Today reminded one of early summer. The brilliant sunshine, the warm breeze, and oh, just think of it—the water wagon laboring along 6th avenue upon its mission of mercy, all tended to send one's thoughts back, or forward if you like, to the good old summer time." The advent of the first sprinkler in Calgary this year — dear knows they have been needed long enough — was hailed with delight by the 8th avenue business man and pedestrian alike. Hurrah for the sprinklers, and many of 'em." The farmers are also plowing and seeding there now.

STOLEN COAT LOCATED.

Harry Hunter, the well known Napanee hotelkeeper, left Kingston on Wednesday for Springfield, Mass., where he will claim a valuable fur-lined coat, which was stolen from him in this city, and which is now being held in that city. A man named Clarke, under arrest there, is alleged to have stolen the coat. Two weeks ago Mr. Hunter was in Kingston, and had occasion to visit the Hotel Dieu. When the time arrived for his departure he missed his fur coat. A thorough by search was made for it, but with no good results, and the theft was then reported to the police. Nothing was learned of the missing coat until Saturday, when word was received from Springfield, stating that a man named Clarke, who claimed that his name was Phelps, was under arrest, and that he was wearing a fur-lined coat, which was thought to be his own. Investigation has proved that a man named Clarke has been a patient in the hospital at the time the coat was stolen, and as the description of the coat tallied with that given by Mr. Hunter, the police knew that they were on the right track. The only course open for Mr. Hunter to secure the coat was by taking the trip, and accordingly left for the east on Monday. The coat is valued at $125.—Whig.

Evening service and sermon at St. Anthony's Yarker, at 7 p.m.

MILLIOUS-DOLLER WEDDING.

On the evening of February 12th, a pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mrs. Millious, Queen st., Kingston, when her youngest daughter, Marguerette, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert V. Dedler, of Morven. The Rev. H. Sparling officiated. The bride, who was given away by her brother, John Millious, wore a most becoming gown of cream albatross. Her only ornament was a sunburst of pearls, the gift of the groom. After the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room, where a sumptuous dinner was served. Many costly presents were received, showing the esteem in which the bride was held. Mr. and Mrs. Dedler departed, amid showers of rice and good wishes, for their future home.

DEATH OF J. A. GOULD.

James A. Gould passed peacefully away at his residence, 278 Wellington st., Kingston, on Sunday morning, after an illness of some months. During last summer Mr. Gould received a severe fall at his broom factory, King st., from which he never completely recovered. He regained his health sufficiently to be around to business, but only for a few days, when he was forced to again give up active work. The late Mr. Gould was an energetic man, well known in Kingston and vicinity, where he has a host of friends who sympathize deeply with his sorrowing family in their loss. Mr. Gould was forty-eight years old, and had passed most of his life in Kingston. Besides his wife, four children, James, Mabel, Lily and Cora, are left to mourn. The funeral was held on Tuesday at three o'clock. Services were conducted at the house by the Rev. T. E. Burke, pastor of Brock Street Methodist church, of which the deceased was a member. Mr. Gould was the only son of Mrs. J. F. Clapp, Napanee, and her many friends here extend their deepest sympathy.

—Judge Madden this week dismissed the case of Jas. Taylor vs. Town of Napanee, for damages. Both parties to pay their own costs.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chambers,
Napanee, Feb. 17th, 1908.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng in the chair.

Members present—Councillors Kimmerly, Osborne, Dennison, Alexander, Stacey, Simpson, and Reeve Symington.

Minutes of last session were read and on motion were confirmed.

Thos. Pollard appeared before the Council, asking for a room over the fire hall, being at the present time a "grass widower."

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Alexander, that he be granted a room in the fire hall, under the supervision of the Town Property Committee.—Carried.

From W. G. Wilson, in reference to a House of Refuge for the destitute poor, and asked for an expression from the Council. Laid on the table till later in the evening.

Mr. U. M. Wilson appeared before the Council on behalf of Mr. L. Saad, merchant, who occupies a store in the Dunjis property on Dundas st. Mr. Wilson asked that he be refunded $40.00, which he had been fined, and that it be applied to his license as a transient trader.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the fine imposed by the Police Magistrate, $40.00, be refunded, and that it be applied to his license as a transient trader. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that Jas. Kenny be refunded the sum of $6.75, error in taxes.—Carried.

Reeve Symington reported as follows:—Case of Jas. Boyd, for damages, would ask further time to report; the cellars on West st. were being flooded, also the H. C. church.

James Machinton and Samuel Wilson were heard in reference to the matter. Mr. Minchinton thought if the surface water was not allowed to accumulate, there would be far less damage done.

Moved by Coun. Symington, seconded by Coun. Osborne, that the committee be allowed to open the mouth of the sewer on West st.—Carried.

Coun. Sleacy reported that Mrs. Steele had been getting 50c. per week, and he thought it should be raised to 75 cents.—Granted. Mrs. B. Steerings, with four children, in very poor circumstances and should have aid; her husband was in Syracuse and had only sent her $4.00 in three months. The matter was left in the hands of the Poor and Sanitary committee with power to act.

The Dramatic Club asked for one-half cord of wood to heat the opera house on evening of Feb. 24th; there is to be an entertainment on that date for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society.—Granted.

Moved by Coun. Denison, seconded by Coun. Sleacy, that there be no connection entered against Thos. Saad, as a Carroll, transient trader at present, and that the matter be left over until the next meeting of the Council.—Carried.

Mr. Manly Jones appeared before the Council in reference to a bill presented to the Township of Richmond for costs of a culvert built there some time ago.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Alexander, that the matter be left in the hands of the Street Committee to investigate and report.—Carried.

Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the sale of $7,500 debentures be left in the hands of the Finance Committee to investigate and report at next meeting.—Carried.

Moved by Reeve Symington, seconded by Coun. Kimmerly, that the management of the Public Library, the walks inside the public walks, as regards to snow shovelling, etc.—Carried.

Moved by Coun. Kimmerly, seconded by Coun. Simpson, that the Clerk be instructed to advertise for tenders for supplies for the town.—Carried.

On motion of Coun. Denison, seconded by Coun. Stacey, the purchase of one dozen pairs of rubber boots and six coats, for use of the Firemen, be left in the hands of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, with power to act.

The matter of damages for James Boyd was left in the hands of the Street Committee with power to act.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Alexander, that the fencing of the property around the isolation hospital, be left in the hands of the Town Property Committee to report.—Carried.

ODESSA.

The Epworth League and Sunday School are attended by a large number. We hope they may increase in numbers.—A fine treat was enjoyed in the league meeting last Monday evening, in the paper given by Miss H. Wilson.—Tennyson, the poet laureate, wood, of the teaching staff, took the topic for the next Monday evening, but we have not heard particulars. No doubt it was good, as she is spoken of as being very entertaining.—We are very sorry to chronicle the death of Mr. W. H. Lee, which occurred on Tuesday, the 25th, at the General Hospital, Kingston. He had been very ill some three weeks with an abscess behind the ear, and thinking an operation might prolong life, he was taken to Kingston on Sunday, the 23d. The operation was successfully performed, but owing to his previously weakened state and vitality being low, he did not rally, but ended his life there in a couple of days.—We think we are safe in saying the family have the sincere sympathy of the whole community.—The funeral was held in the C. M. church on Thursday. The service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. McCamus. The body was accompanied by the Chosen Friends and Foresters, of which the deceased was a member.

Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Hamm are among the proud in entertaining this winter.—On Tuesday and Thursday evenings of last week, Tuesday evening this week, and we hear invitations are out for Friday evening too. This shows how many friends our Reeve has.—The Chosen Friends had a very good oyster supper on Tuesday evening.—Miss Burley has gone to Watertown for a few weeks' visit.—We are losing some of our villagers for a time, Mr. Gordon Hawley, to Kingston on a visit.—Mr. Woolar, of Belleville, spent a few days with Mrs. J. Jones.

TAMWORTH.

Stewart Storrings was held up by an unknown man on Sunday night last, while returning home from church. The stranger stopped his horse, then jumped into the latter. The stranger ordered Storrings out of his cutter, but Storrings hit him. Then the stranger pulled a revolver and shot at him. Storrings hit him again, knocking him out of the cutter, and the horse galloped away. Storrings then visited his daughters, in the dress and magistrate line, one day last week.—The driving out of Rev. Mr. Wm. Johnston's, on Monday night last, they spent a very enjoyable time until a late hour.—There will be a Sunday morning service, next Sunday, and a meeting for men in the afternoon, in the Methodist church.—The Epworth League will hold their debate on Friday evening next, and a good time is expected.—Mr. Wm. Bowerman, of our Aldermen, has a smile for everybody now, as he had a little girl come to stay with him on the 9th.—The ice harvesters are very busy getting in large quantities of ice for the warm weather.—The Tamworth known as Meech's mill, has been sold to a syndicate for the manufacture of pulp.—Go to Floyd's where you can get three fine shirts for $1.00, while they last.

ROBLIN.

The roads have been very bad.—Mr. Tim. Hunt spent a few days with his sister, Mrs. Shirley Lewis.—Miss Ada Bradshaw spent a week at Roblin, and also spent a week at Hinch, where she had a very enjoyable time.—Miss Phoebe Bradshaw is spending a few days here.—Miss Ada Bradshaw spent Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage.—We are holding a convention for this week here.—Ronnie says a wedding soon.

GRETNA.

About forty-five of the Gretna people spent Tuesday evening at the parsonage, with Rev. and Mrs. DeMille, and report a most enjoyable evening, and Mr. and Mrs. DeMille an ideal host and hostess.—Mr. Herbert Chambers, of Anderson neighborhood, and Miss Lena Fields, one of our popular young ladies, were quietly married last Wednesday and are spending a few weeks in New York and other cities, with relatives. Congratulations, Mr. and Mrs. J. Card were at home to a few of their most intimate friends last Friday evening.—Rev. R. Bell and Adolphustown, will take charge of the services on the circuit here next Sunday, while Rev. DeMille will attend services on Adolphustown circuit.

GLENVALE.

Snow shoeing is the order of the day, and skating the order of the evening.—Miss Pearl McCracken and Miss. May Cramer, with a few other young ladies and gentlemen, attended the skating rink here on Thursday and Saturday evening.—A very enjoyable time was spent, as they had a leap year skate—A large part of the parents were also in attendance.—Mrs. Sharpton, on Tuesday evening. It was well attended with young people from all parts.—Mrs. Miss L. Lake, of Westport, has been visiting at H. Campsall's, for the past two weeks.—Miss Bertha Curran, of Monroe, was the guest of Miss Pearl McCracken, on Saturday last.—Mr. and Mrs. McPherson, of North Hastings, are visiting at G. A. B. Clark's.—Miss Ina Alpert and Miss Pearl McCracken were entertained by the village on Sunday evening.—Mr. B. Clark's talking of going south soon.—Mrs. H. Wagar, of Bridge st., and son were the guests of H. Campsall's, on Tuesday evening.—Mr. S. Alpert is going to move to Harrowsmith in the spring.

NEWBURGH.

Preparations have been completed for the big concert in the Methodist church, under the joint auspices of the Epworth and Epworth League. The date announced last week has been changed to a day later, owing to its conflicting with the cantata given in Napanee on the evening of March 3d by the choirs. It will be held on Wednesday night, March 4th instead, those announced last week to give part being unable to attend.—Prof. Mr. C. W. Taylor, pipe organist and vocal soloist, and Miss McBride, old, contralto soloist, of Picton, and Miss Myrtle Woods, elocutionist of Tamworth, have been secured for the musical talent.—Miss Lambert will contribute an organ and a vocal solo, and Mr. F. D. Moore a vocal solo.—Misses Florence Wagar and Marie Johnston, who were so well received at the High School concert, will be heard again in recitations.—Altogether the evening will be one of rare enjoyment, and with the admission at 20c and 15c, a full church is looked forward to.—Our hockey teams lost two out of three games last week. The town team lost to the Desertons here on Thursday afternoon, and on that evening the High School team was defeated by the Collegiate in Napanee, by a close margin.—Reports from other columns will be found in reference to an address presented to Mr. Parrish by his fellow-members of the Anglican church on Monday evening.—Rev. J. F. Mears, Napanee, was in town on Thursday last, calling on friends, on his way from Tamworth.—Mr. Ed. Bell, Selby, was in town on Saturday last, on business.—Mr. Peter and Wm. Quinn and Mr. Elmore Galbraith and Miss Myrtle Switzer were the guests of the Misses Coral and Bessie Switzer, Sunday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Urph Tait and family, Miss Jean Rigby, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bell spent Sunday evening with Mr. Fraser Bell.—Miss Etta Macdonald is spending a few days in Enterprise, at her brother's, Mr. Albert Macdonald.

WAGARVILLE.

The grip is visiting our neighborhood. It has stripped quite a few.—Mr. E. Vanvelkenburg's saw mill is running full blast again.—Mr. S. Jackson has a number of teams hauling saw logs to E. Vanvelkenburg's mill.—Mr. Love, Long Lake, bought five head of cattle from Mr. Lasher Crook, one day last week.—Mr. Harvey Cronk had what might have been a severe accident, by a horse kicking him on the thigh, which left quite a sore and bruise.—Mr. S. Jackson made a business trip to Long Lake one day last week.—Mr. W. A. Wagar bought two fine Ayrshire cows from Mrs. George Scott.—A number from around here attended the S. S. convention at Wagarville, which was a decided success.—Mr. George Killen had the misfortune to have a horse kicked by one of the horses.—Mrs. Hiram Vanvelkenburg, of Vanvelkenburg is spending a few days visiting friends here.—Mr. David Wagar, Watertown, N.Y., is renewing old acquaintances here.—Mr. Norman Cronk, who has spent the last year in Cobalt, has returned home to spend a few weeks with his parents.—Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Cronk.—A number of our sports went hunting and returned without anything.—Try again, boys.—Mary Ann Vanvelkenburg is spending a few days with her uncle, Mr. R. Wagar, Fifth Lake.—Little Mildred Bartman is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Hannah Cronk.—Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wagar and children spent Thursday evening with Mr. and Mrs. S. Cronk.—A laugh had the people old and young, at the home of E. Vanvelkenburg's, on Friday night and spent an enjoyable evening.—Mr. Wm. Bros., Long Lake, made a flying trip through here, en route to Bell Rock.—Mr. and Mrs. Hector Cronk and Edith, and little Alfred Vanvelkenburg spent a few days at Long Lake visiting friends.—Mrs. Cora Wagar, Sydenham High School ma'am spent Saturday and Sunday under the parental roof.—Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Wagar spent Sunday at her parents.—A. and Mrs. G. A. Smith, Parham.—Mr. J. Cox is spending a few weeks with her daughter.—Mrs. Charles Walker, Port Huron.—Rumor says a wedding soon.

PRESENTATION AT NEWBURGH

On Monday evening last a number of the members of St. John's Anglican church, Newburgh, gathered at the residence of Mr. Wm. Sutton, to say farewell to Mr. Jas. Shorey, on the eve of his departure for Winnipeg. The following address, which speaks for itself, was read to Mr. Shorey by Mr. Beattie, in the presentation of a beautiful Morris chair being made by Mr. Sutton:

Dear Mr. Shorey,—It is with mingled feelings of regret and pleasure that we have gathered this evening to express to you our appreciation of your services in the past, and our good wishes for the future,—regret at the thought of losing one of our most valued friends and co-workers, and pleasure in the thought of the ample rewards the future holds for you.

We, as church members, feel we are indeed the losers. For years you have identified yourself in every branch of church work with a sincere and whole-hearted interest and enthusiasm and an unfailing cheerfulness. As church warden, lay delegate to Synod, superintendent and teacher of the Sunday School, you have always endeavored to do your share, and it is in a great part due to your efforts and to those of the other faithful members of the congregation that the cause of the church has been maintained so valiantly against such severe circumstances. Yours was the militant Christianity, and its hope you will continue in your new sphere by the good work you have carried on here. Doubtless we would have your familiar form and kindly greeting, but we feel sure you will be kindest and most pleasant recollections of you, your wife and family.

Please accept with this chair our heartiest wishes for your future and that of your family. We hope that wherever your path in life may chance to be, that your efforts towards advancement may be crowned with success, and that your life may be filled with happiness.

Signed on behalf of the congregation of St. John's church, Newburgh

W. SUTTON,
Church Warden.

Mr. Shorey, taken by surprise, replied briefly to the address, expressing appreciation of the kindly sentiments. Rev. F. D. Woodcock, a former pastor of the church, and Mr. C. H. Finkle also spoke in appreciation of the stirling character and work of Mr. Shorey in the church, expressing the general regret and sorrowfulness of this relationship, and their best wishes for him in the future.

Give Fair Play to

A really reliable remedy for headache—Zutoo.

If you have got it into your head that Zutoo Tablets will hurt you, you are mistaken.

It isn't fair to us for you to judge Zutoo by other headache cures.

The fair thing for both of us is—to judge Zutoo on its merits—to test it.

If you find it does not cure your headache, sick, nervous or otherwise, in twenty minutes, break up a cold in a night and leave you feeling good every time—no bad after effects, then discard it.

But do not condemn it unfairly without a trial, and keep on suffering. You really do not have to, and one trial of Zutoo will prove it.

We'll send trial tablets for nothing, or you can buy them at dealers in 10c. and 25c. packages.

GETS HIS FUR COAT AND KEYS.

W. H. Hunter, Proprietor of Royal Hotel, Napanee, Is Very Glad to Get His Property Again.

W. H. Hunter, proprietor of the Royal Hotel, Napanee, Ont., visited the Police Station on Thursday morning, February 20th, and claimed the coat taken from William Howard Clark, when arrested by Inspector Costello on Monday evening. Mr. Hunter also visited "the jail and talked with Clark, who admitted that he stole the coat from the Hotel Dieu Hospital, in Kingston, Ont., one day last week. Clark also said he would go back to Kingston without requisition papers, as soon as he finishes serving his time at the jail.

Mr. Hunter said he visited the hospital last week to see his brother-in-law who was ill there. Before going into the main part of the hospital he slipped out of his $150 fur-lined coat and left it in the office. Clark was released from the hospital while Mr. Hunter was visiting his brother-in-law. He walked into the office, donned Mr. Hunter's coat and started for the United States.

When Mr. Hunter entered the jail this morning Clark looked up from his work for an instant and then bent his head with renewed interest in what he was doing.

"Don't you know me?" said Mr. Hunter.

"Sure," said Clark. "You're Mr. Hunter, of Napanee. Have a seat and up there. Sure, I took your coat. I left Kingston in a hurry and didn't have time to get the pair of gloves, which were also in the coat. Mr. Hunter said he did not care about the gloves, anyway. He was particularly glad to learn about the keys.

Chief Constable Bailey, of Kingston, and Mr. Hunter a warrant for Clark's arrest on the charge of theft, which he left at the jail to be served when Clark is released. He is now serving three months' hard labor and a $10 fine, imposed upon him by the Police Court for carrying concealed weapons. When the time is up an officer from Kingston will arrive to take him back to Kingston.—The Springfield Daily News.

Mr. Hunter is very thankful to Marshal Quilty and M. P. Costello, Police Inspector, for their courtesy, etc., while in their city.

A CHINA SHOWER

One of those events which leave pleasant remembrances of the past took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murney Parks, Hanley, on Wednesday evening, Feby. 19th. The young people met for the purpose of carrying out a China Shower which were recently married, a surprise in way of a china shower for the shower was complete, and the gifts numerous and useful, showing the esteem and appreciation of the bride and groom of their neighborhood. After everything was arranged Mr. and Mrs. Fretts were called forward, and Mr. T. B. Creighton read the following address:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Fretts—It is with a great deal of pleasure that we, a few of your young friends, assemble to extend to you congratulations and good wishes for a bright and prosperous future.

We think of the many pleasant times we have had together and how we have often met in both church work and social gatherings, and we still think we can count on your pleasant faces and heart only spaces. The members of both are endeavoring to do so to-night.

We understand you are likely to remain with us still, and we hope for many more happy gatherings where we may enjoy one another's presence.

Of course we feel too young and inexperienced to offer anything by way of advice, still we might offer the following: Be loving, be thankful, be cheerful, be pleasant, be patient, be brave, be true, be natural, and remember that God helps those who help themselves.

The bride will please accept these gifts each one bearing a token of love and respect from the giver.

Signed on behalf of the young people of Hawley.

MRS. H. CREIGHTON.
MISS DELENE HAIGHT.
LILLIAN FRETTS.

Mr. Fretts replied, thanking every one for their kindness, also for the good wishes expressed for their future welfare.

After congratulations, amusements were indulged in for a time, after which a bountiful supply of oysters was served, together with cake, oranges and other refreshments. When a couple of hours together were spent in social conversation, laughter and music, to the regret of many, to their several homes, each one intimating that a very pleasant evening had been spent.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Reid, on the evening of Thursday, the 20th inst., when members and adherents of Lonsdale Presbyterian church, and old friends, numbering about seventy in all, assembled together to say farewell to the Reid family, on the event of their departure to Bay Bay, where they are about to make their home in the future. Early in the evening an impromptu programme of addresses, songs, recitations, etc., was well rendered, the most interesting number of which was the following address, and the presentation of a beautiful and costly chair to the host and hostess:

Mr. and Mrs. Reid —

Dear friends,—We, the members and adherents of the Lonsdale Presbyterian church, have come prior to your departure from our communion to show in some tangible form our esteem for you and our appreciation of your sojourn with us.

It is much to our sorrow that the time is drawing near when we shall have to bid you farewell as neighbors, but not as friends, as you are members of our congregation, but not of our church.

During your stay with us, brief though it was, you have taught us to love you with brotherly love, and to esteem you very highly in love for your works' sake. Faithful in your attendance on divine service, ready to fall in line with the requests and help in every undertaking to advance the interests of our church, eager to do at least your share in every good work, you have proved yourselves noble examples of Christian citizenship. As neighbors you have been kind and obliging, and your friends, in the highest sense of the word, especially in time of need. Your cheerful dispositions have made life more pleasant to us all.

We beg of you to accept this chair as a slight token of our respect for you and our appreciation of your friendship. We know you will appreciate it, occasionally think of your Lonsdale friends.

In conclusion we would extend you our best wishes, and bid you God-speed in life's journey. Be sincerely true, and you and your bright, respectful children may be long spared to enjoy your new home.—Signed

In reply, Mr. Reid thanked his friends most heartily for having remembered them so kindly, and assured them that he would never forget the many kindnesses so unselfishly spirit tendered him by all since the beginning of their pastorate just seven years ago.

A dainty lunch was served by the ladies, and after games and plays were concluded, in the new year, hours the company went their several ways, departing with the verdict of entertainment but sad to think they were about to lose such good neighbors.

HOCKEY.

A friendly game of fast hockey was played in Yarker on Saturday, between Yarker and Newburgh senior teams. The game was called at 3.16 p.m., with only slight variations, although those present did their best to encourage the home team. In the beginning the Yarkerites fought with the energy of a lion, but in a minute after the start. The second also took place in the first half, Yarker scoring twelve minutes of ragged stick handling, the visitors were now beginning to realize they were up against a proposition, besides being handicapped by the absence of their regular goal tender, Shurey, who was replaced by Macdonald, of Camden East, who says he is not much of practice, yet he played well. It would be hard for him to stop some of Topliff's shots, who played the star game for the locals. The remainder of the first half was very swiftly played, but no more scores were made, Yarker leading at the end by 2 to 0. The second half was extremely fast, though the locals showed lack of practice, and the visitors were tired. But the visitors were in the game to the finish, and fought a better game as to skating, combination and checking, as it neared full time. They succeeded in tieing the score early in the second half, and in the last five minutes Yankee and Dunn dropped a couple into the net to show what they could do, making a final score of 4-3 in Newburgh's favor. Dick Madden very cleverly referred the game to the satisfaction of all, assisted partially by Messrs. Moore, of Newburgh, and Mc-Donald, of Yarker, were goal umpires, while Mr. Myers Warner officiated with the watch.

DEATH OF MRS. JOHN J. PELLOW.

Frances Ann Gilbert, wife of John J. Pellow, died in Bath, on Wednesday, 5th February, 1908, aged 51 years.

The long rough road is ended,
Her weary feet have pressed,
The flowers on the last foot-steps,
Perhaps we never guessed;
But there is the mystery passed,
She'll be no more distressed.

The face we bend and softly kiss,
Bears no imprint that out of bliss.
We know that many pages
Will follow in this year,
She hath pressed with anguish
Her darling tears.
Forgetful now each pang of woe
Nor grief again shall evil know.

We gone at are dear features
Within the casket bound,
And think that she is dwelling
Where endless joy is found;
That there no painful partings,
Her loving heart shall wound,
And weeping for her loved and gone,
We gather strength to walk alone.

Along the way before us
Whither we do not know,
Or thickly set with dangers
May bring us want and woe;
Yet o'er life's pathway one has gone,
At last into her Heavenly home.

WEAK, PALE AND WORN OUT WOMEN

Can be Saved From a Life of Misery by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Women are called the "weaker sex," but their trials upon them are harder far more pain than men. With too many women it is one long martyrdom from the time they are budding into womanhood, until age begins to set its stamp upon them. They are no sooner over one period of pain and distress than another looms up only a few days ahead of them. No wonder so many women become worn out and old looking before their time.

In these times of trial Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are worth their weight in gold to women. They actually make new, rich blood, and on the richness and regularity of the blood the health of every part and every woman depends.

Mrs. Urbane C. Webber, Welland, Ont., is one of the many who owe their present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Webber says: "About three years ago, while living in Hamilton, my health began to fail me. The first symptoms were headaches and general weakness. After a time the trouble increased so rapidly that I was unable to attend to my household duties. My blood became thin and impoverished, my heart fluttering and palpitating, and frequent fainting fits. I was constantly doctoring, but without any benefit, and I began to feel that my condition was hopeless. One day a friend asked me why I did not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and mentioned several cases in which she knew of the great benefit that had followed their use. After some urging I decided to try the pills, and had only used them a few weeks when I began to feel benefitted, and from that time on the improvement was steady, and by the time I had used about a dozen boxes of the pills I was again enjoying the blessing of good health. I cannot too strongly urge other discouraged sufferers to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cure all troubles due to poor, watery blood, such as anaemia, general weakness, indigestion, neuralgia, skin troubles, rheumatism, the after effects of la grippe, and such serious troubles as partial paralysis, locomotor ataxia and partial paralysis. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail, post paid, at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SCHOOL ROOM DON'TS AND DO'S.

1. Don't lose interest, alertness, simplicity and cleanness.

2. If interest is lacking, don't blame the pupil entirely. Introspect yourself to find out the cause. Try new methods.

3. Don't start or conduct every class in the same manner. Search for novel ways to secure attention and interest.

4. Don't discard concrete methods too soon. Don't expect a pupil to grasp the complex before the simple has been attained.

5. Don't over-rush or crowd the child mind in the fourth class grades.

6. Don't expect undivided attention after a lesson period, on one subject, over the thirty minutes.

7. Don't tax child's strength by keeping him in a close, impure atmosphere fifteen minutes.

8. Don't be too hurried to satisfy the question of the enquirer.

9. Don't allow classes to drill and drowsy open windows and divert the tax of attention to raindrops, or other fresh air exercises.

10. Don't scold, frown, and look unpleasant continually. Cast sunshine where you can.

11. If a child continues to have an over amount of mistakes, don't start punishing till the cause is clear. Question (a)—Are there too many words required? (b)—Are the words too difficult for size, age and capacity of every pupil in the class? Some children have had a properly conducted dictation lesson, i.e., have the words been sounded out, irregularities explained, and written on the board by the teacher? (d)—Can any plan be adopted to overcome the fault?

12. Don't usurp important class periods by dwelling too long on one lagging pupil. Clear the lagging one in busy work periods, or at another hour.

13. Don't continually use knowledge, take time to trap by brilliant questioning.

14. Don't stand aloof from the child; come down to the child mind or it can never climb.

15. Don't hide the little kindnesses which you could do to gain good will on the part of the pupil. Every pupil has feeling and are susceptible to praise and encouragement.

There is in every human heart,
Some not entirely barren spot,
Where kind words love may grow.'

16. Do encourage reading. Select suitable supplementary reading to create an inspiration for deeds of daring, adventures, heroism and nature study. Reading is educative.

EIGHTY-EIGHTH BIRTHDAY

On Monday evening, Feby. 24th, a few friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Hannah Huffman, for the purpose of celebrating her eighty-eighth birthday. On account of the illness of Mrs. Huffman and her sister, Mrs. H. B. Allison, who was attained to the ripe age of eighty-six years, comfortably were the guests of the evening room, where she received the hearty congratulations of her friends. Many rooms were prettily decorated with flowers. In the dining room, the long table was beautifully decorated with the figure 88 and greenery, being most effectively used. The birthday cake with the eight lighted candles in the centre of the table graced by the aged hostess. Mr. Hogart with Mrs. Hogart at his right, moved in a very acceptable manner as toast master. Mr. Huffman, who was responded to by Mr. Gibbard. The guests then adjourned to the drawing room, where an hour or so was spent in music, readings, stories and recitals of former days. Mrs. Huffman with her usual thoughtfulness presented each guest with a souvenir of the occasion present herself. Altogether an evening was a most delightful evening, and many were the wishes that Mrs. Huffman might have many such birthdays.

MISS ETHEL M. UNGAR.

If this life is given us as a school in which to prepare for the larger and more glorious life to come, then it would seem to be no doubt of the success achieved by the gifted young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ungar. Although her term with us lasted but 17 years, her growth in stature and attainment was wonderfully rapid, and none who knew her well could doubt that she was fully prepared for promotion to the higher state reserved for those to whom she loved best. Most of Ethel's years were spent in school, yet they were not years of seclusion from the world, but also to all with whom she came in contact. At home in the school room on the play ground, on the street, in church or Sunday School, wherever she was her earnest thought, her few, but gentle words, her kind and lovely manner had an untold influence the benefit of which can never be estimated. Her rapid mental advancement was indicated by her passing in quick succession the Entrance, Junior Leaving, Senior Second Leaving and Honor Matriculation Examinations. The last three were taken in three successive years, and in each she won high honors. She also matriculated her Collegiate course in 1900, she carried off one of the scholarships given in Toronto University, and then proved her brain one of the very strong est that had ever taken the course in Napanee Collegiate. But her character was still better than her mind, for she made her influence felt wherever she went apart and unobtrusive though she was. Ethel was a faithful and active member of the Sunday School and church from her earliest childhood. The patience with which she endured her three years of suffering serve to emphasize another strong feature of her character. It was then we realized that that dreadful monster, tuberculosis, which has claimed thousands of victims in Canada every year, had secured a permanent hold upon her and that her days were numbered. Many prospects in Victoria, and in her after life, she submitted with the most Christian grace which is sometimes mistaken for weakness, but the end slowly but surely approached, she calmly, made all necessary preparations for the change, and cheered and comforted the dear ones around her, assuring them of her own happiness, and hoping to meet them soon in that land where death never enters. She passed peacefully away on Wednesday, the 19th inst., and the following Wednesday afternoon the funeral was followed to the Western cemetery vault by a large concourse of sorrowing friends and relatives. The bereaved father, mother, sister and brothers have the sincere sympathy of the whole community, but they have the grand support of knowing that the uplift of dear Ethel's influence will be felt by very many of those who knew her best.—Peter Gander, please copy.

"OUR MOTHER."

In loving remembrance of Mrs. W. J. Chambers, who died February, 1903:

Thy should we grieve for her,
She is safe in Canaan's shore,
Released from all her heartfelt woes,
She is not lost, but gone before.

Dear is the spot where mother sleeps,
And sweet the stream her spirit's gone to,
Why should we in anguish weep?
She is not lost, but gone before.

Secure from every mortal care,
By sin and sorrow vexed no more,
Her happy spirit rests there,
With friends long gone before.

How many painful days on earth
Have lasting spirit numbered o'er,
Now she enjoys a heavenly birth,
With loved ones gone before.

When to Jordan's stormy bank we come,
And hear the swelling waters roar,
Jesus will take us safely home,
To mother, not lost, but gone before.

—By her son, Geo. Chambers, Hamilton, Ontario.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON, Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

"It can easily be proved, Judge," interrupted quietly, "though you're wrong; I haven't been telling people. I haven't needed to—even if I'd wished. Once a thing like that gets out, you can't stop it—ever. That isn't all. To my knowledge you own other property worse than the Beach. I know that you own half of the worst dens in the town—profitable investments too. You bought them very gratefully and shrewdly, only showing the deeds to those in charge—as you did to Mike Sheehan—and not recording them. Sheehan's betrayal of you gave me the idea before the parasites of life from the roots of the

"You blackmailer!" The judge bent upon him a fierce, inquiring scrutiny, in which, oddly enough, there was a kind of haggard hopefulness. "And out of such stories," he sneered, "you are going to try to make political capital against the Tocsin, are you?"

"No," said Joe. "It was necessary in the interests of my client for me to know pretty thoroughly just what property you own, and I think I do. These pieces I've mentioned are about all you have not mortgaged. You could not do that without exposure, and you've kept the controlling interest in the Tocsin clear, too—for the sake of its influence, I suppose. Now, do you want to hear any more, or will you agree to meet me at Miss Tabor's this evening?"

Whatever the look of hopefulness had signified, it died from Pike's face during this speech, but he asked with some show of contempt, "Do you think it likely?"

"Very well," said Joe, "if you want me to speak here." And he came a little closer to him. "You bought a big block of Grauger Gas for Roger Tabor," he began in a low voice. "Before his death you sold everything he had except the old house, put it all into cash for him and bought that stock. You signed the check as his attorney in fact, and it came back to you through the Washington Savings Bank where Norbert Flitcroft handled it. He has a good memory, and when he told me what he knew I had him to do some tracing. Did a little myself also. Judge Pike, I must tell you that you stand in danger of the law. You were the custodian of that stock for Roger Tabor. It was transferred in blank, though I think you meant to be 'legal' at that time, and that was merely for convenience in case you had wished you to sell it for him. But just after his death you found yourself saddled with distillery stock, which was going bad on your hands. Other speculations of yours were failing at the same time. You had to have money. You filed your report as administrator, crediting Miss Tabor with your own stock which you knew was going to the wall, and transferred hers to yourself. Then you sold it because you needed ready money. You used her fortune to save yourself, but you were horribly afraid! No matter how rotten your transactions had been, you had always kept inside the law, and now that you had gone outside of it you were frightened. You didn't dare come flat out to Miss Tabor with the statement that her fortune had gone." It had been in your charge all the time, and things might look ugly. So you put it off, perhaps from day to day. You didn't dare tell her until you were forced to, and to avoid the confession you sent her the income which was rightfully hers. That was your great weakness."

Joe had spoken with great rapidity, though keeping his voice low, and he lowered it again as he continued: "Judge Pike, what chance have you to be believed by me when you assert that you sent her $20,000 out of the goodness of your heart? Do you think she believes you? Do you think I'm proof to her that you had robbed her, for she knew you! Do you want to bear more now? Do you think this is a good place for it? I've asked you to come to my office and I have taken against you to land you at the bar where this poor fool whom your paper is hounding stands today?"

The judge essayed to answer and could not. He lifted his head once faintly and dropped it, while a thick dew gathered on his temples. Inarticulate sounds came from between his teeth.

"You will come?" said Joe.

Martin Pike bent his head dazedly, and at that the other turned quickly from him and went away without looking back.

Ariel was in the studio half an hour later, when Joe was announced by the smiling Mr. Warden. Ladew was with her, though upon the point of taking his leave, and Joe marked, with a sinking heart, that the young painter's cheeks were flushed and his eyes very bright.

"It was a magnificent thing you did, Mr. Louden," he said, offering his hand heartily. "I saw it, and it was even finer in every way than it was publicly. It somehow straightened things out with such perfect good nature. It made those people feel that what they were doing was ridiculous."

"So it was," said Joe.

"It was just the circumstances could have acted as if they thought so. And I hope you'll let me call upon you, Mr. Louden."

"I hope you will," he answered and then, when the minister had departed, stood looking after him with and eyes.

In which there dwelt obscure meditations. Ladew's word of farewell had covered a deep look at Ariel, which was not to be mistaken by Joseph Louden for anything other than what it was. The clergyman's secret was an open one, and Joe saw that he was going to frank and manly in love as in all other things. "He's a good fellow," he said at last, sighing—"a good man."

Ariel agreed. "And he said more to me than he did to you."

"Yes; I think it probable." Joe smiled sorrowfully.

"About you, I mean." He had time to fear that her look admitted confusion before she proceeded: "He said he had never seen anything so fine as your coming down those steps. Ah, he was right! But it was harder for me to watch you. I think, than for you to do it, Joe. I was so horribly afraid—and the crowd between us—for you to have got near you—but we couldn't—we—"

She faltered and pressed her hand close upon her eyes.

"We?" asked Joe slowly. "You mean you and Mr. Ladew?"

"Yes; he was there, but I mean"—her voice ran into a little laugh with a beautiful quaver in it—"I mean Colonel Flitcroft and Mr. Bradbury and Mr. Buckalew, too—we were hemmed in together when Mr. Ladew found us. And, oh, Joe, when that cowardly mob started toward you those three— I've heard wonderful things in Paris and Naples, cabmen quarreling and disappointed beggars, but never anything like them today!"

"You mean they were profane?"

"Oh, magnificently, and with such inventiveness! All three begged my pardon afterward. I didn't grant it—I bledded them."

"Did they beg Mr. Ladew's pardon?"

"Ah, Joe!" she reproached him. "He isn't a prig. And he's had to fight some things that you of all men ought to understand. He's only been here a few months, but he told me that Judge Pike has been against him from the start. It seems that Mr. Ladew is too liberal in his views. And he told me that if it were not for Judge Pike's losing influence in the church on account of the Beaver Beach story the judge would probably have been able to force him to resign, but now he will stay."

"He wishes to stay, doesn't he?"

"Very much, I think. And, Joe," she continued thoughtfully, "I want you to do something for me. I want you to go to church with me next Sunday."

"To hear Mr. Ladew?"

"Yes. I wouldn't ask except for that."

"Very well," he consented, with averted eyes. "I'll go."

Her face was radiant with the smile she gave him. "It will make me very happy," she said.

He bent his head and fumbled over some papers he had taken from his pocket. "Will you listen to these memoranda? We have a great deal to go over before 8 o'clock."

Judge Pike stood for a long while where Joe had left him, staring out at the street apparently. Really he saw nothing. Undoubtedly an image of blurring foliage, cast iron, cement and turf, with sunshine smeared over all, flickered upon the retinas of his eyes, but the brain did not accept the picture from the optic nerve. Martin Pike was busy with other visions. Joe Louden had followed him back to his Maiden deeds and had read them aloud to him as Gabriel would read them on judgment day. Perhaps this was the judgment day.

Martin Pike had always been prompt. It was one of the things on which he had been proud. In all his life he had never failed to keep a business engagement precisely upon the appointed time, and the courthouse bell clanged eight when Sam Warden opened the door for his old employer to night.

The two young people looked up gravely from the script Ladew table before them as Martin Pike came into the strong limelight out of the darkness of the hall, where only a taper burned. He shambled a few limp steps into the room and came to a halt. Big as he was, his clothes hung upon him loosely, like coverlets upon a collapsed bed, and he seemed but a distorted image of himself, as if, save for his gross and reddened eyes, he had been made of yellowish wax and had been left too long in the sun. Abject, hopeless, his attitude a confession of ruin and shame, he stood before his judges in such wretchedness that in comparison the figure of Happy Fear, facing the courtroom through his darkest hour, was one to be envied.

"Well," he said brokenly, "what are you going to do?"

Joe Louden looked at him with great intentness for several moments, then he rose and came forward. "Sit down, Judge," he said. "It's all right. Don't worry."

CHAPTER XXV.

MRS. FLITCROFT at breakfast on the following morning continued a disquisition which had ceased the previous night only because of a provoking human incapacity to exist without sleep. The Tocsin had been her great comfort.

"Yes, young man," she said as she lifted her first spoonful of oatmeal, "you better read the Tocsin!"

"I am reading it," responded Norbert, who was almost concealed by the paper.

"And your grandfather better read it!" she continued severely.

"I already have," said the colonel promptly. "Have you?"

"No, but you can be sure I will."

"All right," said Norbert, suddenly handing her the paper. "Go ahead."

"Ha!" exclaimed Mrs. Flitcroft. "Here it is in headlines on the first page. 'Defense Scores Again and Again. Ridiculous Behavior of a Would Be Mob. Louden's'"—She paused, removed her spectacles, examined them dubiously, restored them to place and continued, "'Louden's Masterly Coodnet and Well Deserved'"—She paused again, incredulous—"'Well deserved Triumph'"—

"Go on," said the colonel softly.

"Indeed I will," the old lady replied. "Look at the editorials," suggested Norbert. "There's one on the same subject."

"The best of us make mistakes, and it is well to have a change of heart sometimes." Thus Eugene's successor had written, and so Mrs. Flitcroft read. "'An open confession is good for the soul. The Tocsin has changed its mind in regard to certain matters and means to say so freely and frankly. After yesterday's events in connection with the murder trial before our public, the evidence being now all presented, for we understand that neither side has more to offer, it is generally conceded that all good citizens are hopeful of a verdict of acquittal, and the Tocsin is a good citizen. No good citizen would willingly see an innocent man punished, and that one of us is not to be disgraced by such a miscarriage of justice is due to the efforts of the attorney for the defendant who has gained credit not only by his masterly management of this case, but by his splendid conduct in the floor of danger yesterday afternoon. He has distinguished himself so greatly that we frankly assert that our citizens may point with pride to'"— Mrs. Flitcroft's voice, at the beginning pitched to a high exultation, had gradually lowered in key and dropped down the scale till it disappeared altogether.

The Tocsin's right about face undermined others besides Mrs. Flitcroft that morning and rejoiced greater, though not better, men than the colonel. Mr. Farbach and his lieutenants smiled, yet stared, amazed, wondering what had happened. That was a thing which only three people even certainly knew, yet it was very simple.

The Tocsin was part of the judge's restitution.

"The controlling interest in the paper, together with other property I have listed," Joe had said, studying his memoranda under the lamp in Roger's old study, while Martin Pike listened with his head in his hands, "make up what Miss Tabor is willing to accept. As I estimate it, their total value is between a third and a half of that of the stock which belonged to her."

"But this boy—this Flitcroft," said Pike feebly; "he might"—

"He will do nothing," interrupted Joe. "The case is settled out of court, and even if he were disposed to harass you he could hardly hope to succeed. Miss Tabor declines either to sue or to prosecute."

The judge winced at the last word. "Yes, yes, I know, but he might—he might—tell."

"I think Miss Tabor's influence will prevent. If it should not—well, you're not in a desperate case by any means. You're involved, but far from stripped. In time you may be as sound as ever. And if Norbert tells there's going to be, you to do but to live it down. I'm a little stupid upon Joe's lips as he lifted his head and looked at the other. "It can be done, I think."

It was then that Ariel, complaining of the warmth of the evening, thought it possible that Joe might find her fan upon the porch and as he departed whispered hurriedly, "Judge Pike, I'm not technically in control of the Tocsin, but haven't I the right to control its policy?"

"I understand," he muttered. "You mean about Louden—about this trial"—

"That is why I have taken the paper."

"You want all that changed, you mean?"

She nodded decisively. "From this instant, before morning."

"Oh, well, I'll go down there and give the word," he added his quota of weariness with big thumbs. "I'm through fighting. I'm done. Besides, what's the use? There's nothing more to fight."

"Now, judge," Joe said as he came in briskly, "we'll go over the list of that unmortgaged property, if you will."

This unmortgaged property consisted of Beaver Beach and those other belonging of the judge which he had not dared to mortgage. Joe had some how explained their nature to Ariel, and Ariel, with the Tocsin, she had elected to accept in restitution.

"You told me once that I ought to look after my own property, and now I will. Don't you see?" she cried to Joe eagerly. "It's my work!" She resolutely set aside every other proposition, and this was the quality of mercy which Martin Pike found that night.

There was a great crowd to hear Joe's summing up at the trial, and those who succeeded in getting into the courtroom declared that it was worth the struggle. He did not orate,

"I understand," he muttered. "You mean about Louden"—

he did not "thunder at the jury," nor did he slyly flatter them. He did not overdo the confidential, nor seem so secure of understanding beforehand what their verdict would be that he felt an instinctive desire to fool him. He talked colloquially, but clearly, without appeal to the esthetic and without garnitures, not mentioning sunsets, birds, oceans, homes, the glorious old state or the happiness of boys, but he made everybody in the room quite sure that Happy Fear had fired the shot which killed Cory to save his own life. And that, as Mr. Bradbury remarked to the colonel, was "what Joe was there for!"

Ariel's escort was increased to four that day. Mr. Ladew sat beside her, and there were times when Joe kept his mind entirely to the work in hand only by an effort, but he always succeeded. The sight of the pale and worshiping face of Happy Fear from the corner of his eye was enough to insure that. And people who could not get near the doors, asking those who could, "What's he doin' now?" were answered by variations of the one formula, "Oh, jest walkin' away with it!"

Once the courtroom was disturbed and set in an uproar which even the judge's customary threat failed to subdue. Joe had been talking very rapidly and having turned the point he was making with perfect dexterity, the jury listening carefully, stopped for a moment to take a swallow of water. A voice rose over the low hum of the crowd in a delicious chuckle, "Why, he don't somebody 'head him off'" The room instantly rocked with laughter, under cover of which the identity of the sacrilegious chuckler was not discovered, but the voice was the voice of Buckalew, who was incredibly surprised to find that he had spoken aloud.

The jury were "out," after the case had been given to them, seventeen minutes and thirty seconds by the watch Claudine held in her hand. The little man, whose fate was now on the knees of the gods, looked pathetically at the foreman and then at the face of his lawyer and began to shake violently, but not with fright. He had gone to the jail on Joe's word, as a good dog goes when his master bids him, trustfully, and yet Happy had not been able to keep his mind from considering the horrible chances. "I won't worry," Joe had said. "It's all right. I'll see you through." And he had kept his word.

The little man was cleared.

It took Happy a long time to get through what he had to say to his attorney in the anteroom, and even then, as Joe knew, he could manage to put it in words, for he had expressed himself with sheer gratitude. "Why, d—n me, Joe," he sobbed, "I'd—I'd—I'd—I'd—I'd ever you—well, by God, if you ever"—There was the substance of his lingual acrobatics, under the circumstances. But Claudine threw her arms around poor Joe's neck and kissed him.

Many people were waiting to shake hands with Joe and congratulate him. The trio, taking advantage of seats near the rail, had already done their (somewhat uproariously) before he had followed Happy, and so had Ariel and Ladew, who, however, waited politely. But in the corridors he found, when he came out of the anteroom, acquaintances, friends and friends of friends, new friends and friends he had never seen before—everybody beaming upon him and wringing his hand, as if they had been sure of it all along.

They gathered round him if he stopped for an instant and crowded after him admiringly when he went on again, making his progress slow. When he finally came out of the big doors into the sunshine, there were as many people in the yard as there had been when he stood in the same place and watched the mob making his client's guards. But today their temper was different, and as he paused a moment, looking down on the upturned, laughing faces, with a hundred jocular and congratulatory salutations shouted up at him, somebody started a cheer, and it was taken up with thunderous good will.

There followed the interrogation customary in such emergencies, and the anxious inquirer was informed by four or five hundred people simultaneously that Joe Louden was all right.

"Head him off!" bellowed Mike Sheehan, suddenly darting up the steps. The shout increased, and with good reason, for he stepped quickly back within the doors and, retreating through the building, made good his escape by a basement door.

He struck out into a long detour; but, though he managed to evade the crowd, he had to stop and shake hands with every third person he met. As he came out upon Main street again he encountered his father.

"Howdy do, Joe?" said this laconic person and offered his hand. They shook briefly. "Well!" he continued, rubbing his beard, "how are ye?"

"All right, father, I think."

"Satisfied with the verdict?"

"I'd be pretty hard to please if I weren't," Joe laughed.

Mr. Louden rubbed his beard again. "I was there," he said, without emotion.

"At the trial, you mean?"

"Yes." He offered his hand once more, and again they shook. "Well, come around and see us," he said.

"Thank you. I will."

"Well," said Mr. Louden, "good day, Joe."

"Good day, father."

The young man stood looking after his father with a curious smile. Then he gave a slight start. Far up the street he saw two figures—one a lady's in white with a wide white hat; the other a man's, wearing recognizably clerical black. They seemed to be walking very slowly.

It had been a day of triumph for Joe, but in all his life he never slept worse than he did that night.

CHAPTER XXVI.

HE woke to the chiming of bells, and as his eyes slowly opened the sorrowful people of a dream, who seemed to be bending over him, weeping, swam back into the darkness of the night whence they had come and returned to the imperceptible, leaving their shadows in his heart. Slowly he rose, stumbled into the outer room and released the flattering shade, but the sunshine, springing like a golden lover through the open window, only dazzled him and found no answering gladness to greet it or joy in the royal day it heralded.

It would be an hour at least before time to start to church, when Ariel expected him. He stared absently at the street, then down and, after that, began slowly to walk to the latter direction with no very active consciousness or care of where he went. He had fallen into a profound reverie, so deep that when he had crossed the bridge and turned into a dusty road which was along the river bank he stopped mechanically beside the trunk of a fallen sycamore and, lifting his head for the first time since he had set out, looked about him with a melancholy perplexity, a little surprised to find himself there.

For this was the spot where he had first seen the new girl, and so that fallen sycamore they had sat together. "Remember, across Main street bridge

CATARRH YIELDS.

TO HEALING AIR OF HYOMEI. SOLD UNDER GUARANTEE BY T. B. WALLACE.

Catarrh is the most prevalent disease known to humanity. Probably ninety per cent. of the people in this country suffer at one time or another with this common disease.

That is simply disease and cure can be cured only by some method that will reach and destroy the germs.

This is accomplished in Hyomei, which may be called the direct method of treating catarrh, as its medicated, balmy air with the air you breathe, goes directly to the seat of the evil in the nose, throat and lungs; kills all catarrhal germs; heals the irritated mucous membranes and vitalizes the tissues so as to render cure by other means impossible.

The unique way in which Hyomei is used should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties, for T. B. Wallace gives a positive guarantee to refund the price to any catarrh sufferer to whom Hyomei fails to benefit. You do not risk a cent in trying the healing pleasant. What other could be more fair to you than this, where a leading druggist takes all the risk of Hyomei giving satisfaction and leaves you to be the judge.

Bright, New Assortments of Spring Wash Fabrics

A Complete and Low Priced Display of White and Colored Wash Fabrics Awaits Your Choosing.

WE ADVISE EARLY CHOOSING. Assortments are now complete, embracing every weave and coloring that is worthy of your choice. Prices are as low as they can be—much below last Spring's scale of pricing.

We have arranged this early display that you might get your Spring and Summer wardrobes underway while you—or your dressmaker's time is not fully occupied.

We have purchased of Wash Fabrics widely, wisely and well. We invariably make our selections from the leading manufacturers—one of the reasons why ours is the leading Wash Goods Department—and we timed the placing of our orders so as to secure the lowest possible prices. The showing is worthy of your viewing in many respects. Some of these items will probably interest you.

Colors

Edinburgh Ginghams

In wee, medium and large checks. Colors, black and white, navy and white, green and white, pink and white, brown and white. The small checks are with and without little hair cord. Special, 12½c. yard.

Half-inch Check Block Ginghams

May be used for pillows, aprons and dresses. Pink, sky, navy, yellow, and black with white. Special 12½c. yard.

Anderson's Scotch Ginghams

Perfectly fast colors for tub or sun. Neat hair line checks, stripes and plaids. Sky, tan, green, pink. Price 20c., 22c. and 25c. yard.

40-inch Scotch Ginghams

Same cloth as last year. Guaranteed to keep color in boiling. Even checks, medium size. Navy, black, pink, sky with white. 20c. yard.

French Cambric

Cambries give splendid wear in shirts and children's dresses. Mostly white grounds with small neat stripe and figures. Perfectly fast color. 15c. and 20c. yard.

Scotch Drills

Our customers have had splendid success with this fabric. It is great for small boys' wear. For blouses, play dresses and such wash garments it will outwear about two prints. Colors remain fast, blues, reds and black grounds with white. 20c. yd.

Marlborough Sateen

A mercerized material that looks like silk. Nice for dresses and wrappers. 25c. yard.

Nurse Uniform Cloth

A fast color tub material, manufactured specially for nurses uniforms. Plains and hair lines. 20c. yard.

Colors

Plain Chambrays

In sky, pink, linen, blue grey and fawn. 12½c., 15c., 18c. and 20c. yd.

Just as Delaine

This is a soft finished printed material that looks and feels just like wool delaine. We had same last year, and turned out very satisfactory. The patterns are particularly good for children's wear. Special, 12½c. yard.

Prints

The same qualities at the same price that we gave you last year. Madrop prints, 5c. yd. Oak and Dark prints, 10c. yd. Scotch, Potter and Crums, 12½c. yd.

Dusks

The 27 inch standard Dusks that are sold most places at 15c. yd. are still 12½c. with us. Navy, red, black and white grounds.

Galateas

Plain navys and Russian blues, and narrow stripes. 15c., 20c., 25c. yd.

Printed Dimities

A Sweet Pea design in green, pink, cream. 15c. yard.

Check Batistes

A sheer fabric in hair line checks. Pink, sky, navy. 15c. yard.

Printed Muslins

Dainty, attractive designs. Blues, rose, greens. 15c. yard.

Real Irish Organdies

McBride's famous make, all neat, dainty patterns, buds, roses, sprigs, and such like, on white grounds. 25c. yard.

McBride's Irish Dimities

We have this make every year. The favorite patterns now are stripes in shades of navy, tan, brown, sky, pink. 25c. yard.

Colors

Jacquard Batistes

White Swiss grounds of embroidered spots, with all-over designs in many dainty color combinations. 37½c. and 40c. yard.

Mull Broche

This material shows up well in many color schemes. The material is just soft enough to drape nicely without being flimsy. 40c. yard.

Unshrinkable Crepe Voiles

This is a beautiful fabric that is crisp enough to drape well. The designs are lovely. Such exquisite printing we have seldom seen. Greys, cream, helio, blues, pink. 40c. yard

Messileen Dimity

Barred check design is formed with a woven cord. Plain colors, pink, sky, champagne, brown, tan. 25c. yd.

45-inch Plain Mull

A soft fabric that is very nice for evening wear. Colorings are equal to silks. Plain shades only, sky, pink, black. 45 inches wide. 25c. yard.

Swiss Filet Voile

The weave is a filet mesh with Swiss spots. Pink and blue. A very pretty novelty. 40c. yard.

Satin Stripe Mull

This novelty looks just like satin barb ribbon on a silk organdie. A very dressy material. Pink and blue. 75c. yard.

Black and Whites

Particular attention has been made in the selections of black or white materials. To be had in dimities, Swisses, mulls, batistes, etc.

Whites

Barred Mulls

Running through a lot of the fabrics this year is a dainty cord. The favorite design is to form a cross-barred effect, not unlike the cross bar muslin. These barred Mulls look well in white, 25c., 35c., 40c., 45c., yard.

Barred Swiss with Spot

Similar to Mull, with Swiss spots, 25c. to 40c. yard.

Vestings

Are selling better than ever. Small neat effects that are just the thing for serviceable Shirt Waists. 20c., 25c., 30c., 35c. yard.

Swiss Spots

The very small spots are selling better than the large ones. 25c., 35c., 40c., 50c. yard.

India Linen

Fine, smooth, even makes, very serviceable for all kinds of White Dresses. 10c., 12½c., 15c., 20c., 25c., 35c. yard.

Organdy

Sheer double fold, 15c., 20c., 25c., 35c., 50c. yard.

Batiste De Lisse

A new fabric much used for shadow embroidery. Very pretty when trimmed with fine Valenciennes laces 25c., 35c., 50c. yard.

Persian Lawns

Very fine soft mull finish the kind that stands the test. 20c., 25c., 35c., 37½c., 40c., 50c. yard.

White Linen

We are very strong on White Linen. The assortments of prices are good in sheer, medium and heavy weights. The stock includes such favorite brands as Gold Medal and Bleach, and Meadow Bleach.

Heavy White Materials

Are well represented in P. K.'s, Dusks, Galateas, Linens and Near Linens.

New Arrivals in Men's Shirts and Neckwear

Many Men of Many Minds, But They All Agree About Our Furnishings.

Something about our Men's Furnishings which appeals to good dressers. There is a reason for it, of course.

In the FIRST place, we know where to buy and when—in the SECOND place we buy with the same care as to patterns and styles as though we meant to wear the things ourselves — and we insist on right qualities and prices in EVERY PLACE.

Neckwear for instance—nothing harder to buy than really becoming Neckwear—well made of good silk that won't wear rough or fray. And we have lages satisfying assortments—all prices—all colors—many styles

Negligee Shirts—roomy, form-fitting, comfortable Shirts. Some men's Shirts fit like they were cut out with a hatchet. NOT OURS — we can always give you right sleeve length and natty draped front. The our patterns are exclusive—the kind that may be seen but not heard.

Hosiery, Underwear, Collars and Handkerchiefs—we can give your kind at your kind of prices.

50c Neckwear at 3 for $1.00—50 dozen

COMMENCING SATURDAY MORNING, FEB. 29th.

In order to draw special attention to this Department—and to give our Spring Neckwear business a great impetus, we will place on sale 50 dozen Men's 50c. Neckties at 35c. each, or 3 for $1.00.

These Ties include all the late shades and weaves—and will be sure to go quickly. Your best policy is to be on hand early and secure first choice. See them on display in our East window Friday afternoon.

(Mail orders carefully attended to. State the shade you wish.)

Men's Hosiery

We have searched the markets for the best obtainable in each line and price, and we leave you to judge how well we have succeeded. Cashmere in plain and ribbed at 25c., 39c., and 50c. Ribbed Wool at 3 for 50c., 25c., 39c., and 50c. Fancy Hose in Cotton, Lisle and Wool. Cotton Hose at 10c., 15c., and up to 50c.

Men's Shirts

The "FLAXMAN"—the most famous Shirt in the world for a man who likes a good large roomy Shirt. New colorings. It is a soft Negligee Shirt without a collar, reinforced front and back to the waist, and a quarter yard of the goods goes with each Shirt for mending, or new sleeves when old are worn out.

The "CRESCENT" Shirt—over forty different patterns to choose from, and every one specially chosen for our trade. At 50c we have 10 different patterns to choose from. Other lines range at 75c., $1.00, $1.25 $1.50, etc.

HOLD UP NEAR TAMWORTH.

According to the story told by a young lad named Storing, living about four miles east of Tamworth, he was held up on his way home by a man who stopped his horse. Storing thought it was some one who wanted a drive and told him to get into the cutter. The stranger accepted the invitation and upon getting into the sleigh told Storing to get out, as he wanted the horse and cutter. The man drew a revolver on the owner of the outfit, and threatened to shoot him if he did not get out. Young Storing seized the man's arm, and the gun went off, the bullet passing through Storing's coat. The two men scuffled in the sleigh for some minutes until the horse became frightened and started to run, when the unwelcome visitor made a jump and got away.

A Wall Paper STORY

Last week a gentleman, wanting something especially good in WALL PAPER, sent to Simpson-Toronto, for samples of paper to choose from. Before ordering he decided to look at my new paper, and after comparing DESIGNS, QUALITY and PRICES, he was satisfied to leave with me his entire order.

This is only another of many instances to prove our claim that we have

Alberta Wheat Land

$9.50 PER ACRE

Yesterday we pondered o'er the crops we use to grow and the labor involved.

To-day we are figuring on what we earn from the amount invested. Does it pay?

To-morrow we start West. Why? Because 30 to 60 bushels of hard wheat is being produced on land that only cost $9.50 per acre and 96% guaranteed arable land. Will you let me send you our illustrated booklet and crop report free?

BABY'S OWN TABLETS SAVE A LITTLE LIFE

Mrs. T. Osborn, Norton Mills, Vt., writes: "I do not think enough can be said in praise of Baby's Own Tablets. I am satisfied that our baby would not have been alive to-day if it had not been for the Tablets, as he was so weak and sick that he took no notice of anything. In this condition I gave him the Tablets and they have made him a bright-eyed, laughing baby, the pride of our home. He is one year old, has nine teeth, and is now as well as any baby can be. He sits and plays nearly all the time and lets me do my work without worry. I can't say too all mothers, who have sick babies give them Baby's Own Tablets as I did mine and you will have healthy, happy babies." The Tablets will cure all the minor ailments of little ones and are absolutely safe. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

THE ORIGIN OF SOME OF OUR LOCAL NAMES.

The following interesting paper, by Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., was read at the regular January meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, Friday evening, 31st January :—

It is not the purpose of this paper to furnish in any systematic order the history of any part of our country, but simply at random, to treat of the origin of some of the geographical names with which we are familiar, and in so doing, to refer only to such portions of history as may be necessary for that purpose.

While I may deviate from the beaten path in going to one of the incidents related, what to me may appear a progressive setting, yet I hope to do no violence to history in such references as I may make in pleading my case.

We daily refer to this City, Township, River or Lake without even a passing thought to the origin of the names which are with such freedom. We will find the names of some of the most noted characters in Canadian history preserved in our local nomenclature. The task of tracing the origin of these names is both pleasing and instructive. I have chances among and instructive. I have chances among and instructive. I have without any reference to chronological or geographical sequence to jot down them out at random in a manner which will perhaps commend itself to my hearers, but it has suited my convenience to do so, and if I escape with no other adverse criticism than in respect to the order of presentation, I shall consider myself very fortunate.

About 1678, Rene Robert Cavalier de La Salle, now known to history as La Salle, led the life of a buccaneer in order to familiarize himself with the language and ways of the Indians. He was one of those adventurous and sometimes unfortunate spirits, born of noble parentage, and bred in luxury, who gave up the gaiety of the Court for the silence of the forest. He explored the great Lakes and adjacent Rivers and felt confident that, following up the Mississippi River he would eventually reach the Pacific ocean and thereby discover the long sought route to China. He was most persistent in his efforts to solve this problem, but most unfortunate in the means adopted to carry his plans into execution, in many instances he was put on ground at his expense. It was quite common for his contemporaries to decisively ask him when returning from his journeys and sometimes almost futile expeditions "Avez vous de la Chine?" On one occasion, when he had reached the basin of La Chine, by which name the rapids in the St. Lawrence are known to this day.

While we are treating of La Salle, it might be interesting to note that he was the first white person in Upper Canada to whom the title to real property was conveyed by the Crown and this is particularly interesting to us when we consider that a portion of his estate is now comprised within the limits of this City. He was granted an estate four leagues in length along the shores of this river and bay, including the islands in front of it. The site of Fort Cataraqui was upon this estate and the present site of Midhurst must have been near La Salle's home for Amherst Island was a portion of the grant. This Amherst Island is the island which Lord Dufferin, the devastation of which I have already explained. How this name came down the river and remained at the Rapids, I cannot say. It is probably due to the carelessness of some early pilot who knew that it was near the head of the St. Lawrence and mistook it for the name of the local lord. Other instances of the shifting of names in a similar manner will presently appear.

The Governor did not despise this pioneer adventurer because he failed to establish his theory as to the terminus of the Mississippi. On the contrary, he entrusted him with the task of superintending the pioneer work along the great Lakes. He successively took over the command of fort Katarakoui when situated at the mouth of the Katarakoui (now River, near the site of the bridge leading to the Military College at Kingston). All that remains of this primitive fortification to-day is the mound which is still preserved in the suburb of Kingston and identified by us all as Cataraqui. La Salle demolished this old Fort and afterwards himself of the excellent quality of the limestone in the vicinity, he constructed a much more substantial one and named it after his old friend and patron the then Governor of Canada, Count Frontenac. This name has since been adopted by the County which after years was formed about this nucleus. Remnants of the walls of the surrounding this Fort may still be seen.

This is the name of the adjoining County, we constantly have before us to remind us of the grandest characters in Canadian history, La Salle with his resources, brave and self-sacrificing.

Perhaps the most dramatic incident recorded in Canadian history, was that of the capture of Fort Cataraqui, which is situated at the mouth of the Katarakoui (now River, near the site of the bridge leading to the Military College at Kingston). All that remains of this primitive fortification to-day is the mound which is still preserved in the suburb of Kingston and identified by us all as Cataraqui. This is the name of the adjoining County, we constantly have before us to remind us of the grandest characters in Canadian history, La Salle with his resources, brave and self-sacrificing.

Perhaps the most dramatic incident recorded in Canadian history, was that of the capture of Fort Cataraqui, which incident so far reaching in its effects that it called for all time the supremacy of the Anglo-Saxon race on the American continent.

Frontenac had left Montreal and came down their lives for their respective countries and succeeding generations, with that calm and unbiassed judgment which almost invariably follows after the lapse of years have made no distinction as doing honor to their memory, for one single shaft tells the tale. On one side is carved the illustrious name "Wolfe", and just as prominently on the other we find the name "Montcalm." It was due to the strategy and bravery of Wolfe that a permanent haven was provided in Canada for our ultra British forefathers who refused to join their rebellious neighbours at the time of the American Revolution, and who branded as traitors on one side of the border and bestowed as loyalists, on the other, they found themselves in comfortable surroundings and enduring all manner of hardships and hardships, in the land which steadfastly remained loyal to the British flag. Reaching the Bay of Quinte, they followed it up until the source of Lake Ontario seemed a welcome barrier against the persecutions which threatened them from the South. No doubt they had frequently discussed the advantages as regards the future settlements of Wolfe. As they approached the head waters of Lake they directed their course to the Northern shore that can picture to ourselves with what a sigh of relief the weary travellers must leaped from their boats and bestowed their blessings on the land which afforded them such a welcome shelter the name of their leader. Such we may consider was the joyful christening ceremony of Wolfe Island.

They passed over to the mainland and came as a view of a straggling and, almost deserted village, which had succeeded of the Fort La Salle had built over a century before. Their frail cradle were tossed about upon the troubled waters, and with their eyes to decipher the runes of the dilapidated fortifications. Many of them, tired and worn out with the labours, vigils and trials of their long journey made this their permanent home and in grateful recognition on the prudence of their leader by the flag of their Sovereign for whom they had suffered so much, they afterwards gave to the settlement this formerly the name of Kingstown. Others, whose thoughts in the veins of wood or were re-taught, followed up the shores of the River, and found the lands lying to the west, of which no doubt their leaders had told them many thrilling accounts. Soon they sighted another island, and following their usual custom of original parts, they evidently considered that no new name could be so befitting as that of the nominal head of the forces that General Wolfe had led to victory, so this island they bestowed the name of General Amherst. Many of them, tired and worn out,

REMOVE THE CAUSE.

HOW TO REMEDY MUCH OF THE SUFFERING IN NAPANEE

There is hardly a family in Napanee where there are not one or more members who suffer at times from the effects of a weak stomach.

The fact that this occurs calls after eating some food that does not agree, or because of a supper late at night, or it may be that the stomach is so weak that it cannot digest any food can be eaten without pain and distress.

The only way to treat a condition of this kind successfully is with Mi-o-na. It removes the cause of indigestion, strengthens and tones the stomach, purifies and bowels, and restores the whole digestive system to a healthy condition so that it takes care of all the food that is eaten.

Get well and stay well by using Mi-o-na tablets. Take the remedy at the first symptom of disturbance, when you can be cured easily with a few doses. However, we have that the stomach is so weak that a course of chronic for Mi-o-na to overcome.

T. B. Wallace sells it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money unless it cures. A 50-cent box will last a couple of weeks, and will do more real good than a dozen boxes of the ordinary digestive tablets.

ULCERATED LEG AND ANKLE

HEALED BY ZAM-BUK.

A common result of an injury sometimes of even a tiny scratch is chronic ulceration. The skin disease that results is deeper into the tissue and is most painful, wearying and obstinate. Poor circulation are brought on often especially in the case of women, by excessive standing or kneeling. Mrs. J. E. Berryman of Catharine St. N., Hamilton, Ont., says: "I was suffering for a number of weeks with a badly inflamed and ulcerated leg and ankle. I had used one remedy after another with no material benefit. My leg was swollen in some places to nearly twice its size, and I suffered severe pains. At this time my husband prevailed upon me to leave off all other applications and use Zam-Buk. This I did and was agreeably surprised to find after a few applications the swelling in the leg was greatly reduced and the pain relieved thereby. I persevered with Zam-Buk until the swelling was banished and the pain and inflammation entirely removed. Zam-Buk has effected a cure where other remedies failed."

Zam-Buk also heals cuts, bruises, burns, running sores, eczema, boils, eruptions, scalp sores, itch, piles, chapped hands and all diseases of the skin. 50c all druggists and stores, 50c. box or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, postpaid, on receipt of price. 3 boxes $1.25.

ST. OLA.

The last meeting under the literary department of our roads, organized Epworth League will be held on Friday evening of this week. A debate is announced that city life has greater advantages than country life. It will be the first debate given on the programme. The affirmative will be led by Miss Mabel Carter, Potter Harbor; Vera Ross will lead the negative by Herman Baragar, Pleasant Valley. Will be pleased to welcome all to our others. The audience appointed are J. K. Morton and W. H. Grier. The pastor will preside. A debate of this kind should create great interest especially among the young people of the place. A number of visitors are expected from Cashel and Gilmour.—Hereinbefore the fourth Sunday of each month St. Ola has been without a pastor, regular preaching service, but not being able to be present. The Epworth League has decided to use the evening, and next Sunday evening the Missionary Department of the league will have charge of the service. A short address will be given by Miss Elda Hamilton. Missionary Box Presentation will be made by Miss Elda Hamilton. Missionary Box Presentation will be made by Miss Elda Hamilton. Missionary Box Presentation will be made

MRS. JAMES McCULLOUGH.

A former resident of Napanee, died on Monday last, 24th inst., at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. J. H. McKinnon Toronto. The remains were brought down on Wednesday, and placed in the vault of the Napanee cemetery. The following relatives accompanied the remains, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKinnon, Mrs. Kelley, a daughter of Rochester, N.Y., Mr. Wm. Hough, of St. Catharines, (Mrs. Hough, being ill, could not come), and Mrs. Samuel McCullough and daughter, of Trenton. Mrs. McCullough was an old resident of Napanee, and lived in the brick house just west of Trinity church parsonage. She will be remembered by many of the older residents of the town.

WILL RUN REINDEER.

Capt. Collier will not put a new steamer on the Bay of Quinte this summer season as was contemplated last fall. The veteran mariner has about completed arrangements for a steamer to be built in Kingston, modelled somewhat after the Str. Aletha, only wider and of more beam but his plans were changed. He is having the Str. Reindeer thoroughly overhauled at Deseronto. Her hull is being well looked after and her engines renewed; so that she will be in stout shape for the opening of navigation. Capt. Collier's many friends are glad to see him around again after an illness that set in last fall, continuing the greater part of the last three months.—Picton Gazette.

DESTROYED BY FIRE.

Yesterday morning, about 9 o'clock fire was discovered in the white frame building on the south side of Dundas street east, owned by Mr. Cartwright, and occupied by Messrs. Vanluven & Hambly, as a storeroom. The firemen responded promptly and the fire was soon under control. The building was badly gutted and contents, consisting of straw, were a total loss. Albert Brown, a peg leg tramp, who was arrested on Tuesday night by Chief Graham was brought before Police Magistrate Rankin, on Wednesday morning and fined $1.00 and costs, which he paid. Tracks leading into the building led Chief Graham to suspect Brown of having something to do with the fire. Trace was got of him on the Palace Road, and he was arrested about three miles from town and placed in the lock-up here, to appear before the magistrate this morning. Brown admits having been in the building.

$100.00 For Poor Children.

The above is the nice little sum of money that was realized at the Brisco Opera House on Wednesday evening for the benefit of the Children's Aid Society, and as the prices were quite low, 15c., 25c. and 35c., it represented a full house, and the ticketholders were all there.

The idea of putting on a concert originated with Chief-of-Police Graham, as he comes in contact with the needy poor and knew how badly some of them needed shoes, clothing, etc., and he wishes to thank each and every one who assisted in the concert for their kindness in devoting so much time to rehearsals, and for the able manner in which the programme was carried out. Also, Mr. Brisco, who placed the opera house at his disposal.

The first part of the entertainment was given to minstrelsy, for which a special scene was painted by Mr. McKenzie. The opening, entitled "The Tramps' Convention," was introduced by the arrival of several "hobos" who decide to while away an hour with jokes and music. The difficulty lies in not having a chairman, but that is overcome by the arrival on the scene of a conductor of a freight train stalled in a snow bank, who kindly fills that position. When about ready to commence, the boys discover they have no music, and the appearance of "Weary Willie" with his "music case" is hailed with delight and the convention is opened. The first number was a song, "School Days," by Master Roland Graham, which was ably rendered.

A goodly supply of jokes and stories were indulged in, interspersed with the following musical programme:

"Old Folks at Home," Mr. Fred Blair.

"Dark Man Coming with a Bundle," Mr. Jack Gordanier.

"Over the Sea," Mr. Chas. Fisher.

"I'm Wearing My Heart Away for You," Mr. J. N. Osborne.

"The Skipper," Mr. Edw. Graham.

Each number was received with applause, and an encore was promptly responded to. A very pleasing feature of the entertainment was the presentation to Mr. Edw. Graham of a bouquet of flowers while singing his bass solo.

The circle consisted of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. James Ferguson, Harry Rooney, Chas. Fisher, J. N. Osborne, Benj. Laffman, Wm. Sheppard, F. H. Stevens, Roland Graham, Edw. Graham, David Richardson, Fred Blair and Jack Gordanier.

Every one acquitted themselves admirably, but special mention is due Mr. Stevens for the able manner in which he filled his difficult role, also the original local hits made by Messrs. Gordanier, Rooney, Ferguson and Richardson.

The second part was opened by Mr. Gordanier in monologue. His make up was good and the opinion was expressed on every hand that he is one of the best monologue artists that have appeared on a local stage in some time.

Mr. Fred Blair sang "Since Arawana Married Barney Carney," followed by moving pictures of a high class kindly furnished by Mr. Foster, of "Wonderland."

Mr. Fred. Sheppard gave a splendid recitation, "A Clear Call," which was heartily applauded.

Mr. Ferguson, who is well known to Napanee audiences, gave an exhibition of baton swinging and the toy whirl, after which the programme closed with a farce entitled "A Troublesome Servant" by Messrs. Rooney and Gordanier, which pleased the audience.

Music was furnished by the Citizens' Band, and Miss Neta Smith ably filled the difficult role of pianiste.

SUDDEN DEATH.

On Saturday morning Mrs. W. J. Russell, Deseronto, received a telegram from Watertown, N.Y., stating that her sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Duffield, had dropped dead from heart disease. It appears that Mrs. Duffield and two lady companions were walking along the street to attend a concert when Mrs. Duffield exclaimed "Oh, my, your are walking too fast for me." Her companions moderated their pace and in a few minutes later Mrs. Duffield dropped to the pavement, and twenty minutes later expired in the store to which she had been conveyed. Medical attendance was summoned, but it was of no avail. Mrs. Duffield was born in Napanee, being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCaw. Her surviving relatives are two sisters, Mrs. W. J. Russell, Deseronto, and Mrs. Catchpole, Hamilton, and three brothers, James McCaw, of Petrboro', Albert H. and Alfred Loucks, of Watertown, and her mother, Mrs. Reuben Loucks, who lives with Mrs. Russell. Mrs. Duffield leaves behind her one daughter, Miss Annie Duffield, and one son, Harry Duffield both of whom reside in Watertown.

WILTON.

A large surprise party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Miller, on Tuesday evening last. About fifty of their friends were present. Refreshments, consisting of sandwiches, cake, tea and coffee were served, after which the guests were entertained by games and music, both vocal and instrumental. Miss Miller is a member of the Wilton Male Quartette, where his loss will be keenly felt. During the evening an address, expressing the deep regret of the Wilton people in losing Mr. and Mrs. Miller from our midst, was read by Mr. C. Sherrar, who is also a member of the Quartette, after which a handsome oak clock was presented to the host and hostess, by Mr. Robert Ashelie, another member of the Quartette, on behalf of the Wilton friends. After the presentation a baptism took place, when Rev. T. R. Williams christened Miss Ruth Louise Miller, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, who expect to be in their new home at Sandhurst in a couple of weeks. L. L. Gallagher and Rev. D. Williams are spending a few days in Toronto attending the annual meeting of the Temperance Alliance, on Monday, March 8th, the annual Missionary meeting will be held in the Methodist church here by Rev. Elson Farnsworth, of Yarker.—Mrs. Thomas Miller is slowly improving.—The ice is being packed in the ice house at Fleeton's cheese factory this week. The ice is of excellent quality, being from 18 to 20 inches thick.—Mr. Fleeton informs us that even then is reported to be of inferior quality.

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME.

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Mandarin's Fan," etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

Fergus Hume, author of the celebrated novel "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab" and other tales of mystery, has written no more absorbing story than the one that follows. Mr. Hume has the ability to make his characters as well as his incidents interesting. There are characters in this story, which the reader will be unable to forget—the two Beerots, sweet Sylvia Norman, old Norman, Pash, Hurd, Miss Qian, Mrs. Krill and her stately daughter, and last, but not least, Debbie Junk, whose name, if she had appeared in one of Dickens' novels, would have been familiar to all Christendom. With beauty and grace Debbie is not endowed, and her grammar is defective, but she has a gift of speech that an orator might envy. She is a tyrant, it must be admitted, but her heart is of gold, and she has courage and devotion which would add luster to any hero or heroine in fiction or in real life. And now this trumpeter will stand aside, welcoming you, ladies and gentlemen, to the feast of comedy, mystery and tragedy which lies before you.

CHAPTER I.

Simon Beerot was a country gentleman with a small income, a small estate and a mind considerably small er than either. He dwelt at Wrygrove, in Essex, and spent his idle hours, of which he possessed a daily and nightly twenty-four, in snarling at his faded wife and in snapping between whiles at his son Mrs. Beerot, having been bullied into old age long before her time, accepted sour looks and hard words as necessary to God's providence, but Paul, a youth, resented useless nagging. He owned more brain power than his progenitor, and to this favoring of paternal families naturally objected. Paul also desired fame, which was likewise a crime in the fireside tyrant's eyes.

As there were no other children Paul was heir to the Beerot acres; therefore their present proprietor suggested that his son should wait with idle hands for the falling in of the heritage. In plain words, Mr. Beerot, scorning of a long life of middle class loafers, wished his son to be a loafer also. Again, when Mrs. Beerot retired to a teacher's desk her bully found Paul a useful person on whom to expend his spleen. Would this whipping boy leave Mr. Beerot would have to forego this enjoyment as servants object to being sworn at without cause. For years Mr. Beerot indulged in bouts of bad temper till Paul, finding twenty-five too dignified an age to tolerate abuse, announced his intention of storming London as a scribbler.

The parents objected in detail. Mrs. Beerot, after her kind, dissolved in tears and made reference to young birds having the nest while her husband, puffed out like a frog and redder than the wattles of a turkeycock exhausted himself in well chosen expressions. Paul increased the use of these by fixing a day for his departure. The female Beerot retired to bed with the assistance of a" maid, her feathers and sal volatile and the male as a last and clinching argument figuratively buttoned up his pockets.

Not one shilling will you get from me," said Beerot senior, with the graceful addition of vigorous adjectives.

"I don't ask for money," said Paul, keeping his temper, for, after all, the turkeycock was his father "I have saved £50. Not out of my pocket money," he added hastily, seeing further objections in the way "I earned it by writing short stories."

"The confounded mercantile instinct! snorted paterfamilias, only he used stronger words. "Your mother's uncle was in trade. Thank heaven, none of my people ever soiled hands or brains! The Beecots lived like gentlemen."

"I never say like cabbages from your description, father."

"No insolence, sir. How dare you disgrace your family? Writing tales indeed! Rubbish I expect! these several adjectives." And you took money. I'll be bound, eh, eh!"

"I have just informed you that I took all I could get," said Beerot quietly. "I'll live in town on my own When I make a name and a fortune I'll return.

"Never, never!" gobbled the turkey-cock. "If you deserted to the gutter you can wallow there. I'll cut you out of my will."

"Very good, sir; that's settled. I'll change the subject."

But the old gentleman was too high spirited to leave well alone. He demanded to know if Paul knew to whom he was talking, inquired if he had read the Bible touching the duties of children to their parents, instanced the fact that Paul's dear mother would probably grieve for him and die and ended with a pathetic reference to losing the prop of his old age. Paul listened respectfully and held to his own opinion. In defense of the same he replied in detail:

"I am aware that I talk to my father, sir," said he, with spirit. "You never allow me to forget that fact. If another man spoke to me as you do I should probably break his head. I have read the Bible and find therein that parents owe a duty to their children which certainly does not include

WILLIAM TEMPLETON.

It is with feelings of regret and a deep sense of loss that we are called upon to chronicle the death of Mr. Wm. Templeton, late editor and proprietor of this paper, which occurred on Tuesday morning, 3d March, after a brief illness. Three weeks ago to-day deceased, who was not feeling as well as usual, left the office and went home. The first week of his illness he seemed to improve at times and no alarming symptoms developed until the following week, when he sank rapidly and passed peacefully away to his reward, after having spent a very successful and useful life. The best of medical skill was obtained, doctors from Montreal and Kingston being in attendance with the local profession, and all that loving hands and hearts could do was of no avail.

Mr. Templeton was born in Napanee on the 27th November, 1848, and ...th the exception of a few years, has spent his ...ode life in our midst. When about seventeen years of age he became an apprentice to the printing art, shortly after entering The Napanee Express as journeyman. Afterwards he spent a term in offices in Montreal, Toronto and New York, where he completed his course at the business and was satisfied to return to his boyhood home.

In partnership with Mr. Edw. Stevenson, he purchased The Beaver. At a later date Mr. Geo. M. Beeman and Mr. W. C. Scott were associated with him in the office. In 1902 Mr. Templeton purchased the plant and has conducted it ever since. So successful has his business career been that The Beaver is a welcome weekly visitor into almost every home in the town and county, and is considered as one of the foremost journals of its class, all due to his progressive spirit and business ability.

Deceased was closely identified with the general social interests of the community. He was a member of the Royal Arch Masons, A.F. & A.M., as well as Chief of the Sons of Scotland, and for about twenty years has been United States Consul at Napanee. For a number of years he was also a valued member of the Board of Education. His death specially deprives the town of a citizen, who, especially for the Presbyterian church, of which he had long been a devoted member. He was an Elder of the church, and Clerk of the Session.

Twenty-nine years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Addie Perry, who, together with five children are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving husband and father. The children are Wm. A. and Janet at home; Mrs. J. F. VanKevry, Owen Sound; Dr. Chas. P. Templeton, Brandon, Man.; and Mr. McIntosh, Brandon, Man., who were all with him at the last. Mrs. D. H. Preston, a sister, also survives him.

A shadow of gloom was cast over the whole town by the sudden death of their well known and ... Thursday afternoon the schools were all closed. ... Floral wreaths, bouquets and flowers in profusion covered the casket and room.

The funeral at the home on Thursday afternoon was attended by a large concourse of friends and acquaintances from near and far, showing the respect and esteem in which he was held by all. The service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. H. Cone, assisted by Rev. W. H. Emsley, after which the beautiful burial service of the Masons, who had charge of the funeral, was read at the vault.

His smiling greeting will be greatly missed, not only in the home, but at the office and on the street. His friends were legion, and expressions of sorrow and regret are heard on every hand.

The pallbearers were: J. Boyes, W. H. Boyle, J. W. Robinson, U. J. Flach, F. F. Mills, and W. T. Gibbard.

ENTERPRISE.

Mr. Wm. Jackson has bought the blacksmith shop, which has been occupied by Ed Lobb, for the past year. Mr. Jackson will occupy the shop in the spring.—Mr. James Milligan and T. Kerby are harvesting their ice this week.—Mrs. Albert McDonald is in Toronto this week, attending the wholesale millinery openings.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Smith spent Wednesday at Mr. Geo. Gay's.—Mr. Jackson Lockwood spent Saturday in Napanee.—Mr. Ed. Lobb spent Sunday in Napanee.—Mrs. E. Lockwood was the guest of Mrs. Wm. Vanest, on Friday.—Miss Gertie Lockwood is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Clancy, on Sunday.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell, of Napanee, were guests of their son, Mr. John Bell, on Sunday.—Mr. Sidney Switzer, and family and three children, are the guests of his father, Mr. O. C. Jackson, this week.—Mr. H. A. May, our genial photographer, had the misfortune to lose one of his horses on Sunday night.—The severe storm on Sunday made the road from here in a terrible shape.—Clayton Brown and family moved to Verona on Tuesday, where he is starting a hardware business.

CENTREVILLE.

Some of our correspondents were mistaken concerning the date of the concert to be held here. March 13th is the date set for the event. This will surely be the treat of the season. The committee have been very painstaking, and the result will surely be all that can be desired. A programme, consisting of choruses, quartettes, duets, solos, recitations, three splendid dialogues, including "Uncle Versa," a comedy in three acts, will be rendered. An orchestra will also take part in the program. Local and foreign talent. Ticket, 25 cents. Doors open at 7 The programme will begin at 8 p.m. Come and bring your friends with you to the Town Hall, Friday, March 13th.—Mr. Jas. Lochhead is steadily improving.—Some of our young people were much disappointed as the ball could not take place on Thursday evening, on account of the roads.—Mrs. John Cassidy is ill with la grippe.—Miss Husband spent the week-end with the parental roof, at Newburgh.—Mr. Wm. Fleming is home for a time, after a three months' course in Kingston Business College.—Mr. Roy Milligan is visiting friends during the week at home.—On account of the storm service was not held in the Methodist church on Sunday evening.—Little Marion McGill is on the sick list.

—Messrs. D. and J. Griffith and sister, Mrs. E. H. Dunbar, wish to thank their neighbors and friends for their kindness during the illness and death of their sister.

NEWBURGH.

The news of the death of Mr. Templeton was received in the village with deep sorrow. He was well known here, as he was throughout the country, and to very many his untimely decease is felt as a personal loss. His was a kindly and genial soul and his friendship was highly valued by all who enjoyed his acquaintance. This community adds its sympathy with Mr. Templeton's family to that of all the other districts of the country.

More than the usual number of visitors attended the meeting of the High School Literary Society on Friday afternoon last. The programme was largely of a literary character and was good throughout. There were essays by Miss Ruth Patterson on "Success in Life" and by Miss Olive Galbraith on "Browning." Mr. Geo. Paul made an address on the Public Library System of the Province, quoting many facts and figures of interest. Miss Sadie Kennedy read a sketch of the life of Miss Florence Nightingale, recently decorated with the Order of merit. Miss Florence Wagar recited in fine style. Misses Louise Beeman and Hope Aylesworth contributed a piano duett and the Glee Club two choruses to the musical part of the programme. Miss Edna Amey filled the role of critic very satisfactorily. An item of business preceding the programme was the voting of the sum of $5.00 by the Society to the Public Library of the village in appreciation of the free use of their reading room, and of the generous loan of books to the school. The next meeting of the Society will be held on the afternoon of Friday, March 13th.

The Roads and Bridges Committee of the County Council met here on Saturday last, under the chairmanship of Mr. H. G. Hamm, Reeve of Ernestown, to receive tenders for the proposed bridge over the creek here. A number of contractors were present, to discuss their tenders on the basis of whatever specifications were decided upon, and a full discussion was held. Tenders ranged from two to five thousand dollars according to the character of the structure, and the County Council will decide that question at their next session.

At the meeting of the Village Council, Tuesday night the monthly item of business of general interest was the passing of a resolution asking the County Council to proceed with the erection of a County House of Refuge.

Miss Frank McKim visited the Epworth League at Selby on Friday night of last week and presented to them her report of the recent Conference Convention at Lindsay.

The Mission Band of the Methodist church began the return trip of their tour around the world on Monday afternoon last, proceeding from Shanghai to India, and visiting a number of very interesting mission stations on that land.

On Saturday afternoon the return game of hockey between Yarker and Newburgh was played here, and resulted in a victory for the home team. The game was fast and exciting, the final score being 11 to 7.

Word was received on Tuesday night of the death of Miss Luella Fry, in a hospital in New York, where she had undergone an operation. Her mother had left for New York that morning on the receipt of an earlier telegram as to her daughter's serious condition.

Mrs. Lottie Fox is in the hospital in Kingston, where she underwent an operation for cancer last week.

Among the new books received at the Public Library and referred to last week are the following: The Weavers, by Gilbert Parker; The Shulamite, by Askew; The Tramp of Cross, by Hocking; The Night Riders, by Gallup; The Cruise of the Shining Light, by Duncan; The Mill on the Floss, by George Eliot; Girl Comrades, by Peddie; A Prophet in Babylon, by Dawson; Sixty Years in Canada, by A. H. Clarke; Quicksands, by Stewart; King of the Air by Strang; The Filigree Ball, by Grey; With the Dykes of Borneo, by Brereton; Remains of Modern Photography, by Gibson; Adventures in the Great Forest, by Hurst; Days Off, by Vandyke; In the Nursery Houses, by Dorr; Four Afloat, by Barbour; The Red Year, by Tracy; Kate Meredith, by Hyne; Daughter of Anderson Crow, by McCutcheon, and Daughter of the Snows, by Jack London.

A number from here attended the carnival held in Napanee on Tuesday night, and were delighted with the musical treat.

Miss Mattie Welbanks, at present teaching school at Overton, spent Saturday and Sunday at her home here.

Newburgh's old residents were very sorry to learn of the death of Mr. Allan M. Caton. Mr. and Mrs. Caton were for many years among the most prominent citizens of the village. After the big fire 20 years ago Mr. Caton left Newburgh for Detroit to reside with her son-in-law, Mr. Arthur Sweeting. Mr. Caton had died here two years before. From Detroit Mrs. Caton went to live with her daughter at Brockville, where she passed away this week.

The marriage of Mr. Patrick Finn and Miss L. Gehan was celebrated on Shrove Tuesday at Centreville.

—The Committee on Roads and Bridges, Lennox and Addington met at Finkle's Hall, Newburgh, on Feby. 29th, at 11 a.m. Members present were Messrs. Hamm, Allison, Creighton, McGill, Gilmour, and also Warden Hambly. H. G. Hamm, Chairman of Committee, occupied the chair. Plans and tenders were received from eight different contractors for the erection of Newburgh bridge. Five tenders were for a reinforced concrete arch bridge, one for a stone arch and two for a steel bridge. Mr. Hamm was appointed to engage an engineer to examine these plans and tenders, also the bridge in question, and report at the next session of County Council.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

There is so much rheumatism here in our neighborhood now that the following advice by an eminent authority, who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces of Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime; also drink plenty of water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this most disastrous disease who will fail to find ready relief in this simple home-made mixture, and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple recipe is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the Kidneys so that they can filter and strain from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter, which cause not only Rheumatism, but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active, or who suffers from any urinary trouble whatever, should not hesitate to make up this mixture, as it is certain to do much good, and may save you from much misery and suffering after a while.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

DAVIDSON HEIRS WANTED.

We are informed by C. White Mortimer, of Los Angeles, California, that Minnie B. Davidson died recently in that district, leaving considerable sum of money in the bank and no known heirs. It is known that her father, John David-son, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, married her mother, Sophia J. Armitage, a native of Ireland, at Kingston, Ontario, about 1856, and that deceased had some cousins at Kingston, Berlin, Stratford or Guelph. Persons knowing anything of these cousins are invited to correspond with Mr. Mortimer, who represents the absent heirs.

A QUIET WEDDING.

A quiet wedding was celebrated last Tuesday evening at the parsonage of the First Methodist church when the Rev. V. H. Emory tied the knot that united Miss Elda May Monck, daughter of Mrs. George Clapp, Owen street, to Mr. Oliver Thurston, formerly of Bath. The young couple were unattended. The bride is well and favorably known by a wide circle of town friends. The groom was for several seasons on the steamer Alexandria, and last year the engineer on the steamer Kingston of the R. & O. fleet. Mr. and Mrs. Thurston will make their home in town, shortly removing to their recently purchased house on Maitland st.—Picton Gazette.

AN ODESSA BOY'S SUCCESS.

Mr. Philip Oswald, of Odessa, has been appointed Chief Steward of the big R. and O. palace steamer "Rapids King" on the Toronto-Montreal line. This steamer is the finest in their service, being built last summer by the Canadian Ship-building Co., of Toronto, and has a capacity for over a thousand passengers. Mr. Oswald is one of the best known caterers on the lakes, and is very popular with the steamer Kingston of the R. & O. fleet. Mr. and Mrs. Oswald will make their home in town, shortly removing to their recently purchased house on Maitland st.—Picton Gazette.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

February Meeting.

The regular meeting of the Society was held on Friday evening, February 28th, the President in the chair.

The Rev. Canon Jarvis was introduced and read an exceedingly interesting and instructive paper, taking as a subject "Some notes of early Ecclesiastical History. — Bay of Quinte District." Canon Jarvis dealt with his subject in a very able manner and impressed his hearers with the idea that Ecclesiastical History can be made most interesting. His second paper will be awaited with interest.

Mrs. J. Conger Allen had prepared a paper in which she described some of her "Memories of Spain." Mrs. Allen introduced the subject by telling of the arrival of the party at the City of Burgos, on Nov. 3d, 1882. The description of the cities which were visited and of the experiences which the party had, was certainly well made. Mrs. Allen has the art of making her trips most pleasant memories and every one present enjoyed hearing of them. As Mrs. Allen is visiting in New York, Mrs. John Gibson kindly read the paper for her, and it was delivered in her usual excellent manner.

The last number on the programme was a paper written and read by Miss Crysler, her subject being the old "Crysler's Farm." Many in few have had the pleasure of knowing of the good work making battle was Miss Cryaler does. It took place on her grandfather's farm, and she tells in a vivid manner of all the conversations with her grandfather on the subject. Miss Crysler described the approach to the battle field by both armies, and the geographical position of the farm. The people of Napanee should be proud of the fact that the Historical Society was able to secure this paper, and are indebted to Miss Crysler for the exceedingly clear description of what she gave of the battle.

During the meeting the President thanked those who had done so much to make the evening a success. He also announced that Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, of Toronto, would give an address at the next meeting, March 20th.

At 10 p.m., the meeting was adjourned.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

The Sunday School of St. Mary Magdalene church said good bye on Sunday to their Secretary and one of their teachers, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Haycock. The following address was read by the Rector:

Mr. A. B. Haycock Esq.,

Dear Sir.—We, the Rector, Superintendent, teachers and scholars of the Sunday School of St. Mary Magdalene, Napanee, having heard with regret that you are about to remove from this parish, desire to express our appreciation of your services as Lay Reader and chorister and more particularly as an officer of the Sunday School, and for the last three months acting Superintendent.

We know that yours is a busy life and that Sunday is generally your only day at home; yet you give up the whole day to the service of Christ and His Church. The example you have set us in this respect and in others has been an inspiration to all in the community.

Mrs. Haycock and Mrs. Haycock in this expression of esteem and good-will. In every branch of Church work she has done her part, and to share and her devotion to the Sunday School has been a great encouragement to us all.

We trust that you will accept the accompanying books as a token of our affection and as a memento of your services amongst us.

We wish you God-speed in your future career. Though we are losing your help and influence, we and others will be the gainers thereby.

Trusting that we shall see you sometimes as the years pass by, we are

Yours very truly,

Signed on behalf of the Sunday School,

ARTHUR JARVIS,
Rector.

DUDLEY L. HILL,
Superintendent.

Mr. Haycock made a suitable reply expressing the pleasure it had given him to be enabled to work for the Master, and to be of some use in the church. He referred to his stay in Napanee, and the many kindnesses he and his family had received and regretted the necessity of severing his connection with the congregation.

Mrs. and Mrs. Haycock have both been indefatigable workers in the Church during the past couple of years and their places will be hard to fill. Such work as they have done is valuable as an inspiration to others that we are placed in this world for a purpose and that we must "do our duty in that state of life in which it has pleased God to call us."

RHEUMATISM IN THE BLOOD

Cure It by Enriching the Blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There is only one way by which rheumatism can be cured. It must be treated through the blood. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but they can't drive out the trouble. And while you are experimenting with liniments the trouble is every day becoming more firmly rooted in the system, and more difficult to cure. The poisonous acid that causes rheumatism must be driven out of the blood, and you can only do this by making new, rich, red blood through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mr. Chas. H. Lansley, of Brideford Ont., is one of the best known farmers in Lambton county. About three years ago, while Mr. Lumley was engaged in threshing, he became overheated, and this was followed by a severe chill that started the rheumatic pains. Mr. Lumley says: "I did not think anything of it at the time as I was accustomed to being exposed to all kinds of weather. As a result I was unable to go about next morning. I had pains in my arms and legs which I treated at first with the usual home remedies. As these did not help me, and the trouble was growing worse the family doctor was sent for, but he did not have any better success. He told me I was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, and there can be no doubt about it, as I was confined to my home about four months and I was fortunately advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I sent for a supply, and it was not long before I found they were helping me, and by the time I had taken a half dozen boxes the trouble had entirely disappeared. In other respects the pills also greatly improved my health, and I never felt better in my life than I have since taking them. I therefore most cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to other similar sufferers.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make cures of this kind after doctors and common medicines fail, because they actually make new blood. They don't cure the mere symptoms. They go right to the root of the trouble—to the blood. That is why this medicine cures anaemia, indigestion, neuralgia, palpitation of the heart, and the headaches and backaches brought on by the ailments that fill the lives of so many women with misery. Do not take any pills without the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around the box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ST. OLA.

March has come in like a lion. May she go out like a lamb. The debate announced last week and held under the auspices of the Literary Department of the Epworth League, was a decided success. It was the first attempt, with one or two exceptions, at public speaking on the part of those who participated in it. The addresses in nearly every instance showed careful preparation. The keen interest and splendid addresses of the young men are specially worthy of mention. There was an unusually large attendance, and the interest increased as the debate proceeded. The judges, after very carefully considering the arguments, decided in favor of the country. As a result of the evening's entertainment, new interest has been awakened which will mean an increase of League membership. The Literary evening will take the form of Bible selected being the Gospel of John.—Mr. David Nicholson, of the Bible class, leaves this month for the west. He will rent this year. His place is accompanying him. — Mr. Wm. Morton and Mr. F. P. Clark were in Marmora last week.—Mrs. Jessie Hudson, of Napanee, is moving to the village, in order that her children will be near the church and public school.—Mr. Hudson came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mayhew, on Thursday last, a little boy. On the same day a baby girl came to stay at Mr. and Mrs. Gordon King's.—Miss Gladys Schriver is indisposed through heart trouble.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Council Chamber,
Napanee, 3d March, 1908.

Council met in regular session on Monday evening, Mayor Meng presiding.

Members present — Reeve Symington, Councillors Alexander, Steacy, Kimmerly, Denison, Osborne.

The minutes of the last regular meeting were read and confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Horticultural Society, offering to present to the town a quantity of Boston ivy to adorn the public hall, providing the town would prepare the ground and take care of the plants. On motion the offer of the Historical Society was accepted, and the thanks of the town was tendered to the Society for their liberal offer.

From W. C. Mickel, President of the Ontario Municipal Association, saying the Town of Napanee had never joined the above association and stating reasons why the town should join, as it affords protection to all municipalities. On motion the communication was filed.

From W. S. Herrington, K.C., Town Solicitor, saying if he had been consulted re Saad matter he would have discouraged the remission of the fine, as he had warned Saad previously, which he did not heed of.

On motion the motion passed at the last meeting was reconsidered, rescinded, and the Treasurer was instructed to issue a license to Mr. Saad for the moderate consideration of him having already paid a fine of $40.00.

Mr. Samuel Wilson was present and said the water had backed up in his cellar and did considerable damage, this being the fourth time.

The Finance Committee gave the Treasurer's monthly statement, which was referred back to the Treasurer for correction as follows:

Re account of E. Pringle, $8.50, recommend payment. Re Jas. Boyd rectified by paying $10.00 in full. Re culvert on road near cemetery, Richmond township had paid $40.00 in full. They also had the obstructions removed from West st. drain. Adopted.

Coun. Steacy, Chairman of the Poor and Sanitary Committee, gave a report in detail of all money spent in his committee from the 15th of January to 1st March, the total being $125.45. Adopted.

On motion the Poor and Sanitary Committee was instructed to make arrangements with the House of Providence, Kingston, for taking care of the poor of Napanee.

On motion the Police Committee was given an additional appropriation of $25.00.

A petition was received from a number of ratepayers, asking for a grant of $125.00 to the Napanee Band, the band to give concerts in the Harmony Beach Park during the summer months. On motion the matter was laid on the table for two months.

The Auditors' report for the year 1907 was read and adopted, on recommendation of the Finance Committee.

Reeve Symington said the Isolation Hospital was in bad shape, not leaking, window broken, etc., and moved that the Town Council consider the matter have further report on the matter, which was granted.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Alexander, that the matter of Mr. Storms' property in the hands of the Town Property Committee for report at next meeting. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Osborne, seconded by Coun. Steacy, that the matter re Mr. Saad's transient traders license be laid over until next meeting, and no action be taken against him re fine of $40.00. Carried.

Moved by Coun. Alexander, that the City notify Mr. Bell that the time for repairs of the Bridge over the Isolation Hospital creek is October 1st next. Carried.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are only symptoms of a certain specific form of stomach trouble.

It was in the treatment of these symptoms that Dr. Shoop first perfected that now very popular Shoop Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the source of two, since brought that success and fame to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, my much lauded compliments were ever to be had. For stomach misery—indigestion—dyspepsia—for stomach sourness or complication, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—but only for Loudon—and you will get the real and well known remedy.

The Conquest of Canaan

By BOOTH TARKINGTON,

Author of "Cherry," "Monsieur Beaucaire," Etc.

Copyright, 1905, by Harper Bros.

"Changed so many things?"

The bars that had been between him and half of his world were down, shattered, never more to be replaced, and the ban of Canaan was lifted. Could this have been save for her? And upon that thought he got to his feet, uttering an exclamation of bitter self reproach, asking himself scarcely what he was doing. He knew how much she gave him, what full measure of her affection. Was not that enough? Out upon you, Louden! Are you to exult in your feat, dour in the gloom, or to play a man's part, and if she be happy turn a cheery face upon her joy?

And thus this pilgrim recrossed the bridge, emerging in the street with his head up, smiling, and his shoulders thrown back, so that none might see the burden he carried.

Ariel was waiting on the porch for him. She wore the same dress she had worn that morning, a pretty tryst—that exquisite dress, with the faint lavender overtint, like the tender colors of the inside of a shell. Only then—but she had not worn it since, and he was far distant when he caught the first flickering glimpse of her through the lower branches of the maples, but he remembered. And again, as on that day, he heard a faraway, ineffable music, the eolland horns, sounding the mysterious reveille which had wakened his soul to her coming.

She came to the gate to meet him and gave him her hand in greeting without a word—or the need of one—from either. Then together they set forth over the sun flecked pavement, the maples swishing above them, heavier branches crooning in the strong breeze, under a sky like a Della Robbia background. And up against the glorious blue of it some laughing, invisible god was blowing small rounded clouds of pure cotton, as children blow thistledown.

When he opened her parasol as they came out into the broad sunshine beyond upper Main street there was the faintest mingling of wild roses and cinnamon loosed on the air.

"Joe," she said, "I'm very happy!"

"That's right," he returned heartily. "I think you always will be."

"But, oh, I wish," she went on, "that Mr. Arp could have lived to see you come down the courthouse steps!"

"God bless him!" said Joe. "I can hear the 'argument.'"

"Those dear old men have been so loyal to you, Joe."

"No," he returned; "loyal to Eskew."

"To you both," she said. "I'm afraid the old circle is broken up. They haven't met on the National House corner since he died. The colonel told me he couldn't bear to go there again."

"I don't believe any of them ever will," he returned. "And yet I never pass the place that I don't see Eskew in his old chair. I went there last night to commune with him. I couldn't sleep, and I got up and went over there. They'd left the chairs out, the town was asleep, and it was beautiful moonlight."

"To commune with him? What about?"

"You."

"Why?" she asked, plainly mystified."

"I stood in need of good counsel," he answered cheerfully, "or a friendly word, perhaps, and as I sat there after awhile it came."

"What was it?"

"To forget that I was sodden with selfishness, to pretend not to be as full of meanness as I really was. Doesn't that seem to be Eskew's one voice?"

"Weren't you happy last night, Joe?"

"Oh, it was all right," he said quickly. "Don't you worry."

And at this old speech of his she broke into a little laugh, of which he had no comprehension.

"Mamzie came to see me early this morning," she said after they had walked on in silence for a time. "Everything is all right with her again—that is, I think it will be. Eugene is coming home. And," she added thoughtfully, "it will be best for him to have his old place on the Tocsin again. She showed me his letter, and I liked it. I think he's been disciplined."

Joe's distorted smile appeared. "And has come out gold?" he asked.

"No," she laughed, "but nearer it. And I think he'll try to be more worth her caring for. She has always thought that his leaving the Tocsin in the way he did was heroic. That was her word for it. And it was the finest thing he ever did."

"I can't figure Eugene out." Joe shook his head. "There's something behind his going away that I don't understand." This was altogether the truth, nor was there ever to come a time when either he or Mamzie would understand what things had determined the departure of Eugene Bantry, though Mamzie never questioned, as Joe did, the reasons for it or doubted those Eugene had given her, which were the same he had given her father, for she was content with his word.

Again the bells across the square rang out their chime. The paths were pleasantly enlivened with family and neighborhood groups bound churchward, and the rumble of the organ, playing the people into their pews, shook on the air. And Joe knew that he must speak quickly if he was to say what he had planned to say before he and Ariel went into the church.

"Ariel!" He tried to compel his voice to a casual cheerfulness, but it would do nothing for him except betray a desperate embarrassment.

She looked at him quickly and as quickly away. "Yes?"

"I wanted to say something to you, and I'd better do it now, I think—before I go to church for the first time in two years." He managed to laugh, though with some ruefulness, and con-

"Ah, I've seen how much he cares for you!"

tinued stammeringly, "I want to tell you how much I like him—how much I admire him."

"Admire whom?" she said, a little coldly, for she knew.

"Mr. Ladew."

"So do I," she answered, looking straight ahead. "That is one reason why I wanted you to come with me to-day."

"It isn't only that. I want to tell you—to tell you"— He broke off for a second. "You remember that night in my office before Pear came in?"

"Yes, I remember."

"And that I—that something I said troubled you because I—it sounded as if I cared too much for you"—

"No; not too much." She still looked straight ahead. They were walking very slowly. "You didn't misunderstand. You'd been in my mind, you see, all those years, so much more than 1/in years. I hadn't forgotten you. But to you I was really a stranger"—

"No, no!" he protested.

"Yes, I was," she said gently, but very quickly. "And I—I didn't want you to fall in love with me at first sight. And yet—perhaps I did! But I hadn't thought of things in that way. And I just the vague feeling for you that I always had always had. I had never cared so much for any one else, and it seemed to me the most necessary thing in my life to come back to that old companionship. Don't you remember how quickly you used to be when I would take your hand? I think I loved your being a little rough with me. I was glad to see how you had been hurt, that day you ran away"—

"Ariel!" he gasped helplessly.

"Have you forgotten?"

He gathered himself together with all his will. "I used to love to pose," he said resolutely, "that the dear kindness of you fan't thrown away on me, I want you to know that I have begun to say—that it's all right with me, and I think Ladew"— He stopped again.

"Ah, I've seen how much he cares for you!"

"Have you?"

"Ariel," he said, "that isn't fair to me, if you trust me. You could not have helped seeing"—

"Yes, I have seen it," she interrupted, with great calmness. After having said this, she finished truthfully. "It is! did, I think. I have let him tell me. I like him too much."

"You mean you've not going to"—

"Yes," she said, with a depth of regret he had not heard in her voice since that long ago winter day when she struck the game Bantry with her shoulder flat. She swept over him a blinding look of sorrowful. "How could I?"

And there, upon the steps of the church, in the cool, dazzling vision of her love, fell the blackest blow he who had made his sorrowful pilgrimage across Main street bridge that morning.

being abused like a pickpocket. My mother will not plan away if you will leave her alone for at least three hours a day. And as to my being the prop of your old age, your vigor of language assures me that you are strong enough to stand alone."

So Paul Beecot repaired to London and after the orthodox fashion began to cultivate the muses on a little oatmeal by reading a Bloomsbury garret. There he wrote reams on all subjects and in all styles and for six months assiduously hounded publishers' doors with varying fortunes. Sometimes he came away with a check, but more often with a bulky manuscript bulging his pocket.

Shortly the great monger of the Universal theater ambled Paul as an actor, and he assumed the double role of an unappreciated genius and a starving lover. In the first capacity he failed in his desk ten short stories, a couple of three act comedies and a sheaf of doubtful verses. These failed to get to editor, manager or publisher, and their author found himself reduced to his last five pound note. Then the foolish, ardent lad must needs fall in love. Who he divinely was, what she was and why she should be destined can be gathered from a conversation in a worshiper held with an old schoolfellow.

It was in Oxford street at 8 o'clock on a June afternoon that Paul met Grexon Hay. Turning the corner of the street leading to his Bloomsbury attic, the author was tapped on the shoulder by a resplendent Bond street being—that is, the said being wore a perfectly fitting frock coat, a silk hat trousers with the regulation fold back and front, an orchid buttonhole, gray gloves, boots that glittered, and carried a gold topped cane. The fact that Paul wheeled without wincing showed that he was not yet in debt.

"Beecot!" said the newcomer, taking rapid stock of Paul's shabby serge suit and worn looks. "I thought I was right."

The voice if not the face awoke old memories.

"Hay—Grexon Hay!" cried the struggling genius. "Well, I am glad to see you." And he shook hands with the frank grip of an honest man.

"And I you." Hay drew his friend up the street and out of the human tide which deluged the pavement. "But you seem"—

"It's a long story," interrupted Paul, flushing. "Come to my castle and I'll tell you all about it, old boy. You'll stay to supper, won't you?" The fact that Paul displayed a parcel—"a pound of sausages. You loved 'em at school, and I'm a superfine cook."

Grexon Hay always used expression and word to hide his feelings. But with Paul—whom he had always considered a generous ass at Turrington school—a trifle of self betrayal didn't matter much. Beecot was too-dense and, it may be added, too honest to turn to any opportunity to advantage. "It's a most surprising thing," said Hay in his calm way, "really a most surprising thing, that a Turrington public schoolboy, my friend and the son of wealthy parents, should be buying sausages."

"Come, now," said Paul, with great spirit and tawing Hay homeward, "I haven't asked you for money."

"If you do, you shall have it," said Hay, but the offer was not so generous a one as would appear. That was Hay all over. He always said what he did not mean and knew well that Beecot's unsary pride shied at loans, however small.

Paul, the unsophisticated, took the shadow of generosity for its substance, and his dark face lighted up. "You're a brick, Hay," he declared, "but I don't want money. He"—this in reply to an eloquent glance from the well to do—"I have sufficient for my needs, and besides," with a look at the resplendent dress of the fashion plate dandy, "I don't dress in the west end."

"Which hints that those who do are rich," said Grexon, with an arctic smile.

"Wrong, Beecot. I'm poor. Only paupers can afford to dress well." "In that case I must be a millionaire," laughed Beecot, gleefully downward at his well worn garb. "But mount these stairs. We have much to say to one another."

"Much that is pleasant," said the courtly Grexon.

They shrugged his square shoulders and stepped heavenward. "On your part, I hope," he sang back; "certainly not on mine. Come to Poverty castle." And the fashionable visitor found his host lighting the fire in an apartment such as he had read about, but had never seen.

"As near heaven as I am likely to get," rattled on Beecot, deftly frying the sausages after placing his tea pot on the sofa. "The grub will soon be ready. I'm a first class cook, bless you, old chap. Homemaid too. Clean, eh?' He waved his fork proudly round the ill furnished room. "I'd like to make myself it if it wasn't."

"But—but," stammered Hay, much amused and surveying things through an eyeglass, "what a place for his first love!"

"Trying to put your foot on the floor, eh?" said Beecot. "Ha, ha!"

"But I don't quite see"—

"That's right, tell me you will. His people gave him an aide and a which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

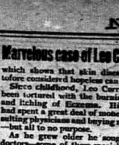
Leo Curtgen, of Grand Rapids, Mich., had been tortured with the burning agony and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines —but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital, eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1901, I had another attack, and I tried Zam-Buk. Mr. Miles thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and did not use me to me. But, to my delight, I got new beauty after the first application. I felt new life in me.

"I have used it ever since, and am entirely and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to answer my daily—and formerly irritating—call to the stillness of the limbs or movement. I am entirely cured.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. CHAPTER II.

No. 45 Greyne street was a second hand bookshop, and the front of the stock was almost as old as the building itself. A wealthy or stained board of faded blue bore in tarnished gold lettering the name of its owner, and under this were two broad windows divided by a square door, open on week days from 8 in the morning until 8 at night. Within, the shop was dark and had a musty odor.

On either side of the quaint old house was a butcher's and a baker's flaunting places of business, as in their newness. Between the first named establishment and the bookshop a low, narrow passage led to a small back yard and to a flight of slimy steps, down which clients who did not wish to be seen could arrive at a kind of cellar to transact business with Aaron Newman.

This individual combined two distinct trades. On the ground floor he sold secondhand books; in the cellar he bought jewels and gave money on the same to needy people. In the shop, which was dusty, slatternly and old men, spectacled girls and all varieties of the pundit caste were to be seen poring over ancient volumes or exchanging words with the proprietor. But to the cellar came fast young men, aged spendthrifts, women of no reputation and some who were very respectable indeed. These usually came at night, and in the cellar transactions would take place which involved much money exchanging hands. In the daytime Mr. Norman was an innocent bookseller, but after 7 he retired to the cellar and became as genuine a pawnbroker as could be found in London. Touching books he was easy enough to deal with, but a Shylock in regard to jewels and money lent. With his bookish clients he passed for a shopkeeper who knew little about literature; but in the underground establishment he was spoken of by those who came to pawn as a usurer of the worst, as an extortioner way he did a deal of business.

It was this strange man that Paul Beecot encountered in the doorway of the Gwynne street shop the day after his meeting with Hay. Many a visit had Paul paid to that shop and not always to idly peer. Norman knew him very well, and, recognizing him in a fleeting look as he passed through the doorway, smiled wearily. Behind the youngster stood Bert Tawney, the lean underling, who was much sharper with buyers than was his master, but after a disappointed glance in his direction Paul addressed himself to the bookseller. "I wish to see you particularly," he said, with his eager air.

"I am going out on important business," said Norman, "but if you will be very brief"—

"It's about a brooch I wish to pawn." The old man's mouth became hard and his eyes sharper. "I can't attend to that now, Mr. Beecot," he said, and his voice rang out louder than usual. "Arter t"

"It's only 6 now," said Paul, looking over his shoulder at a church clock which could be seen clearly in the pale summer twilight. "I can't wait."

"Well, then, as you are an old customer—of bonds," said Aaron, with emphasis, "I'll stretch a point. You can go below at a quarter to 7, and I'll come round through the outside passage to see you. Meantime I must go about my business," and he went away with his head bagging and his solitary eye searching the ground as usual.

NEW CURE FOR STOMACH

T. B. Wallace Gives His Readers a Chance To Try It.

Druggists do not often guarantee anything.

But T. B. Wallace assures persons suffering from distressing indigestion that they can surely be relieved.

Since nobody knows when, people have suffered from indigestion, sick headaches, bloating, dizzy spells, distress after eating, sleeplessness, and many other symptoms of stomach trouble, and have found the usual remedies powerless.

At last a prescription called Mi-o-na stomach tablets is offered to the medical profession and general public as a final solution of curing stomach and intestinal troubles. Its success everywhere has made it, in the past few months, the acknowledged specific it is to-day.

Strengthen the whole digestive system with Mi-o-na, and you will soon find that the stomach and bowels do their work as they should. There will be no distress after eating, and no need of physic.

T. B. Wallace has so much faith in the power of Mi-o-na to cure stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to cure.

The New Dress Goods and Silks are Superbly Ready.

Bigger Assortments - Prettier Colorings and Weaves. - And Lower Prices Than You Will Be Likely To Find Elsewhere.

COME AND BEHOLD. A visit will be more impressive than a whole page spent in our telling about the new dress goods and silks. In a few words—our Dress Goods Department gives you more of service, satisfaction and style and less of price.

Every fashion favored weave and color is represented in our gathering. Fabrics with lots of dash and ginger in their effect—fabrics of a quiet yet decided tone and tenor and fabrics to suit the quiet and conservative taste. And this year our showing of black fabric is especially strong.

The showing will please you. It is wide and diversified enough to answer your every requirement and satisfy your every whim. Your idea of what you should pay is reflected in the price range. And no matter what you pay per yard that amount will secure you more of style, service and satisfaction than you can obtain at any other store hereabout.

DRESS GOODS.

Wool Panamas.

This weave will be very popular. It will be used very extensively for skirts and suits. All good shades of green, brown, navy, cream, black. 50 inch wide. 75c yd. 54 inch wide, $1 00 yard.

Amazons.

Always correct for separate skirts and suits. We have a full range of colorings in three qualities. Blues from the light Copenhagen shades through to the navys. Brown from the Tuscan to the Seals. Reds from Cardinal to Wine. Greens from Reseda to Myrtle. 40 in. width, 50c yd. 44 inches wide, 75c yd. 50 to 52 in. wide, $1.00 yd.

Chevron Worsteds

A very handsome material particularly good for costumes, made from very fine pure worsted yarn. Dark browns and navy, 52 inches wide, $1.25 yd.

Tape Stripe Suitings

Tape stripes are regarded as top notch style. They of course need to be cut by competent dressmakers. A novice at cutting should avoid them. The better trade are buying stripes freely. Stripes are good for skirts, three piece suits and Princess dresses with jackets. Several qualities ranges in full assortment of shades. 40 inwide, 50c yd. 44 inches wide, 75c yd. 54 inches wide at $1.00, $1.50 and $1.75 yd.

Broad Wale Serges

A material with a very wide diagonal twill. These come to us in single suit lengths. Every shade we show in it is exclusive. In new rones of Copenhagen, Old Rose and Violet. $1.75 yd.

Dress Patterns (Exclusive)—Handsome Crisp Striped Voiles

Copenhagen, Ashes of Roses, Bronze, Grey, Brown, $1.3-50 per dress length.

Coin Spot Lansdowne

This is a silk and wool material, beautifully finished, and suitable for afternoon or eveuing dresses, $1.25 yd.

Broadcloths

In a fine big range of new spring colorings. For tailor made suits there is nothing better. The quality we show is the make that we have been selling for years. We know that it will not cockle or rough up easily. Colors and blacks at $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, $2 00 yd.

Cream Suitings

We show in French Coating Serges, Panamas, Cheviots and Broadcloths, adapted for separate skirts and costumes. We know they stand the sponging and shrinking without going all out of shape.

Shadow Stripe Batistes

A light weight fabric for dresses and fancy skirts. In the new blues, browns and greens, 50c and 75c yd.

Henriettas

Our Henriettas are all finished with velour finish that is permanent. Colors are fast, even in washing. Recommended for childrens wear. Leading colors. 50c and 75c yd.

Voiles

Will play an important part in dress making this year. We are very proud of our Voiles. We have succeeded in getting them crisp enough to hang properly and still be uncrushable. In plains, embroidered and stripes. Correct spring shades, 50c, 75c, $1.00, $1 50 yd.

Black Cords

Under this heading we show Persians, Poplins, Sedans, Rekartahs, 50c to $2.00 yd.

Black Mohairs

In plains, dots and stripes, 75c to $4.00 yd.

Black Plains

In Broadcloths, Serges, Cheviots, Satin Venetian Cloths, Panamas, 50c to $3.50 yd.

SILKS.

Shantungs and Rajahs

These rough woven silks are going with a rush. They are a good thing to put your money in. You take no chance on the wear of them. They are suitable for travelling, afternoon and evening wear. Just now we are showing three ranges of quality in the leading shades of Saxe Blue, Old Rose, Copenhagen, Pink, Tobac, Browns, Navy, Pearl, Wedgewood, Natural. 26 inch, $1.00 yd. 27 inch, 75c yd. 34 inch, $1.25.

Tape Stripe Shantungs

These are in dress patterns, stripes are one half inch wide and considered very high class, shades of Wedgewood, Saxe Blue, Brown, Navy, Grey, alternate with white. 26 inch, $1.00 yd.

Liberty Taffeta and Messaline Stripes

These makes are all represented in many choice waist patterns, one blouse length to a piece. The pattern for $2.50, 3.75, 5.00 per blouse.

Stripe Silk Dress Patterns

Individual dress lengths very exclusive in new shades of Navy, Ashes of Roses and Violet, 75c yd.

Black Taffeta, Guaranteed

We were fortunate in securing another lot of this popular silk for our customers. Every yard guaranteed.

Bonnets Black Chifton Taffeta, Guaranteed, $1.00 Yd.

"Bonnets" name on a piece of silk stands for perfection in quality. As before, $1.00 yd.

Peerless Peau De Soie

We have never had a complaint against this silk and we have been selling it seven years. 21 inches wide, $1.00, $1.25.

Black French Taffeta

This make is used and preferred for drop skirts, slips, etc. It has a rustle swish and frou frou that makes it sell at sight. 75c, $1.00 yd.

Japanese Silks

In all leading shades, 20 inch 25c, 27 inch 50c yd. Also black and white, 27 inches, 75c and $1.00 yd.

Our Dressmaking Department

Our Dressmaking Department in charge of Miss Murphy, is reopened for the season. Orders wanted for Easter should be booked at once. The fashionable patterns will be largely of the Grecian and Princess type. It is a style that requires a first class modiste. You take no chance if you book your order for Easter costume with us.

Dress Trimmings.

Our dress trimmings are selected to harmonize with each fabric in our dress goods' stock. The Grecian types of dress call for much trimming. The suit styles will use up quantities for vest effects.

Vestings

The garnitures that we are showing for vesting effects are things of beauty. Gilt Braids in Filet (square mesh) design with Rose Bud effects give you an inkling of what to expect. Similar designs we also show in Ivory, Cream, Black.

Laces

For fancy dress trimmings we are showing a full range of Maltese, Venice and Brussels Laces with All overs to match.

Braids

To match all fabrics for tailored gowns.

SERVICE.

We cannot emphasize too strongly the importance of the service that our Dress Goods Department is able to give you. If you wish any information about correct style, do not hesitate to depend on this Department. Our people in charge are competent, practical and reliable. Any hint that they may give you as to style you may rely upon as being absolutely correct.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

On Wednesday, 26th February, a very pleasant event transpired at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McIlquham, Kingston, when their eldest daughter, Mabel, was united in marriage to Mr. Robert Bruce Whittington, of Napanee. The bride, who looked charming in a beautiful gown of cream voile with an elegant bouquet of cream roses, entered the drawing room on her father's arm to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Mrs. Sproule. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. H. Sproule, B.A., in the presence of the immediate relatives. A sumptuous repast was then served and the happy couple left on the midnight train amid a shower of rice and good wishes. The bride, going away dress was navy broadcloth with hat to match. The presents were very elegant and numerous and among them was a set of sterling silver teaspoons from the officers and teachers of Princess St. Sunday School of which the bride had been a member since babyhood, and a teacher for several years. The junior Christian Endeavor of which she was an officer presented her with a beautiful biscuit jar. The bride will be much missed from the church and social circles of this part of the city, but will no doubt continue her usefulness in her new home in Napanee, where the happy couple expect to reside.—Kingston News.

YARKER.

The attendance at church services on Sunday was slim, owing to the storm and heavy roads. — Judge McDonell, of Brockville, held missionary services in the Anglican church here, on Sunday. Canon Starr, of Kingston, will preach here next Sunday.—The Bay of Quinte railroad has done well this winter, and there have been but very few delays with late trains because of storms. H. McCarthy was taken to Kingston General Hospital, very ill, on Monday.—Francis Irish, confined to his home by illness, has recovered. — E. W. Benjamin is laid up, owing to a fall, one of his ribs being crushed. — William Martin fell twelve feet, in his barn, and has been laid up ever since. Being an old man, he received a severe shaking up.—A number of farmers have exhausted their feed supply and have to buy.—James Warner and "Jud" Irish bought a car of hay and quickly disposed of it. James Warner has received another car of hay.—Vanluven Bros., Moscow, have disposed of their entire business to Frederick Johnston, of Moscow. — Prayer meetings were held every night last week, Saturday excepted, and will be continued this week—Bruce Dunn is on the sick list. — Mrs. Egerton Vanluven is spending a few days in Napanee.—Mrs. Z. Vanluven's.—Quite a number here from Camden East are here on the residence of Cyrus Edgar and spent a very pleasant time.—Another resident arrived in Yarker, born to the wife of Starr Freeman, a daughter.—Miss Truesdale, of Verona, is at W. Connolly's, and Miss Lodbrook, of Martin, also there over Sunday.

A Wall Paper STORY

Last week a gentleman, wanting something especially in WALL PAPER, sent to Simpson's, Toronto, for samples of paper to choose from. Before ordering he decided to look at my new paper, and after comparing DESIGNS, QUALITY and PRICES, he was satisfied to leave with me his entire order.

This is only another of many instances to prove our claim that we have

THE LARGEST STOCK,

THE MOST EXCLUSIVE DESIGNS,

THE MOST ATTRACTIVE PATTERNS,

THE BEST PRICES, on

WALL PAPER

of any house in this section of the country.

Our NEW PAPERS are nearly all in—only about a dozen of our new Canadian designs, and about the same quantity of American Papers yet to come.

Our Remnants are nearly all gone. After this week we cannot promise any full combination remnants.

Watch for the announcement of our Wall Paper Opening.

ILLS OF CHILDHOOD, HOW TO CURE THEM.

There is no medicine can equal Baby's Own Tablets for the cure of such ills of babyhood and childhood as constipation, indigestion, diarrhoea, colic, simple fever, worms and teething troubles. When you give this medicine to your little ones you have the guarantee of a government analyst that it is perfectly safe. Mrs. Thos. Mills, Ethel, Ont., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my little boy and find them just the medicine needed to keep babies healthy. They are easy to take and always do good." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

David Wagar, of Watertown, was renewing old acquaintances in this vicinity last week.—D. Kirk and Steward Vanvolkenburg were in Enterprise on Saturday on business.—Oakley Wood and Richard Smith made a trip to Arden on Friday.—Dan. Arney at his brother's. Will. Arney, on Sunday.—Mrs. Will Arney at Mrs. D. Kirk's, on Saturday afternoon.—Service was not well attended on Sunday on account of the storm.—Harry Foster dined at D. Kirk's, on Sunday.

COMMON SENSE AND MODERN MEDICAL SCIENCE have reversed the almost universal treatment of constipation. Nature's own remedy, Fruit-a-tives or Fruit Vegetable Cure has caused constipation to be given to sufferers a tried, safe, simple and permanent cure. Thousands have testified that it does what they say in three days. For sale by T. B. Wallace.—122.

TORTURING SKIN DISEASE Afflicted this bright little girl

Mrs. F. Smith, of 307 Sherbrooke Street, Toronto, Ont., says: "A year since, while baking my little girl's dinner, a drop of boiling fat fell on her face and neck and caused a skin disease on the upper part of her body. The head broke out into tiny water blisters, discharging a sticky fluid for many weeks. These would disappear for a short time and then reappear worse than ever. The doctor's treatment was unavailing and my sister's severe irritation that it was impossible to keep her from scratching. We tried various preparations yet obtained no good results until we began using Zam-Buk. With each application the irritation and soreness lessened, the child rested sweetly, the discharge ceased, and the scales but disappeared and in a short space of time the skin was completely cleansed from the disease. It is now some months since we used Zam-Buk, and as there are no signs of any more suspicious breaking out on her body, we believe Zam-Buk has worked a complete cure."

Sent Free for a trial box. Enclose 1c. stamp for postage. Dealers refuse substitutes. Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Zam-Buk Cures cuts, chapped hands, running sores, and all diseases of the skin, etc. 50c. box, or 3 boxes for $1.25, from druggists and stores or post, on receipt of price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

A CLEAR HEALTHY SKIN.—Eruptions of the skin and the blotches which blemish beauty are the result of impure blood caused by unhealthy action of the liver and kidneys. In correcting this unhealthy action Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are without a rival. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will act on the liver, kidneys and bowels in a mild but thorough manner and eruptions will disappear without leaving any trace.

BE THERE A WILL WISDOM POINTS THE WAY.—The sick man pines for relief, but he dislikes sending for the doctor, which means bottles of drugs never examined. He has not the resolution to load his stomach with compounds which smell villainously and taste worse. But if he have the will to deal himself with his ailment, wisdom will direct his attention to Parmelee's Vegetable Pills, which, as a specific for indigestion and disorders of the digestive organs, have no equal.

Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup is an unequalled remedy for colds, coughs, influenza and diseases of the throat and lungs. The value of the medicine rests upon years of successful use in eradicating these affections, and in preventing hemkind from the fatal ravages of consumption, and as a household remedy for coughs, colds, etc., it cannot be too careful to fight it in its early stages. Bickle's Syrup is the weapon to use it.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

It is high time that the oft repeated claim that—"chronic baldness can be cured" be filed away with the old announcement that the moon is made of green cheese. The claim is untrue, and aside from this it induces many people to ignore the chance they have to prevent baldness.

The greatest stride toward the ultimate elimination of baldness was the discovery by Prof. Unna, of Hamburg, Germany (ask your doctor about him), that most hair is due to an invisible germ, of vegetable character, in the scalp—literally a "dandruff germ," producing a highly contagious disease. The greatest stride toward the prevention of baldness was the recent discovery of a prophylactic fluid called NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE, which, if intelligently used—will destroy the dandruff germ and prevent baldness.

Herpicide is the original dandruff germ destroyer and its extraordinary success—for dandruff and falling hair, also dull, brittle and lustreless hair—has brought out many imitations. Even the old line hair "growers" and hair "tonics" now claim to kill the dandruff germ. Quite a tribute to Herpicide, isn't it? An exquisite hair dressing. Stops the itching of the scalp almost instantly. Don't wait, try it now.

TO CATARRH SUFFERERS

Good Advice and Liberal Offer From a Well Known Napanee Druggist.

T. B. Wallace has been advising all who suffer from any of the symptoms of catarrh, such as offensive breath, dryness of the nose, pain across the eyes, stoppage of the nose discharges and droppings in the throat, coughing spasms and general weakness and debility, to use Hyomei. He goes so far as to offer to refund the money to any user of Hyomei who is not perfectly satisfied with the results.

Quick relief follows the use of the Hyomei treatment; the stoppage of the nose is removed, the dropping ceases, the breath becomes pure and sweet, and the catarrhal germs are destroyed and their growth prevented.

Hyomei is the surest, simplest, quickest, easiest and cheapest way to cure catarrh. It does not drug and derange the stomach; it goes right to the seat of the trouble, destroying the catarrhal germs and healing and vitalizing the tissues.

Go to T. B. Wallace to-day and buy a complete Hyomei outfit for $1.00 with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction, your money will be refunded.

NEWS NOTES.

The first sign of the immigration rush was received at the Canadian Pacific offices at Montreal on Monday, when a message was received from Liverpool stating that the Empress of Ireland had sailed from that port on Friday with a passenger list numbering over 1,280. This is the largest number that have come out on any one boat for several months, and it may be fairly taken as a sign that the rush of immigrants to the great Canadian west is starting again.

Harry Thaw is a hopeless paranoiac, so it is believed the head of the state lunacy board will report. He is likely to live and die in an asylum. Paranoia is a chronic form of insanity developing in a neuropsycho pathic constitution, presenting systematized delusions of more or less definite scope, while in other directions there may appear little or no amount of mental health. The prospect is extremely bad.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says, William Goddard, employed in the sawmill of the Lake Superior Corporation, was so severely scalded on Tuesday that he died from injuries in the hospital the same night. Goddard went out into the yard where a pipe containing scalding steam and wood alcohol vapor heated to great intensity are located. In some manner unknown he slipped into the entrance to one of the vats, through a hole 24 by 26 inches. He was in the vat 30 seconds, his screams bringing assistance. Goddard, who was 22 years of age, was an Englishman and had been in Canada about six weeks.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

A very pleasant time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Perry, Lonsdale, on Wednesday evening, Feby. 26th, when a few of their friends and neighbors gathered to bid them adieu before their removal to Gosport.

An address was given by Mr. Chas. Kimmerly, while Mr. Elias Stafford presented them with a beautiful hanging lamp. A very suitable reply was made, after which refreshments were served. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and some music by Mr. McDonald's gramophone.

Lonsdale, Feb. 24th, 1908.

Dear Jessie,—We, as friends and neighbors, have assembled here to-night to again enjoy your kind hospitality before your departure from our midst. We have met from time to time during the past few years, and your winning ways and cheerful disposition has led us to feel your departure. Not for its intrinsic value, but as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held as a friend and companion, we beg you to accept this toilet case.

Hoping God's blessing may rest upon you in your new home, and as we have to separate now for a time, it may be for all time, may we all meet again where parting is no more.

Signed by Miss Viola Smith, in behalf of the rest of the friends.

A RELIABLE SPRING MEDICINE.

Recommended to the People of Napanee.

At this season of the year there is hardly a man, woman or child in Napanee who does not need a tonic medicine to purify and enrich the blood, to induce an appetite, to promote digestion and create strength, and we are safe in saying we have never sold anything in our store equal to Scott's cod liver preparation Vinol for this purpose.

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it is made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing and body building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a spring medicine and body builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, and after sickness Vinol is unexcelled, and you know what you are taking.

Mrs. Rose Lavigne, of Burlington, Vt., writes: "Vinol is the best spring medicine I have ever used; it creates an appetite, purifies the blood and takes away all feeling of lassitude.

We could go on quoting from hundreds of such letters, but simply ask the people of Napanee to try Vinol this spring on our guarantee to return money if they are not benefited. —T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

HINCH.

At present the roads are in good condition.—Miss Helena Hinch spent Thursday afternoon with Miss Hazel Price.—Two jolly loads from here attended a party at Mr. Shirley Lewis', Selby, on Friday evening, where they tripped the light fantastic the wee sma' hours. — Mr. Hinch returned home, declaring Mr. and Mrs. Lewis an ideal host and hostess.—Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Switzer returned to their home at Desoronto, after spending the past week at Wm. Coburn's.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paul, Robbin, spent Thursday with their daughter, Mrs. Clare Hinch.—Mr. Oliver Coburn was home to a number of his friends on Wednesday evening. All report a fine time.—Miss Maggie Aylsworth has returned from Belleville, where she has been spending the past few weeks.—A number of our young people attended revivals at Roblin last week.—Misses Whelan, N. H. S., spent Saturday and Sunday at home —Mr. Oliver Coburn, who has been engaged sawing wood at E. G. Price's, returned home on Thursday evening.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. G. Hinch, Ernestown Station, were renewing acquaintances here last week.—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dowdle spent Sunday at his brother's, Robt. Dowdel.—Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Switzer, Mr. Coburn's, Friday evening.—Miss Maggie Whelan returned home on Saturday, after spending a few weeks with friends at Tweed.

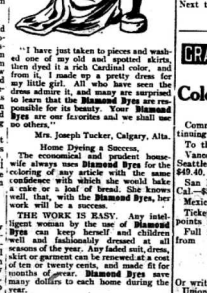
Mother's Old Skirt Colored With DIAMOND DYES And Made up For Her Little Girl.



"I have just taken to pieces and washed one of my old sand spotted skirts, and dyed it a rich Cardinal color, and from it, I made up a pretty dress for my little girl. All who have seen the dress admire it, and many are surprised to learn that the Diamond Dyes are responsible for the beauty. Your Diamond Dyes are our favorites and we shall use no others."

Mrs. Joseph Tucker, Calgary, Alta.

Home Dyeing a Success.

The economical and prudent housewife always uses Diamond Dyes for the coloring of any article with the same confidence with which she would bake a cake or boil a beefsteak. It follows as well, that, with the Diamond Dyes, her work will be a success.

THE WORK IS EASY. Any intelligent woman by the use of Diamond Dyes can keep herself and children well and fashionably dressed at all seasons of the year. Faded suit, dress, skirt or garment can be renewed at a cost of ten or twenty cents, and made fit for months of wear. Diamond Dyes save many dollars to each home during the year.

DON'T BE DECEIVED by the statements of some merchants that Wool and Silk (animal materials) and Cotton and Linen (vegetable materials) can be dyed equally well with the same dye. If you are about to dye Wool or Silk, ask for Diamond Dyes for Wool. If you wish to dye Cotton or Linen, ask for Diamond Dyes for Cotton.

Free to all Women.

Send us your full address by letter or post card, and we will send you free of cost our famous Diamond Dye Annual, Teddy-Bear Booklet and Diamond Dye Cook Book.

VICTORIA E. GRIFFITH,

One of Parma's well known and most highly respected residents, passed peacefully away on Sunday, 16th Feby. Although in delicate health for a number of years, she was never heard to murmur or complain, but bore her affliction with patience and Christian resignation. She leaves to mourn the loss of a kind and devoted sister, three brothers and one sister, Frank of Ottawa, D. and J. at home, and Mrs. E. H. Dunbar, York Road.

HENRIETTA CROSMAN COMING.

That delightful element of comedy which has endeared her to the heart of every American and English theatregoer is one of the most potent factors in the success of "The New Mrs. Loring," in which Henrietta Crosman will appear at the Grand Opera House, Kingston, on Monday, March 9th. "The New Mrs. Loring" is described as a comedy of sentiment in three acts by Jessie Trimble. While the play is replete with material which Miss Crosman's reputation as a comedienne must involve, the story evolves into a dramatic offering in which pathos and emotion make demands upon Miss Crosman's resourceful talents. The sale of seats will begin this morning.

THE BILL PASSED.

The Private Bill of the Town of Napanee for the purpose of confirming By-law No. 7th, of the said town, and which said By-law authorizes the issue of $10,000 of debentures to pay for the completion and extension of the Municipal Electric Light Plant, has passed the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature and will receive the Legislature's sanction in due course. The Bill was under the charge of the Town Solicitor, and Mr. Carscallen, M.P.P.

A WELL MERITED HONOR.

The Bishop of Ontario has appointed the Rev. J. W. Jones, Tamworth, as delegate to England next June to represent the diocese of Ontario at the great Church Congress to be held in Royal Albert Hall, when experts from all over the world will discuss church problems. The deliberations and work of this great gathering will close with a triumphant Thanksgiving service in S. Paul's Cathedral, on 24th June, when a thanksoffering of five million dollars is to be devoted for Church activities outside the British Isles.

ITCH, Mange, Prairie Scratches, Barber's Itch, and every form of contagious itch on human or animals cured in 30 minutes by Wolford's Sanitary Lotion. It never fails. Sold by T. B. Wallace. tf

A CHEAP EXCURSION, MARCH 16th.

On the above date the Rev. Dr. Marsh, ScD., F.R.C.S., will deliver an illustrated address on "Other Worlds Than Ours" in the Western Methodist church. Dr. Marsh is widely known as an authority on the geography of the skies, and has made many discoveries on this subject, which are invaluable to science. He will illustrate his lecture on canvas by views taken through the largest and best telescopes in the world. No one can afford to miss this. Read posters and large bills for more particulars. 10b

WHO BUILT THE PYRAMIDS?

Hard to tell in some instances. But we know who are the great Nerve Builders. They are Dodd's Nerve Pills. Their Scott's Emulsion feeds and strengthens brain and nerves.

MUSICAL CLUB.

By special request the Musical Club will admit any music loving people to this meeting on next Club Night, which will be next Thursday, March 12th (instead of Friday), at 4 p.m. sharp. The programme is in the hands of Mrs. Cairns-Smith, who has secured Miss Helena Mitchell, of Toronto, a most successful pianist, and Mr. A. Beecroft, of Kingston, who certainly needs no introduction as a vocalist. Miss Singleton, of Kingston, will be the guest of the Club. A musical correspondent from Berlin, Germany, writes in "Musical Courier":—"Miss Mitchell plays with a crisp, clear touch and excellent technique. Her individual interpretations of pieces are sound and polished in expression." Admission to hall, members, 25c.

We live to paint, and paint to live; We live to paint, the better we live; No job too large, none too small, F. S. FREEMAN, Sexsmith, Napanee, Imitator of wood and marble. 9 —Reserve Tuesday, 17th March, and attend the concert in the new room of St. Patrick's Church, in the Opera House. Local and foreign talent. See large bills.

Two bombs were thrown at the Shah of Persia as he drove through the streets of Teheran, on Friday. The ruler escaped unhurt, but three of his outriders were killed and twenty-one Persians injured. The would-be assassin escaped.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

On Tuesday evening the Napanee Choral Club made its bow to the public, by presenting in the Opera House the dramatic Cantata "Saul, King of Israel." Every available seat was occupied. There were many misgivings as to the ability of a group of amateurs to put on the stage a performance calling not only for superior musical talent and training, but considerable histrionic skill as well. To say that they secured a magnificent triumph is no exaggeration as the consensus of opinion was that it was the best amateur musical performance ever produced in Napanee.

The training of the Chorus reflects great credit upon Miss Singleton, who has been most patient and persevering, and has successfully demonstrated her ability as a conductor.

The leading characters performed their several parts with the confidence and precision of professionals. Miss Cairns took the part of Michal. Her singing was sweet and melodious and her acting graceful and in accord with the character. Mr. Beecroft has a rich baritone voice and as Saul he won his way to the hearts of his Napanee hearers, and will always be sure of a welcome here. The tableau at the opening of the second act, called forth rounds of applause as Abigail (Mrs. Harry Taylor) appeared kneeling in a beautiful oriental costume before Saul's throne, surrounded by courtiers and attendants. The rendering of "I'll Sing the Heart", with good effect. Miss Horton has a high soprano voice and displayed great skill in her rendition of the Witch of Endor. She was ably assisted in her weird performance by Misses Hall, Brooks, French and Vandervoort. The pretty damsels in their costumes of gold and white came "advancing lightly tripping, gaily dancing" and sang like Hebrew Misses. Fisher and Chenoweth took their parts well and received the applause they earned in turn received. Messrs. Cairns and Harrison had difficult roles assigned them as David and Jonathan, and both may be congratulated upon the manner in which they executed them. Little Donald Anderson did so singing, but gave a ability to Miss Cairns' beautiful lullaby song at the conclusion of which she was presented with a beautiful bouquet of American Beauties. The concentration of interest through the whole period and represented a good deal of care and study upon the part of some one. There were no literary waits between the scenes and the tableaux were graceful and effective. The piano was concealed behind the scenes, but it was quite audible and Miss Lucas accompanied from it in the hands of an expert. This proved to be Mrs. Cairns-Smith, the musical head of the Club, to whom is due a large share of the credit for this very successful musical event.

"The voice of the Napanee Choral Club is "Long live Mr. Herrington". The remarkable assistance he gave in the dramatic part of the cantata, "Saul," is greatly appreciated by every member of the Club.

Correct Dress for Women.

Right Fashions in Women's Coats.

Fashion has been generous. Seldom has such a variety of fabrics and styles been approved as this season. The leading models are well represented here—styles which you can rely upon as correct. As you see the many new styles which, of course, include all the popular fabrics, you will acknowledge the charm of our display.

An assortment of short light Coats that cannot be beat in pretty stripe and plain Covert, Broadcloths and Tweeds. Made in stunning styles, tight fitting, semi-fitting and pony styles, velvet and plain collars, some with four patch pockets, cuffs of velvet and self material, some have strapped seams in front and back. A particularly large range to choose from. Let us show you these model coats just to give you an idea when you are ready to buy. $6.50 to $12.00 each. All styles in black as well.

The Pretty New Skirts.

Made of such popular materials as Voiles, Chiffon Panamas, Batistes, etc., in the newest shades of browns, blues and blacks, as well as several pretty tweeds in the latest styles of pleated tops and folds of silk and self materials. Some pleated fronts with side and back gores. Each one has the hang of perfection. A splendid range of sizes. $7.50 to $10.00. Browns at $6.00. Blues at $6.00 each. Any necessary alteration will be made without extra charge.

(Ready-to-wear Department.)

DRESS FABRICS.

Our spring dress fabric importations cover an almost unlimited range of weaves and colorings, commending themselves at once to people of good taste in the matter of dress, and with ample daylight adds to the pleasure of buying. Many of our fabrics cannot be duplicated at any price here or elsewhere. This makes our position in the matter of ladies' ordered tailoring and gown making a particularly strong one, enabling us to get up a suit or frock to order which, for the reason given above, it would be impossible for any one to copy.

An extremely large range of colors in Broadcloths at $1.25 and $1.50. The excellent showing of Chiffon Panamas, Batistes, Poplins, etc., including the popular cloth of the day, "Resilda," talked about by everybody and worn by a great many, $1.00 and $1.25. Come in and see this beautiful range of the new shades. "Priestlys" dress fabrics make buying a pleasure. Silks a specialty with us this season. Have a look at our Silks.

(Dress Goods Department.)

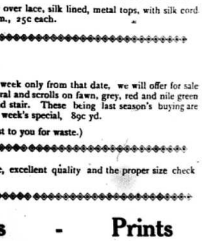
Ducks - Muslins - Prints

Our showing of Printed Dress Muslins, Prints, Ducks, Drills, etc., is much larger this season than heretofore. Immense assortments to select from. When we advertise large assortments at a price, we can produce the goods. (Not one or two pieces, but lots of them.)

In Ducks there are stripes, scrolls, small designs in flowers, twigs, stripes, hit and miss stripes, checks, etc., at 12 1-2c and 15c. Dozens of pieces to select from. You can't get these selections elsewhere, mark you.

Prints—Thousands of yards of Crum's best prints in every conceivable pattern and design. See that No. 115 is stamped on each piece; don't be fooled or bluffed. When you pay 12 1-2c for Crum's prints, see that you get CRUM'S.

Muslins—The very newest styles in the most dainty fabrics of this season's productions are here. Our range is exclusive, that means they are uncommon. You won't see our patterns and designs elsewhere. That's why so many people prefer our goods, and that is why our fabrics are always different from the ordinary. It is a pleasure to show you through our immense stock of these pretty dainty fabrics. 10c to 75c yd.



(Domestic Department.)

A WIDE SPHERE OF USEFULNESS. The consumption of Dr. Thomas Eclectric Oil is constantly increasing, proving conclusively the fact that it has now ten on the market for thirty-one years. Its popularity is as great as ever, and the demand for it is that perfect faith in its curative powers which has won it its countries, and wherever introduced fresh supplies are constantly asked for.

NEWBURGH.

The concert under the auspices of the choir and League of the Methodist church on March 6th, was a signal success. The announcement of Mr. C. J. W. Taylor, Picton, our former popular organist, was sufficient to attract a large crowd, and Mr. Taylor shows improvement on each appearance here, and on Wednesday night he charmed his audience with his two selections on the organ, responding to a hearty encore. He was also heard to advantage in a vocal solo, "His Master's Voice," Sing. Miss McDonald, who accompanied Mr. Taylor from Picton, also gave first appearance here, and simply captivated the audience. Miss McDonald is a contralto, a pupil of Mr. Taylor's, and possesses a voice of rare sweetness and flexibility. Her selections were admirably adapted to her voice and amply demonstrated its compass and richness. Her enunciation too was well nigh perfect. There was a unanimous expression of delight with her numbers, and she was twice encored. She responded to three solos and in a very sweetly-rendered duet with Mr. Taylor. It is hoped that Miss McDonald may be heard again. Miss Woods, of Tamworth, contributed three recitations in good style and had to respond to an encore. Of the local performers no more than can be said that they all acquitted themselves excellently, well sustaining their reputation as entertainers. Miss Limbert excelled herself in an organ solo and also sang a duet in her usual good voice. Mr. F. D. Moore greatly pleased the audience in his vocal solo and was enthusiastically encored. Misses Marie Johnston and Florence Wagar contributed recitations, and both were thoroughly enjoyed. The anthems rendered by the choir, with Mr. Taylor at the organ, was given in splendid style. Rev. Mr. Duke acted as chairman, making a very appropriate brief address.

Rev. J. Gardner and Mr. T. J. Dunwoody attended the meeting of Presbytery at Kingston last week.—Members of the Masonic fraternity of Newburgh to the number of thirty-five, attended the funeral of the late Mr. Templeton, last Sunday afternoon.—Among them were the Master, Mr. E. Gardner, and three Past Masters.—A sad accident befell the aged Mrs. McConnell on Monday afternoon. Through an error in judgment she missed her footing in sitting down, and sustained a fractured hip in her fall. It will be a long time before she will be able to be around agiln.

BRIGHT EYES, ROSY CHEEKS.

Every Girl Can Have Them by Keeping Her Blood Rich and Red With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In the early days of her womanhood every girl—no matter what her station in life—should be bright, active, cheerful and happy. Her steps should be light, her eye bright and her cheeks rosy with the glow of health. But the reverse is the condition of thousands of young girls throughout Canada. They are pale, always tired, suffer from headaches, breathless and with palpitating heart after slight exercise, so that merely to go up stairs is exhausting. This is the condition doctors call anaemia, which means weak watery blood. In this condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the only safe and reliable medicine. These pills actually make the new, rich, red blood which can alone give health and strength, and thus make weak, listless, pale-faced girls bright, active and strong. Miss Albina St. Andre, Joliette, Que., says:—"I am more grateful than I can say for the benefit I have found in the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. was run down and very miserable, suffered from severe pains in my back and limbs, had a bad cough; no appetite and would lay awake the most of the night, and what sleep I did get did not refresh me. I tried several remedies, but they did not help me, and I, as well as my friends, feared I was going into a decline. At this stage I was advised to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and providentially I acted upon the advice. After using a few boxes my appetite improved and I began to sleep much better at night. This greatly cheered me and I continued taking the pills for some time longer, when the change in my condition was really marvellous. I was feeling as well as I ever had done. I could sleep soundly at night; the pains and cough had disappeared, and I felt an altogether different girl. I am so grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me that I cheerfully give you permission to publish this in the hope that it may point the way to health to some other weak and despondent girl."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are good for all diseases due to weak, watery blood. That is why this medicine cures rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, partial paralysis and the after aches, backaches and headaches caused by the troubles women alone suffer from You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

ERNESTTOWN.

Mr. Electors and Ratepayers.—I read a letter in The Beaver of Feby. 21st, purporting to be a contribution of one of mine of Feby. 14th, in reference to the financial statement of Ernesttown in which you are interested. He signs himself "pigmy" and so well he may, as he is the author of the name he bears, and when you read this letter you will come to the conclusion he is wrong and my figures are correct, which they generally are and that I am strictly honest in my statement to my good friends in Ernesttown. The Recve and Treasurer's statement showed the following:

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES:

Signed,
R. N. LAPUM,
HARVEY SHAW,
Auditors.

After reading the above you will come to the conclusion that little gentleman was wrong on nomination day and in the worse by his letter, as you can plainly see our figures differ from theirs and the Auditors only by $305.12, and the writer explained this error on the platform. To open the man's eyes will be tell what was done with the $2,429.50 of taxes that was paid to the Treasurer between Dec. 15th, 1906 and Jany. 1st, 1907. If he, Pigny, will subtract his amount of error of $2,175.38 from this it will only be an error of $51.30, and I will further open his eyes by saying that the item for oak plank appeared in the 1906 statement of $34.00. Now it has finally come down to the difference of $17.30, and as interest changes daily so would this item change. I wonder if this is not a pretty close figuring on amount of nearly $39,000.00.

Further I will say the amount paid to the Treasurer from Dec. 15th, 1906, to Dec. 15th, 1907, at taxes, was $14,908.55, while he stated it to be only 49,887.47. This positively means $5,000.00.

I want to say also that the Treasurer called off the figures from his book and figured the figures given, and if he, Pigny, has taken the advice of Chairman Maber, he would not have been so erroneously charged, and you can get the best Rajah Dairy, 1st to Dec. 15th, 1907, as all financial statements are from that date and are from 15th Dec. to 15th Dec. following. Further I will say that as statutes demand in reference to school tax, the same is levied by By-law, the amount on hand Dec. 15th, 1906, due to schools was not added to the amount received from the Government, leaving the amount from Dec. 15th, 1906, to Dec. 15th, 1907, will prove the school tax receipts and expenditure correct. Therefore his assessment here is satisfactory.

Further I offer to engage an expert auditor for two weeks to go over the Dec. 15th, 1906 to Dec. 15th, 1907, without any Pigny, but act as that in township, and see if there is any error re financial statement of Dec. 15th, 1907, to pay said expert auditor, table as a basis the prize statement already given by the statesmanlike little scribe-pigmy.

For four some poor weakling cannot yet see the genuine fact of my statement, look at the financial statement of the treasurer and Recve to Dec. 15th, 1907. We say positively in bank, $4,760.56. We say just as positively, $4,493.20 in hand. We say there are taxes uncollected by our statement, $13,064.29 on Dec. 15th, 1907, and they, the Auditors, say on Dec. 31st, 1907, we have $7,889.45. Therefore, it is evident the difference in these amounts was paid in between those dates, which would be $5,174.84. Now add this to our cash on hand and cash in bank, and it will make $13,666.42. Now, what became of this? Well, it is easy to see the current bank account is by $7015.55, the municipal overdraft lowered by $2,949.90 cash on hand $10.09, and the difference in unpaid taxes will be $4,264.44. This makes the amount of $13,519.79, which varies from our statement by only $13.36 and yet that little gentleman says it differs by $2,175.38, yet he is wrong by only $2,364.84. It is hoped ere this he can see the error of his figures and ways. Trusting he may not go on this year any more, and by the way this old wag is a mild man, and never gained a victory by an unruly tongue.

I would have answered this sooner only for two reasons. First, I had visit time, and second, I thought with the spirit he possesses to possess, he would have been gentleman enough to recall his own false statement, I will not say he is crooked or twisted the figures on purpose, but will say he needs practice and a little more help to prove that the ex-Recve of Ernesttown is anything but straight in his financial or otherwise, as I will not now allow inspection.

The auditors' report has been in the Clerk's office for inspection over a month You can see it at any time in the Secretary's book, as it is the privilege of electors to do so. Now, I sincerely offering more to the intelligent people of Ernesttown, and Mr. Beaver, I thank you for the space accorded me in your valuable paper.

Ex-Recve L. L. GALLAGHER.

DR HARRY S. BOTT

It is with feelings of deep sorrow we have to record the death of Dr. Harry S. Bott, who died with pneumonia, on Feby. 25th, in Chicago. He attended our Collegiate Institute a few years ago, and after a preliminary course in Chicago, where he graduated from College as a dentist, but death, which is no respecter of persons, claimed the victim, after only a few hours' illness. He was about thirty-two years. He was wide, nee Miss Carrie Duncan, and a little daughter, to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father, also an aged mother, Mrs. George Bott, of Napanee two sisters and three brothers, Mrs. W. J. Hark, of Carrying Place; Luther Hawley, Hay Bay; Charles, of Hatfield; John, who has been studying medicine in Chicago, and Jerome Clarke Bott, of Napanee. The remains were brought to Napanee from Chicago, on Thursday, the funeral service being held on Saturday, 29th Feby., at the residence of Mrs. W. J. Hark, thence to the Eastern vault to await interment.

CHILD STRUCK WITH POKER.

James W. Babcock, The Father, Goes to Jail.

James W. Babcock, of 123 Moulton st., Watertown, N.Y., was sentenced in city court to serve six months in the Onondaga county penitentiary, after pleading guilty to assault in the third degree. The case is particularly sad and shocking and as a result the year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Babcock is blinded in the left eye.

The circumstances are very peculiar Mrs. Babcock told that her husband came home drunk about 3.30 and began to throw the furniture about the house, and on remonstrating with him he struck the stove poker at her which struck the child in the left eye and destroyed the sight. This afternoon, she says, he came home shaking down the fire and the poker slipped from his hand and struck the child in the eye.

According to the story of the nearby residents, Babcock came home drunk about 3 o'clock and began abusing his wife. They heard much loud talk and swearing. Mrs. Babcock told several people that her husband attacked her and threw a poker at her and struck the child accidently.

Dist. C. Couch was notified and he called Dr. C. Bull, who said the sight of child's sight in the left eye was destroyed. The child was taken to the city hospital.

Patrolman John Donalson was called and found Babcock trying to put his wife out of the house. Babcock came from Napanee about six months ago, and is a stone mason.

SHAKE IN A BOTTLE.

Now is the time when the doctor gets busy, and the patient realizes what constitutes a "run down," sallow complexion. There is no advice of an eminent authority, who says that Rheumatism and Kidney trouble weather is here, and also tells what to do in case of an attack.

Get from any good prescription pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kargon, three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Mix by shaking in a bottle, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bed-time.

Just try this simple home made mixture at the first sign of backache, sluggish or if your back aches or you feel that the kidneys are not acting properly right. This is said to be a splendid "Kidney regulator, and almost certain remedy for all forms of Rheumatism, which is caused by uric acid in the blood, which the kidneys fail to filter out. Any one can easily prepare this at home and at small cost.

Druggists in this town and vicinity have the prescription, stated that they can either supply these ingredients, or, if readers prefer, they will compound the mixture for them.

THAT FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The ratepayers of Ernesttown are no doubt anxious to find out the truth about that famous financial statement. As I have not heard from our auditor, I am taking it for granted that my proof was correct, consequently I am now ready to do some more proving. The statement of liabilities contained fifteen items. Having seen the auditors' report and also the treasurer's statement, I can prove that seven items are wrong, and two items left out, which makes nine items wrong. The other items are right. So you see there are more mistakes than anything else, and they vary from a few dollars as high as $3560.

Would it not be better to give out no statement of assets and liabilities at all than to send out one so full of error as that; as it only misleads the people instead of giving them a correct idea of the condition of affairs.

My superior accused me of being abusive; of stating facts in being absolutely guilty. At any rate I managed to state my case without using words that cannot be written in full either in print or on the platform.

As using a non de plume looks so much like a coward, I make no apologies to my superior, I will give you the plain name of a very plain man in plain English.

Yours truly,
N. A. ASSELSTINE.

$186.50 paid by Dr. Shoop for any recent case of Grippe or acute Cold that a 2-oz test box of Preventics will not break. Is this for no offer? The Doctor's supreme confidence in these little Candy Cold Cure Tablets—Preventics—is certainly complete. It's a $10.00 against 25 cents—positively big odds. And Preventics, remember, contain no quinine, no opium, nothing harsh nor sickening. Pneumonia would seldom appear if early colds were broken up. Safe and sure for feverish children. 25 Preventics 25 cents. For sale by T. B. Wallace.

TRINITY CHURCH ANNIVERSARY.

The first Anniversary services of Trinity Church were held last Sunday and Monday, and were in all senses very successful services. Just one year ago the church was opened for Divine service and dedicated as an ecclesiastical edifice to the use of the Methodist Church.

On Sunday morning, long before the hour of service, the building was filled by those who desired to participate in the first anniversary services held by Rev. Albert Carman, D.D., General Superintendent of the Methodist Church, and this Dominion, was the preacher of the day, and was favored with a full and attentation as he dilated on the Glory of God as reflected through his church, "God of Zion the perfection of beauty." God hath shined. Psalm 50, 2." was the text upon which the preacher based his sermon. He remarks, tracing through human history with its varied manifestations of beauty and its possibilities of goodness and truth from the earliest records up to modern illustrations of human greatness as reflected in the grandeur and achievements of conquerors, legislators, educationists, great architects, etc., and then his views their glory shining through their great works—and with ringing voice the preacher welcomed God's church, that anniversary day, to a nobler effort to shew forth his glory and to magnify his grace in pure life and pious conduct. An efficient choir contributed to the praise of the service not only by the rendering of suitable anthems, but also by the beautiful service of song in which the congregation joined. Miss Bessie Shepherd, of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, rendered a most delightful solo at the close of the sermon.

Dr. Carman afterwards addressed the Sunday School, congratulating the managers on the many advantages they possessed in their school equipment, efficient teaching staff, and grand orchestral service.

At the evening service all available space was used in the auditorium, school room, and ladies' parlor, to seat the vast congregation that assembled for worship. Dr. Carman again gave a masterly exposition of St. James' statement when he said "Is any afflicted let him pray, and sin when it is merry let him sing psalms." James 5-13, so exhaustive and vigorous a lesson of the Christian life and duty, such profound impression was undoubtedly made upon the vast congregation, by the outcome of unrestrained appetites, and the passions, held by logical deduction to lead to their ultimate, eternal death and the sermon was most seasonable and appropriate.

Again the choir contributed magnificent service, and solos were rendered by Mrs. F. E. VanLaven and Miss Margaret Shepherd, whose closing anthem "Abide with me", was a most fitting climax to the impressive service of the day.

On Monday evening at 5.30 tea was served in the basement, and in the great Dining Hall of the church, which was filled again and again, so that when at 6 o'clock Rev. Dr. Carman, the able pastor of the church, took the chair to preside at the public meeting which formed part of the entertainment, a splendid audience was in expectation of a rare musical programme; nor were they disappointed, although the General Superintendent, Rev. Dr. Carman, had been called by wire to Toronto, to attend the Executive Committee on Japanese Church Union, yet such good service was given by resident and local talent that made up the splendid musical service, left nothing to be desired. The programme consisted of instrumental music by Mrs. Cairns-Bolton, Miss Clara Cairns, Mrs. F. E. VanLaven, and Mr. Fisher, and a quartette rendered a most delightful song, addresses by the Rev's. J. F. Mears, J. R. Cons, Martin J. Shaw, Gilbert Morton and Hugh Cairns, the whole programme being so delightful that it was the high Trinity church had set as a standard for its Anniversary services for the years to come.

The Traders Bank of Canada have established a branch of their institution at Tweed, and have made Mr. W. A. Parker, late manager of the Deseronto Bank there, manager.

IMPORTANT TO LADIES

It is not often an opportunity comes at your door to see the latest Parisian and New York styles in Hair Goods as such is the case, as Prof. Dorenwend, of Toronto, is visiting this town and invites your inspection of these goods at his private apartments reserved at the hotel.

These Hair Goods styles, when properly adjusted protect and enhance the head, soften and beautify the expression of the face, and incongruity of feature is an aged appearance. Be sure and see them at The Paisley House on March 27th. 114

Stop That Cold

To check early colds or Grippe with "Preventics" tablets is easier than to let it run and be obliged to treat it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but they are meant to prevent colds, not to cure them after they have developed. That's merely human. That's why they're called Preventics. They prevent colds—nothing sickening. Nice for the grippe, too. Nice for a cough. Nice for an idle hour before bed. Handy to slip into the pocket. Sold in packages of 25 cents. Or, if you prefer, a family package of 100 for $1.00. If you're not all over, think of Preventics; may also save half your cold. Don't forget your child. If you're not feeling quite right, Preventics will help you. Keep them in the house, carry them in the pocket, also in the home of friends. Recommend your druggist giving you Preventics.

THE OPAL SERPENT

By FERGUS HUME.

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Lady Detective," "Madame Midas's Pal," etc.

Copyright, 1907, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

Paul, in spite of his supposed hurry, was not ill pleased that Aaron had gone out and that there was an idle hour before him. He stepped lightly into the shop, and under the flaring gas—which was lighted, as the day was the interior of the shop in spite of the tumultuous gloaming—he encountered the smile of Barty. Paul, who was sensitive and proudly reticent, grew red. He knew well enough that his apparent admiration of Sylvia Norman had attracted the notice of Bart and of the red armed wench, Deborah Junk, who was the factotum of the household. Not that he minded, for both these servants were devoted to Sylvia and knowing that she returned the feeling of Paul said nothing about the position to Aaron. Besides, facts were to make enemies of the pair and bad to wish to do so. They were coarse grained and common, but loyal and kindly of heart.

"Got any new books, Bart?" asked Beecot, coloring a little with roving eyes, for he hoped to see Sylvia glide out of the darkness to bless his hungry eyes.

"No, sir. We never get new books," replied Bart smartly. "Leastways there's a batch of secondhand novels published last year. But bless you, Mr. Beecot, them ain't nothing new about them 'cept the bindings."

"You are severe, Bart. I hope to be a novelist myself."

"We need one, sir. For the most part them as write now ain't novelists, if that means telling anything as is new. But I must go upstairs, sir. Miss Sylvia said I was to tell her when you came."

"Oh, yes—er—er—that is—she wants to see a photograph of my old home. I promised to show it to her." Paul took a parcel out of his pocket. "Can't I go up?"

"No, sir. 'Twouldn't be wise. The old man may come back, and if he knew as you'd been in his house," Bart jerked his head toward the ceiling, "he'd take a fit."

"Why? He doesn't think I'm after the silver?"

"Lor' bless you no, sir. It ain't that. What's valuable—silver and gold and jewels and such like—he keeps there," Bart nodded toward the floor. "But Mr. Norman don't like people coming into his private rooms. He's never let in any one for years."

"Perhaps he fears to lose the fairest jewel he has."

Bart was what the Scotch call "quick in the uptake." "He don't think fit much of her as you seem to think, sir," said he gloomily. "But I know he loves her and wants to make her a great heiress. When he goes to the worms Miss Sylvia will have a pretty penny. I only hope," added Bart, looking slyly at Paul, "that he who has her to wife won't squander what the old man has worked for."

Beecot colored still more at this direct hint and would have replied, but at this moment a large, red faced, ponderous woman dashed into the shop by, God bless her for a pretty flower!" She pointed a course, red finger at Paul. "If you were a gay deceiver, Mr. Beecot, I'd trample on your corp this very minute if I was to die at Old Bailey for the doing of it."

Seeing Deborah was breathless again, Paul seized the chance. "There is no reason you shouldn't know all about me, and—"

"No, indeed, I should think not, begging your pardon, sir. What you told me, Miss Sylvia, I see, 'Ile's making eyes at you, my lily,' and she sez to me, she says, 'Oh, Debby, I love him, that I do.' And then I sez, sez I, 'My pretty, he looks a great born and bred, but that's the wust kind, so we'll find out if he's a liar before you loses your dear heart to him.'"

"But I'm not a liar"— began Paul, only to be cut short again.

"And well I knows it," broke out Miss Junk, her arms akimbo again. "Do you think, sir, as I'd ha' let you come loving my pretty one and no one knowing if it was Judas or Jesebel? Not me, if I never drank my nightly drop of beer again. So what you told Miss Sylvia of your frantic pa and your loving ma she told me. Marvelous case of Leo Corrigan which shows that skin diseases here-tofore considered hopeless can be cured.

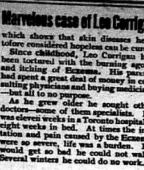
Since childhood Leo Corrigan has been tortured with the burning agony and loathsome itch of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in doctoring physicians and buying medicines —but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema drove him to severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1901, I had another attack, and I was advised by my wife (Miss Stewart, I) that this would be like the other remedies I had tried, good for no use to me. But to my great delight, in a few hours after the first application, I felt relief from pain.

"I continued it, using it as directed, and unhesitatingly state that it is the only remedy I have ever found to cure Eczema for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to work steadily, sleep soundly, and unhesitatingly state that it is the only remedy I have ever found to cure Eczema for me.

"I have a state of great irritation and sometimes excruciating pain. Mira Ointment relieves this, being capable of doing hard work every day, in a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has effected it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. or 6s 6d. At druggists—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 15 led downward into ——— Miss Junk snatched up a lantern on the top step and having lighted it dropped down, holding it above her red and tousled head. Far below her voice was heard crying to Beecot to "Come on." Therefore he followed as quickly as he could and soon found himself in the cellar. All around was dark, but Deborah lighted a couple of flaring gas jets and then turned, with her arms akimbo, on the visitor.

"Now then, sir, you and me must have a talk, confidential like," said she in her breathiest way. "It's pawning, is it? By which I knows that you ain't brought that overbearing ps of yours to his knees."

Paul sat down in a clumsy mahogany chair which stood near a plain deal table and stared at the handmaiden. "I never told you so out my father," he said, exhibiting surprise.

"Oh, no, of course not"—Miss Junk tossed her head—"me being a babe and a suckling, not fit to be told anything. But you told Miss Sylvia, and she told me, as she tells everything to her Debby, God bless her for a pretty flower!"

"Be quiet a course, red finger at Paul. "If you were a gay deceiver, Mr. Beecot, I'd trample on your corp this very minute if I was to die at Old Bailey for the doing of it."

Seeing Deborah was breathless again, Paul seized the chance. "There is no reason you shouldn't know all about me, and"— o'clock Saturday afternoon, and was without a point to spare.

The game was clean and only two penalties were imposed upon the players, T. Milsap and W. Kelley were the shining lights of the Ramblers, and wanted to be everywhere, making some lightning rushes, which proved irresistible time and again to the veteran Shamrock team Jakey Doupe and H. B. Gillett bore the brunt of the battle for the Shamrocks scoring all of the latter's goals. The Ramblers played a brilliant game in the first half, outclassing the Shams in every department of the game. With the score Ramblers 7, Shamrocks 3, at the close of the first half, Kelley's men looked easy winners, but on resuming play the Shamrocks woke up and played their opponents off their feet, and in fifteen minutes they had evened matters. Thanks to Doupe and Gillett's famous rushes, and M. Williams' checking.

Milsap made a sensational rush, breaking through all opposition and notched another for the Ramblers. Then A. Woodcock received a nasty thump on the temple from the puck and the game was stopped for a few minutes. On resuming play Gillett and Doupe, by some determined raid up the ice, and the score stood 8-8. At this stage of the game the Ramblers were playing a beautiful combination game, while the Shamrocks depended on individual rushes. Kelley-Milsap and Woodcock came down the ice like rockets and scored, sending their side one goal ahead. Doupe brought the spectators to their feet by one of his famous corkscrew rushes, and again the score was even 9-9 all. Then came a whistle blew for full time, and after a short brake Captains Kelley and McLeod, it was decided to play an extra ten minutes. The Shamrocks bombarded their enemy's net, and rained shot after shot, but goal tender Murphy was there every time and gave a splendid exhibition of Canada's winter game. Shamrock's best opportunity came when Milsap and Kelley were sent off for tripping, but Murphy always turned their shots wide, and the game ended 9-9.

PREVENT DISORDER. — At the first symptoms of internal disorder, Parmelee's Vegetable Pills should be resorted to immediately. Two or three of these salutary pellets, taken before going to bed, followed by doses of one or two pills for two or three nights in succession, will serve as a preventive of attacks of dyspepsia and all any disorders which follow in the train of that evil disorder. The means are simple when the way is known.

DO NOT DELAY.—When, through debilitated digestive powers, food fails to build into the blood, the prime consideration is to get the power to digest it quickly and thoroughly as possible. Delay may mean disaster. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a most valuable and effective medicine that lends to assimilation in the lower bowel. They go at once to the seat of the trouble and are thoroughly effective.

NEWS NOTES.

The coroner's inquest in the case of Mrs. Richard Lindsay, who, with two new born babes, were alleged to have died at her home near Jackson's Corners, as the result of neglect on the part of her husband, was held last night. The jury decided that Lindsay was guilty of criminal neglect and the man, as a result, was sent up for trial at Belleville. Lindsay had been sent for a doctor to attend his wife. He took a cow along with him to sell. He succeeded in this and forgot all about the doctor, and proceeded to spend the money. Alone with her young son, Mrs. Lindsay gave birth to twins. The boy ran to neighbors half a mile away but before these could reach the neglected mother had died, together with her two babes.

NEWS NOTES.

It is unofficially stated that the ex-czar has commuted the death sentence imposed upon Gen. Stoessel, for surrendering Port Arthur, to ten years' imprisonment in a fortress. It is expected that on the ground of ill-health a full pardon will be granted the general shortly.

J. S. McIntosh, 'a student at the Manitoba Agricultural College,' according to the warning, disappeared, and his dead body was found in the attic of the college, where he had committed suicide.

"Oh!" exclaimed Mamma, returning from a shopping trip, "what's the matter with little Tommy?"

It's a bad bumpy he got, ma'am. Ye know we told me I was to let him play upon the pianny an' once when he was alone on the loop of it he slid too far ma'am.

He—Will you give me a place in your heart?

She—Yes, if you can pay the rent.

A Week Long Special Showing and Selling of the New Laces and Embroideries.

Our customers may expect the rarest sort of a treat in the inspection of the thousands of yards of beautiful new Laces and Embroideries, which we are showing. They will more than meet your anticipation in the great variety of styles shown, in their exceptional beauty and in their unusually low pricing.

Among the Laces are exquisite Irish, Filet, Princess, Duchesse Point, Applique and Cluny in galloons, edgings, insertions, and medallions. Many novelty Laces, too, and new Black Laces.

The Embroideries include the finest product of St. Gall, Switzerland. Nainsook, and Swiss and Cambric edgings, insertions, bands, galoons, corset cover embroideries, flouncings and all-overs.

The breadth and beauty of the display will surprise you and our LOW PRICES will delight you.

Valenciennes Laces.

The quantity of Valenciennes lace to be used in 1908 is enormous. We anticipated and have ready in stock now as complete an assortment as one would wish to see. We have every piece sampled and designs are arranged in sets of insertions and edgings to match. Customers appreciate the systematic way in which we display our laces. There is no chance for laces to become mussed and crushed. We deliver them to you just as perfect as when they come off the machines. We do our own importing of Vals., saving many a penny for those who trade with us. In looking through our Valenciennes Laces you will find a lot of unique designs brought out, such as Blue Bell, Japanese Fan, Diamond, Shamrock, Star, Tadpole, Fagoting, Honiton, Coin Spot, Three Links, Pin Dots, Wheat, Clover, Roses, Lattice, Cross Stix, Lovers' Knot, Maltese, Sen Sen, Spider Net, Filet, Chrysanthemum, Tulip, American Beauty, Our Old Friend.

Our best values at 3c, 4c, 5c, 6c, 7c, and 8c. yard, are made in Nottingham. Above that price we pin our faith to the French Vals. that are made mostly in Calais.

Bed Spread Lace.

Made of a narrow lace braid edge and insertion to match. It is very effective for making bed spreads in combination with Point De Esprit and plain Brussels Net, 4c and 5c yard.

Brussels Lace.

This make of Lace comes direct to us from Belgium. The trade know it as "Real Duchess." It is the aristocrat of our Lace stock. Medallions, Insertions, Double Edges, Single Edges and All-overs to match. The shade is just off the white. Money put in this quality of lace is considered by lace lovers, as an investment. It may be handed down from one generation to another. Prices from $1.25 to $10.00 yd.

Bebe Irish Laces.

The Baby Irish Laces are all pure white and ivory. For waist decorating the Baby Irish is very effective. It wears so well and gives a tone to any garment you put it on. 2 inch to 12 inch widths. All-overs to match. 50c. to $7.50 yard.

Spring's Dainty and Airy Blousings.

NEW NETS—See our new Filet, Point De Esprit, Embroidered Dots in white, cream and black, 75c, $1.00, $1.25 yard.

ALL-OVER LACES—Introducing the very newest designs. Filet, German Val., Oriental, Venice, Plauen, Maltese, Duchess, Brussels, from 35c to $10.00 yard.

Real All Linen Torchons.

We have a number of customers that prefer the all linen real Torchon for trimming all kinds of under-garments. It will out wear every other kind of lace we know of. We find a tendency to prefer the fine small patterns and have guared our purchases accordingly. Edging with insertions to match, 10c to 30c. yd.

Better take a day off and become better acquainted with our stock of Laces and Embroideries.

Embroidered Waist Patterns.

Come to us one waist pattern of a kind. There is the Embroidery front in some beautiful design, insertion to match for sleeve trimming, and enough plain material for back and sleeves. Patterns, $2.00 to $5.00.

Waist Front Embroidery.

By the yard in designs suitable for to fasten in the back and front. Length of waist front is what you require to buy, say 2 or 2½ yard. $1.50 to $2.50 yard.

All-over Embroideries.

We don't think there ever was a season for Embroideries with so many novelty designs. We show the usual selection suitable for yokes, bonnets, etc., but the large quantities are used when it comes to Waist Patterns. White is not having all the good things. We show some very neat designs that are in white ground with very small figure of pink or sky, 75c to $3.00 yard.

Interior Displays Now Emphasize the Importance Of the Embroidery and Lace Stocks.

For Children's Dresses.

This year we brought out some very desirable patterns for Children's dresses. Some are about 27 inches wide with variations of beautiful lace and embroidery. Other widths of flouncing about 12 and 15 inches wide, $1.00 to $2.00 yard.

Swiss Embroideries.

Our Swiss Embroideries this year are the appenzell type of work. Very fine, smooth finish to all edges and having the appearance of hand work. Some very choice designs are here now that will start you up long. Just the kind for trimming the fashionable sheer materials. 35c. to $1.25 yard.

Hamburg Embroideries.

For trimming cambrics and bleached cottons one requires to use the heavier makes. We also have the embroidery on medium weights suitable for nainsooks, and madapollams 3c to 50c yard.

Millinery Opening.

We are busy getting ready for our Spring Millinery Opening, Saturday, March 21st.

There's Wear, Style and Economy in Our Boys' and Children's Clothing. Can You Ask More?

Any merchant who is experienced in the selling of Boys' and Children's Clothing can always get the best—IF HE WANTS TO.

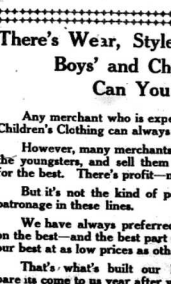
However, many merchants prefer to buy "cheap" Clothes for the youngsters, and sell them at prices which should be charged for the best. There's profit—much profit in that.

But it's not the kind of policy that builds up an established patronage in these lines.

We have always preferred to get the best—we always insist on the best—and the best part of it all is that we manage to sell our best at as low prices as others charge for "near-best."

That's what's built our leadership—that's why the same pare its come to us year after year for their children's Clothing.

Our ability to offer best for least never had better exemplification than in these new Spring stocks.



Knickers.

FOR CANADIAN BOYS—FULLY GUARANTEED — DOUBLE KNEES DOUBLE STITCHED POCKETS.

Prices for the extra good make and extra good quality cloth start at 75c in the small sizes — some are $2.00 each, but they are well worth it The cheaper kinds are 35c each, up to 75c. each.

ODESSA.

We join with many others of the district in tendering our sympathy with the family of the late Mr. Templeton. His death is irreparable to them and certainly is a loss to the community.

We are sorry to say that Mr. Timmerman, P. M., is very ill with pneumonia, and his friends are anxiously awaiting a change for the better, and a speedy recovery.

A child 5 years of age, of Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman, died one day last week. The little one had been ailing all winter, having contracted a cold during the fall, from which at last it was taken to its Heavenly home.

Mrs. W. J. Thompson's funeral was conducted in the Anglican church of this place, by the Rev. F. T. Dibb, of Napanee, on Monday, after which the body was taken to the vault at Wilton.

Mr. Nelson Booth, of Brooklyn, is paying a friendly visit to his friends and acquaintances, and is glad to be at his old home once more. All were pleased to see him.

Mr. Jas. Berbridge, of Napanee, was in this village also, on a brother's business.

Miss Winter, of Yarker, is installed as nurse.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Benyes spent a couple of days with his parents, and can to have occupied the C. M. pulpit on Sunday evening, but a storm caused them to hurry home, but another time we hope the weather will be favorable.

Miss L. Lee went to Toronto on Saturday She is engaged as stenographer to a leading firm.

A number of entertainments were given by different businesses. One at Col. Clyde's, where some fifty guests spent an extremely pleasant evening. Another at Mrs. Mc-Queen's, and at Mrs. Dawson's and Mrs. M. Parrott's.

We hear Mrs. S. J. Sprunk is improving slowly. Her sons, Bert and Fred., spent a couple of days with her, and later her daughters, Pearl and Flora, visited her for a few days.

Mrs. Parrott and son Harold are somewhat ill with the weather, but we hope to see them around in a few days.

A great many are on the sick list these days. Mrs. G. Campbell has gone to Marysville, from the Davis farm. He and wife will certainly be missed from the 9th of W. R. Sharman, of Cedarbrook, on attendance. Mr. B. Parks, from near here, is about going to E. Fredericksburgh. They will be missed in the musical circle, as the family could assist in that line well. Every day one may see loads of movables going north, south, East and west.

SOUTH AMERICAN NERVINE

tones the nerves, stimulates digestion, all essentials to perfect health. In so short a time a potency been put to severer test than that of W. H. Sharman, of Cedarbrook, Ont. Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

AT CRYSLER'S FARM.

The following paper was read by Miss. Jessie Crysler, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, on Friday evening, 28th February:

Come with me in thought, dear friends, to the eastern part of this Province, and as far back in years as the year 1812, when all Canada, then known as Upper and Lower Canada, was aroused by the news of an American invasion.

The cause of this invasion was mainly due to the dormant feeling of animosity which the American War of Independence left behind it, and a disinclination on the part of either, United States and Great Britain, to forbear one with the other, which thirty years of peace did not allay. The war of 1812 was an unnatural and aggressive demonstration. There is little doubt that America was influenced in provoking this war, by the temporary ascendancy and flattering representations of Napoleon I. Had they delayed their belligerent demonstration until after his final overthrow at Waterloo, the unnatural war of 1812 would never have been recorded in the historian's page. As it was, various were the excuses urged for the commencement of the war. Prominent amongst these, was the right of search claimed by Great Britain for the recovery of British seamen, on board neutral ships.

An unfortunate, and by the British Government, unwarranted application of this right to search ships of war in the year 1807 brought about a collision between the American frigate, "Chesapeake" and the English ship "Leopard. The former was known to have on board some deserters from the British navy, whom her captain refused to surrender; upon which the British captain fired a broadside, killing and wounding a number of Americans. The Chesapeake struck her colors, the deserters were arrested, and the ships parted. The Leopard proceeded to Halifax, where the deserters were tried by court-martial. One of them, a British-born subject, was sentenced to death and executed four days thereafter, the others were liberated. The English Government disowned the act, recalled their captain, and offered reparation, but the American mind was too much exasperated to listen to reasonable terms, and a proclamation followed forthwith, forbidding all British ships of war to enter the ports of United States.

A second naval engagement ended in a very different result from the affair of the Chesapeake. The American frigate, "President" fell in with the British ship-of-war "Little Belt" of 18 guns, off Cape Charles in May, 1811, and after a sanguinary encounter maintained by the British for half an hour, against such fearful odds, the ships withdrew and retired to their respective harbors. While the former engagements may well be supposed to have exasperated the Americans, the latter might naturally enough have been considered as an offset. A variety of unsatisfactory negotiations resulted in a recommendation by the President to place the United States army in a war-footing, by raising 10,000 regulars, and 50,000 militia. Congress were enthusiastic than the President, raised the levy to 25,000 regulars, and voted a loan of ten millions dollars to prosecute the war.

On the 18th of June, 1812, a bill declaring war against Great Britain passed the House of Representatives, Daniel Madison being President. For some time previous to this, General Hull had been concentrating a large force at Detroit, and was in readiness to invade Canada. On the 12th of July, 1812, he crossed over to Sandwich, with an army of 2,500 men and 33 pieces of cannon. His first attempt showed him the temper of the British steel, and he lost little time in beating a retreat to his stronghold in Detroit, where, strongly entrenched, a humiliating retribution awaited him. Again on the 13th of October of the same year, the Americans invaded Canada by way of Niagara, and were defeated at Queenston Heights. Irritated rather than discouraged, by these two successive failures, to possess themselves of Canada, the Americans resolved upon renewing the attempt, and a combined attack upon Upper and Lower Canada was determined upon; but they were again frustrated, the troops of both the contending parties were sent to winter quarters.

During the campaign of 1813 a number of engagements took place with varied success. Elated with these successes, the Americans openly announced their intention of at once taking possession of Montreal, the commercial capital and key of Canada. The American general Harrison with 8,000 men, was to complete the capture of Upper Canada. Wilkinson, with 10,000 men, at Sackett's Harbor, was in readiness to act as circumstances might indicate; and General Hampton lay at Chateaugay, prepared at a day's notice to march upon Montreal. It was arranged that Wilkinson should descend the St. Lawrence, and, being joined by Hampton at Lake St. Louis, that they two should close the campaign by a triumphal entry into Montreal, and establish themselves there in comfortable winter quarters.

The season being far advanced and all things now ready, Wilkinson moved his army to Grenadier Island, the place of rendezvous, and with a view of first reducing that post, and thus securing the complete command of the minor forts between that and Montreal. Finding, however, a powerful British force posted there, ready to receive him on the 6th of November, he skilfully shifted his plan of attack, and, while appearing to menace Kingston, suddenly changed his course down stream, and swiftly glided down the river into the vicinity of Ogdensburgh. Lieut.-Colonel Pearse was in command at Prescott, and kept a vigilant watch on the enemy's fleet. On the 10th of November he had dispatched Lieut. Duncan Clarke to Elliott's point, 5 miles above Brockville, with instructions to observe the movements of the enemy, investigating the river, and at the first appearance of the enemy, to endeavor to ascertain their number. On the evening of the 5th of November, Lieutenant Clarke, in obedience to command, reported the approach of the American army in great force, on board of a flotilla of boats of every description of craft, including several gun-boats.

Upon this announcement the most active preparations were made in Prescott to resist a landing, and to prevent them from passing down. Wilkinson, however, again dodged the British, unwilling to expose his troops to the guns of Prescott, he landed them on the American shore, two miles above, and marched them by a circuitous route about the same distance below Ogdensburgh. The boats, manned by only a few hands, kept close to the shore, and under cover of night passed the fort. An active pursuit was kept up on them the whole night, without doing any damage. Having dropped down beyond gun-shot reach, the troops again embarked, and soon glided down the Galops rapids, meeting with no obstruction until they reached Point Iroquois. There the river is reduced in width to about 500 yards and is very rapid. A guard of a hundred men were posted at this point, which commands an extensive view of the river. On Sunday afternoon, the 9th, they discovered the flotilla of boats and barges rapidly approaching; the river seemed literally covered by them. The advanced boats were soon abreast of the guard, who fired a volley at them by way of welcome. The report of the cannon aroused their comrades in the Dundas militia, 300 in number, who lay in the hollow in rear of the fort. They were quickly on the spot, and gave them another volley. The enemy were thrown into some confusion by this surprise, and being in ignorance of the number of their opponents, did not attempt a landing, but instantly struck across the river, and brought to, in the bay opposite. Wilkinson observing this movement, and determined to ascertain the cause of it, as well as the strength of his opponents, ordered the main body of the flotilla, still nearly a mile above the point, to draw into Canada's shore. Accordingly they landed and disembarked the troops, who, without losing a moment, proceeded by land in quest of a foe. The gallant little band of 300 were now in turn taken aback, and, perceiving resistance to be hopeless quickly relinquished their post, and made away allowing the invading host to pass down unmolested. As the day was now far spent, the Americans continued their march only about one mile below the present village of Iroquois, and encamped there by the river side, within sight of their comrades, who still kept to their boats in the bay opposite. These now got into the stream and crossing the river, landed at the same place. They remained there till Tuesday about noon, meanwhile making themselves quite at home, and receiving from the farmers such stores as they could supply. Their officers, strictly enjoined them to pay for everything that they took, and in justice to them it must be allowed, that the household stuff of the farmers was respected.

Wilkinson, suddenly alarmed by the report of an armed force coming down upon him from above, and rightly judging that he had tarried long enough, early on Tuesday, the 11th of November, embarked his forces, and passing without molestation proceeded to the lower limit line of Williamsburgh. He there halted for the purpose of obtaining pilots, lightening his boats and making other necessary arrangements for descending the dangerous rapids of the Long Sault. He was on the same day reinforced by about 1500 men, under General Brown, with a portion of artillery, from Sackett's Harbor, by land, to close the way of all retreat by that route. Wilkinson's army, now amounting to about 8,000 men, and accompanied by a numerous train of artillery, consisting of Commissariat stores and Munitions of war, was the consternation in Cornwall and neighborhood. Intelligence was speedily conveyed that a powerful American army had landed, and was even now at hand. Every man, woman, and child were summoned to fight for their king and country. Militia officers, old and young, who had frequently been seen to ride to and fro, with a sword on one side and a pitch fork, began to feel quite unsuitable to the dignity of a conflict, in which their rude implements would be met by the well-appointed bayonet of the well trained trooper. As soon as the enemy's landing had been ascertained, all the troops that could be found in the surrounding country were despatched to Cornwall, where a large amount of Government stores destined for Upper Canada, had been accumulated, and fifty wagons were loaded with the stuff, and before the American army arrived at Cornwall they were beyond its reach at St. Andrews, five miles in rear of the town. The cavalcade rested here for an hour, and then pushed on through mud and mire, till they reached Martintown, where they passed the night. The next evening they reached the river De Lisle and encamped on the bank, indulging in all kinds of surmises as to the result of the engagement in Williamsburgh, the whereabouts of the American army, and more especially as to the comparative force of the enemy, and the numerous carnasses. Their further retreat however was arrested by the arrival of Colonel Crysler direct from the battlefield, with news of the defeat of the American army. They immediately proceeded to Coteau du Lac, where they left the stores, and returned to their homes.

The day before Wilkinson, who we left at Williamsburgh. He effected a landing at Cook's Point, and from that place to Charlesville, a distance of about three miles, the shore was lined with his

NEW CURE FOR STOMACH

T. B. Wallace Gives His Readers a Chance To Try It.

Druggists do not often guarantee anything.

But T. B. Wallace assures persons suffering from distressing indigestion that they can surely be relieved.

Since nobody knows when, people have suffered from indigestion, sick headaches, bloating, dizzy spells, distress after eating, sleeplessness, and many other symptoms of stomach trouble, and have found the usual remedies powerless.

At last a prescription called Mi-o-na stomach tablets is offered to the medical profession and general public as a final solution of curing stomach and intestinal troubles. Its success everywhere has made it, in the last few years, the acknowledged specific it is to-day.

Strengthen the whole digestive system with Mi-o-na, and you will soon find the stomach and bowels do their work as they should There will be no distress after eating, and no need of physic.

T. B. Wallace has so much faith in the power of Mi-o-na to cure stomach ills that he gives a guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to cure.

EM NENT PHARMACISTS

Everywhere Acknowledge the Superiority of Vinol.

If one person more than another should know the value of a medicine it is the retail pharmacist.

For this reason such testimony as the following should be convincing.

C. A. Patterson, the leading druggist, of Charleston, W. Va., writes: "I have used Vinol for every member of my family, and have never been disappointed in the results. It is a pleasure to sell a remedy that gives such universal satisfaction."

Mr. Chas. E. Rogers, Druggist, of Elkton, Ky., writes: "I consider Vinol one of the best remedies in my store, and sell more of it than any one medicine. I have used Vinol in my family with excellent results."

Mr. J. F. Bradley of New Brunswick, N. J., writes: "It is a pleasure to recommend the cod liver preparation, Vinol, as it gives such splendid satisfaction. As I have used it in my family, I can readily attest from experience."

The reason Vinol is so far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions is because it contains all the medicinal, body building elements of cod liver oil actually taken from fresh cods' livers with all the useless oil eliminated and peptonate-of-iron added.

As a body builder and strength creator for old people, weak women, delicate children, after sickness and for all pulmonary troubles, Vinol is recommended by over 5000 of the leading druggists of the United States. Your money back if it fails. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

Weighed Four Pounds When Four Months Old

Most of the sickness that comes to babies and young children is due to the stomach or bowels and is caused by a bad condition. It is then that they are cross, peevish and upset the whole household. There are troubles that Baby's Own Tablets always cure promptly. Here is proof:—Mrs. J. Stewart, Everton, Ont., says: "My little girl thrived so badly that at four months she weighed but four and a half pounds. Her stomach was out of order, and although the doctor treated her he did not help her. Then I got Baby's Own Tablets and right from the first they helped her and now she is a perfect health." If your little one is ailing try Baby's Own Tablets. They always give satisfaction. Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A CHEAP EXCURSION, MARCH 16th.

On the above date the Rev. Dr. Marsh, Selby, F.R.C.S., will deliver an illustrated address on "Other Worlds Than Ours" in the Western Methodist church. Dr. Marsh is widely known as an authority on the geography of the skies, and has made many discoveries on this subject which are invaluable to science. He will illustrate his lecture on same by views taken through the largest and best telescopes in the world. No one can afford to miss this. Read posters and large bills for more particulars. 10b

HISTORICAL.

The March meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society will be held in the Library building on Friday evening, March 20th, 1908, at 8 o'clock. Mr. C. C. James, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, will deliver an address on "The Making of the Province." Mr. James is probably the best informed student of local history in Canada, and the address will be of great interest. A paper on "The Early Amusements of the County" will also be read. Every one welcome.

SAD DEATH.

Particularly sad was the death of Mrs. W. J. Hall, (formerly Minnie Sanderson), which took place at Grand Rapids, Mich., on Thursday last, after but a short illness. Deceased was visiting here last summer while her sister was so ill, and left for her home in August. She was about thirty years of age and leaves below her husband, two little daughters, seven and three years of age. The remains reached here on Sunday, and the funeral took place on Monday afternoon. Her mother, two sisters and three brothers mourn the loss of a loving daughter and sister.

WEDDING BELLS AT NEWBURGH.

On Tuesday, 3d March, 1908, at 10 a.m., a very pretty wedding was solemnized in the R. C. Church, Centreville, when Miss Elizabeth Geben, of Camden East, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. P. J. Finn, of Newburgh. The Rev. John MacCarthy officiated. The wedding march was played by Mrs. W. Dunn. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Thomas Geben, who was daintily arrayed in a white taffeta gown trimmed with Irish point lace, and carrying a white prayer book was assisted by Miss Marcella Finn, sister of the groom, while the groom's brother, Mr. William Finn, acted as best man. After the ceremony the wedding party, accompanied by the Rev. Father MacCarthy, and his sister, drove to the home of the bride's father, where they partook of a wedding dinner. A large number of costly presents testified to the esteem in which the young couple are held, amongst these gifts being two handsome checks from the groom's father. Amid showers of rice the newly wedded pair left on the afternoon train for Toronto, the bride wearing a smart gown of a brown color, with hat to match. The good wishes of many friends accompany them in the new life upon which they have embarked, under such auspicious circumstances.

Dear Madam,—I regret that the report about you and Norman Jackson circulated any circulation through me. I am satisfied it was not true and I unconditionally retract the statements made by me.

LORA LOCKWOOD.

ROONEY—HEATON.

At New York, on Tuesday, March 3d, 1908, Margaret Josepha Rooney, daughter of Mrs. Patrick Rooney, of No. 117 West 39th Street, was married to Charles Aloysius Heaton, in the Church of Holy Name, Broadway and Nineteenth Street. Miss Dorothy Mara was maid of honor, and Senator Luke A. Keegan best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Morris, assisted by Father Connaty. The ushers were Messrs. Miralph Regyes, Richard Emily Keeve, Frank B. Sweeny and John O'Brien. There was a reception and breakfast in the Manhattan Hotel.

THE MARCH ROD AND GUN.

Hunting takes the pride of place in the March number of "Rod and Gun and Motor Sports in Canada," published by W. J. Taylor at Woodstock, Ont. From the fascinating sport of caribou hunting in Newfoundland we are taken to deer stalking in the Gatineau Valley, hunting on a Quebec preserve, a successful hunt in Muskoka; and a successful one in New Brunswick. The C. P. R. Wolf Hunt is told about, while a bear hunt is also described. These papers are varied by an excellent one on the blood hound. Some rough backwoods experiences show the reality as compared with the glitter of the life on the frontiers of civilization. Good illustrations are a feature of this number.

WHO BUILT THE PYRAMIDS?

Hard to tell in some instances. But we know who are the great Nerve Builders. They are Scott & Bowne. Their Scott's Emulsion feeds and strengthens brain nerves. 10b

GRAND CONCERT.

A grand St. Patrick's concert, under the auspices of the congregation of St. Patrick's church, will be given in the Bijou Opera House, Napanee, on Tuesday, March 17th. The following eminent talent will take part in the evening's entertainment, some of the best Irish talent obtainable: Miss Grace E. Grant, soprano, Belleville; Miss Jessie Bell, contralto, Belleville; Mr. F. E. Bell-Lawn, soprano, Napanee; Mr. Percy Bell-Lawn, baritone, Belleville; Mr. Chas. Fisher, baritone, Napanee; and the Ladies' Quartette of St. Patrick's Club, all under the direction of Mrs. Dr. Lowtridge, Napanee. Signor H. Mesi will preside. Plan of seats open a. 14th March. Tickets, reserved seats, 75 cts.; gallery, 25 cts.

Pain can be quickly stopped. A 25 cent bottle of Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets will kill any pain, everywhere, in 20 minutes! Dependable, thoroughly safe. Painful periods with women, neuralgia, etc., quickly cease after one tablet. For sale by T. B. Wallace. 10d

HOCKEY.

What resulted in a game of rugby on Newburgh ice, was a hockey match played on Wednesday afternoon between the Newburgh Shamrocks and Napanee Bankers. Owing to the softness of the ice the slush was more in evidence than the puck, and it resulted in a game of slashing and roughness on Newburgh's part, which could not be stopped. But in spite of all this, Napanee Bankers defeated them, the official score being Napanee 7, Newburgh 1. The Napanee line-up was as follows: Goal, Sharp; point, Watt; cover point, Chesebro; forwards, Lyons, Madder, Anderson, Carroll. Referee, J. I. Oldfield.

On Monday evening a friendly game was played between a junior team of girls and the Bankers. The conditions were that the Bankers were to play with their left hand only. The line-up was: Goal, Bessie; Grace Ward; point, Miss Shorey; cover point, Helen Trimble; forwards, Irene Hooper, Lucy Scott, Jean Gibson, Estella Douglas. Bankers—Deal; Holmes; point and cover point, Hannah Bessie; forwards, Hunter, Oldfield, Anderson and Watt. The score at the finish was 2 all. Joseph McNeil referred the game to the satisfaction of all.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS.

The following address and presentation occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Brown, Empey Hill, recently:

To Mr. and Mrs. David Brown:—

During the past year, owing to the destruction of your home by fire, you have been disturbed and put to great inconvenience, having passed through the rough seas and stormy skies, which all must at times encounter; but we are glad you are safely anchored in your new home.

When we read of the dread havoc wrought by fire in the destruction of a school house in Ohio, last week, and the burial loss of life, we were moved by deep sympathy and poignant sorrow for the fathers and mothers and homes left bereaved through a loss that is irreparable.

We thank our Heavenly Father that no such loss is yours. But as your friends we need to rejoice with you in your new home. We come to unite with you in thanksgiving for His kind Providence which has enabled you to be the possessor of this beautiful home. Long may you live to enjoy it, until called to dwell in the eternal home.

In remembrance of past friendly and neighborly associations in church and society, and trusting this small token will remind you of our unbroken fraternity, we present you with this butter dish, silver butter knife, sugar shell and china bread plate.

C. L. Thompson, Pastor.
William Smith, Leader.

In behalf of Empey Hill Congregation.

WESLEY.

Owing to the storm, there was no service here on Sunday.—Miss A. Milligan, Tamworth, is renewing old acquaintances here.—The Epworth League was largely attended last Wednesday night, and Misses Aggie and Gertrude Clancy, Newburgh, spent Sunday at Mr. Geo. Wartman's.—Miss Edna Allen is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Henry Allen.—Mr. Ed. Sexsmith is all smiles; it's a girl.—Mr. Noble McGill, who has been ill with la grippe is improving.—Miss Jean Mitchell, Napanee, spent Sunday in our midst.—Mr. Percy Yeomans has returned home, after operating a few days at Collins' Bay.— Miss Ida Wartman spent the week-end with Miss Maggie Lockridge.—Our teacher, Miss McGill, entertained a few of the young people on Saturday evening last.—Mr. Nesbit, I.P.S., called on the school last week.

ODESSA.

There was a larger attendance than was expected, owing, to inclement weather and bad roads, at the concert in the Methodist church here, on the evening of the 13th inst. The programme was of a high order and was exceedingly well rendered. Miss Horton, of Morven, the soloist of the evening, sang very fine, and remarkably difficult songs, displaying a beautiful high soprano voice, in a very pleasing manner, and attractive appearance. She was loudly applauded, and very kindly responded to the hearty encores. A reading by Mrs. McDougall, and recitations by Miss M. Johnston and Miss Grange was very well rendered and pleased the audience. The selections by the orchestra were also much appreciated. We hope for the pleasure of hearing the above entertainers again in the near future.

NEWBURGH.

Another interesting literary was held at the High School on Friday afternoon last, with the President, Mr. John Perry, in the chair. The literary part of the programme was furnished by Messrs. William Skinner and Burdette Pomeroy, in two instructive and well written essays on the pulp industry of Canada and the problems associated with it. Burdette's essay was read by Milton Lawrence. The Glee Club gave the opening chorus, and the boys contributed a rousing chorus. Miss Bella Pomeroy rendered a solo in good style. Miss Pearl Patterson contributed a vocal solo and Miss Bessie Lawrence an instrumental solo. Percy Nesbit had to respond to an encore to his vocal solo. Miss Ruth Patterson acted very acceptably as critic.

It is difficult to know why your reporter is out of the hockey match between the Napanee Bankers and Newburgh Shamrocks last week, should have received a win for the Bankers 2 to 1. The score however was not disputed by anyone at the time, was 3 to 1 in favor of the Shamrocks.

Miss Frances Welbanks, teaching at Erinsville, visited at her home on Sunday.

Miss Annie Milligan spent Sunday with the Misses Clancy.

Miss Bird Madden spent Saturday and Sunday in Napanee at Rev. J. F. Mears'.

Try the East End Barber Shop for Cigars and Tobacco, or get a first-class shave or hair cut. J. N. OSBORNE, Proprietor.

The sympathy of all in this vicinity goes out to the bereaved parents. The funeral took place on Thursday, both being buried in one grave, side by side, by the Rev. Mr. Huyck, Methodist pastor. Mr. Deol was a farmer in the 2nd con. Sidney, and having lived together 65 years. They leave a family of children, some of whom passed over the tide, and a number survive them. The old couple were very much loved for their kindness as friends and neighbors, in this locality, and all feel that they have lost friends. It was one of the saddest funerals ever held in this locality. The church was crowded into the doors, and as many more could not get in. Mr. Deol will be much missed in this locality, as he was much known at one time as a hotel keeper in Maude Lane and Mr. E. C. Bebee spent Sunday, March 9th, with friends in Maude Lane intends starting his new planet and machine business on the 1st April.—Mr. Geo. The death occurred on Friday afternoon of one of the oldest men in Canada, in the person of Mr. Antoin Gagne, who turned his hundred and fifth year last January. The old man had enjoyed excellent health until a few months ago, since which time he had been confined to his house, although his mental powers were fairly bright. He really died of old age, being attended on his death bed by five generations of descendants.

Now that the cold weather is about over, the police are in a position to make a statement as to the number of cases of destitution reported to them during the winter in Winnipeg, Man. Although a large number of men have been out of employment, it is certain that there has been less real poverty in the city during this winter than for many years. Only a few urgent calls were received for assistance from families in destitute circumstances.

A despatch from Vancouver says: Daniel Stetson, a handlogger, after losing his right leg crawled through two miles of bush to tide water at Toba Inlet, 250 miles north of Vancouver, got into a boat and rowed two miles to a logging camp. He was working alone and was upset by a falling tree and his right leg was crushed. Stetson cut the shreds of the skin remaining. The men in camp procured the launch Dolphin and brought him to Land. From there he was taken to Vananda hospital, where he died. The body was taken to Vancouver.

The public are requested to keep in mind the concert to be given in the Brisco Opera House, on Friday evening next, March 27th, by Miss Anderson, pianiste, and Walter McKaye, violinist. Proceeds in aid of a school music fund. Plan open Wednesday.

Accident Near Tweed.

Tweed, March 17.—A light engine, No. 890, running ahead of a passenger train, this afternoon at about 3 o'clock overtook a handcar, on which were five men, at a point a mile east of Kaladar Station, and killed three of them. Kaladar is 17 miles east of Tweed.

The five men on the handcar were all sectionmen, and included Alex. Brand, Foreman, and John Anderson, his son-in-law; Jas. Woolbrock, and two other men who joined all three named being killed. They were all married men and leave families. Mr. Anderson lost both her husband and her father by the tragedy, the two men who survived escaped by jumping.

There is a sharp curve at the scene of the accident and although the survivors say a lookout was being kept both ways, sufficient notice of the approach of the engine was not received. It is supposed that the light engine did not make enough noise to attract attention, as a heavy train would have done, until it was too late.

The engineer of the No. 890 was Albert Connor of Havelock.

The bodies of the three victims are now in the freight shed at Kaladar.

WESTERN METHODIST CHURCH COMPLIMENTARY BANQUET.

The Western Methodist church is never asleep, but on Thursday of last week, it was awake with unusually wide awakeness. Man's Banquet was given. It was a gathering together of the faithful, who partook of a fully decorated banqueting room 200 male members and adherents of the church sat down to an abundance of food. The young men of the church acted as waiters, and nothing that would add to the comfort or enjoyment of the evening was omitted.

The dinner was excellent, the service was complete and every man had abundant opportunity to enjoy the satisfaction that comes from a good dinner spiced with song and story. There was no restraint apparent, and good fellowship was evidenced by the hum of conversation and bursts of laughter. Gathered about the platter of the church at the head table were resident ministers, and on the right and left were two of the oldest members of the community, as well as one of the church, Gilbert Mr. Ellis.

Promptly at 9 o'clock, Rev. J. R. Real, assuming the position of toastmaster, began, and in felicitous remarks, extended the welcome of the church to the men present. He deprecated his inability to fitly express that welcome, so great it was. He remarked that it was hearty because the welcome was from the heart. Letters of regret were sent by Rural Dean Boyle, Rev. W. G. Johnston, Canon Jarvis, Rev. Dr. Sliss and Father O'Connor.

The first toast was "The Dominion," proposed by a hearty singing of the National Anthem, and the enthusiasm with which the invitation set the ball rolling. Hearty applauding, incident to the putting on of speeches, followed. The toast to the King was proposed by Mr. F. S. Wilson, and he happened to be the first to do so. The toast to propose the toast to "our country," second to the King, was political and religious in character. With this toast he mopped the names of Mr. Ellis, Mr. Gilbert Mr. Ellis, Mr. Meara. In reply, Mr. Ellis spoke feelingly as a man of large stature. It is a great country, he said, and has 5,000 miles of coast line from sea to sea. No province is perfect, but every one adapted to itself if all the resources were developed. Great because of our relation to the Empire. "Lady of the Snows" Well, it may be, but we have neighbors. Eight months for twelve months that could support herds to feed all of Great Britain, and more. Whether the 11 inches of snow that fell in England, an incident in which Mr. Ellis was personally interested, was all of his adopted land, a story man should speak well of his country or else get out. There is no finer land than England but my ardent hopes and aspirations are of Canada. It is an effort to speak well of Canada. She speaks for herself. She is mentioned in the Psalms, for we read "A Dominion from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth."

"The Sister Churches" proposed by Mr. J. R. Madill, was responded to by Rev. J. R. Conn. He stated his delight at being present and at speaking on such a topic. "We need men. There is ability in the world that we require. Whether or not it stands for the church stands for a better citizenship life. And the great moral interests are being promoted by men. Our country, our community and our church needs the intelligence of its men. Our country is big and broad. Are we big enough?

Continuing, Mr. Emsley said that all true citizens are needed for our country. We are one, though we vary in the form of our worship. We differ in creed, but denomination we are one. We are one in faith, though we may differ in politics. We are one in song, one in ambulance, one in ethics, one in the work of the world. The various churches we all enter.

Mayor Reid proposed "Our Hosts — the Western Methodist church." Rev. G. S. Shepherd responded with interesting history and many reminiscences of "this" church. The original church was built in 1840, and was in the old Methodist burying ground. The present building was built during the pastorate of Rev. F. G. Stone.

Mr. M. S. Madole briefly sketched the various departments of church work, and invited the men assembled to attend the services on their right, and every opportunity. His invitation was evident and cordial.

"Our Guests" was happily proposed by Mr. Ira Paul, who stated a few of the blindnesses of the human eye, and said Mr. Charles Flint was physically paying glowing tribute to the Mesdeslaus, Mr. Flint, Doctor Vogt, and others, were friendly with the European organizations. He has been identified with the church for many years, and though his tune might have lacked melody, it was full of harmony.

Mr. Flint was next proposed by Doctor Minz, who responded to the toast. He was pleased to be invited on the right place occupied by woman. Given good mothers, there are not less serious problems.

Rev. C. W. DeMille borrowed words from a previous speaker, and declared that the Canada, woman could speak for herself.

The last toast, "Our Absent Friends" was proposed by Mr. Chas. Stevens, and responded to by Mr. Gilbert.

The Male Quartette of the W. M. church rendered several selections during the evening, and Master Lorne Merig rendered two solos that were encored heartily.

At a very few minutes to twelve the happy evening was concluded by singing the Doxology. As the banqueters passed out, one every hand was heard unstinted praise for the pleasure and profit of the occasion. The originator is to be congratulated and those responsible for the complete arrangements deserve and receive the hearty thanks of all. Napanee has seen many happy men gathered but few if ever out just on a par with this.

IN LOVING MEMORY.

In loving remembrance of Thanie, oldest son of Mr. Nathaniel and Mrs. Arlon, who died March 10th, 1908.

Dearest Thanie, thou art gone,
Left us here to mourn alone;
His years of toil for us are o'er,
He's gone to meet the angels more.

His parents they have watched and cared,
Broken is the circle of the home;
The one they loved is not there,
Reached that bright world beyond the tomb.

Lonely and end their hearts shall be
When gazing on his vacant chair;
Yet, we again his face shall see,
When we leave this world of care.

Little Thanie, kind and gentle,
Thou was good and pure and true;
All his friends and schoolmates,
They will greatly miss you too.

Three dear sisters, three dear brothers.
He live left, oh, so sad, lonely;
But murmur not, it was the Lord,
Nothing pay up for Thanie He had.

So, do not fret, God willed it so,
What He has done, the cares are o'er;
And when we reach that home above,
All things to us will be made plain.

PRINTED BY REQUEST.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle, and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. A local druggist is the authority for the above simple, effective mixture, can be obtained at a nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged and inactive Kidneys, overcome Rheumatism, Backache weakness and Urinary troubles of all kinds, if taken before the first stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination, especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial, as it is said to do wonders for many people.

The Scranton (Pa.) Times was first to print this remarkable prescription, in October, of 1906, since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg and other cities have made many announcements of it to their readers.

GRAFFEN—CUNNINGHAM.

A very pretty little ceremony was solemnized at St. Jarlath's Church, Chicago, on March 4th, at 11.30 a.m., when Miss Mary Josephine, of Chicago, was united in marriage to Mr. Joseph Graffen, of Napanee, Ontario. The bride was handsomely attired in white silk trimmed with lace and carried a shower bouquet of white roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Ada Schuetzler, and the groomsman was Mr. Chas. Cunningham, who has been for some time a resident of Napanee. The bride is a lady of many accomplishments and has a host of friends who will wish her every happiness in her new home. The groom is a young man of sterling worth and has a host of friends who will wish him every success in his new home. The groom was assisted by Miss Ada Schuetzler, and the groomsman was Mr. Chas. THE MOUNTAIN HATH LABORED.

Messrs. Electors and Ratepayers,—The extensive deserves credit for attracting your best attention to the finances of the township. As Chairman I consider too much apathy on the part of many people as to the management of township affairs. While we do not ing an interest in this controversy would do well to peruse the last municipal report. In the two tables of assets and liabilities are presented the financial condition of the future reference; and the rest might be perused with profit and pleasure. In the matter of giving such figures I consider it brought out a clearer show where they are not quite so much interested in the financial part, that would be tedious, I will content myself with only giving the totals, as the detail would muddled mess he has made of this matter. I will show that his statement of unsolicited taxes of $17,847.20 is false. He uses the cash items to do it. Now that $2,236 which was received from the school trustees is included in the item $2,815.35, and then he put it in again in "unsolicited taxes," and then put it together over $4,000.00 paid to schools and $2,236 to make $6,236.

I will take the items of assets and liabilities as in regular order and will try to be as brief as possible, and still make matters plain for the people.

The first item is right.

Second item—You will notice a difference of $17.15. Now those mortgages names run up the hall of that much interest in fifteen days, and that was the length of time between the two statements, so that is wrong.

Third item—Right.

Fourth item—On the 8th September, we paid the Treasurer $1,000.00 on the 1907 rate that year, leaving a total of $1,447.20 out $6,236 on the 1907 rate. That was paid in as follows:

Nov.	4	Ward No. 1	$ 450 00
	5	Ward No. 3 and 6	270 00
	7	Ward No. 2	787 19
	14	Ward No. 5	1,000 00
	21	Ward No. 4	1,000 00
	25	Ward No. 1	949 81
Dec.	4	Ward No. 3 and 6	1,000 00
	14	Ward No. 1	567 00
	16	Ward No. 2	200 00
	18	Ward No. 5	20 44
		Uncollected taxes	1,447 20
		Total	$7,742 20

Now I think I have got it this time so as to make it plain to the ratepayers, and I am amazed that a man who gets $1,200 per year should make such a mess of it

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak blood. Because, The Kidneys, like the Heart, and that Nerves, feel their weakness, not in the organs, but in the nerves that control and help to strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is foolish. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the nights trouble you, if you don't get strong, if you have symptoms of bladder or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a positive help—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

By FERGUS HUME.

Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," "The Madame's Fan," etc.

Copyright, 1905, by G. W. Dillingham Company.

"Her you'll see, If I die for it," said Deborah, and whirled up the wooden steps in a silent manner surprising in so notary a woman. Paul heard the trapdoor drop with a stealthy creak.

As a key grated in the lock of the outside door he glanced around the place to which he had penetrated for the first time. It was of the same size as the shop overhead, but the walls were of stone, green with slime and feathery with a kind of ghastly white fungus. Overhead, from the wooden roof, which formed the floor of the shop, hung innumerable spiders' webs thick with dust. The floor was of large flags cracked in many places, and between the chinks in some of them sorts sprouted sparse, colorless grass. In the center was a dead table, scored with queer marks and splotched with ink. Over this flared two gas jets, which twinkled shrilly. Against the wall, which was below the street, were three green painted safes fast locked; but the, opposite wall had in it the narrow door aforesaid, and a wide grated window, the bars of which were rusty, though strong. The atmosphere of the place was cold and musty and suggestive of a charnel house. Certainly a strange place in which to transact business, but everything about Aaron Norman was strange.

And he looked strange himself as he stepped in at the open door. Beyond, Paul could see the shallow flight of damp steps leading to the yard and the passage which gave admission from the street. Norman locked the door and came forward. He was as white as a sheet, and his face was thickly beaded with perspiration. His mouth twitched more than usual, and his hands moved nervously. Twice as he advanced toward Paul, who rose to receive him, did he cast the odd look over his shoulder. Beecot fancifully saw in him a man who had committed some crime and was fearful lest it should be discovered or lest the avenger should suddenly appear. Deborah's confidential talk had not been without its effect on the young man, and Paul beheld in Aaron a being of mystery. Never such a man—never such a daughter as Sylvia Paul could not guess.

"Here you are, Mr. Beecot," said Aaron, rubbing his hands as though the cold of the cellar struck to his bones. "Well?"

"I want to pawn a brooch," said Beecot, and he pulled out the case from his pocket. "A friend of mine would have bought it, but as it belongs to my mother I prefer to pawn it so that I may get it again when I am rich."

"Well, well," said Aaron abruptly and resuming his downcast looks, "I shall do what I can. Let me see it."

He stretched out his hand and took the case. Slowly opening it under the gas, he inspected the contents. Suddenly he gave a cry of alarm, and the case fell to the floor. The opal serpent, with its eyes of sparkling fire, reared, growing purple in the face. "Keep off! Keep off!" He beat the air with his lean hands. "Oh, the opal!" and he fell face downward on the slimy floor in a fit or a faint, but certainly a swoon.

CHAPTER III.

NEAR the Temple station of the Metropolitan railway is a small garden which contains a certain number of fairly sized trees, a round bandstand and a few flower beds intersected by asphalt paths. Here those who are engaged in various offices round about come to enjoy a run in turbo, to listen to the gay music. And lovers meet here also, so it was quite in keeping that Paul Beecot should wait by the bronze statues of the Herculaneum wrestlers for the coming of Sylvia.

On the previous day he had departed hastily after committing the old man to Deborah's care. He would have lingered to see Aaron revive, but when the old man showed signs of life and wish to leave a place where he had lain for over twenty years, Paul thought it best to avoid explanations, and Paul after a pause.

"I think that will be best, dear. Father will then be pleased like to see you again and told Bart to bring you in if he saw you."

Paul called today—this afternoon, and perhaps your father will explain. And now, Sylvia, that is enough about old, or people and other things. Let us talk of ourselves."

Sylvia turned her face with a sad smile. She was a delicate and dainty little lady, with large gray eyes and soft brown hair. Her complexion was transparent, and she had little color in her cheeks. With her oval face, her thin nose and charming mouth she looked very pretty and young. But it was her expression that Paul loved. That was a little sad, but when she smiled her looks changed as an overcast sky changes when the sun bursts through the clouds. Her figure was perfect, her hands and feet showed marks of breeding, and, although her gray dress was as demure as they worn by a Quakeress, she looked bright and merry in the sunshine of her lover's presence. Knowing about Sylvia was dainty and neat and exquisitely clean, but she was hopelessly out of the fashion. It was this odd independence in dress which constituted another charm in Paul's eyes.

The place was too public to indulge in lovemaking, and it was very delightful to sit near this vision of beauty without gaining the delight of a kiss. Paul flashed his eyes, and had a pretty gray gloved hand under cover of her dress. Further he could not go.

"Can you be jealous, Paul?" Sylvia asked suddenly.

"Horrible! You don't know half my bad qualities. I am poor and needy and ambitious and jealous and"—

"There, there. I won't hear you run yourself down. You are the best boy in the world."

"I certainly have found an enchanted princess sleeping in a jealously guarded castle. What would your father say did he know?"

Sylvia looked startled. "I am afraid of my father," she replied indirectly. "Yes, he is so strange. Sometimes he seems to love me and at other times to hate me. We have nothing in common. I love books and art and poetry and dresses. But father only cares for jewels. He has a lot down in the cellar. I have never seen them, you know," added Sylvia, looking at her lover, "nor have Deborah or Bart. But they are there. Bart and Deborah say so."

"Has your father ever said so?"

"No. He won't speak of his business in the cellar. When the shop is closed at 7 he sends Bart away home and locks Deborah and me in the shop. That is," she explained anxiously, lest Paul should think her father a tyrant, "he locks the door which leads to the shop. We can walk all over the house. But there we stop till next morning. When father unlocks the door at 7 and Bart takes down the shutters. We have lived like that for years. On Sunday evenings, however, father does not go to the cellar, but takes me to church. He has supper with me upstairs and then locks the door at 10."

"But he sleeps upstairs?"

"No. He sleeps in the cellar."

"Impossible. There is no accommodation for sleeping there."

Sylvia explained. "There is another cellar—a smaller one—off the large place he has the safes in. The door is in a dark corner almost under the street line. This smaller cellar is fitted up as a bedroom, and my father has slept there all his life. I suppose he is afraid of his jewels being stolen. I don't think it is good for his health, added the girl wisely, "for often in the morning he looks ill and his hands shake."

"Sylvia, does your father drink alcohol?"

"Oh, no, Paul! He is a teetotaler and is very angry at those who drink to excess."

"He either drinks or smokes opium," thought Paul on hearing Sylvia's denial. But he said nothing to her of this.

"I must go home now," she said, rising.

"Oh, no, not yet," he implored.

"Well, then, I'll stay for a few minutes longer, because I have something to say," she remarked and sat down again. "Paul, do you think it is quite honorable for you and me to be engaged without the consent of my father?"

"Well," hesitated Beecot, "I don't think it is as it should be. Were I well off I should not fear to ask your father everything, but as I am a pauper he would forbid my seeing you. Did he learn that I had raised my eyes to you. But if you like I'll speak, though it may mean our parting forever."

"Paul," she said a firm, small hand

CONSUMPTION.

Its Cause and Suggested Means of Recovery.

Consumption is not always an inherited disease, and a large percentage of cases may be attributed to the following causes:

First, defective digestion. Second, imperfect nutrition as a result of the first. Third, the accumulation of morbid product in the lungs for the reason of imperfect nutrition, and this in turn breaks down the function of respiration and consumption is an established disease.

The first step toward a cure is to restore the function of nutrition, and to this end nothing in the world excels Vinol.

It is for this reason we want every person in Napanee to know about our delicious cod liver preparation, Vinol, which is far superior to old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions because it is made by a scientific extraction and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron, the medicinal, healing, body building elements of cod liver oil, but not all.

In pulmonary diseases, it nourishes the body, increases vigor, checks the cough and often mitigates the disease. As a strength-creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run down persons, and after sickness, Vinol is unexcelled.

We and Napanee people try Vinol on our offer to return their money if it does not give satisfaction. T. B. Wallace, Druggist, Napanee, Ont.

DANGEROUS PURGATIVES

Many People Ruin Their Health Using Purgatives in Spring.

A spring medicine is an actual necessity. Nature demands it as a part of the carrying off the impurities that have accumulated in the blood during the winter months. Thousands of people are realizing the necessity of a spring medicine done themselves with harsh, griping purgatives. This is a serious mistake. Ask any doctor and he will tell you that the use of purgative medicine weakens the system, but does not cure disease. In the spring the system needs building up, purgatives weaken. The blood should be made rich, red and pure—purgatives cannot do that. What is needed in the spring is a tonic, and the best tonic medicine science has yet devised is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose of this medicine actually makes new rich red blood. This new blood strengthens every organ, every nerve, every part of the body. That is why they cure headache, backaches, rheumatism, neuralgia, general weakness and a host of other troubles that come from poor, watery blood. That is why men and women who use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills eat well, sleep well, and feel bright, active and strong. Mrs. Joseph Lepage, St. Jerome, Que., says: "My daughter suffered from headaches and dizziness. Her appetite was poor. She had no strength and would be ready to cry or do any work. She was thin and pale as a sheet. A neighbor advised the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and before finishing a couple of boxes she was improvement in her condition. She used in all seven boxes and was entirely well and strong. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

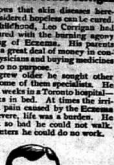
Marvellous case of Leo Corrigan

which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Shore Chief, Leo Corrigan, of Montreal been tortured with the burning agony and itching of Eczema. For years he had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines —but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.



He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1901, I had another attack, as I was advised by a friend, Mr. Bourgeault, that I should be like the other remedies I had tried, a few days' use of Miva would give me relief. And so it was; after the first application, I felt great relief.

"I continued using it, now, two months, and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has entirely cured me for me. Since using Miva Ointment I have gained fifteen pounds, and I am glad to recommend it to sufferers from Eczema."

From a state of constant irritation and many times excruciating pains to freedom from all such, being completely cured, going hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Miva Ointment has effected it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Miva."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Miva Ointment. Get a box to-day, 50c. —6 for $2.50. At druggists—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 15 the unconscious man came to his senses and opened his eyes he fainted again when his gaze fell on Paul, so he left.

It was strange that the sight of the brooch should have produced such an effect on Aaron, and his fainting confirmed Paul's suspicions that the old man had not a clean conscience. But what the serpent brooch had to do with the matter Beecot could not conjecture.

While he was trying to solve the mystery a light touch on his arm made him wheel round, and he beheld Sylvia standing at his side.

"I can't stay long," said Sylvia. "My father is still ill, and he wants me to return and nurse him."

"Has he explained why he fainted?" asked Paul anxiously.

"No; he refuses to speak on the matter. Why did he faint, Paul?"

The young man looked puzzled. "Upon my word I don't know," he said. "Just as I was showing him a brooch I wished to pawn he went off."

"What kind of a brooch?" asked the girl, also perplexed.

Paul took the case out of his breast pocket, where it had been since the previous day. "My mother sent it to me," he explained. "You see, she guesses that I am hard up, and, thanks to my father, she can't send me money. This piece of jewelry she has had for many years, but as it is rather old fashioned she never wears it. So she sent it to me, hoping that I might get £10 or so on it. A friend of mine wished to buy it, but I was anxious to get it back again so that I might return it to my mother. Therefore I thought your father might lend me money on it."

Sylvia examined the brooch with great attention. It was evidently of Indian workmanship, delicately chased and thickly set with jewels. The serpent, which was apparently wriggling across the stout gold pin of the brooch, had its head back studded with opals large in the center of the body and small at head and tail. These were set round with tiny diamonds, and the head was of chased gold, with a ruby tongue. Sylvia admired the workmanship and the jewels and turned the brooch over. On the flat smooth gold underneath she found the initial "A," scratched with a pin. This she showed to Paul. "I expect your mother made that mark to identify the brooch," she said.

"My mother's name is Anne," replied Paul, looking puzzled over—"Anne Beecot. Why should she mark this with an initial which has nothing to do with her name?"

"Perhaps it is a present," suggested Sylvia.

Paul snapped the case to and replaced it in his pocket. "Perhaps it is," he said. "However, when I next write to my mother I'll ask her where she got the brooch. She has had it for many years," he added musingly, "but I remember playing with it when a small boy."

"Don't tell your mother that my father fainted."

"Why not? Does it matter?"

Sylvia folded her slender hands and looked straight before her. For some time they had been seated on a bench in a retired part of the gardens, and the laughter of playing children, the music of the band playing the merriest airs from the best musical comedy, came pleasantly to their ears. "I think it does matter," said the girl seriously. "For some reason my father wants to keep himself as quiet as possible. He talks of going away."

"Going away? Oh, Sylvia, and you never told me."

"He only spoke of going away when I came to see how he was this morning," explained the girl. "I wonder if his fainting has anything to do with this determination. He never talked of going away before."

Paul wondered also. It seemed strange that after so unusual an event

FLORENCE M. FRASER-BENNETT.

We clip the following from the Penetanguishene Herald, concerning the death recently chronicled by us, of which we then had full telegraphic report:

On Tuesday night, February 25th, Mrs. F. C. Bennett, after a prolonged illness, passed peacefully away to her eternal rest. Mrs. Bennett bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude and patience, impressing with them all the other qualities of her beautiful Christian character all who knew her. Those who visited her during her illness were touched with the late cheerfulness she displayed. During all this time Mrs. Bennett received the tender ministrations of a most devoted husband. A funeral service was held at the family residence in the presence of a large number of friends of the deceased. The service was conducted by Rev. J. J. Cleland. hymns specially selected by the departed one were sung, and certain passages of Scripture were read by her own request. The hymns were Nos. 333, 576, 386. Presbyterian Hymnal, and the Scripture lessons John 14th chapter, 1-19, and 2d Tim. 4th chapter 1-8. Miss Thompson rendered the solo "Face to Face" with much feeling. She here gives an added improvement to the simple and touching service. After the service the remains were conveyed to the wharf and placed on the steamer for Parkhead, where interment took place on Thursday afternoon, February 27. A union memorial service was held on Sunday evening and special music rendered by the combined choirs of the Methodist and Presbyterian congregations.

Mrs. Bennett, nee Florence Fraser, early life was spent in Napanee, Bridge st. and River Road. Deceased leaves behind a most devoted husband, Mr. A. T. Bennett, formerly of this place, and an aged father, Mr. Allan Fraser, who is now ill in Hotel Dieu, Kingston. The relatives and many friends have the deepest sympathy of the whole community.

DANGERS OF DAMPNESS TO POULTRY.

Dampness is one of the most prolific causes of disease in the poultry yard, giving rise to roup, rheumatism and a variety of other ailments to which poultry are susceptable. It is therefore, as well to keep a good lookout for any symptoms in the way of colds, sneezing, lameness, etc., and deal with the victims promptly. No poultry keeper should be without a box of roup pills in his possession, as a dose given at the outset will often ward off serious trouble. Rheumatism is very apt to follow in the wake of a damp season, and this disease may usually be cured by prompt application of a good embrocation. Whatever the ailment, it should be treated at the start, measures at the same time being taken to make good any shortcomings responsible, such as leaky roofs in the houses or lack of proper drainage in the runs. Those who have had sufficient foresight to provide their fowls with covered-in runs will find the benefit in a wet season, not only in egg production, but in freedom from the diseases to which a spell of prolonged wet weather invariably gives rise.

A hand plate of glass rather than brass on doors finished in white enamel will preserve the white effect, and protect the finish equally well.

..CLOTHING BOYS..

When a boy and good weather get together—clothing must needs be sturdy.

We know all about boys, for we have been clothing them for these many years.

There's a whole army of mothers in this vicinity who never think of going anywhere else for Boys' Clothes.

Boys' Suits in Reefer, Norfolk and Single-breasted styles, sizes 7 to 15 years—$2.75, $3.00, $3.50, $4.00 to $7.50. Every suit guaranteed to do its duty.

The stylish appearance of our Boys' Suits appeal on sight to the ideas of every mother. Their careful, sturdy making, the splendid wear-resisting cloths and the fairness of the price appeal to her practical side. We buy our Boys' Clothing from W. R. Johnston & Co., who pride themselves on the make and trimmings used. You will find the trimmings will wear as long as the cloth.

Every mother of a boy should see our stock.

Fine Tailoring !

Everything comes to him who goes after the thing the other fellow is waiting for. The truth of this assertion has been proved by the success of our tailoring business. We went after the trade and we've got it.

The best dressed men in this vicinity now come here for clothes. Take note and see.

.....We're Expert Tailors.....

Yes, we're experts in our line, but we're not in any sense high-priced or fancy-priced tailors.

Suits to order—$15 00, 17.00, 20.00 and up.
Overcoats to order—$15.00, 18.00, 20.00 and up.
Trousers to order—$3 50, 5 00, 6 50 and up.

The Spring Woolens are all in, and we'd be pleased to talk tailoring with you at your convenience. It may be too early to wear your Spring Suit—but it's not too early to make your selection while the stock is large and the new goods are here to select from.

VERY PLEASANT SURPRISE.

A very pleasing event occurred at Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Kimmerly's, Bloomington, on Monday evening last, when about sixty of their neighbors and friends took possession of their home and presented them with an address and some remembrances of their affection. A dainty tea was provided by the hostess, after which the evening was spent in music, and games. The address read as follows:

Dear Mr. Mrs. Kimmerly and family,—

We, your friends and neighbors feel we cannot allow you to sever your connection from this neighborhood without some slight measure evincing the esteem in which you are held, and we have taken this opportunity of assembling here ourselves to your departure to spend one more pleasant evening at your home. Having resided amongst you for the past seven years, we learn of your removal from our midst with much regret. You have by your genial manners and kind actions endeared yourselves to us, and your absence will cause a vacancy in our lives that cannot easily be filled.

As neighbors we can only express our feelings in words but we can unanimously say we have always found you willing to aid and assist us in any way that was ever requested of you. We thought we lose you as a neighbor we will always retain you as a friend.

And now we take pleasure in asking you, Mr. and Mrs. Kimmerly, to accept this chair and table. Ruby this berry set. Earl this pearl card case; and we leave their intrinsic value, but as a slight remembrance of the regard and esteem in which you are held by this community.

We all unite in wishing each of you a long and happy life, health, happiness and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of your Bloomington friends.

THAT OYSTER TRUST.

"To the Editor of The Globe:—We often hear about newspapers forming public opinion. We surmise that communications they receive but do not support the opinion the paper is endeavoring to make a "public opinion" are given scant attention. If published it is an incongruous as possible, and at any rate it is but a little, more than private opinion, completely overwhelmed by the clarion notes of the maker of public opinion. There is a strong public opinion that protective duties favor monopolies. The Globe has been instrumental in aiding the formation of that opinion. But we, who expected material action by the Government which attained power upon the cry of "Tariff for revenue only, with incidental protection," and who have considered The Globe to be our trusted spokesman, cannot help saying, "What a difference it makes when we're in." In your comments upon the corner in oysters we have failed to see a suggestion that the Government removes the duties. Had this monopoly come to light under the Conservative Government, what would The Globe have said? "Consistency thou art a jewel"! "Grit voter thou art a Jewed." G. C. F. WARD."

The foregoing is from the Daily Globe, 22nd Feb., and I think it must be our Dr. Ward, of Napanee. Anyway he deserves praise for the nerve he showed in writing such to The Globe, and it is a wonder that the Globe printed it. The public opinion that they would have prevail would be their own opinion, a matter of selfishness. The Globe stated previous to Mr. Ward's article that hundreds of barrels of oysters would have to be dumped and wasted, owing to the combine in the trade having set too high a price on them, and in consequence the public felt unable to purchase them, and now the season is so far advanced that so many on hand cannot be consumed if the price was lowered, so the Trust will hold their price and dump the oysters unsold.

Mr. Editor, this makes the hair stand on my head, for I feel like taking the men who have the privilege to take those oysters from the sea, from the Government, and the Government with a protective duty so called to bar the American oysters from coming in, and then destroying these oysters because they cannot sell them at such high prices. I feel, as I said, like taking these dealers and the heads of the Government and, with a big crowd to my back, dump these miserable rascals into the sea where the oysters came from.

What if farmers would combine and burn all surplus hay and keep the price at $20.00 a ton, and even that would be more humane to the public than the present oyster trust.

The poor starving immigrants at Sharbtown, Toronto, met with a generous response this winter by the Globe's call for aid, but now what of the Mallory Fund call by The Globe, to educate a blind man who lost his sight for his bravery in South Africa. It is not coming so freely, the people believing that these unfortunates should be looked after by the Government that sent them out there to be shot to get rid of them, and pay their agents $2.00 per head to get more in the country and do likewise by them when the time comes to fight some other foreign country, or leave them here for generous Canadians to support.

Verily, what selfishness there is displayed by these Governments.

ALMIRA ANN PRESLAR.

The beloved wife of James Preslar, peacefully passed away from the sorrows of earth to the joys of Heaven, at their home in Northbrook, in the seventy-fourth year of her age. She was born in Camden, and she joined the Methodist church at the age of fifteen, and continued to be true to the church of her choice, a faithful and loyal to her Saviour and King till death. Her conduct being most consistent, and her character an ideal to be copied, and her passion for the salvation of the lost, being the primary and chief aim of her work. Her home was always open to the ministry, and she did much for the cause of God, and the writer regrets to think that her cheerful companion of her life is no more on earth. In her home she was a queen. She was a model mother, and she has left the impress of her life upon her family, who revere her memory. On Sunday, March 15th, she seemed as cheerful and healthy as ever, and it was not until they met at the family altar, in the exercise of their morning devotions and she read to them the 1st and 2nd chapters 1st Corinthians, that her voice was noticed to change, and when she had done she dropped into unconsciousness, saying, "I am very thankful this night, big that I can look to Jesus for strength." She never regained it, and on Wednesday, March 11th, without a struggle her earthly tabernacle was dissolved, and the living Spirit took its departure to the Building of God. There was left to mourn her loss, a loving husband, four daughters and three sons, viz: Mrs. Frank Fleming, Mr. Henry Preslar, Nevada; Mrs. John Campbell, Ottawa; Mr. Marshall Preslar, Northbrook; Mrs. William Both, Northbrook; Mrs. Eddie Preslar, Northbrook, and Mr. Fred. Preslar, Syracuse. On March 19th the funeral services were held in the home, after which she was conveyed to the Northbrook burying ground, where she awaits the power that will translate the sleeping dust on the morning of the resurrection.

She bid no one a last farewell,
She waved her hand to none;
But took her flight before we knew
That she had from us gone.

We loved her. Ah! no tongue can tell
How much we loved her and how well.
God loved her too, and thought it best
To take her to her Heavenly rest.

HOW TO TREAT OLD ORCHARDS.

It is generally supposed that old apple trees, once their trunks and limbs have become covered with lichens and moss, are past their usefulness. This, however, is not always so. If not too old or lifeless, they can by proper treatment be brought again into good bearing. The rough, loose bark should first be scraped off from the trunks and limbs, and all the dead branches and crowding removed. In proportion to every acre, 150 pounds each of nitrate of soda and muriate of potash, including 100 pounds of dried blood and 600 pounds of acid phosphate, should then be applied, unless the ground is already in a pretty fair state. To stimulate the trees to a more vigorous growth, nitrogen in some way must be liberally supplied, and frequently it is more economical to do it by sowing leguminous clover crops, such as crimson clover, vetches, soy beans, cowpeas and the like. The ground should next be ploughed and tilled more or less during the summer, and to kill the coddling moth and various other insects the trees sprayed with Paris green and the Bordeaux mixture; the latter is especially good for cleaning the limbs of the moss and preventing the growth of scab and other fungus diseases. If there is any life left in the orchard at all, this will be pretty sure to cause the trees to make a satisfactory and thrifty growth, although they may not bear much fruit. Hence the necessity of continuing the same treatment another year, with the exception that a little less fertilizer may be applied, and, in fact, for several years. Fruit can then be obtained much sooner, as well as in larger quantities, than by cutting the trees down and planting new ones. If the land is such that cultivation of it is impossible, pasturing it with swine and sheep will produce the desired results.

CRANBERRY CULTURE.

Sand is very essential in the culture of cranberries. Anyone who can procure a bed of sand, will be able to produce a bountiful crop of cranberries. The cranberry will flourish well on pure sand or pure muck. Cranberry vines require three principal substances for their luxuriant growth, which are sand, muck and water. Where those three things can be obtained, cranberries can be raised in satisfactory crops. Some persons think that the fruit is better when raised near salt water, but it is an undestood thing that you can grow cranberries on dry land as well as on low land, if you dam up the water so as to flood the vines once a year. At a certain season of the year, the entire ground must be covered with water long enough to destroy the insects that lay their eggs in the vines. In fact, all this fruit requires is black swamp muck, mixed with sand and so arranged that the land can be flooded at pleasure. When vines are flooded in winter, the water must be sufficiently deep to keep the ice above the vines.

Unused table linens should be washed at least once a year, thoroughly dried and refolded to prevent yellowing and rotting where the folds are.

Lennox and Addington Historical Society.

SOME NOTES OF EARLY ECCLESIASTICAL HISTORY

BAY OF QUINTE DISTRICT.

The following paper was read by Rev. Canon Jarvis, at the regular monthly meeting of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society, at their hall in the Public Library, Friday evening, February 28th, 1908:

This paper does not claim to be more than a compilation from sources more or less accessible of such facts bearing upon the earlydays of religion in this district as seem to be worth preserving in a connected form, and which may be of interest to members of the Historical Society. I shall be pardoned if I confine myself chiefly to matters more directly connected with my own denomination, the Church of which I am a perfect in the families, leading only incidentally those facts which others could deal with more acceptably.

On the occasion of the consecration of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, a couple of years ago, I took it upon myself to prepare an album containing an account of the celebrations connected therewith, the autographs of as many as possible of the clergy and laity in attendance, and other details which would be of interest in the future. Of this album a portion was retained by the parish, but is incomplete. The paper now presented is in part a transcript of the latter, those portions being omitted which would have little interest those who were members of the congregation. In submitting these memoranda for your consideration I should welcome any corrections, or suggestions that the members of the Society can may be able to offer. My desire is to have a full and correct record of the early days of the Church.

It is the duty of the historiographer to carry his researches back as far as possible, and make waiters try to carry their readers with the back of legend, as the human race has a tendency to regions of myth and legend—very entertaining certainly but not always instructive. Sometimes no doubt, the outstanding facts are made to the critical sifting process now vaunted as a necessary many grains of truth, or probable truth are often removed, while subordinate matters are preserved. But the process is necessary to get the material of this sort to go upon or to weigh with, reasonable certainty and we will not take as very far back into the dim shadows of the past, as the couple of hundred years or so does seem a long time to us in this new world of ours.

According to the first authentic accounts we have—and for that I have no doubt, it appears that the earliest missionary of the Church of England to penetrate into this district was one of the noble pioneers, civilizers and religious teachers of the Mohawk Valley, Rev. Joseph Stuart. The Indian was always marked by heroic friendship and very often also by heroic martyrdom. This was in the days of the pioneers when Canada was New France.

To come down to dates. In 1695 the great Champlain first set eyes upon the waters of Lake Ontario and the Bay of Quinte. Religious had been there before, and the grandeur and beauty of scenery must have impressed themselves upon the minds of the gentlemen of the cloth, as they do upon those of us who, can hardly realize in our imagination of fact Champlain was the world-renowned explorer at our very doors. Champlain, one might almost say, somewhere near the head of His Bay. In his party there was a Recollet Father, whose name I do not know, and who employed his time in evangelizing the Indians.

When Champlain in the following spring, made his way up the Ottawa River as far as the portages to its tributary and round by Lake Nipissing to the French River and Georgian Bay, I am sorry I cannot trace and follow and learn the story of the finding of his celebrated astrolabe, which was deposited in the museum at Ottawa, and which goes to show that Champlain was once upon a time, (summer nearly 300 years ago,) not very far from to our old friend, Napanee. Who knows all about it—I don't. But when the explorers broke camp, and the missionary stayed to have stayed behind with his new flock, if he did not, certainly the other Missionaries soon took up his work, for we know that when Champlain came back he found the Indians Christians that he had left behind. Some of the Jesuit Missionaries made their way to the Mohawk country, and more generally, Franciscans landed at Cataraqui (as then the name of Kingston) and coming inland, where Kingston, or rather Fort Henry now stands. Mr. Andrews says, (letter handed in July 12th, 1871, and next day began the erection of the Fort which for a long time bore his name. We are not told that Fraquemont was a good orange man, but no doubt that he made choice of the site for the fort in order to have access to water. The fact that that little knoll or mound is called Fraquemont Hill, and two later is hardly to be considered a great deal of evidence in a matter of a few years the way of the early chroniclers, but it is a good story.) Anyhow, both events happened on the 12th of July, but we digress, and I am afraid we shall be drifting into a religious controversy, which, as I intend to in these walls, so we had better get back to Fraquemont.

He was not at Cataraqui by the Captains of the Five Nations, accompanied by the Abbe d'Urve, who was then probably in charge of the Mission. Abbe d'Urve did not come to pay the Indians a visit, but to take up his residence. That the Captains of the Five Nations should have evidence of the Abbe is strong evidence that considerable progress of some kind had been made in converting the Indians by this time. The record of the erection of a chapel somewhere in the neighborhood; possibly where the trail leading into the interior began near the site of Champlain's camp at Hay Bay. But no one knows how to trace the line to guide us, not a log remains to tell which was the chapel, not a stone remains in our jubilee Historical Museum to tell which was the chapel could even get a splinter of it, we should have a relic that would rival in antiquity and in interest the old log chapel at Tadoussac or the mouth of the Saguenay, said to be the oldest church in Canada—if not on the continent—the oldest standing log church at all events.

War in Mission wiped out in one of those terrible inter-tribal wars or one of the bloody raids between the Iroquois and the Hurons? Was one of those first arms made by white men to be found in the hands of the Mohawk Indians? Or did the Abbe d'Urve go home for good with Sir Gilbert Parker, quite in his line. If he does not know the history, he is quite capable of making a romance that will be at least as interesting and perhaps more thrilling than the actual event, if event there was. All we know is that the Mission has passed away.

The sacred tapers lights are gone and Gray mons has clad the Altar stone The holy image is over thrown,

The bell has ceased to toll.

The Holy Shrine to ruin sunk,

Deserted is the pious monk—

God's blessing on his soul!

But we need not follow the fortunes of the country under French rule, for the next hundred years, down to the treaty of Paris 1763, by which Canada became a British colony, to develop in another hundred years into the Dominion of Canada. The fact is, I fancy, that not the merest sprigs of historical reference to the Church of England in Quebec has to complain if the few facts and information when dealing with the church from a secular standpoint, and the only one we could find, would be of no value for our present purpose. No doubt if we had recourse to the transactions of the Jesuits or the annals of the Recolets, we should find much to interest us. But by the end of the XVIII. century, the Jesuits and the Iroquois, the Recolet Fathers and their Indian converts had become distributed over the whole district outside the City of Kingston, had reverted to the condition of secular existence.

Our next chapter of Ecclesiastical history then opens with the advent of the United Loyalists in 1783-4. But to get a better view of the religious condition of the time we must turn our eyes for a few moments far afield. We are all familiar with the story of the Loyalists, and do not wish to renew old controversies with our neighbors across the Lake. We have buried the hatchet, and have no wish to dig it up again, and they have learned to smell side by side in peace and in mutual respect.

However, our fathers of Loyalist tendencies then residing in the New England states, found it conducive to their self respect, if not to the preservation of their lives, to abandon their homes in the new republic and seek asylum in Canada. Many found their way to New Brunswick, others finally settled along the St. Lawrence and on the shores of Lake Ontario and elsewhere. We have to start now with a large proportion of these refugees, whose home was originally in the Mohawk Valley in the State of New York. They came from the neighborhood of Fort Stanwix, now the flourishing Capital of the State. Many of them, indeed, had been settled by Sir William Johnson, and some 900 families had gathered there, under the shelter of Fort Stanwix, which was the key. John Stuart, formerly an S. P. G. Missionary at Cataraqui, had died in 1779, and Johnson had replaced the career of his book before the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel returns to Sorell in 1781, he found that most of his people had moved to the Bay of Quinte, where they landed at Adolphstown in the year 1784.

But, we are getting on a little too fast. Before this happened before the Loyalists began to arrive, Mohawk Valley was a veritable wilderness, and to them our story must return, and begin a little better. I fairly acquainted with the religious needs of the colonists in the Province of New York, and with the matters pertaining to that part of New York of which we are speaking, and I am sure that no one can hardly be said of the Indian aborigines. Sporadic efforts had been made from time to time, but had been spasmodic, but with no great persistency or success. Then as early as 1711, Queen Anne sent a deputation of four of their principal men to England, begging Queen Anne to send a Missionary. This journey was so slightly different from those before the transatlantic transportation had become an exact science. The deputation was, however, strictly conducted through Liverpool and by the Rev'd Mr. Andrews, who was then in preaching for them the appointment of the Rev'd Mr. Barclay, who arrived the following year. She took a deep interest in the Indians, and finally presented Indian on a handsome set of silver Communion plates and Altar furniture, and sent them with a church and parsonage. This silver communion service has a history of its own, but perhaps it may be allowed a moment's digression to tell of that when in the year 1776, all Iroquois, the Mohawks east of the Genesee River, and the Oneidas, an unexpected raid upon the settlements of the Indians of the Mohawk Valley, the sacred vessels in the depths of the forest. When this war was over a party of young braves set out on a pilgrimage to find and bring home the sacred trophy, having accomplished the object after many days' search, they found it in the keeping of Joseph Brant, the Mohawk Chief, at his residence at Brantford, "Tewanaste," and demanded the surrender of the vessels. Brant, who had been educated at Dr. Wheelock's school at Lebanon, Connecticut, and who bore the name "Brantford," "Tewanaste," and was a man of great influence, and was able to persuade the young braves to leave the vessels in his keeping.

It seems like a dispensation of Providence that the Indians, who had been Queen Anne's, both whites and Indians, should thus have been preserved for the use of the Church of England. For so far apart, the Indians had to make the journey complete was Missionary, re-joined his flock to minister to them in their distress. Their old home and their old church was gone, and in the Mohawk Valley in the State of New York. They came from the neighborhood of Fort Stanwix, now the flourishing Capital of the State. Many of them, indeed, had been settled by Sir William Johnson, and some 900 families had gathered there, under the shelter of Fort Stanwix, which was the key. John Stuart, formerly an S. P. G.
